Ground Fighting Ceases Along Entire Korean Front

Britain Won't Have US Admiral As Atlantic Chief

ROME, Nov. 28. (CP)—Britain today told the Atlantic Council she could not accept an American admiral as Supreme Commander of the Atlantic. A North Atlantic Treaty Organization spokesman said Britain also refused to accept the recommendation of the Atlantic chiefs of staff that the American .300-calibre rifle be adopted as the standard weapon rather than the new British .280-calibre rifle. The council shelved the blueprint drawn up a year ago for the naval command structure in the Atlantic. It also put aside decisions on Mediterranean and Middle-East commands.

The council decided that if Britain changed her attitude on an Atlantic admiral in the near future, the ministers' deputies should go ahead at once with plans to put the blueprint into effect.

Study Rifle Question.

The spokesman added the council has ordered its defence production abroad to study the question of production of the two types of rifle and the ammunition for them.

The US has argued that though the British rifle might be technically superior, this superiority does not justify re-gearing industry for its production.

Faced with a rift on methods of supervising the proposed European army, the council today asked the six countries which will take part in the army to settle their differences in a series of talks in Paris.

Robert Schuman, French foreign minister, told correspondents the army should be born within the next two months.

The US, France and the European supreme commander himself, Gen. Eisenhower want the proposed 43-division force to be controlled by a supra-national poltical authority.

The Benelux countries—Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—are reluctant to surrender their sovereignty to this sort of authority, especially on financial questions.

Fear Chinese May Resume War After Truce

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 28 (AP)—Communist truce negotiators today refused to ban military build-ups in Korea during an armistice or to set up joint inspection teams to police the truce.

The Red stand led Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief negotiator for the United Nations' command, to express suspicion that the Reds might be planning to resume fighting after a temporary truce.

Joy told reporters "The Communists came out in the open and said they were completely opposed to our principles" for inspection teams and guarantees against military build-ups."

"They brought up the question of withdrawal of foreign troops" Joy reported. "They said that with withdrawal of foreign troops the problem "would be settled."

"You see what we are up against?" the Admiral asked.

Northern Korean Lt.-Gen. Nam Il accused the allies of seeking to "perpetuate an armistice" rather than solve the Korean problem.

"The withdrawal of all foreign forces is a necessary condition for a complete and peaceful settlement of the Korean question," the North Korean said. This is to be done at a higher level. Nam Il said that is where the build-up question should be settled, too.

Truce negotiators reached tentative agreement on all other points for making a cease-fire effective, the communique said, and then adjourned until 11 am Thursday (9 pm EST Wednesday).

Most of the three-hour and 35-minute session Wednesday was devoted to arguing over the UN proposals against military build-ups and for joint Allied-Communist inspection teams.

The Communists said the ideas were "inappropriate and impractical"—"fanastic and impossible." UN negotiators said they were essential to preventing a resumption of the war.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief UN delegate, said these two provisions are the meat of the Allied proposal for supervising a truce. He added:

"The UN command will not agree to any armistice that does not provide minimum safeguards against the resumption of hostilities."

Reach Agreement On Power Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP)—An agreement has been reached between the Ontario and Federal governments for the development of power on the international section of the St. Lawrence river, it was disclosed today.

Transport Minister Chevrier placed on the Commons order paper legislation calling for parliament ratification of the new agreement. Details of the agreement will be given when the legislation is introduced in the Commons.

The power development is linked with construction by Canada of the St. Lawrence navigation project.

Legislation providing for the establishment of a Canadian crown agency to handle the navigational project may be introduced in the Commons later this week.

Tired Teaching So Faked Murder

WINDSOR, Nov. 28 (CP). — Alfred Greene said Tuesday night that he left his wife and four children in Toronto, faked his own murder and ran away with a thrice-divorced woman because he was "fed up with school teaching." He decided to go back into newspaper work.

Greene, 38, and his paramour, Mrs. Beatrice Reason, 32, were taken into custody in Chicago two weeks ago. They were brought to Detroit and were to be turned over today to Windsor police who hold a warrant for Greene for deserting his wife and children. No charge has been laid against Mrs. Reason.

At a deportation hearing in Chicago, Greene said he tried to make his disappearance look like murder. When he left Toronto Aug. 9, 1950, he left his motor car, the seats smeared with blood, in a north end ravine. He left his broken glasses and personal papers in the car.

Greene told a reporter that when he left Toronto, he went directly to St. Louis, Mo., where he "had no trouble getting employment selling advertising for a newspaper."

Smallwood Government Is Returned

Complete Results Not Known For Several Days

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 28. (CP) — The Liberal forces of Premier Smallwood, assured of again forming Newfoundland's government, picked up their 43th seat when counting of Newfoundland's provincial election ballots resumed today.

The victory, in one of the two harbor Main-Bell island seats, was a gain from the Progressive Conservatives.

D. I. Jackman, who retained the other seat for the Progressive Conservatives, was the first member of his party to be elected.

A. M. Duffy, defeated PC candidate in Ferryland, said meanwhile he probably would ask a recount. He lost the seat by 31 votes.

The second Liberal victory today was in Burin riding where the sitting member, Philip S. Forsey, was returned.

Some Confusion

A brief period of confusion developed at election headquarters here today when a Liberal was shown ahead in Trinity North on the basis of returns which later turned out to be those of the last election. The returns were published by a daily newspaper and broadcast over several radio stations. No one appeared to know how the mistake occurred.

When counting stopped Tuesday night Liberals had won 11 seats and were leading in four others, two of them carried by Progressive Conservatives in the last election.

One of the Liberal wins, in Ferryland, was a gain from an Independent who won in the 1949 election with a healthy majority.

Liberals were conceded victory when they had 10 members elected and the pattern of returns from others showed much the same trend as in 1949 when they took 22 of the 28 seats.

Gordon Higgins, Progressive Conservative organizer, said his party had not fought the election in hopes of forming a government but hoped to elect a strong opposition.

Believe Tito To Free Stepinac

BELGRADE, Nov. 28—(AP)—Premier Marshal Tito indicated Tuesday night the Archibshop Aloysius Stepinac might be released from prison within a month.

He did not specifically refer to "release" but said the "question" of the imprisoned spiritual leader of Yugoslavia's 7,000,000 Roman Catholics would be "solved within one month."

His statement was printed in the issue of Borba, voice of the Yugoslav Community party, to be published Thursday. It is a reply to a letter from Drew Pearson, American newspaper and radio columnist.

Tito did not say whether the Roman Catholic prelate would be given a pardon or a parole.

FIRST ATOMIC HEATING PLANT—Now in operation is the word's first heating plant powered by atomic energy. It is at the Atomic Research Establishment, Harwell, England. From a large experimental atomic pile, the system supplies heat for an 80-suite office building, saving about 1,000 tons of coal a year. Above, a workman connects up pipes during the plant's construction.

7 Ships Badly Battered By Maritime Gale, Salvage Operations Begin

HALIFAX, Nov. 28. (CP) — Three more vessels were added to the toll of distress today on the North Atlantic seaboard but a moderating sea brought relief to battered shipping. Salvage and rescue operations continued. Here is a recapitulation of havoc caused by a two-day sou'easter that took five lives and battered many ships — most of them fishermen and coasters:

1. The 390-ton Yarmouth, NS, coaster Vagabond Prince went aground at Codroy on the southwest tip of Newfoundland in heavy seas and during a snowstorm. Her crew is safe and they will try to refloat her later today.

2. A freighter, believed to be the 2,000-ton Italian ship Carla Maria G., struck at Mont Louis, near the northeast extremity of the Gaspe peninsula of Quebec, after parting her cables. She was hard aground and asking for assistance to refloat.

3. The Gloucester dragger Mary M. crashed ashore at Cuttyhunk, Mass., taking five men to death. One survivor told how the crew had tried to swim the relatively short distance to shore but they were battered by the angry seas.

Rammed On Island

4. The 260-ton Newfoundland coaster Ice Hunter rammed broadside on Madame Island at the Atlantic mouth of the Strait of Canso. A tug was expected to start salvage operations later today.

5. The Gloucester trawler Ronald and Mary Jane, with her crew still working the pumps and hand bailing with buckets, was under tow and making good time to Lunenburg, NS.

6. A navy launch, recalled from the Ronald and Mary Jane rescue when it was learned that she was out of danger, was back in port with her radio out of commission, her windscreen shattered and other damage. Her crew told of being forced to zig-zag to avoid meeting the big seas head-on.

Escape To Shore

7. The 23-man crew of the Great Lakes barge John H. Price escaped to shore Tuesday night at Ste. Anne Des Monts on the Gaspe coast as tremendous waves rolling across the wide St. Lawrence estuary pounded the grounded vessel to pieces. Four sailors were taken to hospital for treatment.

Minor Skirmishes Take 3 Egyptian Lives

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Nov. 28 — (AP).—Minor skirmishes between British troops and Egyptian underground fighters Tuesday night ended in death for three Egyptians caught trying to dig up communications cables near here an RAF spokesman reported today.

Bands of Egyptians ambushed a train and a motor convoy on the main road from Ismailia — midway city on the disputed Suez Canal — and El Kebir. In each case, the British were reported to have beaten off the Egyptians. No casualties were reported.

Fire Threatens Hdqts. Of FBI

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 (AP) —A four-alarm fire just off Pennsylvania Avenue threatened an important hotel, a department store, and the government section of the capital before it was brought under control today shortly before dawn.

Firemen battling the flames in below-freezing weather confined damage to two 11-th-Street buildings across the street from the Washington Evening Star, and around the corner from Federal Bureau of Investigation headquarters.

Fireman Andrew Goldsmith was seriously injured when an air blast from an exploding window blew him off a 40-foot ladder.

One three-storey buiding occupied by a dance hall, a billiard parlor and a pawnbroker exchange was gutted. A second housing a drug store, watch-repair shop and a photographer's studio was damaged.

Nearby are two large hotels—the Raleigh and the Harrington—and several department stores and government buildings, including the Justice Department and Post Office Department.

A block away is the old Ford Theatre, where Abraham Lincoln was assasssinated.

King To Broadcast Christmas Message

LONDON, Nov. 27—(Reuters)—The King will broadcast to the nation Christmas Day as usual, the British Broadcasting Corporation announced Tuesday.

It is not known whether the King will broadcast from Sandringham, his country home where he traditionally spends Christmas, or from Buckingham Palace, where he has been recuperating from his lung operation.

2 Peterborough Men Committed For Trial

OSHAWA, Nov. 28 (CP) — Walter (Bud) McAnerin and Fred G. Hughey, both of Peterborough, were committed for trial today by Magistrate F. S. Ebbs on charges of conspiracy to break into a warehouse at Ajax and steal metal owned by International Nickel Company.

A third man is still sought for complicity in the crime committed in July and August.

UN Soldiers Ordered Halt Battle

Told To Fire Only If Attacked In Unofficial Truce

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 28. — (AP)—Field dispatches based on Allied officers' reports said ground fighting in Korea came to a complete stop today, with only the official announcement lacking to proclaim a cease-fire.

Troops of the United Nations Tuesday night and early today received orders not to fire at the enemy unless attacked, field dispatches said.

By mid-afternoon, apparently well aware of the gentlemen's agreement Chinese soldiers played volley ball in full view of non-shooting American troops.

When darkness fell, the Reds abandoned their 18-month blackout and the twinkling of Communist bonfires and the glow of cigarettes marked out the silent 145-mile front.

AP correspondent Milo Farneti reported from the western front that he had seen an order from US Eighth Army headquarters to stop fighting.

Deny Order Given

Eighth Army headquarters denied that it issued the order.

Farneti said the allies stopped fighting immediately the order was received.

Only a few rounds of red artillery, possibly from uninformed gunners, broke the unnatural stillness.

Patrols roamed the quiet front under orders to take no offensive action. And in many cases they made no contact.

The Eighth Army issued a warning statement that said "there is as this date, 28 November, 1951, no cease-fire in Korea."

This statement was directly contrary to the facts on the front —facts known to tens of thousands of soldiers and to scores of war

Took Two Boys To Drive Car

FREEPORT, Ill., Nov. 28 (AP) Two small brothers are back home today after a lark in a stolen car they had to drive jointly—"I steered and he geared," said the smaller boy, 11.

The boys, who spent 18 hours in the Freeport jail, are Joseph Stoecker, 15, who is four feet, 11 inches tall, and Ronald, the 11-year-old, who is just four feet.

They were found at 6 am Tuesday cold, hungry and crying.

Police found an abandoned car nearby and the boys admitted taking the car for a joy ride.

Asked how they were able to drive the car, 11-year-old Ronald said he sat on his brother's lap.

"I steered and he geared," Ronald said.

The boys were released to their mother. No charges have been filed.

Seven Children Die In Two Fires, Trapped In Beds

By The Canadian Press

Seven children were burned early today, four in Kingston and three at St. Ferreal, Que., when their houses were destroyed in night fires. At Kingston the four children were burned despite several rescue attempts by their father. A quick-spreading fire destroyed the family's two-storey frame house on Perth Road, about 20 miles north of the city. The dead: Neil Arthur Trousdale, 15, Mary Elizabeth Trousdale, 13, Percy James Trousdale, 12, and Sheila Blanche Trousdale, 9.

All were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Arthur Trousdale. The parents were awakened by Neil's cries shortly after midnight to discover the house filled with smoke.

Mr. Trousdale tried to get into the children's bedroom but was driven back by smoke and flames. Then he returned to his own bedroom and helped his wife scramble through a window and lower herself to the ground on a bed sheet.

Tries Rescue

Mr. Trousdale followed her. Then he tried to get into the house through the front door. Again he was driven back. Flames were so fierce that an attempt to get into the children's room using a ladder also failed.

Cause of the fire was not determined.

Two stoves were burning in the house when Mr. and Mrs. Trousdale went to bed.

There are no children left in the Trousdale family.

The house was destroyed and all their possessions were lost. Mr. and Mrs. Trousdale are staying with friends in the nearby village of Inverary.

Mr. Trousdale is employed as fireman at a dairy at Sydenham, 12 miles north of Kingston.

Three Others Die

In St. Ferreol, Que., Mrs. Leonidas Racine and her three children were burned to death when their two-storey home was gutted by fire. The husband suffered severe burns.

The dead children are Leonidas, Jr., 6, Gaston, 3, and Joceylyn, 2.

Mr. Racine was taken to hospital at Ste. Anne de Baupre, near this Montmorency county village.

Flames broke out apparently from an overheated furnace and took the sleeping family by surprise.

Churchill Won't Tell Amount Of Aid Asked

LONDON, Nov. 28 —(CP)— Prime Minister Churchill declined to say today how much US dollar aid he will seek for Britain when he confers with President Truman in Washington in January.

Informed sources have guessed that Britain will seek around $300,000,000 to shore up her sagging economy and limping rearmament program.

Labor member Marcus Lipton asked Churchill in the House of Commons to tell what requests for financial aid he will make of Truman. Churchill replied:

"I do not think it would be fitting for me to make a public statement now about a question on which I hope to have confidential discussions with President Truman."

Big 3 Accept Asian Plan For Arms Talk

PARIS, Nov. 28—(AP)—The Western Big Three today formally accepted the Asian-Arab plan for private disarmament talks—thus leaving it squarely up to Russia whether the discussions will be held.

The Western acceptance before the United Nations' General Assembly's political committee came from the British Minister of State, Selwyn Lloyd, who spoke also for the United States and France.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, of Russia, apparently awaiting signals from the Kremlin, has not shown his colors. One of his associates, Stefan Wierblowski, of Poland, denounced Western disarmament plans before the political committee Tuesday, but avoided all mention of the private-talk proposal put forth Monday by Pakistan, Iraq and Syria.

The resolution before the committee calls for the Big Four to get together behind closed doors, with Assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo, of Mexico, presiding.

Joint Decision

US delegate Philip C. Jessup approved the idea at once, but it was not formally embraced by all three Western powers until today.

Luis Battle-Berres of Uruguay, and Salvador P. Lopez of the Philippines appealed to Vishinsky to speak up. They said it is useless for delegates from little countries to keep on talking about disarmament without knowing Russia's answer.

Vishinsky said Russia is just as interested in hearing the views of Uruguay and the Phillipines as the latter are in hearing Russia's.

Chairman Finn Moe, of Norway, then adjourned the meeting and cancelled the committee's afternoon session.

British House Has Hectic Session

Takes 21 Hrs. Get Women In Home Guard

LONDON, Nov. 28. (CP)—Women may serve alongside men in Britain's reconstituted Home Guard, the House of Commons decided today after a 21-hour, all-night session marked by angry clashes.

Members of the six-week-old parliament left for home at 11 am after a gruelling session that saw one left-wing Labor member suspended for five days.

Labor members attacked the Home Guard bill—rebuilding the part-time volunteer home defence army—on the grounds that the force is being built up at the wrong time and will detract from the already-oppressive defence program.

The 20-hour and 50-minute session—longest since last June 11 when the House sat for 31 hours, 47 minutes on the finance bill—adopted an amendment allowing women to serve. But it adjourned without a vote on the bill itself.

Opposition members forced 12 vote on the bill's three clauses, attacking detail after detail and reducing progress to a snail's pace.

Dramatic Incident

Most dramatic incident of the night was the suspension of Labor member Sidney Silverman for disobeying the authority of the Deputy Speaker. Silverman challenged the chair's acceptance of a government motion to close the debate.

A motion to suspend him was passed by 194 votes to 147. He was then ordered formally to get out.

It means he will not be able to sit in parliament for five days.

The sitting was frequently in an uproar.

Angriest man in the chamber was Emanuel Shinwell, former Defence Minister, who spent the night feuding with one Conservative opponent after another.

Once he accused Sir Reginald Maninningham-Buller, the Solicitor General, of being "too cowardly to repeat an offensive remark."

And when Shinwell remarked that a visit to the barber after the late sitting would fresh him, another Conservative shouted: "Tell him to cut your throat."

Withdraws Remark

The MP withdrew this remark on Labor protests.

But the session was not without its humorous side.

Shinwell, moving an amendment (later carried) that all-male units must be created first, suggested that women might occasionally accompany their husbands in home guard units.

A Conservative member asked: "Is that an advantage?"

Amid laughter, Shinwell replied: "I am not sure whether he means an advantage to the wives or to the husbands. But it may well remove apprehensions from the minds of some wives."

Bevan Starts Ball Rolling

Openly Defies Party Policy On Japanese Treaty Bill

LONDON, Nov. 28. (CP)—For the first time since the Oct. 25 general election, the group of Labor left-wingers led by Aneurin (Nye) Bevan has openly defied official party policy.

After several weeks of standing pat, Bevan and his followers made their first decisive move against the policy of the party leaders by voting to reject the Japanese peace treaty bill. Aligned with the Bevan group were a small number of Labor back-benchers who complain that the treaty makes no provision against the possibility of cut-throat Japanese competition.

Second reading of the bill was given in the House of Commons Monday when the Socialist motion to reject the treaty was defeated by 382 to 33. The 33 negative votes are believed to have come entirely from Labor members.

Bevan did not speak against the bill in the House, but he is reported to have criticized it violently at a private meeting of Labor members. Accounts of the meeting suggest that the one-time Health and Labor Minister, who resigned from the Labor government last April because he considered Britain's arms budget too high, delivered the hardhitting sort of speech that has come to be expected from him.

These reports suggest that Bevan used the peace treaty as a springboard for the anti-American attack which has become a distinguishing feature of "Bevanite" propaganda.

Voting with the Bevan group were Labor members who do not support Bevan but are concerned about the threat to British trade poised by possible Japanese competition. Thus Ellis Smith, who represents a constituency with cotton and pottery interests, said the bill should be rejected because Japan, he claimed, is already breaking accepted fair practices through "copying" articles of pottery and textiles.

Born In City E. B. Stockdale Dies In Toronto

One of the four founders of the Toronto Granite Club, Edward Bently Stockdale, Toronto, who was born in Peterborough, died Tuesday at the age of 69.

Mr. Stockdale was a former vice-president and general manager of the Trusts and Guarantee Co. Ltd.

$115 Damage Done As Two Cars Collide

Damage estimated at $115 resulted when two cars collided at Aylmer and King Streets at 5.15 Tuesday evening.

A car going south on Aylmer St., driven by John Sarson, of 216 Park St., and a westbound King St. car driven by Mrs. Mary Fowler, RR 4, Peterborough, collided in the centre of the intersection.

Mrs. Fowler said her view was partially blocked by cars parked on the east side of Aylmer St., in front of a hotel. She said she stopped at Aylmer St., and was just starting into the intersection when the accident occurred.

Damage to the left side of Sarson's car was estimated at $40. Approximately $75 damage was done to the grill and right fender of Mrs. Fowler's car.

Constable Andre Dalton investigated.

Education Board Candidates Outline Programs

The growth of the school population and the resulting problem of classroom accommodation were emphasized by board of education candidates at the public meeting Tuesday night.

Other speakers at the meeting, sponsored by the Women's Study Group on Civic Affairs, were Mayor Max Swanston, Mayor-Elect Hugh Waddell, and the candidates for council and the utilities commission.

Six candidates, including four 1951 turstees, are contesting the five vacancies on the board.

Dr. Ralph Honey, board chairman, said that during the year the PCVS staff was brought up to 52 and the public school staff to 187. The board hoped to have Kenner Collegiate opened before the end of 1952; a new school is being planned in Ashburnham, and a site has been purchased for a junior school in the south end.

Dr. Honey said that the board did not feel that everything was "all right" so far as accommodation was concerned, but they had to keep one eye on the mill rate and the other on the teacher-trustee ratio.

Largest Spender

The board is the largest municipal spending body, said Dr Honey, with a yearly budget of $874,000. And the budget will be increased, he predicted.

Trustee Stanley Adamson, accountant, said his chief interest was in seeing a long-range plan covering the board's building; the maintenance and improvement of the older schools; and a sound wage policy.

As chairman of the advisory vocational committee, he reported an increase in the enrolment in the commercial and vocation departments. In a city of commercial and manufacturing inteerests, this is to be encouraged.

New Courses

During 1950 a supervision course was added to the night school classes and this year a sheet metal class for day and night school classes. Also cost accounting.

Trustee G. Wilson Craw, managing editor, said that the board must go further afield and select school sites to accommodate the children. Apart from the Prince of Wales annex, designed to take a four-room addition, there are no schools left that can be added to.

"These new schools should be of one-storey construction, of four or six-room units, with plans for adding more rooms as they are required. I would like to see a working plan with city council so these new sites would be large enough to be developed into community areas. That is school, park, and space for recreational activities. In other words the distant schools would become community centres."

Mr. Craw said that in 13 years the public school attendance has increased from 2,639 to 4,554, requiring 48 extra classrooms.

He said that the Peterborough board has built classrooms at an average cost of $20,000, about $5,000 less per room than the figure paid by other centres. And despite all the building debenture tax rate has remained practically the same.

Charles Huffman, contractor, a third-generation native of Peterborough, said he has two school-age children of his own and he is interested in youth work: chairman of St. Peter's and PCVS Key Clubs, sponsored by Kiwanis, and a former commander of the Sea Cadets.

Though his time is at present largely occupied by his business, and other activities, he promised to re-arrange his schedule if elected to look after the board's business.

Edmund Humphrey, maintenance mechanic, said education was a business and candidates should have some experience in this type of business.

On Trade School

Mr. Humphrey said he was on the organizing staff of the Hamilton trade school, and set up a training schedule at Camp Borden for 250 men. He has also kept maintenance and records for a fleet of army vehicles, and he has been responsible for large sums of money.

Arthur Pitchford, department manager, is seeking re-election on the basis of experience. He was a truste 1945-49 and during the last two years has kept in touch with the board's affairs by remaining as a member of the advisory-vocational committee.

Previously he had served as a North Monaghan trustee, before Confederation and May's schools were annexed by the city.

"I approved of the board-trustee committee in 1948 and tried without too much success to introduce it. (The committee has recently been set up) "I'm glad that this avenue of approach has been made."

Another trustee seeking re-election is Mrs. Ann Rowell, housewife.

Health Service

Mrs. Rowell gave a brief outline of the history of the board's health services. These services preceded and were superior to those offered by the Board of Health she said. They ate back to 1913.

The board was reluctant to relinquish these services until assured that the children would get care as good or better. At present the health committee of the board is giving serious and favorable attention to possible amalgamation.

Mrs. Rowell said she was a strong supporter of the teacher-board committee, set up to discuss "mutual problems."

Plasma Demand Won't Affect City

The urgent demand from Toronto headquarters of the Red Cross Society for blood plasma will not affect the Peterborough branch of the society which provides an unusual service in this city.

Vernon Hale, newly-appointed president of the Red Cross natfonal blood donors committee, said Tuesday in Toronto that plasma stores must be made adequate for any emergency, "and this means still larger panels of blood donors and a further increase in blood donations."

In Peterborough, blood given by donors is taken at clinics in both city hospitals. It is a free service and the only one of its kind in Ontario.

At present, there are roughly 2,000 blood donors in the city, Mrs. Fred Hooper, president of the Peterborough branch, said today. To supply blood in the quantities desired by the national blood donors committee, the city would have to yield 3,000 additional donors.

It would be a difficult job, said Mrs. Hooper.

correspondents at the front and at headquarters.

The facts were that for the time being, unless the Communists attack, there is a ground truce along the front that amounts to a cessation of hostilities on the ground.

Farneti quoted a US Third Division officer that Allied ground forces have stopped shooting at the Communists "for all practical purposes."

Affects Canadians

(Presumably the order also applied to troops of the 1st Commonwealth Division, made up of Canadian and other Commonwealth units, and United Nations formations of other nationalities.)

(Reuters News Agency, in a dispatch from Panmunjom, said the order was directed to all UN ground troops, including infantry and artillery. This would cover the 1st Commonwealth Division, made up of Canadian and other Commonwealth troops, as well as other UN formations in Korea.

The order came about 24 hours after United Nations Command and Communist negotiators at Panmunjom agreed on a provisional cease-fire line.

The order was carried out quickly by ground forces.

But the war went on in the air.

One officer said an Eighth Army directive told all units on the front not to fire on Reds unless necessary.

"We are not shooting at them unless they shoot at us," the officer said. "It will be a period of watchful waiting while we see how serious the Communists are about our 30-day cease-fire proposal."

The provisional cease-fire line is to become the cease-fire line only if negotiators reach an armistice by Dec. 27.

Ready To Act

The officer said the Eighth Army order instructed all commanders to "maintain combat effectiveness" to be ready for an Allied offensive in case truce talks stumble.

The officer said all frontline units have been warned not to relax and that the war is not over.

"We are not allowed to send out any more than reconnaissance patrols," he said. "Their mission is just to scout, not to attack."

He said the order also prohibited offensive air strikes against Red positions on the front.

The order restricted artillery to counter-battery fire.

"Our men in the companies have been told not to expose themselves unnecessarily," the officer said. "But they have orders to defend themselves against any Communist attack.

"We will be honorable about this affair," he said, "and we hope the Communists will act the same way."

Car Skids

Driving south on Highway 28, Charles W. Wilcox, of Cavan, skidded on a strip of icy pavement Tuesday as he approached a service station at 1284 Clonsilla Ave. and the car went out of control, colliding with the front end of a parked truck.

Minor damage resulted to the front ends of both the car and the truck which was owned by George Seabrooke, of Alexandra Ave.

Constable Reg McMillan investigated.

John S. Black is a certified public accountant at 184 Charlotte St.

Stock Prices Climb Steadily On Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Early afternoon stock market prices climbed steadily today. Industrials opened firmly and pushed upward for the third consecutive session.

Papers, utilities and miscellaneous industrials drew most support.

A scattered list of speculative mining issues showed large turnovers. Eureka was again a standout as more than 290,000 shares changed hands within the first three hours.

Market leaders such as International Nickel, Noranda, Quemont and United Keno Hill added fractions. Callinan Flin Flon, Eureka, Normetal, Montauban, Quebec Labrador and Sherritt-Gordon climbed pennies. Anacon Lead, Barvue, Mindamar and Minda-Scotia weakened.

Western oils made little headway. Ajax Petroleum, Del Rio, Devon-Leduc, National Petroleum, Central Explorers, Royalite, Security Free and United Oil strengthened. Anglo-Canadian and Canadian eased.

Senior golds were mixed. Holding companies turned downward.

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—(CP)—The American dollar today opened at 3 15/16 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, down 3/32 from Tuesday's close. That is, it took $1.03 15/16 Canadian to buy $1 American.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 (CP)—Canadian Shorthorn breeders Tuesday missed top honors at the International Livestock Exposition, although some of the top winners at Toronto's Royal Winter Fair competed.

In the junior heifer class, Strathore Duthie Violet, the Royal's supreme champion, took the class but was nosed out in the finals by an entry from Mathers Brothers of Mason City, Ill., who also won the reserve grand title with a summer yearling.

Strathore Duthie Violet is a 10-month-old Canadian heifer from the herd of M. H. Pimmett and Sons, Indian River.

The Royal's Shorthorn champion bull — Scotsdale Dragoon owned by S. G. Bennett of Georgetown, Ont.—placed fourth in the two-year-old bull contest. An Ohio University entry was the winner.

Award Miss Canada, '49, Damages

TORONTO, Nov. 28—(CP)—Margaret Lynn Munn of Toronto, Miss Canada of 1949, Tuesday was awarded $240 in a damage suit in which she sought $5,000 from a bread company.

Miss Munn, who once lived in North Vancouver, claimed that when an automobile in which she was a passenger was in collision with a bread truck 20 miles east of Toronto in September, 1950, she suffered a neck injury which prevents her from raising her head high without assistance. She said the neck and back trouble her whenever she has a shampoo.

William Steer, Toronto, and formerly of Peterborough, driver of the car, is also claiming damages.

The case is being heard in assize court before Mr. Justice Ferguson and jury. David J. Walker is counsel for plaintiffs.

Steer said he was Toronto-bound from Peterborough on Highway 2A when he tried to pass the truck.

He said he sounded his horn twice before the truck suddenly swerved in front of him, resulting in a collision. Both Steer and Miss Munn were unconscious for a time after the crash.

Severe Injuries

According to medical testimony, Miss Munn suffered a neck injury, a misplaced cervical disk. As a result, she said, she could not raise her head high. Her legs were cut in the crash she added.

Steer suffered chest and knee injuries when he was thrown against the steering wheel. Court was told one rib is still disjointed from his breast bone and a torn knee ligament may cause him trouble indefinitely.

Miss Munn won $3,000 in scholarships at the Miss Canada pageant in Maple Leaf Gardens in 1949 and another $1,000 scholarship from the Miss America contest. She won the Miss North American title at a world's fair in Peru.

Reds Blackmailed US Into Release, Vogeler

NEW YORK, Nov. 27—(AP)—Robert A. Vogeler says the U.S. Government fumbled his release and he is afraid it will do the same for William Oatis unless the United States adopts new and courageous tactics in dealing with Russia and her "colonies."

Vogeler is the U.S. businessman who was sentenced to 15 years in Communist Hungary on charges of being a U.S. spy. He served 14 months and was released last April 28 after the U.S. agreed to make certain concessions to Hungary.

Oatis, Associated Press correspondent in Prague, was arrested five days before Vogeler was released. He was sentenced to 10 years on charges of being a spy.

Vogeler, writing in the Saturday Evening Post, says both he and Oatis were imprisoned on orders from Stalin, carried out by Hungarian and Czech secret police.

He says he was released, on certain conditions, "by Stalin's Hungarian stooges. Oatis was arrested five days earlier, in flagrant violation of the spirit of those conditions, by Stalin's Czechoslovakian stooges. My release, therefore, was meaningless to every one except poor Oatis and myself and our respective families. The U.S. was tricked into making a series of humiliating concessions and, though I was released, Oatis was imprisoned in my stead. It was just another example of the Russian principle of heads I win, tails you lose."

Hurled From Train

Vogeler says also that his close friend, Capt. Eugene Karpe, was murdered in Austria in March, 1950, "on my account." Karpe had served for three years as U.S. naval attache in Romania. His body was found in the Salzburg Tunnel. Some of Karpe's friends in Vienna said they were convinced he was hurled from the train by Red agents. U.S. Army authorities said the death could have been accidental.

Vogeler says his worst shock on being released was to discover that Karpe was dead, Oatis was in prison, that the U.S. had been forced to rescind its ban on private travel to Hungary, reopen the Hungarian consulates in Cleveland and New York, restore Hungary's property in the U.S. zone of Germany and end the Voice of America broadcasts from Germany to Hungary.

Vogeler says the congressional action imposing an embargo on Czech trade is only one of the steps that should be taken in reprisal for jailing Oatis. He urges the extension of the embargo to Russia and all her satellites. He adds:

Same Restrictions

"We should impose on all foreign Communists in the United States the same restrictions that are are imposed on our own citizens behind the Iron Curtain. And we should begin to prosecute each and every one of them who violates an American law."

He said if the laws were strictly enforced, "I dare say we could convict 10 foreign Communists for every American unlawfully imprisoned behind the Iron Curtain. Instead, we have hesitated to punish Russian agents who break our laws for fear of jeopardizing the non-existent safety of Americans in Russian - dominated countries."

Vogeler says President Truman should have never accepted the credentials of Vladimir Prochazka, the new Czech ambassador, as long as Oatis remained in prison.

Cost Of Building, Maintaining New School Is 6 Mills

COBOURG, Nov. 28 — (ENS)—The proposed new $280,000 east end public school, on which the ratepayers will vote at the December elections, will mean a six mill jump in the tax rate, Mayor Jack Burnet told the town council in presenting a breakdown of the costs. The school board wanted a 14-room school to take care of present overcrowding, expected future needs but this was whittled down to a 10-room school, bringing the estimated cost down from $419,000 to $280,000.

Take the initial capital expenditure at $300,000, being $10,000 for renovations to the west end school, $10,000 for the site and $280,000 for the new school, the mayor said that 20 year debentures of 4½ per cent would mean a yearly debenture cost, principal and interest of $23,000. Eight new teachers would cost $20,000 a year in salaries: caretaker, $2,500; insurance, $1,500; fuel, $1,000; electricity and water, $1,000; miscellaneous, $2,000; total —$52,000. Less the 27 per cent government grant of $14,040.00 the net yearly cost would be $37,960.

Public Information.

"That would be six mills not 2.4 mills as the school board says," declared the mayor, adding that he was drawing attention to those figures without any recommendation and without criticism but for the information of the public.

Reeve Roy Dodge observed that if a ratepayer voted on the by-law without realizing what the entire cost would be, it would be unfortunate and the uninformed would resent it. Deputy-Reeve George Galbraith said that perhaps the school board should have been present at the council meeting. Town Clerk John Ewart commented that the breakdown of the figures had been furnished the school board first on the $419,000 estimate and later on the $280,000.

Several weeks ago at a council meeting attended by members of the school board, the town clerk estimated that the cost of the school and maintenance would be about six mills yearly on the 10 room school and ten mills on the 14 room building.

Advised of the mayor's remarks chairman Hubert Cooey said that the maintenance would not start until the school was finished and in operation. He pointed out that the initial cost would mean an increase of less than 2½ mills but that if the school were not built it might be necessary to handle the pupils in shifts such as from 8.00 a.m. to 1.00 p.m. and the second shift from 1.00 p.m. to six pm, which would necessitate hiring another staff of teachers. The extra costs plus through rented accommodation would mean another 3½ mills, he said.

In support of their belief that a new school is a necessity, in fact the site has now been bought at around $10,000, the board pointed out that on September 1, 1945, the enrolment was 657 pupils; 1951—824 and estimated by 1955 —975 pupils. It was intended to retain the west-end school and fix it up but its present overcrowding was looked upon with disfavour by the Department of Education. At present, kindergarten accommodation was rented and there was no government subsidy on rented classrooms. The teachers were overworked in view of the overcrowded conditions in the school. Present accommodation, on the basis of department standards is only fit for 602 pupils yet the enrolment was 824.

The board said that new accommodation required consisted of two rooms for kindergarten pupils, four standard classrooms, plus four rooms for other students, for a total of ten rooms.

The two sides of the question, that of the town council and the argument presented by the school board, present a problem which the ratepayer has to decide on election day and there has been no great volume of publicity during the past months for his guidance.

Train Goes Off Rails Only One Injured

ALBANY, NY, Nov. 28 (AP).—The last seven cars of a 10-car New York Central express early today lurched from the rails at 75 miles an hour, but remained upright.

Only one person—a crew member—was hurt. He suffered minor bruises.

The Easterner, bound from Cleveland to New York, was halted by automatic emergency brakes near Stuyvesant, 19 miles south of here at 1:30 am.

The express apparently hit a defective rail.

The 86 passengers aboard—36 of them in the train's two sleepers—remained calm.

The wreck blocked the Central's main line between Albany and Poughkeepsie. The line is double-tracked at the scene.

Fixed Canadian Prices

Probably no country in the world, outside of those which have completely regimented economies, has as many combines, cartels, unofficial price-fixing groups and monopolies as Canada. Proportionate to the business done, Canada has bigger and more monopolistic commercial practices than the United States. This happens in a land theoretically devoted to "free enterprise".

* * *

Much of the price-fixing and monopolization is necessary, for otherwise Canadian industry and business would not be able to withstand foreign (chiefly American) pressure. But there may be more of it than is good for the country and of service to the people. For that reason the Federal Government has a Combines Investigation Act and Commissioners to investigate. (Usually their reports do not result in prosecutions.) Also, this year, there is a special Committee of the House of Commons and the Senate to study combines legislation. That Committee is still hearing briefs.

* * *

One aspect of the whole business of monopolies and cartels on which the Committee has had an interim report is resale price maintenance. There are two ways in which uniform prices may be established: on a collective basis by an agreement among rival suppliers (this is called a 'horizontal' method); and on an individual basis by single supplier ('vertical'). The horizontal method is illegal. That is, according to the law, oil companies cannot combine to fix the price of gasoline, nor match companies of matches, nor tobacco companies of cigarettes. That is the law; it is often remarkable nevertheless, how uniform prices for these commodities become.

* * *

The 'vertical' method of price fixing is now under scrutiny. By this method the maker of one product (for instance, a washing machine or a cake of soap) tells the retailer what price he must sell the machine or the soap for; if the retailer cuts the price, the manufacturer refuses to deliver him more goods. It has been estimated that as many as 3,000 articles sold in Canada have their prices thus fixed by the manufacturers. This does not seem to be in the public interest. As one retail merchandizing firm has recently told the Parliamentary Committee, it believes that the consumer (the customer) should be able to purchase merchandise at the lowest possible price compatible with the service they obtain from the retailer from whom they wish to buy.

> "It (price maintenance) tends to make retailing too static and resists, and may prevent, advances in retailing methods, which will bring new techniques and lower margins and hence lower prices to the consumer".

This line of reasoning strikes a responsive chord in the hearts of customers badgered now by high prices. Price fixing reduces competition and tends to keep prices high.

* * *

It is not only manufacturers of single items who dictate retail prices. Even Provincial and Federal Governments are heavily involved in price fixing. The Ontario Government, for instance, condones no variation in the price of beer. Whatever the brand, all sells at the same price. The Ontario Government monopolizes the sale and fixes the price of all liquor, according to the grade. The Federal Government fixes the price of wheat. Wherever a buyer turns he is met by fixed prices: cigarettes, gasoline, automobiles, rents, milk, cosmetics, aluminum, electric stoves. The list is endless. Sometimes the fixed price is on one brand of goods, sometimes it covers the whole range of several manufacturers and suppliers. It is well that the Government, in examining price fixing in business, should look to its own price-fixing legislation—and at such indirect legislation as duties on imported goods like automobiles, which effectively keep Canadian car prices high.

* * *

In its interim report presented last month, the special committee appointed by Parliament has recommended that it should be made an offence for a manufacturer or other supplier to recommend or prescribe minimum resale prices for his products. If this is legislated for, perhaps we shall see a drop in some retail prices. This would be more probable if price-fixing all along the line, by business and government, is scrutinized severely.

Monkey Business About Meyer

About a month ago General Kurt Meyer was sneaked out of the penitentiary at Dorchester, New Brunswick, and flown back to Germany. He had been imprisoned here because he caused eighteen Canadian prisoners of war to be shot in Normandy in 1944. He was at first sentenced to hang, then a commutation to life imprisonment was granted; no explanation was given as to why he was taken back to Germany, though there was some foolish talk about the hardship caused because his family could not visit him. But now Meyer is at home, in Offleben, seeing plenty of his family and apparently enjoying the fullest freedom; he is supposed to be in prison at Werl, in Germany. It is said that the prisoners at Werl—war criminals—are permitted to go home now and again for a taste of family life.

This is embarrassing for the Canadian Government, and we are glad of it. Their sly manner of whisking Meyer out of the country deserves punishment. But there is a more important lesson to be learned from this affair than that governmental deviousness is a mistake.

It is this: war criminals are a nuisance, and there is no satisfactory way of dealing with them. If Meyer had been shot when he was captured, it would have been a brutal act of reprisal, but it would have been done and over with, and it would have had a kind of Old Testament justice about it. But by muddling and meddling, commuting sentence, transferring him to Germany and involving the government of Canada in his lifelong supervision, we have made a mistake. Men cannot be held accountable for acts committed in war on the same grounds that they are accountable in times of peace, and war criminals must be dealt with by military methods. Let us not forget that if we had lost the war, some of our Canadian generals might have been in Meyer's position, and we would be just as anxious as the Germans to recover them and give them freedom. This war criminal business merely prolongs the problems of war into what we are pleased to call times of peace. The fate of a general who has ordered the execution of prisoners and who is captured in war may be terrible, but at least it is decisive; our dealings with Meyer have been indecisive and—worst fault of all for a government—silly.

A Truly Civic Affair

We have nothing but praise for the women of the Civic Affairs Study Group and their organization of the Candidates' Meeting at the City Hall last night. The meeting was largely and attentively attended by the public and the candidates for municipal office were there to speak, as well as the Mayor and the chairman of the Board of Education.

It was in no wise a campaign meeting nor were the candidates paraded as targets or under compulsion to justify their past official actions nor their candidature. It was an opportunity for members of the Council, the Board of Education and the Utilities Commission seeking re-election to review their work of the past year; and for new candidates to present themselves to the public.

But the meeting turned out to be much more than a candidates' meeting. It was political democracy in quiet, effective action and reaction at the most important level of all, the local. The meeting was a heartening reassurance of the value and virtue of the processes of democratic government. It was an arena in which people and their past and future officials met. It is on such, as in the medieval shire, that the whole fabric of responsible government is built—and kept responsible and valid.

The candidates last night must have been glad to have the interested audience. It showed that people are concerned with what goes on in municipal government, and appreciate what good has been done and the services rendered.

How much easier would the world be if all the complicated affairs of complex humanity could be dealt with as unpretentiously, as directly and as respectfully; how easy if all relations between governed and governing were as responsively direct and neighbourly!

NOTES AND COMMENT

Seating in the Legislature will present a problem, we read. What about asking the Opposition to squat on the floor?

"Evidently the people of Ontario are satisfied with the Government", said Mr. M. J. Coldwell. There's profundity for you!

During the past ten years, the population of Saskatchewan has dropped by 66,817. Funny, we thought everybody was so happy out there.

The higher tobacco taxes are yielding $8,000,000 less in revenue, and the R.C.M.P. report that 2 people out of 3 in Montreal are smoking smuggled American cigarettes. Nothing like unreasonable taxes to create a nation of crooks.

Bevanism Is A Dying Cause

By PHILIP VERNON

THE development of the Labour Party in opposition is a matter of crucial importance not only to the people of Britain but also to Britain's friends overseas.

The Labour Party is the alternative Government; it polled the highest number of votes at the General Election; and sooner or later it will return to office. What will happen to it in the meantime? Will it swing to the left—as parties usually do when they are out of office—and if so, will this mean a victory for Mr. Bevan? Will it rebel against its established leaders who have committed it to the rearmament programme? Will it support Mr. Bevan's criticism of Anglo-American policy and reject the implications of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization?

THESE are important questions. The behaviour of the Labour Party so far gives some hint of how they will be answered. It is clear—as was to be expected—that the responsible leaders of the Labour Party have no intention of acting irresponsibly on the vital questions of foreign policy, defence and economic policy. The statements of Mr. Attlee, Mr. Morrison and Mr. Gaitskell in the House of Commons, though couched in the aggressive language suited to Opposition leaders, made it clear that they do not intend now to forget all the lessons they learned while in office. The Labour Party remains committed to the main points of Anglo-American policy, as outlined by Mr. Eden on Monday.

✧ ✧ ✧

EQUALLY it accepts the need for a vast rearmament programme—which it introduced—and under Mr. Gaitskell's guidance the official Labour attitude to the Government's economic policy will certainly be restrained and intelligent. But how far does this official Labour policy find support in the rank and file of the Party—both inside and outside the House of Commons? There is, of course a deep division in the Party. While Mr. Richard Crossman was stating the Bevanite case in this week's debate on foreign policy he was persistently interrupted, not by Conservatives, but by other Labour members, including Mr. Woodrow Wyatt, Mr. Christopher Mayhew and Mr. Bellenger—all Ministers in one or other of Mr. Attlee's Governments. It is equally interesting to notice that Mr. Bevan himself, who so far has been mysteriously reticent, made his most important interruption in the House of Commons since the election, not when a Conservative was speaking, but when Mr. Gaitskell was stating the official Labour attitude to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

THERE is no doubt that, in his protest against the burden which rearmament is placing on the national economy, Mr. Bevan appeals to the deepest instincts of the Labour Party, and that, freed from the responsibilities of office, the rank and file of the Labour Party will be more ready than ever to support his point of view. At the next Labour Party conference it is more than likely that he will take the stage as the spokesman of the real heart of the Labour movement—and be vociferously acclaimed as such.

But appearances can sometimes deceive. The Labour Party is an organization quite unlike any other. Like all parties it has its right wing and its left wing. As in all parties, it is the left wing which makes the most noise—and more often than not wins the support of the rank and file. But whenever it has come to a choice of the path which the Party should follow—left or right—it is the right which has been chosen.

THE experiences of the nineteen-thirties are on this point particularly relevant. Then it was Sir Stafford Cripps who was the militant leader of the left wing, the idol of the rank and file. Like Mr. Bevan this year, he was returned by the rank and file as a member of the Party's executive. Like Mr. Bevan he seemed to hold the Party spellbound. But when the official Party leadership eventually decided that it had had enough and expelled him, Sir Stafford found himself an outcast—without any popular support, either inside or outside the party.

The Labour Party, in fact, has a way of allowing its rebels to enjoy themselves, while it rumbles on its course. Need it, in fact, worry over-much about Mr. Bevan? Look for example, at his supporters in the House of Commons: they are the professional politicians on the fringe of the Party; they have no real roots in the Labour movement. They could all disappear from the Party tomorrow, and the Party would still be very much the same without them.

THIS is Mr. Bevan's weakness. His only strength in the party is the support he finds among the woolly-minded members of the rank and file,—who see politics from their doors in Wigan and Walthamstow. This support is not to be underestimated, but equally it should not be forgotten that when the official leadership of the Party presses the rank and file to choose between it and the rebels on some fundamental issue, the rank and file will forsake the rebels.

Moreover, policy in the Labour Party is decided, not by Party conferences, though that comforting illusion is sometimes fostered, but by the Parliamentary Party. This is as it should be. As I remarked above, Mr. Bevan's support in the Parliamentary Party is negligible, and what is equally important, the new young members of the Parliamentary Party, who are likely to become leaders of the Party in a few years' time, are all opposed to him.

MR. BEVAN is certain to confuse the minds of the Labour Party members considerably while they are in opposition, but I do not believe that there is any danger of his present views being accepted by the Party as a whole. If he eventually does lead the Labour Party it will be because his views have changed.

This is not impossible. If the rearmament programme is carried through successfully, it will be possible for the country in a few years' time to relax its defence effort, and turn its attention to the improvement of the people's standard of living. In other words, the cause of Bevanism would disappear.

It is a fundamental weakness of Mr. Bevan's case that his is a protest against a temporary policy—and against the possible effects of that policy. Already some of his forecasts—as, for example, that unemployment would greatly increase this year—have been proved wrong. If by 1954 none of his gloomy forecasts has materialized, what will there be left of Bevanism for Mr. Bevan to support?

Presidential Clutter

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

Those who have visited prime ministers in their office in the East Block have been impressed by the austerity of the room and the business-like air of the large desk. Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. St. Laurent have been able to do their business without the clutter of bric-a-brac and souvenirs that burden the desk of the U.S. president—witness the innumerable photographs of Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Truman seated behind arrays of clay donkeys, model steering wheels and other mementos to the degree that it seemed necessary for them to move somewhere else to sign a letter. Mr. St. Laurent struggles along with a couple of pens, a few reference books and an ashtray and at a rough guess the whole lot would not bring in more than $20 at an auction. In contrast they have been having a sale of the late Mr. Roosevelt's collection in the United States and it is expected $100,000 will be realized from 1,503 items, not all of which were on his desk although it seems to us a substantial number must have been there at some time. Among the items from the president's desk is a jovial toby mug with an image of Mr. Churchill with a long cigar in his mouth, offered for $95. In the collection is chinaware, porcelain, glassware, plates, ship models and even a statuette of Fala, the president's dog. Mr. Truman by this time must have an imposing hoard and in time it too will tend to turn in revenue. All this leaves us wondering whether Mr. St. Laurent is missing a golden opportunity to provide for his future. He might be assembling for the edification of the privileged few who enter his office a great store of strange ornaments, such as totem poles, which by the privilege of resting for a space in that room, would have their worth doubled or trebled in days to come.

Prescience

(Ottawa Journal)

In the 1920's, Joseph Baldwin, author of Flowers for the Judge, heard this story from the genial Dean Baillie of Windsor, chaplain to the King. Baldwin wanted to know if the Prince of Wales would marry. The Dean did not know.

"But confidentially, I believe it won't be long before the Duke of York finds his Duchess. In fact", and he lowered his voice, "he has already found her."

"Well", asked Baldwin, "why the delay?"

"It's just this", continued the Dean. "The Duke is in love with Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, a very attractive Scotch girl. She would like to marry him but wants the Prince of Wales to marry first."

"Why?" I persisted.

"Because she wants to be sure that there is an heir to the throne other than her husband or her own children. Otherwise, she claims, her whole life—her comings and goings, even the names of her children—will be controlled by Parliament, and she will never be able to have the kind of family life she longs for."

Babushkas Vs. Shawls

(Windsor Star)

The modern generation oft-times thinks new fads and fashions are special innovations for its benefit. Yet frequently, perhaps even usually, they are only reversals to those of other generations.

We all have noticed the babushkas worn by modern misses. In other days they would have been called shawls, and that is what they would have been. They might differ somewhat in colours and materials but essentially babushkas and shawls are the same, adapted to suit the needs of different times.

Our grandmothers wore shawls. The materials in them depended on the use to which they were put, and the colours on the age of the wearer. Some were large, heavy woollen ones, sufficient to cover the head and shoulders during a long drive on a winter day. There were lighter cashmere ones for more pleasant weather, sometimes used to keep off the hot sun or summer dust. And there are fancy lace ones for more formal occasions.

The name "babushka" of course betrays its origin and the link to the days when shawls were worn on this continent. It is the Russian word for "grandmother" and its modern meaning evidently is derived from the fact grandmothers wore them in Europe.

If babushkas were called shawls probably modern misses wouldn't wear them. They would think them old-fashioned, but babushka is an exotic name and, in attractive colours, rather of exotic appearance.

"Oh, highbrow stuff! Better ask for them at the book counter."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And it came to pass after many days, that the word of the Lord came to Elijah in the third year, saying, Go, shew thyself unto Ahab; and I will send rain upon the earth. And Elijah went to shew himself unto Ahab. And there was a sore famine in Samaria.

And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he answered, I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed Baalim. Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophet of the groves four hundred, which eat at Jezebel's table. "Yeah, to my ranch in Texas," replied the GI.

"Then I couldna part wi' the dog," said the shepherd.

Then an English officer came along, admired the dog, and bought it without a bit of trouble. This nettled the Texan, who said: "Hey, Scotty, you told me you wouldn't sell the dog, what's the big idea?"

"Na," replied the old Scot, "I said I couldna part wi' him. The dog'll be back shortly from England but he couldna' swim the Atlantic!"

"Yes, that was Jack's idea. He says that if we invite only married people the presents will be all clear profit!"

Crowded Hall Returns Cavan Council

MILLBROOK, Nov. 28 (ENS)—The council chamber of the town hall in Millbrook was filled to capacity with extra chairs stacked in and with people standing in the doorways for the nomination meeting of Cavan township on Monday afternoon.

This year's reeve, Delbert Olan, deputy reeve Lloyd Hooton and councillors Joseph Thorn, John H. McKnight and H. Bradburn were all returned by acclamation.

Ex-reeve Robert Armstrong, was chosen to act as chairman for the meeting.

Last year was Delbert Olan's first year as reeve although he had been councillor for four years and deputy reeve for two. In reviewing the past year Mr. Olan stated that the council had agreed well with occasional differences—a healthy state of affairs. It had been a good year.

Although the township did not get any construction from the county on the county road, it did get better maintenance. The county road rate was 4½ mills.

In the township 7,000 yards of gravel had been laid and two bridges put in during 1951, the Elgar bridge and the Howden one. Cavan township had lost one piece of road, he stated. The council had asked the department of highways to take it over. This piece of road is on the 13th concession. The township did not have equipment to put it in shape but hoped the department would start on it soon. Every ratepayer should have an outlet to a good road, he said.

A building was needed to house road machinery.

Plan High School

A new high school was being planned in Port Hope. Cavan counucil would not agree to support it until the county assessment was in effect. County assessing was being done over a two-year period. When completed, there would be better equalization of taxes. The present assessment was unfair to farmers and favored urban dwellers, the reeve declared.

Reeve Olan expressed pleasure at seeing some ladies present at the meeting which was usually an all-male affair.

After thanking those present for his acclamation and that of his council he tendered best wishes for the prosperity of the ratepayers which they would need in the face of rising taxes.

He pledged his council to do its best to obtain more road construction, to give good government and to be as careful of ratepayers' money as of their own.

Lloyd Hooton

Lloyd Hooton, deputy reeve, said that he too would try to merit the confidence placed in him as shown by his acclamation. He stated that the township had asked the county council to straighten the county road north of Mount Pleasant and to cut down the hill.

He told that the township had put 1,200 yards of gravel and some stone to the value of $1,300 on the piece of "lost" road mentioned by the reeve before asking the department of highways to take it over. The department's engineers said they had built over worse spots.

Mr. Hooton promised to do his best for the municipality as a whole. He moved a vote of thanks to P. I. Bentley, township clerk, and to his assistant, Mrs. Bentley for their fine work throughout the year.

Those nominated as school trustees for North Cavan were Donald Hayes, Hubert Lowes, Russell Earle, William Seymour, Morris McGee and Harry Jamieson. Mr. Seymour and Mr. Jamieson said that they were retiring from the board. Three of the above are to be elected. Those already on the board having served one year of a two-year term are Harold Hooton and Bruce Sargent.

School trustees nominated for South Cavan are Allan Wood, Ernest Brackenridge, Russell Bonner and Herbert Patton. Those already on the board for another year are Marshall Fallis and Donald Lang. All those nominated in this group had served previously except Russell Bonner.

Those nominated to school board have until 9 pm today to qualify or withdraw.

The liveliest discussion of the afternoon took place on the subject of whether or not North Cavan high school pupils should continue to attend Peterborough Collegiate or come to Millbrook high school.

Some felt that there was no guarantee the Millbrook school would be kept open, and that if they withdrew from the Peterborough suburban area, they might, in time, be forced to attend the further distant school in Port Hope.

Louis H. Winslow, county representative on the Durham ares board stated that Millbrook High School was in the best shape it had been in since he had been connected with it.

It had a staff of four full time and two part time teachers. Typing and shop work were being taught.

A pupil could get as good an education here as elsewhere without spending a considerable part of each day on a bus. There was the added advantage of more individual instruction in the smaller school. Pupils who spent so much time travelling back and forth on buses were shut off from the social life both of the school and of their home communities after necessary homework was done.

He said the area board was pleased with the work being done in Millbrook school and there was little likelihood of its being closed. However, they would like to build up the enrolment, now they had the staff, commercial and shop work equipment to handle it.

Educating pupils in the local school was as efficient and more economical he believed.

SAFETY FOR THE "DEATH SEAT"—A new idea in auto safety is the "Safe-t-table," demonstrated above by Norm Nicholson in Detroit, Mich. When the car jerks to a sudden stop, the rubber-cushioned table springs out from the dashboard and prevents passenger from going through the windshield. Developed by a Detroit auto stylist, the table may be used for writing, as map board or for lunch. But, its main urpose is to cut the toll taken by the right-front "death seats," where seven out of 10 persons killed in auto accidents were riding.

Winter Ends Navigation Isolates Booming Northland

HAY RIVER, NWT (CP)—Navigation has ended for the year on the great Mackenzie river and deep isolation, disturbed only occasionally by the drone of aircraft, has settled over the northern frontier country.

This year the freeze-up came earlier than usual—in the middle, instead of at the end, of October. The hardy men and women who spend their winters in the far north have already settled down to eight months of isolation.

During this period little goes into the vast, snow-covered region and even less comes out. This land of gold, uranium and furs booms in almost total privacy.

But from about the first week in June until the end of October the Mackenzie normally is free of ice and busy with shipping. Boats and barges move swiftly along its wide surface, carrying food, clothing, machinery and other supplies into the corridor of virgin territory extending from northern Alberta to the Arctic ocean.

Busy Spot

This freight, amounting to about 65,000 tons every summer, is the lifeblood of the booming communities along the river's 3,000-mile channel. There are no roads or rails along the Mackenzie and in four months the boats must carry provisions enough to last through eight months of winter.

For despite its great strides, aviation has not yet advanced to where it can supply the Northland. Although planes bring in passengers and emergency supplies throughout the year, air traffic is too costly and too uncertain to challenge the supremacy of the river boat.

Busy Terminus

The terminus of this Arctic communications line is Hay River—a bustling frontier town on the south shore of Great Slave Lake.

Throughout the year Hay River is every bit a boom town. In the winter it is a bulging storehouse of goods bound for the gold and uranium mines, oilfields, and the trapping and fishing centres to the north. Its quays are piled high with freight of every description, brought by road and rail-and-road from Edmonton, 600 miles to the south.

With the first sign of break-up, Hay River becomes as lively as a seaport. Riverboat pilots and engineers arrive in groups from winter homes in the south and half-breeds and Indians swarm in from traplines for a season of comparatively high wages as deckhands and stevedores.

Boats and barges are repaired and cargo is loaded aboard. Everything is prepared for the big push-off. This preparation is important, for with the short season there is barely time for the boats to make two trips to the Arctic Ocean.

Each trip takes nearly two months and delay often means an encounter with early storms that batter Great Slave Lake and its neighbor Great Bear Lake, 300 miles to the north. Although Great Slave Lake and Great Bear Lake are only about half the size of Lake Michigan, the storms that sweep the inland seas are fierce and often disastrous.

Valuable Cargoes

With the break-up, the boats are on their way, loaded with machinery for the gold fields, uranium operations and oil wells; traps and rifles for the trappers in the bush; medical supplies for the Indian missions and hospitals; and, by far the most important, food for the 15,000 white, Indian and Eskimo inhabitants.

The boats, though small and shallow-bottomed, are strong and well able to carry loads up to 350 tons while towing as many as five barges, each loaded with an equal amount of cargo. The largest in the fleet, the Yellowknife Expediter, is a mere 300 tons.

Of the 30-odd boats and 80 barges operating on the Mackenzie, all but a few are operated by two major companies, Northern Transportation, a government undertaking, and the privately-owned Yellowknife Transportation Company. Others are operated by mining and fur-trading concerns.

With the exception of the Expediter, the boats and barges were brought north in sections by caterpillar trains when navigation was started on a big scale more than 20 years ago. The sections were welded together and launched from improvised skidways.

The Expediter was the first and only ship brought into the Mackenzie basin through the Bering Sea and upstream on the Mackenzie. It was formerly a United States Navy infantry landing craft.

A REPORT TO OUR SHAREHOLDERS

November 26th, 1951.

The Dairy Industry is very important in relation to our Canadian economy, but unfortunately it has been receiving a great deal of unjust criticism.

Notwithstanding the fact that the volume of our business this year is substantially higher than it was last year, our earnings are lower. The Dairy Industry is under strict control of Government appointed Milk Boards and has not been permitted to increase selling prices in line with increased cost of operation.

THE FACTS ARE: — in the past twelve years,

Our price paid to the farmer for milk has increased 100%.

Our labour costs have increased over 100%.

Cost of equipment, supplies and services have increased in even greater proportion, in many instances.

OUR SELLING PRICE TO THE CONSUMER HAS INCREASED ONLY 78%.

In addition we are faced with increased taxes on income this year.

You will appreciate from the foregoing that we have been working on a steadily declining margin.

DIVIDENDS — In view of the present situation your Directors have decided to reduce the Class "B" dividend payable January 2nd to 5¢ per share. However, the regular quarterly dividend on the Class "A" Shares of 15¢ per share has been declared payable January 2nd, 1952.

FACTS FOR YOU AS A CONSUMER — As well as being a shareholder, you will be interested in the following as a consumer of dairy products —

Over-all food costs have risen 150% since 1939, but milk has gone up only 78%.

An average hour's work in Canadian manufacturing industries in 1939 paid 43 cents — enough to buy just over 3½ qts. of milk. To-day that same work pays $1.18 — enough to buy more than 6 qts. of milk.

The selling price of milk in 25 representative U.S. markets is 7.6 cents per quart higher than in a similar number of representative Canadian markets. This comparison is based on an imperial quart.

The net profit on a quart of milk, under the most economical operation, is only a fraction of a cent a quart — approximately one-third of a cent.

Over a ten-year period (1942-1951) our Company made an over-all net profit of two cents on each dollar of sales.

In numerous markets where we operate applications have been made to Milk Control Boards for adjustment in milk prices to improve this situation. We are hopeful that some measure of relief will be forthcoming shortly.

Yours sincerely,

A right tough task faces the IOOF-ers this week twice. They tangle for the first time this season with Lindsay juniors at 8.30 tonight in Civic Arena, and the same squads clash on Scugog ice Friday. The fact that Lindsay beat Kingston easily once and then dropped a 4-3 decision in Kingston later indicates that they're going to be stiff opposition around the OHA junior "B" circuit. The Oddfellows are coming along well, going to an overtime draw with Belleville last start, so they'll make it a hot battle with the Lindsayites, especially in the local arena. Promises to be a streamlined struggle all the way.

* * * * * *

Word from Belleville is that six of the Kingston Nylons, who were banned from play this season, have applied to the OHA to re-open their cases. They seek reinstatement and it is likely that the matter will be dealt with at a Dec. 7 meeting in Toronto. Should the ban be lifted on these guys, Kingston will ice a right potent pack of pucksters. They're tough enough now, having beaten Eagles 9-7 the other night, and losing earlier by but one goal to the good Belleville crew. This four-team senior "B" setup is shaping up as a well-balanced one, a group that should produce many close, hard-fought frays for the fans this winter.

* * * * * *

Avoid Those Injuries

Indications are, too, that it will be a hard-hitting loop. Plenty of rugged checking seen to date in every game. That's okay so long as legal tactics are used. Otherwise, there will be a lot of injuries harrying the various clubs in a keen race. Injuries are not only tough on the players getting 'em, and the teams who lose they players, but they spoil the race for the fans. A good team at full strength certainly should whip a good team below full strength. The more rambunctious players should be curbed and stiff penalties or suspensions handed out to any who deliberately try to injure an opponent. The game is rough enough under ordinary circumstances.

* * * * * *

Big crowd braved the frost last p.m. to take in the pro mat bouts along the Rue Brock. A lot of 'em there, no doubt, to see Jack Dempsey referee the main bout. And they cheered him and Zorra heartily as they downed rough Lou Newman in the final fall. Yeah, Jack—pushed to the floor previously by Lou—took a hand in it and aided in Newman's downfall. Earlier he had clipped him once and threatened to a few more times, but Lou was pretty wary of the man who made the million dollar gate in boxing. He took $900,000 as his share of the Tunney fight in Philadelphia. Bobo Brazil won the semi-final o'er Stan Mayslack, and Mike Padousis beat Sonny Kurgis in the prelim.

* * * * * *

Jack Likes It Rugged

Dempsey was popular with the folks before, during and after, as he signed autographs, kidded fans and was invited to various affairs after by mitt followers. The ex-champ drew the ire of some mat fans for letting a lot of illegal stuff go, especially fists and roughing on the ropes. That's Jack's style—he played it rough in the ring himself and he never asked nor gave any quarter. Never cared too much for fight refs in his day, either. Pat Flanagan introduced Jack to us and he promptly hit us a playful clout on the chops, knocking the hat flying. Pat then asked him to show what he did when drunks in his New York restaurant wanted to fight him. Jack remonstrated on us, tapping us lightly (hah!) in the midriff and slapping the back, saying jovially: "Now, now, pal, you don't want to fight, do you?" In no time at all, the gasping guy was sure he didn't want to fight. We could see the point.

Local ski club presents a color ski film "A World in White" in the Collegiate at eight p.m. Friday. Everyone invited. Ski tows are ready at Kemp's Hill and Bethany. At the latter chalet, Gladys and Art Long are conveners. Not enough snow yet, lots of skiers, but more desired. Incidentally, we noted a piece by Fred Glidden in Ski Magazine, saying in part: "Big trouble with big time ski races is that they have degenerated from what used to be fun into a costly, complex and bitter dogfight presided over by bewildered amateurs for the benefit of very few."

New Application Method In Major League

By JOE REICHLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP). — The path was cleared today for the birth of another major baseball league. At the same time, the door was closed to any individual city wishing to crash the big leagues.

A new method of application for major-league status was recommended by the major-league executive council. The recommendation came as the council acted on a proposal made by the special committee named to study the Pacific Coast League's request for a change in classification.

It specifies that applications can be made only by a group of eight clubs mutually agreeing to all requirements.

This proposal must receive a majority vote among the big-league owners at their convention next week for ratification.

List Qualifications

The council listed the qualifications as follows:

1. The eight clubs must be responsible for all territory provisions and for all financial obligations necessary in setting up their organization and making their application.

That means that these clubs must undertake to compensate to any minor leagues infringed upon.

2. The clubs shall present with their application full data establishing their abilities to meet the requirements for advanced status, including a full statement as to stock ownership, financial ability and character, both of the group and the individual members.

3. The proposed league shall show an aggregate of 15,000,000 population in the eight cities.

That would mean a jump of 12,000,000 from the 3,000,000 population requirement for the triple-A circuits, highest in the minors. The PCL currently has a population of some 15,000,000 to draw from. Both the International League and American Association have a population area of some 6,000,000.

4. Each club shall have a potential minimum of 25,000 capacity in any single park.

Average Attendance

5. The eight clubs shall have had an average attendance of 3,500,000 over a three-year period directly preceding the application. The PCL was the only circuit to approach that figure last season.

6. They shall provide a balance schedule of at least 154 games.

7. They will adopt the major-league minimum salary agreement with no maximum salary limitations.

The major league minimum is $5,000. The maximumi s believed to be around $125,000 drawn by Ted Williams of Boston Red Sox.

8. They will become parties to the major-league agreement and the major-minor agreement.

9. They will accept the uniform major-league players' contract and agreement. This includes the $10,000 waiver-price system, draft systems, etc.

10. They will join the players' pension plan or adopt a comparable plan, whichever may be acceptable at the time.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens announced Tuesday that defenceman Dollard St. Laurent will be called up on lend-lease basis from the Montreal Senior Royals and will play against Toronto Maple Leafs here Thursday night.

He has scored five goals and counted 11 assists in 15 games with Royals, of the Quebec Senior League this season. He is fourth highest scorer on Royals club.

Earlier Tuesday it was announced that forwards Paul Masnick and Johnny McCormack have been farmed out to Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League and Gerry Couture and Calum MacKay recalled.

Pentti Lund, Boston Bruins' winger, will be out of National Hockey League action indefinitely but no longer is in danger of losing the sight of his right eye, Dr. Thomas Kelley, the team physician, said Tuesday night at Boston.

Lund was struck on the right eye accidentally by Chicago Black Hawk Clare Martin's stick in a game here two weeks ago.

The University of Toronto Blues, defending intercollegiate senior hockey champions, appear stronger than ever as they prepare for the new college schedule due to open early next month.

Some of Wade's outstanding talent includes Jack McKenzie and Don Roper, members of last year's Toronto Ontario Hockey Association major Toronto Marlboros. Jack Weldrake, formerly with the OHA Junior A St. Michael's club and Dave Stephen, an old Oshawa General junior who turned out with a Scottish team last year, will also wear the blue and white.

Three goaltenders are working out. Doug Orr, who shared the netminding duties last year, is back. Jack Ross and Bruce Taylor, both intermediates last season, are trying for the position.

Sam Manson, head of the group of Hamilton sportsmen stirring up interest for Saturday's Canadian intermediate football final between Hamilton Panthers and St. Boniface-Norwood Legionnaires, said Tuesday night if plans work out the east-west intermediate final will become an annual affair for Hamilton.

Manson said that since Toronto gets the Grey Cup final each year "it's only right that we should have the intermediate."

The group has been successful in getting permission from the Canadian Rugby Union to use its $12,000 tarpaulin to cover the Civic Stadium gridiron before the game.

At Mexico City, four Canadians were far down the list among 150 competitors from nine countries in the 16-day Vuelta Al Centro bicycle race. At the end of the third leg Monday Pat Murphy of Delhi, Ont., was in 101st place followed by Arnold Digby of Toronto, 114th; Ronald Thorne, Montreal, 131st and Gaston Langlois, Montreal, 136th.

Buffalo Bisons Wallop Indianapolis 4-1

By The Associated Press.

Ab De Marco and Grant Warwick, the one-two punch of the Buffalo Bisons, are beginning to find the range.

DeMarco and Warwick finished first and second in the American Hockey League's individual scoring race last year with 113 and 99 points respectively.

Warwick collected two goals and an assist Tuesday night and De Marco one goal and two assists to lead the Bisons to a 4-1 victory over the Indianapolis Caps. Larry Wilson scored the Caps' other goal. It marked the second time in as many games that Warwick has scored two goals.

Don Ashbee opened the Bisons' scoring with a goal in the first period.

Counterpoint Voted Champ Of Race Tracks

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP)—C. V. Whitney's Counterpoint today was unanimously voted the American champion race horse and 1951 three-year-old champion colt by 19 secretaries representing Thoroughbred Racing Association tracks throughout the United States.

The chestnut son of Count Fleet-Jabot, winner over Hill Prince in two sensational New York races this fall, was retired for the season after beating Hall of Fame in the Empire City Handicap. The colt suffered a slight crack in the hoof, but has recovered and now is in California awaiting the opening of the Santa Anita meeting next month.

A total of 3 votes were cast, one for each TRA track operating. The secretary-handicappers also gave unanimous votes to Mrs. Elizabeth Arden Graham's Rose Jet, champion two-year-old filly, and Mrs. Ogden Phipps' Oedipus, steeplechase champion. Oedipus was 1950 champion jumper.

Other Champions

In other divisions the champions named are:

Two-year-old colt—the Greentree Stable's Tom Fool.

Three-year-old filly — Walter M. Jeffords' Kiss Me Kate.

Handicap champion, horses, colts and geldings—C. T. Chenery's Hill Prince.

Handicap mare or filly—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Bed o' Roses.

Last year Hill Prince was named American champion and boss of the three-year-olds.

Hill Prince gained 32 votes as handicap champion, while two went to Calumet Farm's Citation, which became the first horse to earn $1,000,000 when he won the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup.

Tom Fool received 30 votes, the other six going to J. H. Dunn's Oh Leo. Kiss Me Kate received 29 votes, the others going to Clarence Hartwick's Sickle Image. Bed o' Roses also polled 29 votes. Calumet Farm's Wistful got six.

Chicago Sox Pleased With Trade Deal

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 —(AP)—General manager Frank Lane, the White Sox' sultan of swap, has helped to engineer a nine-player trade that promises to enhance the Comiskey's 1952 American League pennant chances.

The Sox sent Rogers Hornsby's rebuilding St. Louis Browns first baseman Gordon Goldsberry, outfielder Jim Rivera, pitcher Dick Littlefield, catcher Gus Niarhos and infielder Joe De Maestri.

The Browns dispatched to the catcher Sherman Lollar, pitcher Al Widmar and shortstop Tom Upton.

The Sox then sent Upton to the Washington Senators in exchange for utility infielder Sam Dente. There was no cash involved.

Everybody was happy in the three-cornered trade which some observers estimated involved $300,000 worth of players.

Especially Happy

Lane was especially jubilant in landing the 27-year-old Lollar, who, with rookie Rivera, 30, were the keymen in the trade traffic.

"Frequent injuries to our catchers during 1951 forced us to overwork Phil Masi and to utilize rookie receivers," said Lane. "Our combined catching staff drove in 45 runs in 154 games. Lollar alone drove in 44 in just 97.

Lollar batted .252 last season.

The Sox bought Rivera from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League in a deal involving more than $50,000 and players to be delivered at a later date.

The mercurial outfielder topped the league in batting with .350, was second in stolen bases, and was voted the loop's "most valuable" player.

He and Goldsberry, a fancy fielder who never could hit for the Sox, are two of Hornsby's former Seattle proteges.

Lane estimated that since he joined the Sox front office in the fall of 1948 he has involved 75 players in deals.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

George Vezina, reputed the greatest goalie of all time, played his last game for Montreal Canadiens 26 years ago tonight at Montreal. With a temperature of 103, he finally collapsed in the net and was taken home to Chicoutimi where he died four months later in 1926.

Zorra Downs Lou Newman As Jack Dempsey Aids In Main Bout Of Mat Card

Zorra, with an assist from Jack Dempsey, downed Lou Newman to win the main pro wrestling bout at the Brock Arena last night as a big crowd cheered heartily. Newman made the mistake of pulling Dempsey down twice in the scramble to dump Zorra for the deciding fall, the former world's heavyweight boxing champ jumped up and jerked at Lou—as Zorra yanked at him from the other side. Something had to give, and it was Lou. Zorra promptly fell on him for the count.

Dempsey was introduced by Promoter Tommy McClure of Toronto and answered a number of questions in the ring before the main go. He also circulated between rounds, signing many autographs. He was very popular with the fans, though he showed his oldtime ring disdain for rules—especially punching and grappling on the ropes—to let a lot of questionable stuff go.

Got First Fall

Zorra, scaling 238 speedy pounds, took the first fall of the big match in 16 minutes over the 245-pound and villainous Newman. He did it with a reverse standing nelson in nifty style after taking a bad choking. Lou roughed it up all the way and was warned several times by Dempsey, who also broke some of his illegal holds. Frenchy was faster and got in some effective grappling, featuring a punishing wristlock that had the former Masked Marvel in trouble for a space. The fall drew cheers.

Newman evened it up with the second fall in 18 minutes with a series of pile drives on the knee after softening Zorra up on the ropes, choking, using fists and feet, and jerking hair. The ref missed some of this and let a lot more go, but did take time out to clip Lou once when he refused to break a hold. Lou threatened him but backed off hurriedly as Dempsey put up his murderous dukes. Earlier, Zorra registered with lightning kicks and some punches, besides working in an armlock in a rather slow session.

Jack Assists

The last fall came quickly after Lou had started in to rough up the Frenchman again, being jerked off several times by a more alert Dempsey. They opened it up fast, and once were slugging hard out of the ring. They rolled back in time to beat the count and slugged some more, with Dempsey paying no never mind. That is, not until Lou started choking Zorra and pushed Jack down twice when he tried to break it up. Jack climbed up the second time and he and Zorra combined to drop Lou on his back, where he was counted out. Newman threatened the ex-champ after but stepped back from those big fists as the fans laughed and cheered.

Bobo Brazil, tall St. Louis Negro, weighing 247, won the semi-final in 22 minutes over 241-pound Stan Hayslack, a rough customer. The darky was faster, cleaner and knew a lot of mat tactics, but he was punished plenty at times by the illegal tactics used by his opponent. He used the turnbuckles, while Bobo liked a wristlock, but came through with his fists in spots and once tied Stan up in the ropes and dived at him. The referee was kept fairly busy, generally warning Hayslack, who drew the boos of the crowd in a fair bout.

A Red-Hot Go

Mike Padousis, of Toledo, going 210, took the prelim in 22 minutes over Sonny Kurgis, of Columbia, weighing 228, with a series of knee-breakers and choke holds. He was downright dirty in his mat tricks in a fast affair, but Sonny was rugged at times, as well. They dished up plenty of hot grappling, including drop kicks, tackles, flying mares and headlocks, Sonny being out of the ring once in terrific tussling. He came right back to hold his own for a time but Mike had it on him in weight and illegitimate mauling to finally take the ring. Fans made a big racket during this scrap, but they didn't like the way it wound up. Cliff Fox handled the prelim and semi-final.

Cobourgs Upset Lindsay Muskies 6-4

COBOURG, Nov. 28.—Cobourg Comets upset Lindsay Muskies here 6-4, to hand them their first defeat of the season in a Lakeshore Hockey League Intermediate "A" game.

Youthful John Fisher and Jasper Wilcox scored two goals each, with Clarke Harnden, accounting for the fifth; only veteran on the scoring list was Pete Ferguson, who shot the sixth tally for the winners.

Lewis with two goals, and Coombs and Crawford were the Lindsay marksmen.

Bruins, Rangers End Up With 1-1 Tie At Boston

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Everything, it seems happens to Walter Brown, the big, amiable Irishman from Boston who dabbles in basketball teams and private zoos—and takes a financial beating in both. Now, professional hockey may be added to personable Walter's woes. He recently added the Boston franchise in the National Hockey League to his losing ventures in sponsorship of a pro hoop club and in his suburban private animal menagerie. And look what happens.

The Bruins were riding high, right up there with Detroit Red Wings, when suddenly things took a downward turn. They reached the depths Tuesday night when only 4,888 persons showed up for the Bruins-New York Rangers get-together at the Boston Garden. It ended 1-1.

That was the second lowest NHL crowd of the year—Chicago had a gate of 4,100-odd against Toronto a few weeks ago—and the smallest for professional hockey in Boston in 17 seasons.

The previous smallest recorded gathering in Boston was 5,056 on Dec. 11, 1934. That was the first year Boston Garden officials started keeping their own attendance figures. And right now, Brown probably figures it best that they should forget the whole thing.

Not Good Publicity

Of course, the pre-game publicity wasn't the best crowd-drawing setup in the league. Bruins have won only one game, the opener, on home ice in nine games this 1951-52 season.

And for the city that wants the sudden-death overtime reinstated in the circuit, the record of five tied games wasn't particularly conducive to a big gate.

There was one saving feature to the game.

Boston winger Adam Brown equalled an NHL record when he scored after 15 seconds of play in the first period. This matched the speed mark set by Gus Bodnar, now of Chicago Black Hawks, in his first game for Toronto in 1943.

Mick Mickoski evened matters in the second with only 32 seconds remaining when his passout was deflected past goalkeeper Jim Henry after a wild scrimmage.

A cheering note was injected into the otherwise-unprofitable evening when Dr. Thomas Kelley, Bruin physician, announced that Pentti Lund, Boston winger traded from New York during the off-season, is in no danger of losing the sight of his right eye. However, he will be out of action indefinitely.

Lund was hit accidentally by Clare Martin of the Black Hawks a couple of weeks ago. "There is a possibility of traumatic cataract developing but only time will tell that," Dr. Kelley said. "However there is not the slightest fear that Lund's sight will be permanently impaired."

Drake To Quit Football League

DES MOINES, Nov. 28 (AP)—Drake University ended its 4-year-old Missouri Valley Conference membership Tuesday night, and Bradley University quickly indicated it may follow suit.

The Drake athletic council said it took its action because of the "refusal of the conference to investigate the assault upon John Bright in the Drake-Oklahoma A & M football game at Stillwater, Oct. 20."

Bright suffered a broken jaw in the early minutes of the game, which Oklahoma won, 27-14. Drake officials after viewing pictures of the game charged Bright was the victim of at least three "vicious and premeditated" attacks by Aggie guard Wilbanks Smith.

Drake also cut off athletic relations with Oklahoma A & M, effective "at once." The council said it was asking Aggie officials to cancel contracts for two basketball games between the two schools this season.

President David Owen of Bradley said at Peoria, Ill., he would recommend to his faculty athletic committee that it follow Drake's lead in withdrawing from the conference.

Guelph Subdues St. Catharines 6-4 As Stratford Whips Redmen 10-1

By The Canadian Press.

High-flying Guelph Biltmores moved into a first-place Ontario Hockey Association Junior A tie with Toronto Marlboros Tuesday night as they downed a determined St. Catharines Teepee crew 6-4 at Guelph. The Marlies, however, hold two games in hand on the Biltmores, New York Ranger farm club.

In OHA senior play, the Stratford Indians tallied seven goals in a third-period drive at Brantford to trounce the Redmen 10-1 and move into the league leadership.

At Owen Sound, the Mercurys bowed 6-2 to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. The win consolidates Kitchener's hold on third place.

Up north, the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds swamped North Bay Black Hawks 7-1 in a Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior tussle at North Bay.

At Guelph Brian Cullen scored two goals for St. Catharines while Buddy Boone and Gord Myles notched the others. Dean Prentice, Ron Murphy, Andy Bathgate, Chuck Henderson, Chick Chalmers and Bill McCreary tallied for Guelph.

Goals Divided

The 10 Stratford goals were divided among four players. Mickey Roth led the pack with four, while Ken Ducharme bagged three, Jack White two and Denis Flanagan one.

Walter Hnatiuk bagged Brantford's lone goal, the first of the game.

Owen Sound and Kitchener were tied 1-1 at the close of the opening stanza. The Dutchmen held a slim 4-2 lead at the end of the middle session and two last-period markers clinched the issue.

Hear Protest At Port Hope

COBOURG, Nov. 28.—A committee room session which is overshadowing hockey as a topic of conversation locally, will be held in Port Hope tonight. A subcommittee of the OHA will meet to hear final evidence in the cases of Bernard (Bun) Flesch and Ken (Coon) Medhurst, protested players of the Port Hope Redmen in the Lakeshore League.

Both boys are Cobourg natives and have played other sports with local teams.

In hockey, they played junior with Port Hope and moved up this year to the Intermediates, taking part in the first game of the year here against the Cobourg club without OHA certificate sanction. Cobourg lost the game and protested Port Hope's use of the pair.

At a meeting held in Toronto last Friday, the protest was heard but in order to come to a decision the OHA decided to move the scene of the inquiry to Port Hope, where the players in question and executive members of both clubs will be heard.

While it is generally conceded that neither player will line up with Cobourg if the protest is upheld, the Cobourg team is determined to have their status settled.

Morrow Trust May Stall Market Shift

No Headway Made In Moving Market From George St. Site

G. A. Gillespie reported to the Exhibition Board Tuesday night no headway on a proposal to switch the farm produce market to the shelter of the main building at Morrow Park for the Christmas season.

The secretary-manager had been commissioned to interview T. J. Carley, KC, of the Morrow Trust for approval of the proposed transfer from the bare and bleak block at George and Rink Streets when the winter solstice arrives in December.

Mr. Gillespie was apparently presenting his news in the spirit of keeping his foot in the door for further consideration when he said that Mr. Carley did not look favorably on the idea.

"I don't think Mr. (H. A.) Morrow himself would have said that," was the comment of Melville Johnston.

Within Scope

Norman McConkey, chairman, said the use of the old drill hall at Morrow Park was just as much an agricultural purpose, within the scope of the gift of the park, as was the district Holstein championships show.

"And if the four or five other breeds had held similar days there, it wouldn't have been any difference from four or five market Saturdays," Mr. McConkey remarked.

Discussions ended in a motion by Mr. Johnston, seconded by Chas. E. Moore, that a deputation representing the Exhibition directors, the city council and the farmers who sell on the market, arrange for a group interview with Mr. Carley.

"You'll have to have him come here," said Mr. Gillespie. "He's so busy in his office you might not be able to crowd in."

The directors appointed Mr. McConkey, president, and Don Milburn, vice-president. The vendors named Willan Hutchison and Roland Bradfield, and the council will be asked to name two of their members.

Directors

Directors present were: Alex Huston, Frank Savigny, John Kitney, Charlie Quinlan, John Edmison, Manson Cathcart, Clarence Bacon, Clayton Sanderson, Mr. Moore, Mr. Milburn, Mr. McConkey, Mr. Gillespie, and also Fred Clifford, Mr. Bradfield and Mr. Hutchison, representing rural producers who have been selling on the market for years.

It is understood that the Morrow Trust has been reduced to Mr. Carley and Herbert I. Bradburn, since the deaths of R. M. Glover and Col. Frank Bradburn.

Rings For Champs

The members of UE soccer team, Ontario intermediate champions, will be invited to the next meeting of the city council to receive rings as souvenirs of their provincial title. This is the same recognition as that which the council accorded the senior Peterborough lacrosse team, this year's national champions.

Civic Candidates Speak At Open Meeting

A hundred and twenty electors crowded into the committee room of the city hall Tuesday night to hear the platform of candidatees contesting the city elections Dec. 3. Including Mayor Max Swanston and Mayor-Elect Hugh Waddell, elected by acclamation, there were 21 speakers.

The meeting, second of its kind, was arranged by the Women's Study Group on Civic Affairs. It is a non-partisan and non-sectarian group whose purpose is to give the voters a chance to see and hear the candidates.

Mrs. W. E. Fanning, chairman, said it was an "opportunity for us all to know something about those who expect us to vote for them."

Nine For Council

This year there are nine candidates for the five vacancies on the city council; six for the five vacancies on the board of education; and four for the single vacancy on the utilities commission.

All of them showed up at the meeting Tuesday and were given three minutes to tell the electors what they intended to do if they assumed office. Mayor Swanston, Mayor-Elect Waddell and Dr. Ralph Honey, chairman of the board of education, were given 10 minutes by previous agreement.

Mrs. Fanning said that civic government in the city was a $1,750,000 business that required the careful attention of every one.

Then she introduced the candidates individually, permitting a two-minute question period after each speaker.

The questioning phase of the night's activities was pretty well confined to Charles Holland, Hunter St. Mr. Holland demanded that Mayor Swanston reveal what was the "pressure" that had forced him to step down from the office of mayor.

Then he asked Mayor-Elect Waddell to give some assurance that similar "pressure is not brought to bear to remove him from the mayoralty."

Mr. Holland hinted that he had some inside information on the cause, but went no further.

Several times Chairman Fanning asked him to confine his questioning as he was taking up the whole question period, but he remained active until the last candidate was heard at 10.45 pm.

Congratulated Women

Mayor Swanston congratulated the Study Group for sponsoring the meeting and said the pressure of the women at council sessions "stimulates interest within the council."

On civic affairs, he said that the major programs requiring the expenditure of large sums of money were pretty well caught up—the civic hospital, disposal plant and new city hall.

Mayor Swanston said he didn't think that the amount of money spent in 1952 would be as great. He complimented councils over

1,164 Deer Shot In 2 Weeks

38 Per Cent Hunters Successful; Not Total Figure

Deer harvest statistics in the Trent district for the season just closed have been announced by the Lindsay office of the Department of Lands and Forests.

One deer was taken for each 2.6 hunters, or, 38 percent of all hunters were successful in making a kill.

This figure was arrived at in this manner. Spot checks were made at various highway points at hunter checking stations and by flying squad jeep patrols. The department warns that these figures should not be construed as representing the total army of deer hunters and their kills.

Of the 3,054 hunters who were checked, their take totalled 1,164 deer, 13 bear, two wolves and one elk. The break-down of deer sexes showed that of this figure 426 animals were bucks, 486 does and 252 fawns. On a percentage basis this works out to 36 percent bucks, 42 percent does and 22 percent fawns.

Fewer Bucks

This year's figure shows a considerable change from 1950 when the bag percentages were 49 percent bucks, 36 percent does and 15 percent fawns. The reason for change, officials say, was the change in legal shooting tactics this year when one deer, regardless of sex, was taken instead of the former matching-buck law.

The weather was most unusual this season. During the first week snow lay to a depth of some 27 inches in the northern sections. Hunters were unable to wade through it and their dogs were unable to give chase. Several hunting parties abandoned hunting altogether during the first week. Weather conditions during the second half were ideal as mild weather and rain set in and allowed hunters and dogs to roam farther afield.

Rigid law enforcement prevailed through the Trent area and though game law observance appeared to be better than last year, there were some hunters who still tried to beat the Act.

Lost Equipment

They lost equipment and faced court action for their trouble. Several armfuls of confiscated guns were brought to the Lindsay office by conservation officer Robert Trotter of Apsley. Their variety was interesting.

Apparently, anything from gas-operated 8 mm German automatic army rifles were employed and seized. Offences pertaining to deer demand penalties of not less than $50 and not more than $200. Two hunters face a more serious charge of obstruction by giving game wardens fictitious names.

A sizeable market, both domestic and export, have Christmas tree buyers on the roads these days. The Department points out that such trees can be profitably taken from plantations as thinnings, or can be grown on waste land as a crop and harvested as a legitimate field crop. Export permits, covering trees being shipped to the United States, may be had from Lands and Forests offices in Lindsay and Orono.

Charged In Accident In Front Of Own Home

A charge of failing to signal for a left hand turn is being laid against James J. Hooper, 1387 Monaghan Rd. as the result of a two-car accident in front of Hooper's home about 5.30 Tuesday evening.

Averill A. Mutton, of Bridgenorth was driving north on Monaghan Rd., and was just about to pass the Hooper car also going north, when Hooper made a left turn into his driveway and the two cars collided.

Constable Andre Dalton reported that Hooper said he pulled over to the centre of the street, just before the accident.

Both vehicles were damaged slightly in the collision.

TAX PROBLEMS IN INCORPORATED BUSINESSES was the subject of John Alexander Wilson's address Tuesday night to the Peterborough chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants of Ontario in the Empress Hotel. Income Tax Act Confusing To Experts Says J. A. Wilson

Business men plagued with income tax headaches should not tear their hair out trying to figure out what the income tax act means—even to experts it's confusing. This admission was made by an income tax expert and former Peterborough man, Jack A. Wilson, who came back to his hometown Tuesday night to speak on "Tax Problems in Incorporated Businesses."

Mr. Wilson who is president of the Ontario Institute of Chartered Accountants and a partner in a Toronto firm of chartered accountants addressed a meeting of the local chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario in the Kawartha Room of the Empress Hotel.

Got Expert Advice

Stressing the "importance of obtaining expert advice on the interpretation and application of the Act;" the speaker warned against "taxpayers becoming amateur lawyers. There are many pitfalls in the Act that may be expensive to yourself and your company." Mr. Wilson advised business men to obtain expert legal advice, on income tax matters. So involved are some sections of the Act that quite often, accountants and lawyers combine as an interpretation team he said.

While the Canadian Income Tax Act is patterned after the United States Internal Revenue Act, Mr. Wilson said that so far, English cases have been frequently used in determining judgments in this country. A situation which he termed "far from satisfactory."

Mr. Wilson said there is an important distinction between "actions of a taxpayer to keep taxes at a minimum and attempts to evade taxes."

Preferred Partner

The government, he said, is like a preferred partner who gets his cut first and you take what he doesn't want. Meanwhile the responsibility is left in your hands and you take the losses.

Pointing out that "about 50 per cent of appeals made to the Income Tax Appeal Board have been successful," Mr. Wilson said, "Too often, taxpayers are willing to accept interpretations and rulings given by local authorities. We must remember that tax authorities are working for the government and often departmental rulings have been found to be out of tune with the law and upset."

Recheck all expenses, he advised, experts have found on close examination that quite a number of expenses first thought to be not deductible could be "included quite successfully," he said.

Plan Ahead

"Pre-planning is the most important thing relating to taxes," Mr. Wilson continued and he advised business men to be very careful in considering the tax angles in making deals.

The speaker emphasized the value of "tax consultants" whose experience and background in negotiation is an asset when problems arise that require discussion with departmental officials.

Also, Mr. Wilson said, it should be remembered that the income tax department is just as interested in settling without going to court as the taxpayer. The success of the professional tax consultant is often due to a lot of hard work which the taxpayer doesn't have time to do, he said.

Mr. Wilson pointed out that income tax regulations are often contrary to long accepted accounting principles and practices, (for example, money received for goods or services not yet delivered is often regarded as revenue instead of a liability). He said that two methods of avoiding pitfalls were: (1) to make it a point of having someone in the organization familiarize himself with the type of problems likely to arise and to watch for them, and (2) management conferences, to sit down and look for income tax troubles.

Mr. Wilson also discussed income tax difficulties associated with depreciation, fixed assets, losses, loans to shareholders and the reducing balance as compared with the straight line method of depreciation.

Mr. Wilson was introduced by Blake Bell and was thanked by Andrew Purdon. Bob Aman, was chairman for the evening.

Exhibition Date To Be Sept. 9

Peterborough Exhibition will retreat from harvest time and its claim on rural preoccupation in 1952.

Directors last night decided to change the dates from August to the week of September 9 to 13. G. A. Gillespie and N. W. McConkey, attending the district fairs meeting in Port Perry today, were instructed to put in a claim for the week following the Toronto Exhibition instead of the week prior.

The motion by John Kitney and Manson Cathcart assumes that with Labor Day on September 1, the CNE will run through the previous week. Actually, it is a conditional motion, set in alternatives.

Would Switch

If the CNE dates are August 22 to September 6, Peterborough wishes to switch from August to September 9 to 13. But, if CNE opens on Aug. 29, which is unlikely, then Peterobrough will retain the August dates, from 26th to 30th.

Peterborough wishes to return to the same dates as the Western Fair in London. Opinion of the directors has been that farmers generally are still busy between Aug. 15 and 30, and especially in seasons that are a week or two late as experienced this year.

MUTUAL DEFENCE GUN ARRIVES

The latest addition to the equipment of the 50th HAA Regiment, RCA, is an American 90 mm anti-aircraft gun. One of a few now in Canada, the ack ack gun arrived recently from the United States through the mutual defence system. The regiment now has four anti-aircraft guns, three 3.7 guns besides the 90 mm.

English Wife Indian By Law At Hiawatha

Home, to the former Anne Rosemary Hacker, of Sussex, England, is the Hiawatha Indian reserve on the north shore of Rice Lake.

She has found, as the wife of treaty Indian George Paudash, Jr., that life as an Indian is confusing at times—as confusing as her former Holywood-inspired opinion of Indians.

She tells her story, "I Married an Indian," in the December 1 issue of MacLean's Magazine.

Mrs. Paudash has been in Canada only a year, and in that short time has discovered that she can shoot moose out of season, pay no income tax, cannot vote or drink, and can receive—outside the mother's allowance—treaty money amounting to $15 for each member of the family.

Met In Sussex

George Paudash met his English-born wife in a blackout in Bognor Regis, Sussex. They were married soon afterwards. While George was in Europe as a sergeant with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengaryy Highlanders, his wife lived with her family.

The Paudash family came to Canada in 1950, not long after Sgt. George received his discharge from the Canadian army.

From that time, Mrs. Paudash began to find out a few things about an Indian's life in Canada. Legally she is an Indian, registered with the Indian agency in Peterborough, subject to the terms of the Indian Act, a Rice Lake Indian, Band No. 69.

Color Line

She found a color line still drawn by whites. She heard suggestions that Indians were "pretty dirty" (not true, says Mrs. Paudash), and remarks about the woman "who married one of those Indians." "People in England haven't the Canadian's prejudice about dark skins," she says.

Their are six children in the Paudash family, one of them Mrs. Paudash's by a former marriage. No baby sitter problems exist on Hiawatha reserve, and the sitters refuse to accept pay for their sitting.

The good points of being an Indian pretty well balance the bad ones, she says. Mrs. Paudash's only vote can be cast for the chief and councillors of the band, elected every three years.

There is free medical care, from dentist to hospital, Indians can pass the US-Candian border freely, not even having to pay bridge toll.

In all, says Mrs. Paudash, "I'm still glad that I caught one of the vanishing red men."

Cost Of Living Decrease By Christmas Visiting Expert Predicts

Canadian Economy Lags Six Months Behind US, Slipped In Summer; Credit Curbs Here Partly Responsible

An expert on taxes and inflation came to Peterborough with a pleasant prediction on Tuesday. The cost of living index will probably show a decrease before Christmas, he said in an interview Tuesday afternoon. The expert is J. R. Petrie, director of research with the Canadian Tax Foundation. A tall, burly, grey-haired man with an easy and pleasant smile tucked disarmingly under a neat mustache, Mr. Petrie said it was not too difficult a prediction to make.

His reasons: Canadian economy lags about six months behind that of the United States. Early this summer, the cost of living index in the US dropped fractionally. Canada's cost of living index has been levelling off to the point where it will fall in line with what happened south of the border.

But Canada's cost of living index is not dropping merely because the US index is down, he said. The government's policy of curbing credit must take some of the applause.

The Canadian Tax Foundation, by the way, is not a government bureau; it is sponsored by the accounting and legal professions of Canada.

Sound Policy

Mr. Petrie said he thinks the government's policy of restricting credit is sound. And he believes that budgeting for a surplus is also a good thing.

But he dislikes the way in which the government is handling the surplus—now on a level of $500,000,000, yearly. This tax surplus is being used to retire the public debt, and about one billion dollars of that debt has been retired.

The fault lies, said Mr. Petrie, in the fact that the money used to retire the national debt is coming back into circulation and maintaining inflationary tendencies. The surplus should be taken out of circulation; "thrown in a furnace at the mint" were his actual words.

If the surplus is to be used, then the government should institute compulsory savings, similar to the system used during the war. There should be some way to take money out of circulation, because there is too much money chasing too few goods.

Panic Buying

One factor that hastened inflation on its ruinous path, he said, was panic buying after the start of the war in Korea.

Merchants didn't know whether it meant all-out war or a localized struggle. They stock piled goods for two reasons: against higher prices and against shortages.

Somehow, the tremendous demand had to be offset. "The purpose of the government's monetary and fiscal policy is to try and prevent the purchase of goods that are in short supply," said Mr. Petrie.

Temporary Unemployment

The credit controls may have resulted in some temporary unemployment. Short bank credit forced retailers to cut inventories, and these reduced inventories were reflected in decreased sales by manufacturers.

Mr. Petrie felt that the great wave of buying that swept the country in the early part of this year would have petered out in any event. "People don't buy more than one car," he said. "At least, not many."

All the government's fiscal policy achieved was to cut short the wave of buying some time before it would have died a natural death.

The third point of the government's economic policy—deferred depreciation for certain types of capital investment—was not such a good idea. Mr. Petrie said businesses were engaging in expansion to avoid high taxes.

Example

"Say a businessman built a $100,000 warehouse. Normally, he would depreciate that at about 10 per cent, $10,000 annually. Under the third point of the government's fiscal policy, he could claim no depreciation for the first four years," said he.

"This is perhaps the most inflationary factor present in the country."

Mr. Petrie explained that the small businessman could not afford to make needed expansion if he could not claim depreciation for four years. It didn't matter with the larger, richer firms; they could float bond issues, issue more shares of stock, and thus get their money.

"Deferred depreciation is not effective because it hits the small businessman," he concluded.

Tuesday night he spoke to a meeting of the Local Council of Women at the public library.

$100 Damage As Cars Collide

A hundred dollars damage resulted Tuesday when the cars of Harold Wildman, 28, Lansdowne St., and Stanley Whitfield, 51, RR 5, Peterborough, collided on a North Monaghan township road, four miles south of Peterborough. Whitfield was coming east out of laneway onto the township road, instead of getting across the road his vehicle failed to grip on the slippery road surface and was struck by Wildman's southbound car. OPP Constable John Cawood investigated.

Community Fund Names 2 As New Board Directors

Two new directors representing the contributing public were appointed to the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund board of directors at the annual meeting Tuesday night in the YMCA.

J. E. Girven was elected to replace Ian McRae and H. L. Garner to replace James Dutton.

William Richardson was also elected as a director representing the contributing public. Mr. Richardson had formerly been a director representing an agency.

The directors for the 1952 campaign representing agencies are: Mrs. C. J. Ray, Red Cross; E. J. Wolff, St. Vincent's Orphanage; E. C. Braund, Salvation Army; Alex Elliott, YMCA; Mrs. John Hornal, YWCA; Magistrate W. R. Philp, Canadian National Institute for the Blind; Mrs. S. O. Shields, Peterborough Humane Society; W. M. Gemmell, Victorian Order of Nurses; J. E. Lilico, Navy League; K. D. Dalrymple, Children's Aid Society.

The remaining members of the board are: R. L. Dobbin, chairman; Mrs. J. P. Watts, James Hamilton, G. A. Macdonald, J. Corkery, G. S. Mathews, J. E. Sullivan.

Treasurer T. A. McKay reported that $69,676.76 had been received from the 1951 campaign at the end of the fiscal year, Oct. 31.

Chairman Dobbin said that it was expected a total of $82,676.76 would be received by the end of the calendar year.

The 1951 campaign money has been distributed to the agencies as follows: St. Vincent Orphanage $4,300; Salvation Army $5,800; YMCA $16,800; YWCA $13,500; Canadian National Institute for the Blind $5,300; Peterborough Humane Society $260; Victorian Order of Nurses $4,625; Navy League of Canada $1,000; Children's Aid Society $8,000.

A sum of $11,000 will be paid to the Canadian Red Cross before the end of the year.

French Canada May Get Military School

MONTREAL, Nov. 28—(CP)—Col. W. W. Goforth, retired director of weapon development for the Canadian Defence Research Board, Tuesday revealed plans of a "St. Cyr, de Quebec," a military school aimed at providing bilingual officers for all three Canadian armed forces.

Adressing members of the Chambre de Commerce, Col. Goforth said the plan has been in the hands of the federal government since the Second World War and this is the first time it has been made public.

He said the plan, with 20 separate points, was prepared by him at the suggestion of Gen. Crerar.

Col. Goforth said there have been arguments that such a plan would diminish the value of Royal Military College at Kingston. He said he believed that RMC would become a more advanced institution of military training and higher education.

He added, "the overwhelming advantage of a 'St. Cyr de Quebec' is that it would bring French-speaking officer representation in the armed forces on a strict merit basis up to what it would be in terms of proportionate population.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 — (CP).—H. L. Stiegemeier of Normal, Ill., winner of the world corn championship at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, Tuesday won the hybrid shelled corn championship at the International Grain and Hay Show.

Stiegelmeier, probably the continent's best known exhibitor of corn and beans, was reserve soybean champion at the Royal this year and previously won three championships at the International for soybeans.

The Illinois farmer also won the hybrid shelled corn championship last year.

Conviction Quashed

TORONTO, Nov. 28—(CP)—A court Tuesday quashed a conviction against Harold Berton Gray, of Kingston, who was sentenced to 10 days and fined $100 in addition on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident. Lawyer Charles Dubin argued successfully that the charge did not allege Gray was directly or indirectly involved in an accident.

Develop Mobile Sprinklers To Fight Russian Drought

MOSCOW — (Reuters).—Machine-made "rain" has been added to the Soviet arsenal of farm implements as a weapon against drought.

While still limited in scope, "rain-making" ranks with ditch-digging and three-planting as a practical measure in the national irrigation program to reclaim millions of acres of arid wasteland and to stabilize crops in areas of periodic drought.

Rain-making in the Soviet sense means irrigation by sprinkling.

The rain-makers are mechanical sprinkling systems of which three basic designs are at present in use. All of them were first developed by Russian farm water researchers in the pre-war decade ending in 1941.

The individual installation always consists of a high-pressure water-pump, feed pipe lines and sprinklers. The spread of rain, or sprinkler range, varies with the type of sprinkler used. The long range rain-making apparatus with revolving nozzle sprinkler, has a wing spray of about 500 yards.

The apparatus is recommended for watering orchards and nurseries, because its rain drops are too large for field crops.

Used For Vegetables

The short range apparatus, equipped with fixed round sprayers, has a spread of about 150 yards. Giving finer rain drops, this apparatus is in most general use, particularly on vegetable farms.

Soviet writers point with pride to the "double-console rain-making machine," developed for watering general farm crops on large plots. This apparatus is built into a high-power tractor, and at work in the field resembles a big grounded plane spraying a drizzle of fine rain from nozzles on the wing undersides.

With a spread upwards of 200 yards, the machine is driven alongside the irrigation ditch from which water is pumped out and rained over the crops. With its water-pump built into the tractor, the double console apparatus is the only fully mobile unit of the three designs mentioned above.

The short range apparatus has a mobile sprinkling unit developed since the war, while the long-range apparatus has a mobile pumping unit. These latter two systems, however, are basically fixed field installations, because the water feed pipe-lines are permanent mains with hydrants at fixed intervals for attaching the rain-sprayer units.

Electric Drive

The pumps used in all systems are variously driven by gas engine, internal combustion engine, or electric motors. With greater available power in the future, the electric drive will doubtless become dominant.

As a form of irrigation, this "rain making" has been proved more efficient in water use than irrigating by self-flowing ditches and furrows, which loses and estimated 75 per cent of the water in the ground before reaching the roots of the crops. Crop yields are said to be 50 per cent greater than under ditch irrigation.

Toby Grand Champion

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 — (AP).—A sleek black Aberdeen-Angus calf named Toby, on Tuesday was named grand champion of the International Live Stock Exposition. Shown by Iowa State College, Toby, a junior yearling, was the same steer with which the Iowa school last year won the reserve grand championship.

Toby weighed 830 pounds last year when he captured runner-up honors. His handler said today he weighs 1,240 pounds.

New Body Armor

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP).—New body armor might prevent 50 to 75 per cent of deaths of fighting men in Korean battle, Col. John R. Wood, Army Medical Corps, said Tuesday. The armor is eight-pound vests, made of layers of fiberglas cemented by plastics. They protect the chest and abdomen.

Judgment Reserved In Suit Against Doctor

TORONTO, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Judment was reserved Tuesday in a suit for breach of contract brought against Dr. R. A. Gill by his former employer, the Oshawa Clinic.

The trial, which began in Whitby last week, ended in Osgood Hall here Tuesday.

Dr. Gill started working for the clinic shortly after his arrival from England in 1950. Under the contract he signed, Dr. Gill was forbidden to practice in Oshawa area for five years after termination of the contract.

CHICAGO, Nov. 28 — (CP) — Don Head Farms, of Richmond Hill, Ont., Tuesday night brought Canada its first top honors in cattle competition at the International Livestock Exposition.

Black Cap of Don Head 48th won the junior heifer class and went on to take the reserve female championship of the Angus section of the big show.

The well-known herd's Eileenmere of Don Head the Second finished third in the senior bull calf class which was one of the largest classes in the Angus section of the big show.

In the same class another glossy jet-black Canadian bull calf placed ninth. It was shown by Edwards Brothers, of Watford and Arva, Ont.

Don Head placed eighth in the senior yearling bull class while in the summer yearling bull class Edwards Brothers placed fourth.

In the two bulls, any age, bred and owned by exhibitor, Edwards placed eighth and Don Head 10th. Don Head was third and Edwards Brothers 17th in the summer yearling heifer competition.

In the senior heifer calf competition entries from Edwards Brothers placed third and 18th while Head Farms was 11th.

Two Other Titles

Don Head Farms also won both the ram and ewe championship in the breeding Southdown division.

The victory in the ewe division was a repeat of last year's at Chicago. Don Head also won in 1948 and in 1949 took the reserve championship. The ram championship was a repeat of 1946 and 1949. They were out of the money last year.

Don Head Farms won the ewe championship with a yearling, and in its own class bested 16 other entries to advance to the championship judging.

Don Head—which also exhibited Angus cattle at the show—won the two-year-old rams class.

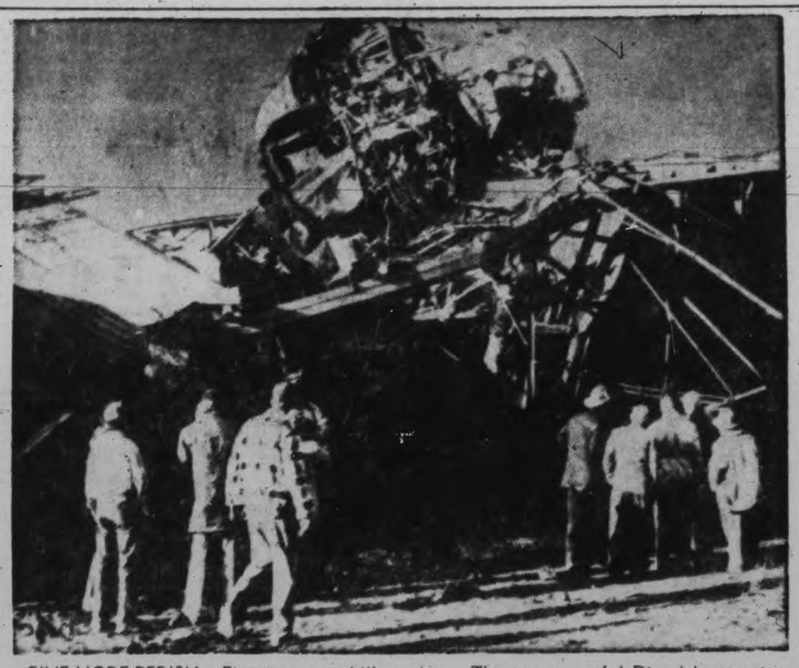
Don Head also won third and fifth place.

Bancroft Legion Takes Scout Sponsorship

BANCROFT, Nov. 28 (ENS)—The local branch of the Canadian Legion accepted official sponsorship of the Bancroft Boy Scouts at a regular Legion meeting Friday night. Previously the troop had been operating without an official sponsor but with the financial support of Bancroft Lions Club and parents and friends of the organization.

In order that the Scouts will have a permanent meeting place arrangements have been made for them to meet in the Legion Hall on Thursday nights. At present, they are 15 Scouts in town and with the establishment of a regular club room officials are confident that the numbers will grow in the near future.

A committee, consisting of William Lavalley, chairman, Murray Fox, James Maxwell, S. R. Walker, Scoutmaster Henry Phillips and Assistant-Scoutmaster Albert Stapley, was appointed to be in charge of the project.



Scoutmasters Phillips and Stapley said that Apple Day for the Bancroft troop would be held on Saturday, December 15. Due to circumstances beyond control the local boys had not been able to co-operate in the Apple Day held by Paudash Boy Scouts on November 17.

Dr. Seeley Says More Scholarships Needed

TORONTO, Nov. 28 — (CP)— Dr. R. S. K. Seeley, Provost of Trinity College, Monday night called for more scholarships in theology, government and journalism, lest Canada become "a nation with second-hand opinions."

At a ceremony for admission of scholars of the college, he said it is necessary to "build up a scholarly community of our own in every field of thought" to prevent domination by United States culture.

"If our press is to be anything more than a disseminator of sensationalism and is to be worthy of the traditions of the Fourth Estate, we need to fortify the transmission of news with the produce of the scholarly mind: discrimination of issues, assessment of values, good writing combined with good thinking."

FIVE MORE PERISH—Five men were killed and 43 cars derailed when two Union Pacific freights collided near the tiny desert railroad settlement of Orchard, Ida., Sunday. The two powerful Diesel locomotives were completely demolished by the impact. Note the rescue worker atop wreckage peering into the car for the bodies of victims.

Youth Service In Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Nov. 28 (ENS)—A special youth service with members of the inter-church Young People's Club taking part, was held in St. Thomas' Anglican Church Sunday evening. Scripture lesons were read by Paul Sanders and Bob Palmer, the collects were taken by Don Kent, and the state prayers by George Smith. Alan Wright and Arnold Grackenridge assisted as sidesmen. The special music was a mixed quartette comprising Yvonne Richards, Jean Smith, George Smith and Donald Spicer.

In his address to young people and their parents, the Rev. A. A. Chote, the rector, said that it was necessary to assess the youth of our time. Some had called it an irresponsible and careless generation. While there was, perhaps, an element of truth in this, nothing was to be gained by this kind of criticism. The older generation must try to be fair, to look on with sympathetic eyes, and to say things that will bring out the best in youth. Mr. Chote stated it was necessary to get youth's spirit of adventure enlisted in a cause that was worth while fighting for.

The Young People's Group met in the home of the secretary, Jean Smith, after the service. Paul Sanders, the new president, was in the chair. It was decided to sponsor a carol service to be given by the Salvation Army the evening of December 16 in the Presbyterian Sunday schoolroom. In place of the regular meeting on December 9, the YP members are being asked to attend evening service in Knox United Church, Peterborough. On that evening St. Andrew's United Church choir of Millbrook is supplying a program of Christmas music in Knox church.

It was decided also to launch a membership campaign and to send letters to all young people of the community who had not already joined.

The Rev. W. H. Heustin, of Grace Presbyterian Church, told the story of how the old well-loved hymn "The Old Rugged Cross" came to be written.

The Rev. A. A. Chote, rector of St. Thomas', led in the worship service which had as its theme "Launch Out Into the Deep" and which dealt with the story of Peter.

The recreation period was in charge of Don Spicer and his committee. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Anne Dawson and Yvonne Richards.

Bailieboro Church Observes Anniversary

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 28—(ENS)—Bailieboro United Church held its anniversary services Sunday in their recently renovated church.

The Rev. H. D. McCormack, St. James United Church, Peterborough, preached to capacity congregations at both services.

Mrs. H. Seens presided at the piano.

Too Inconspicuous

CARSON CITY, Nev., Nov. 28. (AP)—The Nevada penitentiary's bright-red trucks are too inconspicuous, Warden Arthur Bernard has concluded. Nobody bothered a trusty who drove off in one, sold its load of gunnysacks, and disappeared. Bernard ordered the trucks painted with big black-and-white stripes, Monday. "We want them to look just like convicts," he explained.

U.S. Aid Progress In Asia Buoys Hopes of New Friends

By FRANK L. WHITE

MANILA, Nov. 28—(AP)—Economic Co-operation Administration chiefs say progress made under American aid in southeast Asia has raised high hopes of eventual victory over Communism in that vital area.

This report on ECA progress comes from reports by the leaders of missions in six red-exposed countries to a meeting in the Philippines this month.

The program is to provide technical asistance so that Indonesia, Burma, Thailand, Indo-China, the Philippines and Formosa can develop their own resources. Financial help — with strings — is given where needed.

Here is a country-by-country report on progress and plans for the future, as outlined at the meeting:

Indonesia: Since independence from the Netherlands, the country has been short of food. Better rice seed is being furnished, plant diseases are combatted, efficient use of fertilizers is being demonstrated. One project financed 60 fishing vessels intended to add 6,000,000 pounds to the annual catch.

Boost Small Industries

Engineers have been brought in to advise in the development of small industries. Other advisers are helping in the development of forestry products and the processing of rubber and copra. A government campaign to stamp out malaria and other diseases is being aided.

Burma: The "scorched-earth" policy of the Second World War seriously lowered food production. ECA aid is geared to restoration of pre-war levels of production in rice, metals, ores, petroleum and teak. Malaria control is a major project.

Thailand: One of the rare surplus food areas in southeast Asia, Thailand is "openly aligned with the free world," reported F. Fiegel, ECA chief in Bangkok. The aid program centres on increasing agricultural production for export.

Indo-China: The emphasis is on farm production, and yields are increasing.

Low-cost emergency housing, better educational facilities, and improved transportation and sanitation are ECA projects.

Philippines: A $15,000,000 aid program is being invested in fertilizer to make the Philippines self-sustaining as far as rice is concerned. A new $32,000,000 appropriation will seek to increase farm production through insect control, irrigation, and opening new land to settlement.

Formosa: ECA-aided crops are progressing so well there are prospects that Formosa will be able to export sugar and tea.

YWCA Becomes 60 Yrs. Old Has Widened Service To Be Hub of Women's Life

Hardly a day passes that this newspaper does not record in the women's pages the letters 'YWCA'. No further explanation is made, for the editors feel sure even the youngest reader knows what they stand for.

YWCA is the organization that has advanced and grown with Peterborough through the past 60 years; the organization that has taken an ever-widening part in the community life, till now it is the hub of girls' and women's activities outside their homes.

In this Diamond Jubilee Year, 1951, the Y looks back to its Golden Anniversary in the third year of the Second World War. Then the centre of attention was "girls away from home", for whom the Young Women's Christian Association was originally founded. The building, situated so conveniently to the centre of the city, had just been enlarged to its present size. The residence was accomodating as many as possible of the girls who came to the city on war work and the gymnasium, swimming pool and club program providing their recreational outlets.

Newcomers' Centre

In what may be called the post-war period—the past six years—this function of the Y was widened to bring together the war brides, the young married women and girls who are newcomers to this increasingly popular industrial city and to provide a congregating place for the DPs who immigrated to Peterborough district from Europe.

Also the Y has been keeping in step with changes in the general community. Finding there was greater emphasis on social life because of more leisure time from shorter working hours adopted by the local industries, the staff was increased to include a program director who has organized clubs for girls from public school age up and women, and each fall and winter season presents a variety of interest groups and handicrafts for study.

The YWCA Green Room is invariably chosen by women's organizations of the city and surrounding district for teas, bazaars and meetings, and is very often the scene of a wedding reception. The large recreation room sometimes serves a similar purpose for the public, but is generally used by the Y members for their own events of this kind. Kitchen facilities go with these rooms and club girls frequently use a smaller downstair supper room which is equipped for light cooking.

New Public Services

Latest Y service to the public is the cafeteria, serving low-cost meals to business men and women. This revision has also met the demands of residence girls who like variety in their food and change from light lunches to full course dinners as their budget permits. The dietitian also prepares the menu for banquets and dinners of outside organizations.

And the newest Y project is a nursery school to serve the fastest-growing south end section of the city. This is in charge of a fully qualified and experienced teacher who was located by the Y through her entrance as a "newcomer."

Training Valuable

An invaluable youth training field is provided by the local Y club program. Girls learn loyalty and integrity and to accept the responsibility of office as they advance from Little Women's Club forward. When adult they are taken on various committees giving voluntary service, in the Y and may later become members of the board of directors. Many women in executive positions here and out of town claim their ability was developed in this way.

(This Y also boasts a club for young men and women, "20 Plus Club", which is the city's closest to a matrimonial bureau. In one year 16 couples became engaged, from a membership of about 90.)

Staff Changes

Now executive director Miss Leta Brownscombe has been with the Association more than half of its lifetime and is the key woman. Formerly general secretary, she has put every phase of the work at her fingertips through experience, and also through very deep interest in it.

The secretarial work is now done by two full time and several part-time employees where formerly it was handled by Miss Brownscombe and an assistant. The present paid-up membership is 1,100, which signifies the number of girls making full use of the Y, but hundreds of women passing through the doors each week never become members, yet call upon "the desk" for some service.

A competent drama director, who also assists with program work, came on the staff just three years ago. She earned for herself and players high praise from the Drama Festival adjudicator last spring, and has brought to the Y congratulations for sponsoring this form of recreation and culture. There is also a Children's Theatre which was formerly directed by interested voluntary workers.

Festive Decoration In Tea Room Of Legion Aux.

The gay lights and glittering baubles highlighting a tall Christmas tree, festooning of evergreens and red and green streamers throughout the room and general brightness was achieved through the efforts of general convener Mrs. A. Parrington and helpers.

A Christmas scene which glowed from inside lighting centred the lace-covered tea table and was pointed up by red tapers. Small tables for the guests were effective with white covers crossed with red and green streamers.

Auxiliary members were pleased to have guests to pour tea and assist vice-president Mrs. G. Stevens in receiving. They were Mrs. Hugh Waddell, wife of the mayor-elect; Mrs. H. R. A tea cup reader was on hand to tell futures from the tea leaves.

The home cooking table featured a lovely frosted cake as a draw prize and it was won by Mrs. B. W. Harvey, 206 Sherbrooke St. In charge of the tickets and selling the baked goods were Mrs. C. Kernohan and Mrs. A. Wade.

A box of candy was the prize from the candy table operated by Mrs. A. Gynane and the prize was won by Mrs. Pearl Hickey, 306 Simcoe St.

Mrs. F. Frape was selling draw tickets on an afghan during the tea, but this draw will not be made for a week or more.

Aprons and bazaar goods were sold by Mrs. A. Wagstaff and Mrs. E. W. Withers.

A "wishing well" was a novelty feature with wrapped prizes being drawn up in a bucket by attendants Mrs. B. G. Rollins and Mrs. F. J. Batten.

Treasurer Mrs. R. Ritchie took tickets at the door.

St. John's GA Make Sizeable Sum At Bazaar Booths

Nineteen members were present at the weekly meeting of the Girl's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday, held in the Parish Hall with president Josie Hendren presiding.

Acting as treasurer Phyllis Willshaw gave a splendid report on the proceeds from the bazaar and tea last week. For the first time the G. A. has a sizable amount of money in its treasury. It was decided to purchase new G. A. Arm badges for each member and G. A. ties for those members who haven't any.

Joan Smith moved a vote of thanks to the leader Mrs. W. C. Boate for her help in making a success of G. A. activities at the bazaar. Norma Valois moved a vote of thanks to Miss Margaret Stevenson and Miss Gwen Sorby for their willing co-operation. Lois Moore thanked president Josie Hendren for the puppets and play loaned to the group by her brother for use in the puppet show.

The president outlined the program for the coming year, each meeting to start at five o'clock with two half hour periods of study, fifteen minutes recreation and meeting to end at six-thirty. Studies will be missions, cooking, home nursing, handicraft, churchmanship and Dorcas.

DOROTHY DIX

Who Has Priority? Family Or Newly Acquired Girl

DEAR MISS DIX: For four months I have been going with a boy who has asked me to marry him. However, he has confused me announcing that he is going to spend Christmas with his sisters. His mother died eleven years ago and his two older sisters raised him. Don't you think he should want to be with me instead of them? This isn't the first time his sisters have come before me. In fact, we even broke up over them one time, but we went back together after two days.

TONI

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: Since you are old enough to contemplate marriage, you should be mature enough to have acquired some perspective on human relationships. Family ties do not melt away just because a boy has fallen in love with a girl; it would be most tragic if they did. Your friend's sisters have done a fine job bringing up a younger brother in addition to raising their own families, and he would be guilty of gross ingratitude if he forgot them so easily and so completely.

Your Demands Excessive

An acquaintanceship of only four months is very weak justification for the proprietary rights you wish to exercise over your friend's time and affections. If your demands in this matter are indicative of your whole attitude, you are laying a very poor foundation for a good marriage. Let your ego be a little more submerged in the give and take, bear and forebear of matrimony if you want harmony and happines in your future home.

I'm sure you have a family of your own; they will want you around for Christmas and would probably feel very indignant if you deserted your own home for the holiday.

The perfect solution for your problem would be for each of you to spend part of the day with the other's family. Or, have your friend over to your house for the evening. If distance or other factors make any such arrangement impractical, let your friend spend the day at his sisters', and don't fuss about it.

DEAR MISS DIX: For the past year I have been going with a boy who has asked me to marry him, but wants to wait a few years. Right now he only comes to see me a few times a month and my parents aren't too fond of him. He doesn't want his people to know he is going with me, although they are very fond of me. Should I wait for him, continue seeing him against my parents' wishes, or go with someone else?

ANSWER: You fail to state just why your parents do object to your boy friend. If they have a valid reason for not liking him, you will do well to consider it. You also failed to state your age, which could have a vital bearing on the subject.

Your young man doesn't seem to be treating you too well, and if you decide to continue seeing him, by all means insist that his parents know about your friendship. When they find out how serious you are about each other, they will naturally resent the secrecy. The most absolute trust, you know, can be blighted by just a touch of suspicion. Settle these questions before you continue your friendship; if the answers are not satisfactory to you, break off and look for another beau.

DEAR MISS DIX: You may think I'm silly, but I am just at the age (14) where I get so hungry just before bedtime. My mother says I'll get fat, and I know I will. So could you please give me a little advice on what to do? I've been wondering if I can still eat, but something that won't make me fat. I'm not too heavy now.

D. K. G.

ANSWER: Girls your age can usually consume enormous quantities of food without having it show on the scales. Don't become weight conscious unless you really have a problem in that direction. Youngsters need good, nourishing food and if you try to do without it now, an ailing future may be the result.

Don't go to bed hungry, but there is plenty of low calory food available to ward off the pangs. How about fruit—raw or stewed—milk, skimmed if necessary, and crackers or a sandwich with a simple filling? Don't gorge on rich, heavy foods, and both your digestion, nerves and weight will be helped.

What's Right?

You know a bit of gossip and think it is safe to tell it since, so far as you know, the person to whom you are talking is not acquainted with the person connected with the story.

WRONG: Go ahead and repeat the gossip.

RIGHT: Realize that you would be taking a risk in repeating the gossip—the risk of hurting the person involved in the story and perhaps unknowingly offending the person to whom you are telling it.

Billie Burke Defends New Gowns

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28 (AP)—Billie Burke, now a television star, today defended the gals who wear low-cut gowns on TV.

"My goodness," exclaimed the veteran actress, "isn't the secret of beauty in how to reveal and how to conceal? If a girl has something worth revealing, I don't see why she shouldn't do so, as long as she leaves something to the imagination.

"After all, there is considerable historic basis for the use of decolletage. In the 17th and 18th century, the ladies certainly went in for plunging necklines, both on the stage and off."

Hubbie Agrees

Miss Burke also cited her late Husband, showman Florenz Ziegfield.

"Mr. Ziegfield certainly knew the value of revealing the female figure," she remarked, "although I must say that as his career progressed the girls in his shows wore more than they did in his earlier days."

Miss Burke, on a recent television show, had worn a fairly low-cut dress "quite by mistake." She primly applied a covering of lace before air time.

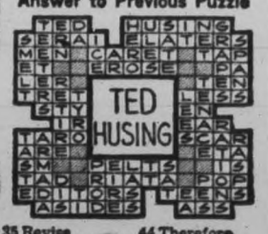
Total TV

The actress has embarked on a gruelling TV schedule which precludes her return to the stage or screen. She does a half-hour, five-times-a-week interview and comment show.

"I had some guest appearances in New York," she said, "but that didn't seem to be the thing for me. At first I thought I might do a program of my reminiscences, but I realized that can be deadly. So we came up with the idea of just playing myself at home and having guests to interview.

"After the first few programs, I began to enjoy it and now it's fairly easy work."

2-Day Meeting On Temperance



TORONTO, Nov. 28—(CP)—Leaders in the temperance movement from all provinces will come here for a two-day council meeting of the Canadian Temperance Federation Dec. 5 and 6. The Rev. John Linton, secretary, said the program will include visits to the Alcoholism Research Foundation of Ontario, Alcoholic Treatment Centre and Mimico Reformatory.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Creamed Salmon Special-Purpose Menu

Creamed Salmon in Mashed Potato Border
Quick-Cook Spinach
Shoe-String Carrots
Celery Hearts
Cherry Puff
Coffee

DIRECTIONS: This dinner is notable for its good looks. When the Creamed Salmon (see below) is made, turn it into a ring of hot mashed potatoes arranged at centre of large hot platter. Garnish with parsley.

Creamed Salmon

For 1 one-pound can salmon, pink or red, heat 1¼ cups whole milk with the liquid drained from can. Mix together 5 tablespoons flour and 4 tablesoons melted butter or margaine and when blended stir this into the hot milk mixture until thick. Flake the salmon and remove bones and add to white sauce. If desired add ½ cup drained canned peas or ¼ cup finely chopped green pepper or canned pimiento. Add salt and pepper and a little lemon juice to taste.

The shoe-string carrots could be arranged in attractive piles, alternately with the quick-cooked and (I hope) bright green spinach. You can imagine how attractive this would be around the potato border filled with creamed salmon.

To make the shoe-string carrots, cut the raw carrots in 4 or 6 lengthwise slices. Place these flat on your chopping board and with sharp knife cut the slices into ⅛" wide strips or "shoestrings" before they are cooked. They keep their shape very well without breaking.

Cherry Puff

1 20 oz. can Montmorency cherries, 2½ tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, ½ cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sifted cake flour, 6 tablespoons sugar, 2 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored, 2 egg whites, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Heat canned cherries. Mix together the tapioca, sugar and salt and stir into the fruit and cook stirring 1 minute. Pour into greased baking dish and keep hot. Sift flour and measure. Beat sugar and yolks until light. Beat whites and salt until foamy and then add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold yolk mixture into whites, sift some flour over and fold it in until all is used. Give the fruit mixture a stir before pouring the batter smoothly over it. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes or until cake is baked. Serve warm.

NOTE: Fresh or canned peaches, blueberries or apples may be used instead of cherries.

The batter which is poured over the cherries in Cherry Puff is an excellent one for individual cup puddings. You may want to double it though—if so go ahead.

Simple variations are: 1) Put about 1 tablespoon of raspberry jam in bottom of buttered custard cup and top with about 3 tablespoons of the batter and bake or 2) use marmalade or black currant jelly or jam under batter or 3) it is good with cranberry sauce which has been cooked.

In fact it is such a light and spongy little batter that you should cut this recipe out and file it away in your "pudding" folder.

6—In Memoriam

MACFARLANE—In loving memory of our dear mother, Ella Macfarlane, who passed away November 28, 1949.
God knew that she was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."
He knows how much we miss her,
Never shall her memory fade,
Loving thoughts shall ever wander,
To the spot where she is laid.
—Lovingly remembered by her daughters, Laura, Lillian, Amy and Marion.

MERCER—In memory of a dear brother, Richard Mercer, who died three years ago, November 28, 1948.
It's not the words they are but few
It's the memories Dick we have of you.
You left us quickly, your thoughts unknown,
But left a memory we are proud to own.
—Sadly missed by Ruth and Laurie.

MOFFATT, Mrs. Annie—At Peterborough on Tuesday, November 27, 1951, Annie Hartley, dear mother of James of Marmora, Norman of Port Perry, and Mrs. Harry Woodbeck (Mabel) of Peterborough. NEEDHAM—In fond and loving memory of a dear husband and father, who left us two years ago today, November 28, 1949.
Beside your grave we often stand,
With a heart both crushed and sore,
But in the gloom the sweet words come,
Not dead; but gone before.
God knows how much we miss you,
He counts the tears we shed.
And whispers, he's only sleeping,
Your loved one is not dead.
So we'll be brave dear daddy,
And pray to God each day,
That when He calls us home to you
Your smile will guide our way.
—Sadly missed by your loving wife and family.

YWCA Becomes

Swim and gym departments have now been separated and a full-time director put in charge of each. Formerly both were under Miss Caroline Littlefield and she gave swimming lessons in the spring and summer, gymnastics in the fall and winter. Now the pool is open throughout the year and is the only swimming place for girls in winter. The full-size gymnasium had its most active year in '50-'51, and Miss Littlefield presented her annual spring revue and ballet to the largest crowd ever, running it for two nights.

Foster New Groups

The YWCA Board of Directors, a very loyal and progressive group of woman, presently headed by Mrs. T. J. Carley, is always anxious to foster new groups and projects. The Public Affairs committee was organized to make women conscious of their rights as citizens and from it has grown the now independent Study Group on Civic Affairs. The Y does not interfere but works in harmony with CGIT, church groups etc. There is never any friction within the workings of the YWCA.

Founders of the first YWCA in Peterborough, which in 1891 had rooms over a George St. confectionery store, would be overwhelmingly pleased to see their child continuing to grow at its 60th birthday.

Though it is a central figure in this city, it has also obligations throughout the world. Since end of the last war members here have been making annual donations to the World Reconstruction Fund for rebuilding Ys in Europe and Asia. Speaker at the Diamond Jubilee dinner this week will bring a message on the forward outlook from the World's YWCA Conference at Lebanon.

It is this part of YWCA work that brings to attention the word "Christian," and reminds that the Association embraces all races and creeds. Teen age girls of the Y are presently knitting scarves for Greek Y girls. A club was recently formed in which most of the girls are French though other European nationalities are represented. A Trinidad Y girl spent several weeks visiting the local Y this summer after making friends with the members.

Growing pains of 60 years cannot now be eased. The Y in Peterborough will continue to serve, perhaps developing many more channels, and will grow in stature as it progresses in world service.

Named Archbishop

WASHINGTON, Nov, 28—(AP)—Rev. John F. O'Harra of Buffalo, 63-year-old former president of Notre Dame University, has been named Roman Catholic Archbishop of Philadelphia, the apostolic delegate to the United States announced Tuesday night. He succeeds the late Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, who died last May.

Civic Candidates

the past five years for their foresight in planning for a population of 50,000.

Mrs. Fanning expressed the appreciation of the Study Group for the mayor's 11 years of public service—three of them as chief magistrate.

It was then that Mr. Holland bobbed up from the rear row in the closely-packed committee room and asked:

"Why has the mayor had to retired under force of pressure? He has long been a capable and valuable citizen."

Pressure of Business

Replied the mayor, after a pause: "In the last three years council have had trying times. I've had a business of my own. A person can only carry on so long in that capacity. And as I felt that council had capable men on it able to carry on I had no hesitation in resigning."

Mayor-elect Waddell also congratulated the Study Group for their faithful attendance at city council meetings and invited their constructive criticism at any time.

He gave a resume of the work done by the property committee which consists of Aldermen Waddell (chairman), Miller, Braund, and Gillespie. City Clerk Outram is manager of city-owned property.

Mr. Outram's office takes in $35,000-$40,000 yearly in receipts and pays out expenses of $15,000-$20,000. In 1950, the last year where complete statistics are available the figures were $36,606 and $17,869.

Recommends Policy

The property committee recommends policy to council and once this policy is approved the manager of the properties puts it into effect.

Mayor-elect Waddell then gave a financial report on the old market lot.

Ninety-four meters were bought for $8,131. Resurfacing and installation was another $6,491, making a total cost of $14,622.

Since operations commenced in July the revenue has been $3,073.

"Receipts have fallen off somewhat since the high of August which was $1,151 for that tourist month, but it looks as though the city can expect to receive approximately $1,000 a month from the venture. And af this rate we can pay for the $14,622 expenditure in a little more than a year."

"What effort will you make to make good and sure that pressure is not brought to bear to remove you from the wayoralty?" asked Mr. Holland.

The 1952 mayor was non-committal. He said he would wait for the end of his term before deciding what he was going to do.

City Expanding

Alderman Patrick J. Anglesey, funeral director, said that Peterborough's population has increased 51 per cent in the last 10 years; and there has been a corresponding expansion in city services.

"That is part of the answer to those who point out that the tax rate is rising continually," he said.

From his experience in council he had learned that while individuals have ideas on certain subjects, they are not implemented until approved by a majority of the other 10 members of council, acting as a group.

Alderman Anglesey predicted that capital expenditures would be scaled down in the future, but this did not mean that taxes would drop.

First Try

George P. Brook, retired veteran of two wars, said he was offering his services to the city for the first time. He felt he could bring commonsense to city business as well as new blood.

Mr. Brook said he was not sponsored by any civic group or political party. "I'm a free lance jack and a lone wolf."

He made no specific commitments but said he thought that present taxes were a burden on the businessman and wage earner, alike. Other recommendations: A reduction in city rents before a general reduction in rents all along the line. Also a solution to the parking problem down town.

"You won't find me a 'yesman'," promised Mr. Brook. "I intend to be nosey and inquisitive. And I won't vote on any issue unless I've studied it and am sure it will benefit Peterborough."

William J. Beggs, millwright, dealt mainly with industrial expansion in Peterborough and its problems. He is president of Local 293, UPWA (CIO-CCL), and is the nominee of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL).

During the war, industry had expanded in Peterborough, he said, and the population has increased 51 per cent in the last 10 years and services must be extended to take care of them.

But this expansion poses a problem for the growing municipality because the cost of its services, such as the new hospital, are also mounting. And the money is coming "solely from the taxpayers in that municipality."

"The provincial and federal governments are having increasingly large surpluses while progressive municipalities are going into debt," said Mr. Beggs.

He stated that it was common knowledge that families are living in Peterborough in two-room flats and paying exorbitant rents. The solution was for the municipality to help ease the housing shortage.

Get a larger grant from the government, he advised.

"If elected I would find means whereby the burden on the taxpayers can be alleviated.

Sidney J. Black, merchant, making his first bid for public office after living in Peterborough for 29 years, said he had always taken a keen interest in civic afafirs.

He warned the electors that if they didn't get out and vote they might some day find they had slipped from a democratic choice of candidates to endorsing a single candidate of a single party.

"If we want a good city and a good life we must pay for them," he said. He stated that it was a common error of people nowadays to rely on the government for financial help.

"It all comes out of the taxpayers' pockets," said Mr. Black, "regardless of which government doles it out."

He promised to give civic business his very best attention if elected.

Alderman Ernest C. Braund said he had enjoyed his two years on council.

"The mayor has given fine leadership. We've had different views in the council chamber but that's as far as it went. Everything has been out and above board."

In his first year as alderman he was on the property committee that disposed of the old civic hospital to the Pentecostal Assembles.

That is now established and is equal to a fairly good-sized industry.

Other Prospects

This year he is chairman of the manufacturers committee and one new industry has started here and there are other prospects. The committee also laid the groundwork for the hiring of a part-time industrial commissioner.

"If elected I will try to do as much as in the last two years," said Alderman Braund.

Alderman John Dewart, manufacturer, came in late from a civil defence meeting. And he outlined civil defence measures as they exist now in Peterborough.

Through the Red Cross and St. John Ambulance Society some 150 people are being trained in first aid, he said. In case of emergency they will look after the injured.

"We may not think of Peterborough as a major target," said Alderman Dewart, "but for the first time in this century Canada will become a battlefield and warfare will be brought to the streets and homes of the people of Canada."

Peterborough had another responsibility besides self-protection. It would have to help out casualties in larger urban centres of Toronto and Hamilton.

Alderman Dewart said he has learned much of the machinery of government in his two years on the council, and if the electors feel his experience is valuable to the city he would be happy to serve another two years.

Grenville Lathangue, tool maker, a candidate in 1951, again is running for council.

He said he would be guided by common sense and good judgment if elected to council. Though he works in industry he assured the electors that "the way has been cleared" to see that he gets time for council work.

Explain Actions

"Often the council is held in ridicule by the public—a public that does not understand the basis of its own complaint — citizen sniping. It might well be that greater explanation by the council of its actions would result in a more informed public in Peterborough and a group of citizens armed with facts."

Mr. Lathangue said he would try to get to the bottom of the problem of locating the Memorial Centre.

H. Stanley Longhurst, accountant, is a candidate for council. He said that this is the first time he has run for public office.

"I have nothing to criticize, I haven't studied city business, but if I have your confidence and if I am elected I will study it. And I will do so with a sense of duty and service.

Alderman Douglas Miller, contractor, said that an alderman's first duty is to reduce the existing tax rate but the demands of the public must be satisfied.

"The council of 1952 will be faced with its share of problems: 1. Additional low rental houses. 2. New trunk sewers and water mains; annexation for expansion purposes (there are fewer vacant lots in Peterborough than any other camparable city). 3. Market facilities. 4. Memorial Centre. 5. Disposal of the old city hall. 6. Extension of fire services. 7. Municipal airport.

Old Problems

"Most of these problems have been before the council for some time," said Alderman Miller, "but because of more pressing matters nothing could be done about them. The question is: how many of them can be handled this year.

"I am definitely not in favor of increasing our mill rate but owing to the increased cost I feel that unless other methods of taxation are used it will be practically impossible to hold our tax rate at the present 55.5 mills, or a per capital tax of $54."

The high tax rate Alderman Miller attributed to three causes: 1. Increased cost of material and labor. 2. For years there has been a low mill rate and so little development of essential services. 3. Abnormal growth of the city.

Peterborough cannot expand as fast as it is without "growing pains," he said.

Age-Old Desire To Hide Age Fought By Pension-Seekers

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP).—The age-old desire of women to hide their age may present a difficulty in establishing the true age of some applicants for Canada's new $40-a-month universal pension payable at 70, a Government welfare official said today.

Dr. G. F. Davidson, deputy minister of welfare, told the Senate's banking and commerce committee of a woman who claimed she was born in 1881. But a search of the census and other records proved she actually was born in 1885—that she was 66 instead of 70.

He agreed, however, that women usually were inclined to say they are younger than they actually are. This was not overlooked in cases where women's records were being considered.

The department was prepared to accept family Bibles with entries of birthdates as proof of age. But there have been a few cases where the Bible, ostensibly proving a person to be 70, had actually not been printed until 1940 or 1945.

Dr. Davidson said that proof of age already has been accepted from 573,000 of the estimated 700,000 persons who will be eligible for the pension. He expected little difficulty in dealing with the other cases, but was concerned with the fact that despite appeals for early application, there are still an estimated 50,000 to 60,000 eligible persons in Canada who for "some reason or another" have not yet applied.

He estimated that not more than one or 2 per cent.—some 7,000 applications—will cause real difficulty in proving age.

In these cases, he said arrangements have been made to check their files in the census records through the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This required consent of the applicant since such files were secret.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics are compiling a microfilm file of all people in Canada 65 years of age and over. This would speed file searches, not only for the 70-year-old pensioners, but in cases where assistance was to be paid in co-operation with the provinces for those 65 to 69 years of age. This will be effective in those provinces making an agreement with the Federal Government.

MacArthur's Intelligence Chief Charges 6 Reporters Inaccurate

NEW YORK, Nov. 28 (AP) — General MacArthur's former chief of intelligence has accused six newspapermen of "inaccurate, biased and prejudiced" reporting of the Korean war, and charged their writings gave aid and comfort to the Communists.

The officer is retired Maj.-Gen. Charles A. Willoughby.

In an article in the December issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, Willoughby named the six individual newspapermen and also criticized three news-magazines. He said they "appeared to go out of their way to create defeatist thought patterns, and to belittle the country's armed forces."

Newspaper coverage of the war, Willoughy said, may have been the major factor in President Truman's decision to fire Gen. MacArthur.

Sharp denials immediately came from the newspapermen whom Willoughby identified by name. They are:

Joseph Alsop, syndicate columnist; Hanson Baldwin, military correspondent of The New York Times; Homer Bigart, war correspondent of The New York Herald-Tribune; Hal Boyle, war correspondent and columnist of The Associated Press; Drew Pearson, syndicate columnist; and Christopher Rand, former member of the Herald-Tribune's Korea staff, now resigned.

Charges Inaccuracy

"During the most difficult days in Korea," Willoughby wrote, "these men were often inaccurate, biased, prejudiced and petulant; they confused an unhappy public. The corrosive effect of their irresponsible reporting was equal to that of calculated defeatism, even if such was not intended. Their reporting furnished aid and comfort to the enemy."

Willoughby also cited Time, Newsweek and US News and World Report for "inferential, if not calculated deception of the public."

In their replies, the correspondents denied having criticized the army, as such, or the individual soldiers. They said they had criticized MacArthur, for his overall decisions, and Willoughby for his intelligence reports, on which MacArthur apparently based his strategy in Korea.

Sticks To Gun

Boyle criticized American intelligence in Korea, for which Willoughby was responsible. He said:

"The general's job was to obtain information about the Chinese and to evaluate it. I thought then, and I still think, that our intelligence was tragically bad. Gen. Willoughby, naturally feels otherwise. In this case, the events give the answer—the troops ran into a complete surprise ,and were decisively beaten back."

Last Nov. 20, MacArthur launched the "home-by-Christmas" offensive. It was immediately stopped. Three days later, the army was in full retreat, with some units totally cut off. It fell back to a line below Seoul before it could regroup.

Willoughby excepted some sections of the American press from his attack.

"The great press associations," he wrote, "have been generally accurate and balanced."

Drivers Charged, One Convicted

Two drivers involved in an accident on the Stony Lake Road October 11 appeared in police court Tuesday charged with careless driving. Both pleaded not guilty.

Leslie Crowe, RR 2 Lakefield, one of the drivers was acquitted of the charge. The other man, Walter Payne, also of RR 2 Lakefield was convicted and fined $15 and $5 costs or 15 days in jail in default.

Payne was driving his truck south on the road shortly before one o'clock in the afternoon. As he reached a long curve, decided to make a left hand turn on to a side road.

As he was turning left, a car following behind driven by Leslie Crowe attempted to pass Payne's truck and the two vehicles collided.

Payne testified for the crown against Crowe and Crowe was a crown witness in the case against Payne.

Gave No Signal

When Crowe was being tried during the morning court session, Payne testified he was going about 20 miles an hour and slowed down to five miles an hour as he was rounding the curve when he decided to make a left hand turn. He said he looked in the rear view mirrors on both sides of his truck and could see nothing coming from behind for 150 to 250 feet and since there was also nothing coming in front, he pulled over to the left hand side of the road. He said he did not give a signal because he did not see Crowe's car until it struck the left side of his truck.

Over $150 damage was done to Crowe's car. An estimated $40 damage resulted to Payne's three-ton truck.

Gordon H. T. Farquharson, defending Crowe, claimed there was no evidence to indicate Crowe was guilty of negligence. Magistrate W. R. Philp would not grant the request for dismissal and Crowe took the stand.

Followed Payne

Crowe said he had followed Payne for about seven tenths of a mile before they reached the curve. He said he was going between 15 and 20 miles an hour as he started to pass Payne's truck and that Payne then made a "sharp turn. I swung with the truck and applied my brakes when I saw he was going to turn," Crowe said.

Terming the charge "a vexatious" charge that should never have been laid, Mr. Farquharson argued that Payne created the emergency by turning to the left and that Payne's "carelessness" had resulted in his client's predicament.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw said that the accused (Crowe) had said it was fair to say he was travelling twice as fast as Payne and that if Crowe had only been going 20 miles an hour at the time he could have stopped before the collision.

In dismissing the charge against Crowe, Magistrate Philp said that the crown's argument was only valid if Payne had turned some considerable distance behind and that "Crowe had little alternative if we accept the relative positions of the two vehicles."

After Payne pleaded not guilty to the careless driving charge in connection with the same accident, court was adjourned until 2:15.

W. J. Arthur Fair defended Payne and the same evidence was repeated, with Crowe and Payne switching witness roles as accused and crown witness.

Mo. Evidence

"As sometimes happens in a new trial," said Mr. Fair, "the matter has been opened up more. More evidence has been produced that at the previous trial. The evidence at the first trial has varied materially at this trial."

Mr. Fair submitted that an independent witness (Mrs. Rosalie McNaughton, a passenger in Crowe's car) had testified that Payne started to make a left hand turn about 150 feet back of the scene of the crash.

Mr. Bradshaw asked Magistrate Philp to look up the evidence of Mrs. McNaughton "before she was lead and confused" when she said Payne started to slow down about 150 feet back but there was no suggestion he was about to turn.

"Payne's explanation of when he started to turn is not as clear as it might be," said Magistrate Philp in finding Payne guilty. "The evidence given by Payne in his defence was extremely contradictory and therefore, the accused is convicted."

RCAF To Buy Two Jet Transport Planes

Arrangements are underway to buy two Comet jet propelled transport aircraft for the RCAF.

These aircraft, built by De Havilland Aircraft of the United Kingdom, will provide facilities for the high-speed movement of material and personnel. They will bring to Canada the latest developments in jet transport aircraft, having been under development and test in service for the last five years. These aircraft will give the Air Transport Command personnel experience with the operation and maintenance of jet aircraft, and thus enable the Command to evaluate the usefulness of jet aircraft for the movement of personnel and cargo.

Test Defences

In addition, the two Comets will provide the RCAF with a suitable means of exercising the Canadian air defence system against high-speed aircraft which can simulate enemy bomber attacks.

The cost of the two transport aircraft, with spares, will be $3,500,000. The Comet is the only jet transport in production and service at this time anywhere in the world. There is no equivalent United States aircraft. Delivery of the Comets is expected by the end of 1952. The two aircraft will be allotted to Air Transport Command.

Civil Transport

The Comet was designed as a civil transport. It has a wing span of 115 feet and is powered by four Ghost jet engines. Those being obtained by the RCAF will be fitted to carry either passengers or freight. The De Havilland Company credits the aircraft with a cruising speed in the neighborhood of 500 mph and an operating altitude of about 40,000 feet. According to De Havilland the Comet has an all-up weight of 105,000 lbs., and with a 12,000 lb. payload has an operating still-air range of more than 2,600 miles. This operating range, of course, can be increased by reducing the payload carried.

Rich Germans Buy Yachts To Flee New War

EMDEN, Nov. 28 (AP)—"Those white yachts over there are Germany's new navy," smiled the old whiskered fisherman.

"It's a navy that will run away in case of war."

All along the German North Sea coast between Cuxhaven and Emden, it is common knowledge that pleasure boats have been prepared by cautious well-to-do Germans to carry them to distant refuge if war breaks out.

They are tied up in small and big harbors. It is difficult to estimate their total number, but it is probably more than 100. Several more wealthy families recently have bought and equipped such yachts.

Many an old seadog is reported to have made a lot of money buying and reselling old yachts to nervous landlubbers.

Kept In Shape

Some of the yachts have not gone out on a cruise in the last year, but they are regularly overhauled and inspected for seafitness.

Big sedans have been seen by fishermen bringing loads of provisions to be put aboard the idle craft.

Most owners are tight-lipped about their emergency plans, but the wife of an export merchant said frankly:

"Within two hours our boat would be ready to sail. Over there we could sell it for $50,000 and get new start in life.

"The pantry is well equipped and fuel is stowed away in the saloon. For our family of five and the three sailors there is still enough room."

Forecasts Prosperity Continuing If Inflation Kept In Bounds

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO, Nov. 28 —(CP)— Prosperity should continue in Canada if inflation can be kept within bounds, I. K. Johnston, president of the Imperial Bank of Canada, said, in effect, at today's annual meeting.

"The Canadian economy is buoyant," Mr. Johnston stated, and should remain so if it can be managed as to control the inflationary pressures inherent in our present circumstances.

"Our difficulties arise from the searching pressures of the international situation. Perhaps the best one can hope for is a prolonged period in which we and other associated nations must continue the policy of containment of Russia.

"We have, I think, made progress in this, and if we can manage our affairs successfully, despite these continuing pressures, we need not fear for our safety nor our economic well-being."

Good For Farmer

L. S. Mackersy, general manager, forecast a prosperous year for the farmer, with a prediction that cash payments from the sale of farm products will reach a record, despite the difficult harvest season in the west.

"Perhaps an estimate of $3,000,000,000 may be reached, compared with the previous record of $2,500,000,000 in 1949" (and some $2,250,000,000 in 1950). Mr. Mackersy added:

"The one domestic problem, and it is a very real one, is inflation, and all citizens should co-operate by word and deed in any and all efforts being exerted to minimize the present trend of ever-increasing costs."

Mr. Johnston said of domestic conditions:

The amount of capital being devoted to resources development, creation of industrial plant and equipment, production of power-generating capacity and transportation equipment, development of oil resources, to agriculture and housing, is truly phenomenal."

New Claim

Now, he added, defence production is adding its claim. Increased industrial production, up 12 per cent in the first half of 1951 over the same period of 1950, has helped meet the broad demands; as have increased imports, up 25 per cent in volume in the first half of 1951 over the first-half of 1950. But:

"To a growing extent, we must rely on a diversion of production capacity from civilian to defence purposes. . . .

"In the longer period, however, defence requirements may quite possibly be more largely met out of growing output of goods and services."

The labor force, he said, expands by more than one per cent each year from natural increase; immigration, which may reach 150,000 this year, will add a like amount; manufacturing facilities may have increased by more than 40 per cent since 1946 to the present; in agriculture, mechanization has permitted a rise in output despite a decline in working force.

Ease Tax Rules On Depreciation For Construction

OTTAWA, Nov. 28. (CP) — A slight easing in the government's program to help curb inflation by deferring depreciation on non-essential construction three years was anonunced Tuesday in the Commons.

Trade Minister Howe said an order-in-council has been passed which will grant relief in three types of cases where hardship is being experienced because of the restrictions. They are:

1. In the case of new structures, the properties will become eligible for normal depreciation allowance on taxable income, provided the taxpayer can prove he had entered into a contract for construction before April 11 and provided the structure is completed before April 1, 1953. This type will also cover cases where a builder employs no contractor but does his own building, provided he can show that he had plans and specifications adopted before April 11.

2. A taxpayer can apply for depreciation from the Trade Department if he can prove that he was obligated to acquire a property under the terms of a contract entered into before April 11. The emphasis, said Mr. Howe, is on "obligated to acquire". Options under which a taxpayer was not obligated to acquire will not be accepted as a binding contract.

Machinery Change

3. In the case of new and old machinery, the taxpayer can obtain a certificate of eligibility for depreciation if he can prove that he was obligated to acquire the items involved under the terms of a contract entered into before April 11. No deadline on a delivery date is fixed.

Action to defer depreciation was taken last spring when it became evident that Canada would undergo about $4,000,000,000 worth of capital expansion in 1951, placing a heavy load on demand for equipment and pushing prices upward.

Officials believed that by deferring depreciation on certain less essential construction there would be general discouragement to build new store fronts and the like immediately, making it easier for defence producers to get materials at a reasonable price.

However, officials outside the House said the general result of the restrictions was that builders turn more from non-essential to essential construction, with the result that there will be no great change from the previous $4,000,000,000 estimate for capital expansion this year.

My Mother taught me to do all my baking with Five Roses original all purpose flour!

MRS. DAVID GRAHAM,
1850 Gladstone, Windsor, Ont.

MORE MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS USE FIVE ROSES

"A woman has to be practical to run a home, and the first thing I taught my daughter was to use just one flour for all her home-baking . . . FIVE ROSES. For cakes, cookies, buns, pies and bread, we both find FIVE ROSES ALL PURPOSE FLOUR is economical, dependable and nutritious. I've used FIVE ROSES for years . . . and its quality is just as good as ever—first-class!"
MRS. CLEMENT ABBOTT, Bonavista, Nfld.

"My mother has used FIVE ROSES ALL PURPOSE FLOUR ever since I can remember . . . used it for every home-baking need. In my own kitchen, too, I depend on FIVE ROSES' even texture and fine-milled quality for sure, nutritious results every time!"
MRS. IVY AMBEAULT, R.R. # 1, Bar River, Ontario

"One of the many things I owe mother is the teaching she gave me in her own kitchen when I was growing up. She taught me how to bake cakes, pies, cookies and bread with FIVE ROSES ALL PURPOSE FLOUR . . . taught me so well that I never have a failure in my own home. Both our families are FIVE ROSES families."
MRS. JAMES MAY, Box 276, Lunenburg, Nova Scotia

"Mother brought our whole family up on crisp, country-fresh home-bakings from FIVE ROSES flour, so naturally I use it for all my baking. My little one — and my husband, too! — can't wait to get into the cooky jar or taste pies made with FIVE ROSES — and when I bake a batch of bread, it seems to be eaten up in a minute! As soon as my little girl is old enough, she'll begin baking with FIVE ROSES — making three generations!"
MRS. GORDON SHEPHERD, R.R. # 1, Brigden, Ontario

For over sixty years, mothers and daughters . . . grandmothers, too! . . . have enjoyed wonderful, even-textured results with Five Roses All Purpose Flour. Fragrant home-bakings of tasty Five Roses cakes, pies, cookies and bread are a must in thousands of Canadian homes.

Here, at the Five Roses Kitchen, we are constantly testing Five Roses flour with equipment just like your own . . . making sure that you will get perfect results every time!

Try Five Roses for tempting bakings and real savings!

Yours for better home-bakings,
Pauline Harvey.

Cranberry butter sauce, poured over breakfast waffles, gets Christmas off to a happy start.

Christmas Breakfast Menu Substantial, Not Elaborate

Christmas is a busy day—and all to the good. Nevertheless Christmas breakfast should be important—it's the first meeting the ecited family on one of the greatest days of the year.

The meal should be substantial but not elaborate. There's a new cranberry butter sauce, Christmas red in color, that suggests hot waffles or griddle cakes.

Cranberry-Butter Sauce
(Makes about 1¾ cups)

One cup brown sugar, ½ cup water, 2 cups fresh cranberries, ½ cup butter or margarine.

Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes. Add cranberries and boil, without stirring, until cranberries pop—about 5 minutes. Stir in margarine; boil 2-3 minutes longer. Serve hot over pancake or waffles.

With the waffles and cranberry butter, have fruit juice first, then crisp bacon or little link pork sausages.

Another menu suggestion for the Christmas stocking breakfast is this easy to prepare and wonderfully easy to eat meal. Orange juice, oven baked eggs and bacon, drop biscuits, butter, strawberry jam, coffee, milk.

The biscuits, bacon and eggs for this breakfast are done in the oven at the same time. The biscuits are put in first, then the bacon and eggs after 10 minutes. At the end of 20 minutes—breakfast is ready. While breakfast is cooking in the oven prepare the orange juice—fresh or frozen—and set the table.

Drop Biscuits
(14 to 16 biscuits)

Use prepared biscuit mix and follow package directions, or sift together 2 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and 1 teaspoon salt. Cut in 4 tablespoons shortening with pastry blender until the mixture resembles coarse corn meal. Add 1 cup milk, stirring with a fork. Drop by tablespoonfuls on baking sheet or turn into greased muffin pans. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 20 minutes.

Oven-Baked Eggs

Use individual baking dish, or 1 large shallow baking dish. Grease baking dish, carefully break in 1 or 2 eggs in each dish; add 1 tablespoon cream or top milk for each egg, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dot with butter. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 10 minutes or until firm.

Oven Cooked Bacon

Put strips on rack and place in shallow pan. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 10 minutes, or until crisp.

For a little extra Yuletide early in the day eating, these two recipes have holly in their heart.

Tabasco Scrambled Eggs With Sausage (6 servings)

One dozen eggs, ¾ cup milk, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon Tabasco, ¼ cup butter or margarine.

Beat eggs with milk, salt and Tabasco until well combined. Melt butter in large skillet; pour in egg mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring bottom and sides as eggs become firm. Continue until eggs are thick and creamy. Serve immediately with link sausage.

Sausage

Place link sausage in cold skillet and cook over low heat, turning frequently until browned, about 12 to 15 minutes. Pour off fat as it accumulates.

Have Tasty Cake For Holiday Treat

Christmas is the most wonderful time of the year. The beautiful tree, the cheery decorations, and friends dropping in to say "Merry Christmas."

As much a part of the Christmas tradition as holly and red candles are the rich, tempting fruit cakes and cookies the wise homemaker has baked to serve during holiday calls.

Holiday Fruit Cake

4 cups seeded raisins, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon of allspice, 2¼ cups of water, or coffee, 2½ cups chopped nutmeats, 4 cups sifted cake flour, 5 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, 1½ cups sugar, ½ cup butter or shortening; 2 well-beaten eggs, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Combine raisins, lemon rind, spices and water in saucepan. Cover and simmer gently for 8 minutes. Drain, pressing out as much liquid as possible. Measure liquid and add water or coffee to make 1½ cups, and reserve. Grind raisins and nutmeats.

Measure sifted flour and add baking powder, salt and sugar; sift three times. Cream shortening thoroughly, and add flour mixture, eggs, vanilla and reserved liquid. Stir until all flour is dampened. Beat vigorously for two minutes. Add raisin-nut mixture and mix thoroughly. Turn into two 9x4x3 inch pans which have been greased and lined with wax paper and greased again. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for one hour and 15 minutes or until done. When cool, remove from pan, leaving wax paper on until ready to serve. Wrap in clean cloth and store in a tin container to keep moist. Makes two loaves.

St. Nick Cookies

1 cup butter cookie crumbs, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1-3 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup finely chopped pitted dates, 1 cup black walnuts, chopped, ½ cup sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ cup powdered sugar.

Combine cookie crumbs, salt, baking powder and flour. Add dates and nuts. Add sugar gradually to beaten eggs. Blend in crumb mixture and vanilla. Bake in greased and floured 9-inch square pan in a slow oven (325 degrees) for 30 minutes. While still warm, cut into 30 squares. Roll each square into a ball, turning the top, crusty portion inwards as you roll. Place confectioner's sugar in a paper bag and shake balls in the sugar to coat evenly. Makes 30 balls.

Teen-age Christmas shopping becomes less of a problem project if interests and activities are considered. Boy (left) welcomes a travel kit which supplies compactly all his grooming needs on week-end trips home from college; girl (right) is happy with plastic-coated, pleated paper umbrella which appeals to her fashion sense, adds gay spot of color to a gloomy day.

Tips For Gift Hunters Among The Teen-Age Group

Buying the right gifts for your teen-age friends, either boys or girls, is a pretty delicate operation.

They can't be the same old thing, or you'll be branded as unimaginative, or worse, be regarded as lagging behind the times. They can't be too ostentatious; it just isn't done in the circles where allowances are apt to be pretty stringent.

But they also must not look like remnants from a rummage sale, even if you do score a goal on price.

It is quite a problem, but not an insoluble one, particularly if you shop around carefully, and if, before setting out laden with lists, you consider carefully what sort of person you are aiming to please.

You're in luck if you are dealing with hobbyists or people with decided, well-developed interests. For the camera bug there is this season a gift that is sure to please

This gay and handsome handbag of green suede, trimmed with polished red leather and closed with red stocking-knit top, prolongs the Christmas spirit for months to come. Dangle bracelets are conversation pieces: tiny harmonica really plays; hour-glass, set in heart, measures minutes.

Two shades of lipstick, in package that resembles miniature, saddle-stitched handbag, are designed to please beauty-conscious teen-ager.

—a printing kit which supplies, for an attractively low price, all the materials needed to print his own pictures.

Best of all, there is no darkroom needed. The particular printing paper included in the kit permits handling under ordinary kitchen or bathroom lighting.

Pocket Telescope

For bird-watchers, hunters or sportsmen in general, a pocket telescope is a handy gift. About the size of a fountain pen, it clips to the pocket in the same way for carrying. When the telescope is in use there is an outer barrel to pull out for optical adjustment by means of a special screw-focusing adjustment.

For the girl on your list who's meticulous about her make-up, who thinks it important to vary her lipstick to match her clothes, a case containing two new shades should be a welcome gift. The small kit itself is an eye-catcher. A bright red carton, shaped like a saddle-stitched, midget-sized handbag, it hints gaily of the latest charm contained within.

If handsome clothes, strikingly accessorized, rank high among her interests in life, an unusual, youthful-looking handbag may be the answer. The mood of Christmas itself is caught for the rest of the year in a high-spirited purse of green suede, accented with glossy red cowhide trim and stocking-top of red woollen knit.

Bracelet With Dangles

To jingle merrily on her wrist, a bracelet from which dangles a miniature harmonica that really plays, or one featuring an hour-glass timer that truly marks the minutes with shifting sand.

She will think of you with gratitude each rainy day if you choose for her this Christmas a brightly-colored, ingeniously-designed umbrella to ward off the wet and thase away gloom. Paper-pleated ones; coated with vinylite for rain-proofing, are especially attractive, especially interesting in point of price.

Week-ending males, particularly those who are continually jaunting home from college, should welcome a travel kit which contains, in its easily-accessible plastic case, almost any grooming aid he might require.

A razor, blades, styptic pencil, comb, after-shave lotion, deodorant, shampoo, hair-dressing, talc, brushless shaving cream, and tooth powder are all fitted compactly together to take a minimum of space in his travelling bag.

For the shutter-bug: an economical kit containing all he needs for printing his own snapshots. Special paper can be printed by ordinary kitchen or bathroom light; no dark room needed.

Roast Turkey, For Dinner On Christmas

There's nothing more festive for the Christmas feast than a golden brown turkey with all the traditional trimmings.

Of course, the size of the turkey depends on the number of people you plan to serve. Remember, a 15-pound turkey will serve 12 hearty appetites.

If you plan to stuff the turkey, allow a pound of your favorite dressings to each pound of turkey. Make sure not to pack the stuffing in too tightly as it will swell in cooking.

Secure the opening with a soft thread or with toothpicks across the opening, lacing it ladder-wise with a soft twine.

To Roast

Place the turkey, breast-side up, in a shallow roasting pan. Place on a rack if you have one.

Brush the entire bird with melted butter or margarine. Then take several layers of clean white cheesecloth, large enough to cover the breast, legs and wings of the bird; soak these thicknesses with melted butter or margarine and cover the whole turkey. Place in a preheated oven, and baste occasionally while roasting.

Your Roasting Time Table

Weight	Oven Temp.	Ckg. Time
10-14 lbs.	325 deg. F.	3½-4 hrs.
14-18 lbs.	300 deg. F.	4-4½ hrs.
18-20 lbs.	300 deg. F.	4½-5 hrs.

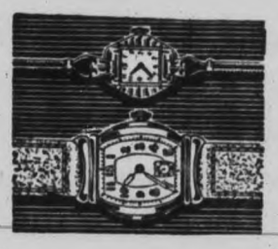
Special Dressing For The Turkey

1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 cup sliced nuts (use almmonds, brazils or hazel nuts)
Large chopped onion
Chopped parsley
1½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. black pepper
½ tsp. thyme
¼ tsp. paprika
1 egg slightly beaten
3 tblsp. hot water
1 tsp. lemon juice

For a Fluffy Dressing

Mix all the ingredients thoroughly, pile into a greased, medium-sized baking dish.

For Dressing Sticks



Press dressing onto a greased cooking sheet about 5" x 7". Chill in refrigerator for about 15 minutes, then cut into long strips about 1" thick.

For either method, bake 10-15 minutes in moderate (360 degrees F) oven. Serves 6.

In Holland, St. Nicholas visits the Dutch children with his little servant, Black Pete.

Santa Claus' Job Not One-Night Show

Many a Canadian child, settling down in bed on Christmas Eve, will wonder anxiously—like generations of small fry before him—how Santa Claus and his reindeer can possibly circle the globe in one short night, and how he can manage to slide down the chimney of every child in the world in the few hours between stocking hanging and wake-up time.

Junior Canada, as well as answerless parents, can relax. Santa's task isn't quite so formidable as it seems. This jolly old saint who gladdens the heart of children at the Yule season is a creature of many guises, and his is not a one-night show. He has, in fact, from Dec. 6 to Jan. 6 to make his benevolent rounds.

Among the first children visited by the gift-giver are the youngsters of Holland and Belgium. They reach their peak of excitement in the first few days of December, in anticipation of the feast day of St. Nicholas.

The saint himself arrives on the eve of the day, and, showing himself in his red bishop's robe and mitre, checks in person the conduct of each child during the foregoing year.

His arrival is announced by a shower of sweets on a clean sheet that has previously been spread in readiness upon the floor. As the children scramble for the treats, he enters, accompanied by his little servant, Black Pete, who holds a sack and a rod for the naughty.

After delivering warnings or praises, according to the individual, Santa takes his leave, promising to return when infant eyes are closed fast in sleep.

This he does, leaving gifts in the wooden shoes that have been set out carefully on window sill or hearthstone, and taking care to remove the straw and carrots that thoughtful children have left in their footwear for St. Nicks' hungry white horse.

In France, too, gifts are left in shoes, except in this country it is Petit Noel (the Christ Child), or Bonhomme Noel (Father Christmas), who rewards deserving little ones. In the small villages, children carry little candle-lighted creches through the streets, singing carols and collecting pennies.

Children's processions are an important feature of the Christmas celebration in Romania, too. From Dec. 24 through the 31st they march in the daytime bearing on a high pole a six-pointed star and tinkling bells, and in the evening go about singing greetings, carrying long bags with which to receive gifts.

In Italy, pre-Christmas activities include much reciting of small poems or little speeches by youngsters. They join with their elders in the observance of the Holy Festival, which begins with the booming of a cannon at sunset on Christmas Eve.

After prayers, their fast is broken with a banquet, following which presents are drawn from an Urn of Fate. This is a time for joshing and suspense; many blanks may be drawn before a satisfactory package is fished from the urn.

These, however, are gifts of secondary importance. For their hearts' desires, Italian children set out their shoes on the evening of Jan. 5 for the convenience of La Befana, an old woman dressed in rags and riding a broom-stick who comes with ashes for the bad, gifts for the good.

Gifts are put out in Spain, too, but it's the Three Kings or the Three Wise Men who arrive in the dark hours of Jan. 5 to distribute toys and goodies after small fry, weary of dancing to tambourines and singing Nativity songs, are sound asleep.

'Get Personal'; They Love It

Christmas is always more fun if you can find gifts to give that rate a welcome out of all proportion to the actual cost. Your friends are appreciative of your thoughtfullness and you get a lift of spirits because you're such a clever, budget-wise shopper!

If you have a long list of friends you want to remember at Christmas with gifts that are greeted with exclamations of delight, personalized gifts are the answer!

Low in cost, they have that special "just-for-you" touch that makes them such distinctive gifts.

Also, starring in the gift picture are hosts of gay, knick-knacks for the person who's "always losing things." Cleverly-designed key cases, gadgets to fasten her gloves to her purse or to hang her handbag to the restaurant table make welcome gifts.

These, and dozens of other new gift suggestions, are just the sort that will make wonderful little gifts to surprise her on Christmas.

Any one of them will make a gay, thoughful messenger to delight a friend at Christmastime!

Paper Gnomes, Soap Snow Used to Proclaim Christmas

Thick, fluffy soap suds make realistic snow drifts with which to adorn a tree that is set beside the door-way on a protected porch to welcome guests with simple Christmas charm. Lather hardens into textured finish which lasts the season without shedding.

You don't need a life-size Santa on your chimney or animated reindeer on your lawn to proclaim Christmas spirit to those who approach your home during the Yule season. Simple, inexpensive exterior decorations can speak just as eloquently of your gaiety and imagination.

If you're lucky enough to have an evergreen growing in your front yard, here's an idea for adornment.

A collection of old mop and broom handles provides the basis for trimmings for an outdoor tree. Cut the sticks into even lengths, give them a base coat of white, then add a fancy touch with brilliant red barber-pole stripes. Clip these to the green branches with cup hooks, and the effect will be that of a legendary candy tree hung with peppermint sticks.

To turn a snowfall into a windfall, try this soap trick for saving both bother and budget during the Christmas season. All that's required is a tree, firmly entrenched in a bucket or holder, and a big bucket of fluffy suds.

Dry lather is what you need; use little water and much soap or detergent. Then heap the boughs of the tree with your home-made snow. This "snow," which drifts and clings in a striking realistic manner, has the advantage of being inexpensive, non-inflammible and there's no mess from shedding. Once dry, the suds harden into a lasting, textured finish.

Such a tree set upon a sheltered porch, or used to grace a vestibule, welcomes the visitor to your home with a glint of brilliant white and a hint of the good cheer that awaits him. It's suitable for indoor decoration, too, if you've no place outside your door for this sentinel of hospitality.

It's worth a bit of effort to make your door an inviting one at Christmas time. It sets the mood for whoever enters your home.

John Drill, talented designer, suggests for those who wish a simple but effective arrangement a gleaming cone filled with greens from the country or with fuzzy colored Christmas boughs from the city shops.

You can make a cone yourself, using a chicken wire frome. Cut the wire in a half-circle, then bend it into a cone, twisting the cut wires together to hold the frame in shape. The radius of the circle should be equal to the length you desire for the finished cone.

Cover this wire frame with heavy-weight metallic paper, if yours is a well-protected door, or with oilcloth, if there's a chance rain may reach it. This, too, should be shaped from a half-circle, the radius of which should be slightly larger than that you allowed for the chicken wire.

To add a touch of glitter to the finished cone, fasten round sequins into place with household cement. Round Christmas balls, scattered among the greens you use to fill the cones, are a nice complement to the sequins.

For another sprightly door ornament, Drill suggests three little metallic-paper gnomes marching steadfastly across a pine or cedar bough. Bodies of the gnomes are fashioned from 3-inch half-circles, shaped into tiny cones. The arms are cut separately, and stapled or tacked into place with thread. The wires on which they carry their glittering stars are handsome when shiny brass is the metal used.

Fasten the end of the wires between their hands, glue together, slipping on a paper clip to hold in place until the cement is thoroughly dry. Then hang a star on the end of each elf's swaying hook.

This glistening cone, sparkling with sequins, and filled with boughs studded with Christmas balls, is a simple but effective way of proclaiming season's greetings to those who knock at this door. Chicken wire forms base for oilcloth or metallic-paper covering.

Old broom and mop handles, cut into lengths and painted with bright red and white stripes, make a fairy tale peppermint-stick tree of live shrubbery in this imaginative homeowner's front yard.

Christmas gnomes, with stars atwinkle, hint to holiday visitors of gaiety within.

Grateful Poles

STOCKHOLM—(CP)—The Polish council here said in a statement that Polish citizens fleeing their Communist-dominated homeland to Sweden, "a land of freedom," are grateful for Sweden's defence of the right of asylum to refugees.

Easy To Say "Merry Christmas" In Many Languages

It's easy to say "Merry Christmas" in many languages with this check-list of greetings in other tongues.

Say "Joyeux Noel"—in French; "Froeliche Weihnachten" in German; "Buon Natale" in Italian.

The Spanish have the words for it with "Felices Pascuas" or "Feliz Navidad"... in Holland they say "Een Vroolijk Kerstfeest," the Danes greet each other with "En Glaedelig Jule," or as the Norwegians would say: "Gledelig Jule."

In Czechoslovakia, they greet one another with "Vesele Vanoce" ... in Swedish, "God Jole" ... and to each and every one of you—we say, "The Merriest Christmas Ever."

1842 Christmas Greeting Still Remains The Favorite

If, during the holidays, you should open an envelope to find that it contained a Christmas card decorated with seaweed or luggage labels, you might not be amused.

Back in the Victorian era, you would have gotten something like that, or else a card trimmed with bits of blanket, real corks or dried flowers.

The Christmas card custom that we accept as an integral part of the holidays, is a relatively new one. It really got its start in the Victorian England of the 1840's.

Victoria and Albert had just introduced the Christmas tree to their subjects and a writer named Charles Dickens had penned a book that all of England wept over and loved. It was called "A Christmas Carol." ➡

In a collection of prints and drawings in the British Museum, there's a card that is believed to be the world's first Christmas card. It bears the date 1842 and the 16-year-old artist who created it signed himself "W. M. Egley, Junr."

But the Christmas card custom as we know it really caught on during the 1860's. The first commercial cards appeared in England in 1862, the year of the second Great International Exhibition.

These first cards were designed by an artist named C. H. Bennett, who had done a good deal of work for the old Punch magazine. His designs were staggeringly unoriginal. His humor was crude and the color used in the cards was poor, but nevertheless, the idea gained favor.

Louis Prang is generally regarded as the father of the Christmas card. The first of the prize competitions he held for designs took place in June, 1880, and got the popularity of the custom well under way in this country.

A decade earlier, Prang had tried some cards on a small scale. He even thought up an enterprising idea: three large cards and a smaller one intended for decorating the home.

Frosting, jewelling and lace paper trim were all familiar to Victorians. But ribbon was not. It came into general use much later.

The greeting that W. M. Egley composed for that first, momentous card of his is still the greeting that Canadians like best today: "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

This is the way the first known Christmas card looked. It was printed in England in 1842; was designed by a sixteen year-old artist and sent as a greeting to his friends.

This elaborate Victorian Christmas card, puffed and fringed in white silk, was typical of the cards of its day.

HUMBLE START

Peter Ramus, the great French philosopher and mathematician who died in 1572, entered a college as a servant.

Making Christmas Bright With Home Decorations

One of the cheeriest customs of the Christmas season is sharing your Yuletide joy with others by decorating your home inside and outside. It increases the spirit of everyone who visits you or merely passes by your home.

Your Christmas decorations can be simple or elaborate depending upon your taste and your budget.

Among the most effective decorations is dramatizing your front door so that Christmas season callers get a lift of spirits with your gay welcome before they enter your home. Rapidly becoming even more popular than the Christmas wreath is a spray of evergreens highlighted with a gay motif.

To make such a spray, simply cut several well-shaped, small evergreen boughs and wire or tie them together. Then fasten your decoration to the front of the spray. You can use bright Christmas balls or pine cones in a cluster, or wrap a cane in red and white crepe paper to simulate a candy cane and place it diagonally across the evergreens. Finish your spray with a big, gay bow of red ribbon.

Dramatize Your Door!

If you have a front door of solid wood painted either red or white, it is very effective to tie wide ribbons around your door with a big bow, giving the effect of a big Christmas package. Or tie gay, little Christmas packages against a background of greens and hang on your front door. Whatever type of decoration you choose, it's fun to have your front door say "Merry Christmas" to all who knock.

Many gay outdoor effects can be achieved with Christmas lights. If you have an evergreen tree in your yard, string colored lights in it. Another lovely Yuletide decoration is to outline your door or your porch with Christmas lights. Your home will take on a lively holiday air.

The possibilities for interior decorations are endless. All you'll need is holiday greens, and berries, bright, red candles, a few Christmas figurines, and lots of imagination!

It is fun for the whole family to make a tradition of decorating at Christmastime and collecting and saving your decorations from year to year. Start with just a few and add to your supply each holiday season. Your big, red candles will last for several years if they're wrapped and packed carefully.

Interior Decorations!

Next in importance to your beautifuly-decorated tree is the decorative theme of your mantel. The ideas for mantel arrangements are varied and novel.

There is a great deal of simple dignity and charm to the ceramic figurines of the holiday season. You can arrange them with candles or Christmas berries in many lovely groupings. A large Madonna head flanked by candelabra, a grouping of choir boys, or the shrine effect using a Madonna and angel figurines and burning candles, all create beautiful effects.

More and more people are using their Christmas cards as part of their holiday decorations. They can be fastened to a Christmas tree cut out of green paper and placed above the mantel. Or they can be hung on red ribbons and suspended above the mantel. It is always effective to use holly and Christmas greens on the mantel to finish this decor.

Dangerous Turn

MONTREAL — (CP)—Citizens of Vaudreuil-Soulanges have impressed on representatives of the federal transport department the need for reconstructing the dangerous St. Errol road approach to the Soulanges canal. The intersection with the main highway, only 30 feet from the canal, has been the scene of 11 drownings since 1933.

Santa Places Emphasis On Quiet Play In Toys

There are things in Santa's bag this year for parents as well as small-fry. Mostly they're intangibles—such as peace-and-quiet and elimination of messy clean-up jobs. They are the result of the careful forethought and improved design that have gone into this year's toys.

Although there are still plenty of rip-roaring items like cowboy guns and atomic rockets, there is a new emphasis on toys for quiet, self-sufficient play. A three-dimensional, toy-like effect is gained when a treasure-chest puzzle contains a nook for hiding make-believe golden coins; or when a fire engine puzzle is finished off with a wheel and axle that actually move.

New bedtime toys that help increase a child's sense of security at lights-out time include a soft, stuffed zebra or a whimsical giraffe in bright pink and white. A luminescent finish causes these animals to glow reassuringly through the gloom.

There's a wide choice of music box animals to lull youngsters to sleep. A poodle with a French sailor cap is very restrained with a rendition of Brahms lullabies.

Dolls More Complicated

Dolls continue last year's trend toward the complicated and unusual. This season's talking doll holds forth in not one, but three, languages. Walking dolls are mechanized to take steps automatically as small hands lead them along.

Coiffures still occupy the imagination of doll manufacturers. One long-haired beauty comes complete with instructions for arranging her locks in styles inspired by a famous New York hairdresser.

Another is fitted with her own set of hair tints. The changes from blonde to gleaming bronze to carrot-top in a twinkling. The tints are harmless vegetable colorings which will not stain fabrics or rugs, makers claim, and which may be washed out with soap and water.

Also ingenious are a boy-doll, designed for non-sissy male youngsters who none-the-less like to play papa, with eyes that refuse to punch in no matter how hard an exploring finger punches, and a three-faced doll that turns a smiling, sleeping or crying visage to the world with the simple twisting of a knob on the top of her head. Not-in-use faces are concealed inside cuddly hoods.

As beds for these fabulous creations you may choose from old-fashioned elegance—a four-poster complete with canopy, dust ruffle and chenille spread—or modern distinction — a Hollywood bed with upholstered headboard.

Parents should welcome a non-banging piano. No matter what keys are pressed, or how many simultaneously, a music-roll sort of device insure a tuneful result—provided the youngster can be coaxed to bang in the rhythm of one of four familiar nursery melodies.

Among toys that contribute to knowledge, skill or career-interests is an ingenious little car that shows, through its clear plastic hood, the workings of four varicolored plastic pistons. The opaque rear end of the car may be removed to instruct fledgling mechanics in the mysteries of gears as well. Another car, operated by remote control, teaches youngsters the principles of steering and gauging distances.

Telephone Switchboard

Also in this category is a telephone switchboard which buzzes in a satisfactory realistic manner when plugs are properly inserted.

New blocks are particularly attractive. Snap blocks, which fasten together with grippers similar to those used on children's clothes, offer a new principle of building as well as bright unusual colors in shiny plastic.

Then the are snow blocks, reminiscent of Victorian paper weights. A bit of gentle shaking stirs up a wintry, swirling storm. These are a delight to parents who are accustomed to the crunch of toys beneath heedless young feet; these particular blocks are strong enough to withstand the weight of a man.

A box-car toy chest, which rolls noiselessly about the house on rubber wheels makes a game of pick-up time.

Toys this Christmas, designed for quiet, self-sufficient play, are good news for parents as well as youngsters. Outstanding among many do-things dolls is glossy-tressed one with own hair-tinting kit (upper left) and a cuddly three-faced infant leaning against elaborate canopied bed. A piano which produces a tune when banged in proper rhythm, a book with real zippers and shoe strings to instruct small-fry in self-dressing, a stereoscope with nursery-tale cards, and a boxcar toy chest (upper right) are other eye-catchers among this season's offerings. A telephone switchboard (lower extreme left), a car which shows the workings of plastic pistons through its transparent hood (lower left), luminous stuffed animals which glow reassuringly in the dark (lower right), and snap-on plastic blocks (lower right) are also news in the toy world. These sturdily-designed toys are a boon for the hard-to-interest child.

Family Battles Father's Will

KITCHENER, Nov. 28—(CP)—Mrs. Helen Taylor Tuesday testified that her father, Alexander Bauman, 80, came to visit her one Sunday and refused to return to live with her brother.

The brother, Mayor Vernon Bauman, of Waterloo, is contesting his father's will which granted all of Alexander Bauman's property—some $3,500—to Mrs. Taylor.

He said that he cared for his father for 10 years without recompense, and charged that Mrs. Taylor used "undue influence" to get him to change his will. Alexander Bauman died last April.

Another brother, Wilfred, and a sister, Mrs. Laura Snyder, who were not mentioned in the will, are also contesting it. They testified that the late Mr. Bauman was mentally confused and incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong when he went to stay with Mrs. Taylor.

Earlier Tuesday, William Taylor, 21, son of Mrs. Taylor, testified that his grandfather's mind was clear when he came to live at the Taylor home. He said Alexander Bauman complained of nagging at the home of Vernon Bauman.

William said his grandfather promised to give Mrs. Taylor $7,500 if she would care for him.

Ex-Professor Dies

HAMILTON, Nov. 28 —(CP)— James A. Dale, 77, former director of social services at University of Toronto, died here today. He was professor of education at McGill for 12 years before joining the University of Toronto staff in 1920. He retired 10 years ago.

Gets Old Job

OTTAWA, Nov. 28 (CP).—J. M. (Mike) Cochrane, who initiated Canada's military vehicle production program, is returning to his old job as vice-president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada. Kenneth O. Grant, 48-year-old purchasing agent of Ford's steel division, will replace him as director of mechanical transport in the Defence Production Department.

Carols Of Old, a Beloved Tradition Of the Yuletide

Probably the best-loved part of the celebration of Christmas in America is the singing of Yuletide carols. Hearing these beautiful carols from our radios, from the choir lofts of churches and from groups of carolers gathered in the stillness of the night enriches and heightens the meaning of the Christmas season.

Canadians draw their favorites from the old beloved carols of many countries and from the newer ones of our own day.

The time-honored European carols were brought to this country by the early settlers. Adeste Fideles ("O Come All Ye Faithful") belonged to no one in particular and was eventually translated into 119 different languages and dialects.

"Away in a Manger," Luther's hymn for children, came to us from Germany. England gave us the spirited "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen," and from France we inherited the beautiful "Cantique de Noel" or "O Holy Night."

Three Americans enriched our heritage of lovely Christmas carols by giving us three which are among the world's favorites today.

In 1849, a Massachussetts Unitarian minister, Edmund H. Sears, composed "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." Ten years later Dr John Henry Hopkins, Jr., an Episcopalian rector from Williamsport, Pa., composed both the words and music for "We Three Kings of Bethlehem Are."

"O Little Town of Bethlehem," perhaps the best-known and most- beloved of all American carols, was written in 1868 by Phillips Brooks, a young Episcopalian minister of Philadelphia who later became the bishop of Massachussetts. A trip to the Holy Land was his inspiration for the carol.

A churchman, John Pierpoint, composed the gay Christmas song, "Jingle Bells," which has been popular for almost a century. A new Christmas song that is non-religious in theme, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas," by Irving Berlin, is fast becoming a classic of the season.

So, today Canadians have a rich heritage of glorious Christmas carols that make the Yuletide season lovelier and full of meaning year after year . . . and each year become even more beloved.

Flower Legend Of Christmas

The observance of Christmas the world over is rich with beautiful legends, and many of the loveliest are about flowers. The Christmas rose was divinely created, so the legend goes, when a shepherd maiden wept because she had no gift to lay before the Babe in the Manger.

An angel, hearing why she wept, touched the ground where her tears had fallen with a branch of lilies he carried and immediately the spot was white with Christmas roses. She gathered them joyfully and laid them on the manger.

German Song To Christmas Tree Honors Custom Started By Monk

By GAILE DUGAS

Had you been alive in the year 1851, you might have wanted a Christmas tree for the holidays.

But if you had been living in Toronto (or elsewhere, for that matter), and had put up a tree, you would have been boycotted in business, possibly threatened with discharge by your employer and otherwise placed under community pressure.

The Christmas tree, which we now take for granted, wasn't known in Canada or the United States a hundred years ago. It was introduced first to the startled members of Cleveland's Zion Lutheran church by the Rev. Henry C. Schwan, their pastor.

He remembered nostalgically the Christmas trees of his youth in Germany. The tree was prettily decorated with candles, apples, gilt, tinsel and candies.

Its effect on Clevelanders was immediate and electric. The tree threw the town into an uproar. But despite the high feeling about it, the Reverend Schwan and his flock had another tree the next year. First, Clevelanders got used to the idea, then they took it to heart.

Though the practice of having a tree as part of the Christmas celebration is thus only a century old in this country, it dates much farther back in Europe. St. Boniface, an English monk living around 700 A.D., brought the custom with him to Germany when he was sent there as a missionary.

He replaced the sacrifices to idols with fir trees adorned in honor of the Christ child. This custom came from early tree worship and is also related to the laurel of the Romans and many pre-Christian festivals.

Eventually, what became a German custom travelled back to England, in 1841, by means of Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria. The German prince had a Christmas tree at the palace that year and soon English families were imitating the royal family.

In Seventeenth-Century France, travellers reported seeing Christmas trees beautifully decorated with roses made of colored paper, apples, wafers, gold foil and sugar. And Paris, the City of Light, can lay claim to having had the very first community Christmas tree at the Tuileries around 1840.

The beauty of the tree has made people see it as a symbol of goodwill and joy. There are even songs in its honor. One of the oldest of these, and the best known, is the German: "O, Christmas Tree" (O Tannebaum). To the familiar melody, its lyrics run: "O, Christmas Tree, O, Christmas Tree, how sturdy God hath made thee!"

Thus, no matter what the color of the tree you bring home this year—blue, pink, white or the traditional green—you're following a custom dating to the druids and made merry and bright through the passing of years.

Seamen's Christmas

OSLO—(CP)—The first Christmas tree in the Norwegian capital this year appeared in the windows of the Seamen's Mission, which is collecting 30,000 gifts for seamen on Norwegian ships in foreign trade.

Surprise Man When Buying Gift For Him

Women, shopping for Christmas gifts for men, find the job just as puzzling as do men, shopping for gifts for women.

One temptation is to buy a man half a dozen shirts just because he happens to need them.

Another temptation is to come right out and ask the man what he wants but this somehow, takes the surprise element out of Christmas morning. It scarcely seems worth the bother of wrapping it up if he knows just what he's going to get.

Actually, it is quite possible to buy a man a gift that he'll like, that will surprise him and at a price that isn't staggering.

Most men use, or would like to use, after-shave talc. When talc comes packaged in a black boot topped by a tan suede cuff, you've a gift with originality. The boot can hold pencils or cigarettes when it's empty, making twice as useful.

The house that makes it also packages a fine shaving soap in a flat, horseshoe-shaped clear glass container that's grooved ready for new use as an ash tray.

New Travel Kit

For the man who travels a lot, there's a new travel kit in a woven plaid that holds six unbreakable squeeze bottles containing shave lotion, talc, cologne, spray deodorant, brushless shave cream and hairdressing. And there's plenty of room for a razor, toothbrush and other essentials.

A lighter is always a good gift for a man. When it's a butane lighter that boasts a disposable butane cartridge good for more than two thousand lights, it's a Merry Christmas indeed. Two cartridges last the average smoker a year and the lighter comes in satin-finished crome or in gold or silver plate.

Getting back to this matter of shirts, they're a fine Christmas gift when they're not run-of-the-mill. No man has enough, just as no woman has enough hats.

Ideal Gift Shirt

An authentic clan tartan pattern in all-viscose rayon that's completely washable makes the ideal gift shirt.

It comes in plaids of the MacCleod, MacPherson and Gordon clans, and can be laundered in the washing machine.

Another shirt that's a good gift possibility is a Glen Urquhart plaid in pure wool cashmere that's washable, but not in the machine. This one has to be done by hand.

The sports coats that go over these shirts might be in soft Scottish cashmere with deep pockets for pipe. Another good choice is one made of Scottish cashmere and lamb's wool in a hand-tailored hound's-tooth check.

Treasure-Stuffed Stockings Can Be Christmas Novelty

No matter what her age is, chances are the woman on your Christmas list is sufficiently young in heart to thrill to the numerous small, attractive gifts that have been designed to spill from her stocking or hang from her tree.

So simple a thing as a lipstick can become a part of holiday fun when it's disguised to resemble a bright, gay Christmas bulb. Even its package is in keeping with the theme—a corrugated jacket.

Another Christmas novelty is a mammoth die of white stryofoam, marked in the conventional fashion with golden dots. Hidden treasures inside the square are stick cologne and lipstick.

Prizes In Snappers

Atmosphere rolls right out of the stocking along with holiday snappers which are brightly cased in pink, midnight blue or silver with pink labels, fringed at each end in traditional style. The prizes in these snappers are lipstick or stick cologne.

For those women who dislike carrying bulky make-up purses, a neat little leather case of unusual shape, which folds flat when open, provides one answer. Lipstick, pressed powder and rouge, all resplendent in a golden-plaid design cluster compactly together when the case is snapped shut.

Tree-hangers this year, offered by various firms, vie with each other to add sparkle to the holiday scene. Quaint and old-fashioned is a white net parasol, trimmed with bright satin ribbon, from which the end of a lipstick protudes to form a shiny ferrule. A gold-colored butterfly adorns the shepherd's-crook handle.

More modern is a stylized angel which holds in tender grasp a purse flacon of perfume. The bottle is heavily ornamented in a lattice-work pattern.

Holds Note-paper

Another timely and useful ornament, a large cardboard dangler bright with red, green and white design, holds a package of quality note-paper.

A sure-fire gift for a career girl, or for any other woman who does a major amount of primping from her purse or traveling case, is a sectional cylinder not much larger than an over-sized lipstick. When opened it reveals separate compartments containing cleansing cream, night cream, foundation cream rouge and powder.

Nail enamel goes gala when a merry-go-round horse is spiked upon the long lucite handle of a standard bottle.

A gray and silver suede-finish case, not much larger than a pack of cigarets, is the handsome container of purse-sized solid cologne sticks in a quartet of well-known French fragrances.

Tiny gifts make a big impression when they're packaged as stocking-stuffers or tree-hangers. Bringing pleased smile to face of young woman (above) is a bogus Christmas bulb, disguising a lipstick, and its like-real corrugated container. To further delight the young in heart on Christmas morning are (spilling from stocking) party snappers containing lipstick or cologne, fitted make-up wallet containing pressed powder, lipstick and rouge, and mammoth dice containing lipstick and stick cologne.

This tree, laden with holiday treasures, is hung with white-net parasol which hides a lipstick, gleaming angel clasping a purse flacon of perfume, a Christmas bell topped with lipstick and perky bow, a glittering plastic snowflake framing a tiny bottle of perfume, and a gay, ornamental dangler containing notepaper for post-Yule thank-yous.

A glittery merry-go-round horse atop a bottle of nail-enamel makes this budget-priced gift eye-catching as well.

Choice for the choosy: four cologne-sticks in well-known French scents nestle in their own suede-like package.

Loses Juice

WELLINGTON, NZ — (CP) — Housewives who buy old cabbages might just as well throw them away, said H. C. Hudson, a leading caterer. He told a women's meeting that green vegetables lose about 15 per cent of their vitamin C content every day they are stored.

Plain Gifts Get Wrapping Of Glamor At Christmas

During the Christmas season it isn't so much what you get, it's what you get it in. This is just another way of saying that the prettier the wrappings, the more desirable any gift seems.

Giving a jar of purple plums to Aunt Lydia and a bottle of hair tonic to Uncle Clovis immediately creates certain problems. How can you make the plums look attractive and how can you disguise the hair tonic sufficiently to give it glamor?

It's simple. A jar of anything—plums, kumquats, moth balls—can take on a new look if it's prettied up by candy canes hooked around the top. These canes, perhaps six of them, can be secured in place by transparent tape. Then decorate the top with a large ribbon bow that has a center of tiny bells. Bow, too, is fastened with tape.

Christmas cover for a bottle of any kind is this paper tree striped in red-and-white.

Problem casserole gets holly leaf trim lettered with recipes, red ribbon bow on handle.

Glass jar of plums is brightened with candy canes, its top covered with ribbon bow.

Shaped Like a Tree

The hair tonic for Uncle C. can wear a jolly disguise in the form of a paper Christmas tree. Make a cardboard pattern of the tree shape, as high as the bottle, leaving one-fourth inch of space free at the bottom.

Cut four of these paper shapes to pattern, two in solid green and two in a red-and-white stripe. Fasten them to top and base of bottle with cellophane tape.

Fasten the sides, too, at regular intervals and then bend the paper, gently, to the shape of the bottle. Tree sides should project at angles. Last, make stars of alternate paper colors, attach them with tape at top of tree.

The bride who can't cook probably deserves to get a casserole. Her husband would appreciate it, particularly if it comes wrapped in recipes. Casseroles and things like that are always tough to do. The handle is always poking through the paper and the lid invariably falls off and breaks.

First thing to do, then, is to tape the lid on securely with strips of red tape. Then, criss-cross holly leaves on the sides and fasten with tape. These leaves can be cut from red-and-green art paper, with the red ones an eighth of an inch larger than the others.

Next, hand-letter recipes on the dark green leaves with white ink, arrange about the centre of the knob and fasten with tape. Give the handle and the knob big, glossy ribbon bows.

If you feel like giving someone a pie, homemade or otherwise, don't just hand it over in a tin. Instead, fasten paper doilies to the top and bottom of the pie tin with tape.

Then put together a Christmas wreath by taping holly leaves in a circle. Fix the wreath to the top doily with tape, and finish the whole thing off with a big, stylish bow.

Wrapping Cookies

People are always giving—and getting—home made cookies at Christmas. If you get some, you'd probably rather they arrived in a pretty basket and not an old shoe box, though the shoe box kind of thing has been popular for years.

For your cooky gifts, use a boat-shaped bread basket, loop one-fourth inch tape through candy circles and fasten over the sides, back and front. Fill the basket with wrapped cookies and fasten on holly-leaf sail with cellophane tape.

By using only imagination and materials at hand, this young woman has solved the problem of wrapping odd-shaped gifts.

Homemade cookies are placed in boat-shaped bread basket, given holly-leaf sail.

Christmas gift pie is set between two large paper doilies, trimmed with shiny green leaves and ribbon.

Veteran Watchmaker Master Craftsman

TORONTO — (CP) — Seventy-seven year old William Etches has been in the clock-repairing business since he was 12, and believes it is his interest in his work that is keeping him alive today.

"I love my work," he said. "They tell me I should retire but I'd be dead in six months if I didn't have my watches and clocks to tinker with."

One watch that he set back on its feet, a 100-year-old Swiss cylinder type, hadn't run for 20 years before its owner visited Mr. Etches. Now it is keeping good time.

Mr. Etches, a fourth-generation watchmaker, spent 12 years apprenticeship before he set up his own business. However, he doesn't worry that neither of his sons nor his grandson followed in the trade.

"Watchmaking doesn't pay too well. One has to love the work to make a success of it."

Diamond-studded watches may please the ladies, but Mr. Etches doesn't think much of them. Dirt sifts through the diamond settings and damages the movement of the watch. Not practical, says Mr. Etches.

Rush Call

KINGSWOOD, England (CP)—During a church service in this Dorset town the pastor apologized to the congregation, saying he would have to leave. His house was on fire.

Bring Christmas Indoors When Decorate the Home

For those who begin early enough to put a bit of time and thought into their efforts, indoor Christmas decorations can be among the most pleasant of holiday chores.

An elastic imagination can stretch your budget this year, since a lively eye can spot decoration supplies everywhere from the cellar workshop and the coal bin to the sink cupboard.

The cleanser you use to clean the sink and the bathtub makes an excellent art material when it's worked with water into a paste the consistency of poster paint. Make up a bowl of this paste, give each child a paint brush, and you're all set for one of the merriest decorating sessions ever.

Reindeers on Windows

Window panes may be adorned with reindeers, snowmen and jolly St. Nicks; glass - topped coffee-tables take on a festival air when sprinkled with white stars or a wreath design.

If you wish to join in the fun yourself, a nativity scene or a Santa landscape makes an effective decoration for the mirror above your living room mantel, or, for a Christmas Eve surprise, try a free-hand drawing of angels or toy-maker elves on the bureau mirror in your children's room.

For a teen-ager's holiday party, a decorated coal scuttle is sure to break the social ice as well as hold the actual ice and soft drinks. This conversation-piece is simple to make, requiring only a daring spirit, a new coal scuttle and several gay shades of paint. Peter Hunt, who is known throughout the country for his artistry with peasant designs, suggests a modified design that suggests Christmas but is still sufficiently general that the scuttle may be used for various household purposes throughout the year.

John Drill, who is noted for his versatile designs in unexpected materials, turns to copper screening as the basis of an attractive cornucopia for dining room sideboard or hall table. To make one for your home, begin with a rectangle of copper screening 10 by 11 inches, shaping it into a cone diagonally and securing it with staples or sewing it into place with wire.

A clean, new coal scuttle, brightened with colorful peasant art, is a conversation-sparker for teen-age holiday parties; is decorative and useful when Yule season is ended.

Cones of base metals, arranged tip-to-tip in a circle, form the reflector for this attractive candle sconce that gleams with ornament-centered silver stars.

Stretch the mouth of the cone until it yawns invitingly to receive an arrangement of silver leaves, stem ornaments and frosted snow ornaments. Roll the edges gently backward to give it a sweeping flair.

The tail of the cone should be twisted until it curls upward. This is finished with a smaller arrangement of ornaments.

Candle Decorations

Gay candle decorations to complement the cornucopia can be devised from wire, heavy enough to hold its shape, which has been wrapped around a broomstick to for a spiral. You'll need eight inches of wire for this, and florists' tape—of the sort used for stems in corsages—to wrap about the wire before twisting it into its corkscrew-shape.

To this spiral, attach three ornaments made of metallic-paper fringe or Christmas tree bulb reflectors through which stem ornaments have been thrust. Slip the entire arrangement down a candle to its base. Low candle-holders are particularly effective when these adornments are paired with the cornucopia.

If base metal is available in your neighborhood, an attractive candle sconce can be made from 12 cones of this material mounted upon a circle of cardboard. The candles are held in spirals of heavy brass wire which is attached to the back of the sunburst, and silver stars with Christmas-ball centers are used to adorn the whole.

Copper screening is the material used to form a gleaming cornucopia which displays its Christmas bounty of frosted fruits and silver leaves upon a dining room sideboard. Flanking candle decorations of metallic fringe and Christmas balls are attached to ordinary wire which has been wrapped with florists' tape and twisted into spiral-like jacket to slide over candles.

IMAGINATION, a paint brush and paste made from cleansing powder and water were all that were needed to create this light-hearted Christmas Eve scene on mirror above living room mantel.

St. Nicholas One Most Popular Saints

One of the most popular saints in Christendom especially throughout the Eastern World is Saint Nicholas, patron saint of old Russia, of Aberdeen, of parish clerks and of scholars (who used to be called clerks). He is the original of our Santa Claus.

Little is known of his life but he is said to have been the Bishop of Myra in the early part of the fourth century.

Saint Nicholas is the patron saint of pawnbrokers because of the three bags of gold (later transformed to three balls of gold) that he gave to the daughters of a poor man to save them from the necessity of earning their dowries in a disreputable way.

He is also the patron saint of little boys. Legend has it that Saint Nicholas restored the lives of three little boys who had been cut up and pickled in a salting-tub to be served as bacon.

Saint Nicholas is invoked by sailors, because he allayed a storm during a voyage to the Holy Land.

He is said to have originated the Christmas stocking custom. According to this legend, he once climbed to a roof top to avoid being seen and dropped a purse of gold down the chimney for a needy family. The money, instead of falling into the fire, is supposed to have lodged in a child's stocking hanging on the mantelpiece to dry.

Saint Nicholas' act became known, and thereafter when unexpected gifts appeared, they were attributed to Saint Nicholas.

His day is December 6th, and he is represented in episcopal robes with three bags of gold, three gold balls, or three small boys—in allusion to one of the above legends.

See Your Christmas Meal Makes Your Guests Happy

Grapefruit poinsettia is delicate touch for Yuletide dinner.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Santa Claus is always chubby. But he seems to be happy about it.

However, too many people get up from the Christmas family dinner feeling fatter than St. Nick but nowhere near as happy.

The answer—they dine wisely but not too well. Plum pudding and mince pie with cheese at the end of a procession. Oyster soup to begin with, then turkey bursting with chestnuts, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes rich and fluffy, Brussels sprouts and onions agleam with butter.

Good. isn't it? It is a little heavy, you'll admit.

But how about getting in some lighter and refreshing touches—a poinsettia grapefruit half at the beginning, for example. It's a beautiful sight decorated with red apple slices and puts no strain on the waistline.

With the turkey, a Christmas relish—raw and refreshing—is a light-hearted suggestion. It can be made in advance and kept several weeks, leaving time at the last minute to wrap up the presents or help Johnny wind up his new train.

Tangerines, the delicious citrus fruit, always get invited to every Christmastime celebration. But just to get an extra chuckle from Santa and to add one more delicate touch to the family feast, why not bake them with spices and march them in with the turkey?

Poinsettia Grapefruit Halves

To prepare, cut grapefruit in half; remove core if desired, Cut around each section, loosening fruit from membrane. Do not cut around entire outer edge of fruit. Leave red peel on apple, cut in thin wedge-shaped slices; cut each slice in half. Press five or six apple slices between grapefruit sections to resemble poinsettia. Place cherry in centre.

Christmas Relish (1 quart)

Four cups cranberries, 2 oranges, quartered and seded, 2 cups sugar.

Put raw cranberries and oranges, quartered and seeded, 2 cups sugar and mix well. Chill in refrigerator several hours before serving. For Christmas garnish spoon raw relish in centre of orange slices. NOTE: This relish will keep well in the refrigerator for several weeks.

Baked Tangerines (6 servings)

Six Florida tangerines, 2 tablespoons seedless raisins, 3 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, dash of salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine, ¾ cup Florida orange juice.

Make five vertical cuts in the tangerine skin from the blossom end to about 1 inch from the bottom; then pull peel down and turn the pointed ends in. Remove white membrane. Loosen tangerine sections at the centre and pull apart slightly; set in shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients except orange juice, and pile into centre of tangerines. Pour juice over all and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 15 minutes, basting during baking. Serve as an accompaniment with meat.

A wide variety of gifts for the home this season make choices easy both for the practicalist and for the donor who likes a bit of luxury and extravagance. For tea and coffee lovers there is a twin-spouted teapot (upper left), an ivory earthenware teapot in its felt-lined, heat-retaining chrome cozy (lower left), or an imported-from-Italy cafe expresso machine (upper center left). Useful as well as handsome are roast holder with pronged end for serving (center left), diminutive butter pipkins which lend themselves to many purposes (upper center right), a portable silver file of brocade-like plastic (lower center), a desk memo with hour-glass timer for limiting telephone calls (upper right) and a desk thermometer which marks humidity as well as heat and cold (lower right).

Make Gifts For Home Add To Graciousness of Living

For those on your list whose home is the hub of existence there are no nicer presents than those which add to the graciousness of living.

Whether yours is the practical sort of nature that measures each prospective choice by a standard of everyday use, or whether yours is the kind of personality that uses Christmas as an excuse to splurge a bit of luxury, there are home gifts in plenty to suit your taste.

Some manage to combine practicality with a look of elegance. Ranking high in this category is a portable silver file. It's gleaming brocade-like plastic is sufficiently handsome to thrill any homemaker on Christmas morning.

It has many step-saving properties. You can carry it right along with you in the crook of your arm when you set the table. Ladies will find the hours of silver polishing saved by its tarnish-proof linings are enough to endear it permanently to its lucky recipient.

A Carving Aid

A new roast holder is another item created primarily to ease a practical problem, but its sleek, handsome design endows it with a functional beauty as well.

With this carving aid, the man who must struggle with the roast each Sunday, can secure the meat while he slices it, and then, with the same implement, serve each portion. Fork prongs on the holder make it possible to eliminate the old routine of shifting about with two carving utensils.

For those who like to keep up with what's going on there are two gifts that are sure to please.

If the inquiring mind on your Christmas list focuses his curiosity upon the weather, then a desk thermometer which registers not only the heat and the cold, but the humidity as well, is a likely choice. This handsome easel-type thermometer features a clear plastic dial, lettered in white, with a reflecting back of polished chrome.

If time is the matter of greatest concern for the curious on your list, then they'd probably find helpful a desk memo to which is attached a tiny hour-glass timer to measure for them the minutes of their telephone conversations.

Other features of this handy gadget are a pencil which clings by magnetic action to the side of the memo box when not in use, and, concealed beneath a fold-back hood, a perpetual calendar and a secret compartment for keys stamps, or paper clips. This is available both in genuine and imitation leather.

In those homes where hospitality and the graceful serving of guests is an important part of living, a new tea or coffee pot might be a welcome gift.

Two Spout Tea-pot

For tea-drinkers, there's a charming two-spouted tea-pot, which makes it possible to transport both the brew and the hot water for diluting it to individual taste. Separate compartments do the trick. You have a choice of canary, cobalt blue, ivory, maroon or Chinese red.

Also handy for tea-drinkers who like the beverage hot—the second cup as well as the first — is a round little tea pot which fits snugly into its own felt-lined chrome shell. The ivory earthenware pot lifts right out of the shell —today's improvement on grandmother's tea cozy—for washing.

A new threat is in store for coffee-lovers who've never owned a cafe expresso. This coffee-maker, which includes a small built-in alcohol burner for brewing the beverage is excellent either for making demi-tasse in the presence of guests, or for picnics.

Available in several sizes, these attractive little Italian imports use powdered coffee of any kind —Italian, French of American.

Butter pipkins are a good choice for that inevitable name on your list that "has everything." These tiny tin-lined copper pans, which look as if they were designed for the use of Tom Thumb, are surprisingly handy for a variety of uses.

Not only can they be used for melting butter, but also for serving sauces in individual portions, or even for ashtrays, cigarette containers, or after-dinner dishes.

Noted Cartoonist Creator Of Santa

If you picture Santa Claus as a rotund jolly elf, pink-cheeked and with snowy beard and mustachios, then you carry the image of him as he was created about 90 years ago.

Santa Claus, as we know him, was created by Thomas Nast, noted cartoonist whose famous political cartoons helped to break up the notorious Boss Tweed's Tammany ring in New York city.

During the 1860's, Nast was asked to illustrate Clement Clark Moore's poem, "A Visit From Saint Nicholas," better known to most of us as "The Night Before Christmas." The drawings acomplished by Nast for this epic poem, showed Santa Claus as the now-famous figure.

Prior to the Nast rendition, the artists who attempted to draw Santa Claus could not agree how he looked.

It was Nast who located his home at the North Pole and gave him the sleigh drawn by reindeer. He drew Santa Claus as the jovial gentleman, dressed in red, wearing cap and boots and carrying the huge pack-full of toys and treasures.

Santa Claus in this image, first appeared in 1863, and since that year, Santa Claus has remained pretty much the same to all of his many admirers, young and old.

Fringe Makes a Gift You Can Make Yourself

Even the woman who can't sew will find these gifts easy to make. Triangular stole (upper left) is monk's cloth trimmed in wool fringe. Evening bag (left center) is made of cosmetic bag and silver satin fringe. Guest towels (lower left) are made individual by fringe trim. Evening stole (above) is cotton satin in an oblong shape. Evening bag (upper right) is easily handmade of gold upholstery brocade. Ordinary cotton gloves (right center) become high fashion with fringe trim. Burlap place mats (lower right) take on expensive look through cord rope and bushy fringe trim. All gifts take minimum time to make.

Some Gifts Easy To Make For Woman Unable To Sew

Not every woman who must pull Christmas presents out of a budget is a needlewoman, handy at whipping up gifts from a half yard of fabric and lots of intricate sewing directions. For the woman who can't sew but must make some presents, there is a simple solution.

Evening bags, stoles, place mats, gift towels, smart gloves can all be made by a woman who owns no real knowledge of sewing. There is an added attraction in the fact that each gift can be made on a sewing machine or by hand.

The simplest plan for a pretty evening bag begins with a twenty-five cent cosmetic bag. Get the envelope kind with a zipper top.

Then, at the trimming counter in the drapery department of your local department store, you will find satin fringe looped into gold, silver or cream. You will need about three and one-half yards.

Begin at the bottom of the cosmetic bag and sew the fringe on in even rows so that each row overlaps the one below. When you are finished, the bag will be completely covered with fringe, and you'll have a gift fit for a glamor girl.

A second evening bag can be made drawstring style from heavy gold upholstery brocade. You'll want a quarter of a yard in the 54-inch width. At one end of the fabric, cut two perfect circles, each 5½ inches in diameter.

From heavy cardboard, cut another circle five inches in diameter and insert it between the two fabric circles, basting to hold the cardboard intact. This is the bottom of the bag.

Now, cut a strip of material nine inches wide and 30 inches long. Baste a lining to this strip, using satin cotton. Along one length of the fabric, sew a conso shirring tape. This has a cord running through the centre which when pulled, creates an even shirring.

Close the two sides of the fabric strip together by hand hemming. Hem the top of the bag, insert two gold-colored cords, each cut 12 inches in length. When you have pulled them through, knot each end. That's the drawstring.

For trim, buy two yards of gold rayon bouillon fringe in a one-inch width. At the bottom of the bag, sew around four rows so that each overlaps the one below. Stuff the bag with tissue paper, wrap it, and that is all there is to it.

Simplest gift to make is a pair of fringe-trimmed gloves. You buy the gloves, in a beige cotton and a plain style. Then, at the cuff, you sew on chocolate-colored fringe in gauntlet fashion. Quick, easy way to a handsome gift.

A stole will make any girl, from 'teen-age on up, happy on Christmas Day. Try one cut from a yard and a half of black cotton satin. Line it with white cotton satin and edge it with a border of satin-scalloped trimming in black or white. The stole may be an oblong or a triangle.

Another stole, this one for practical daytime wear, can be done in beige monk's cloth, and a triangular shape. Edge it with an all-wool fringe in dark grey. You will need four yards of the fringe and a yard and a half of monk's cloth. This stole needs no lining, takes minutes to make.

Household gifts appear on almost everyone's list because they are useful. A set of six table mats and centre mat are all made of burlap, have an expensive look because of their trim.

Try gull-grey burlap bordered with bushy brown cotton fringe. One-half inch in from the edge of the mat, sew another border of the brown rope trim. These mats, by the way, will launder readily. You will want two yards of the burlap and 13 of the bushy cotton fringe plus 11 yards of the cord rope.

Lots of people will get guest towels as gifts this year. But if you want your towel gifts to have originality, buy them in a vivid glowing color and edge them in cotton-knotted cream bedspread fringe: You'll need a yard.

If you can embroider, you might do initials on each in a heavy, cream-colored yarn. Or, try something like "The King" on one towel, "And Me" on the other.

FAMOUS "DRY"

Carrie Nation, the anti-saloon agitator who died in 1911, began raiding Kansas saloons with a hatchet in 1900.

Silver Regal Dazzling For Christmas

Silver is a coveted gift at any time. It's attractive to look at, it's durable, it brightens any table, any room. And it is somehow especially pretty and shiny when it's lifted from gay wrappings and ribbon on Christmas morning.

Silver, though lovely, needn't be costly. If it's a fine sterling-inlaid silverplate, it will look well, and wear well, for many years.

A versatile gravy boat and tray with matching servers for instance, makes a silver gift that's smartly co-ordinated and yet budget-priced. The gravy boat can hold sauce as well as gravy.

For another gift that will make a dazzling appearance for a pittance, you might try tying a dozen after-dinner coffee spoons to the branches of a miniature spruce tree with bits of red ribbon.

This, by the way, makes a gift that's good for the career girl, the young married couple, or the older married couple.

In fact, it's a gift ideal for practically anyone but a small child. And children have their own silver gifts. One set is made up of a tiny fork and spoon set into slots in the wings of a brightly-colored small plastic duck. Fork and spoon are designed for good balance and easy use by small hands. Both come in patterns to match adult silverplate.

Almost any household would welcome a pair of tall, slim table lighters in period styling. Useful any place in the house, they're particularly right on the dining-room table. It doesn't matter if no one in the house smokes since undoubtedly there are guests who do.

Child's fork-and-spoon in silverplate make gift with something extra in way of small plastic duck that's a real toy.

A miniature spruce tree, trimmed with after-dinner coffee spoons in sterling-inlaid silverplate, makes unusual gift.

Silverplated gravy boat and tray make gift that will last for years. Servers are in same design to make completely coordinated set.

While you're Christmas-shopping for silver gifts, bear in mind the fact that there is no federal tax on any silverplated flatware. That, in itself, is a help in clipping the corners on a budget.

GRAFTON & CO. LTD.

Rich and spicy is keynote of these cookies for the holidays.

Cookies And Small Cakes Long Christmas Tradition

The delicious tradition of baking cookies and small cakes for Christmas is centuries old.

The Christmas cookie had its birth in old Germany hundreds of years ago. Honey rich Lebkuchen, spicy Pfeffernusse and Springerle with anise seed are part of Christmas all over Northern Europe.

According to Ruth Andre a distinguished food expert, Canada loves its cookies too. She grew up, she reports, in the heart of the cookie country. Today she perfect cookie recipes not only for her two young sons whose father was killed in the war, but for home makers throughout the country.

Mrs. Andre gives a few of her favorite Christmas recipes.

From France, noted for her delicate creations, comes these lacy "French Tuiles," contributed by Mrs. Marian Wells.

French Tuiles

Three-quarters cup (5 to 6) egg whites, unbeaten; 1 2-3 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup melted butter, cooled to lukewarm; ¼ cup melted shortening, cooled to lukewarm; 1 cup sifted enriched flour, ¾ cup blanched almonds, finely chopped.

Combine egg whites, sugar and salt; stir until sugar is dissolved and mixture is thick. Add butter and shortening; mix thoroughly; Blend in flour and almonds and beat until smooth. Drop by level tablespoonfuls onto ungreased baking sheet.

Place 5 inches apart to allow ample room for spreading. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Let stand ½ minute, then, quickly and gently, remove from the baking sheet one at a time and mold over rolling pin until cool (about ½ minute.)

If cookies harden before they are molded, reheat in oven for a few seconds to soften again. For easier handling, bake cookies a few at a time. Makes 5 dozen

Also, Mrs. Andre says, Missouri Waltz Brownies belong in the Christmas cooky jar.

Missouri Waltz Brownies

Three-quarters cup sifted enriched flour, ½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 2½ squares (2½ oz.) chocolate, melted and cooled; 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped nuts.

Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Cream shortening; add sugar gradually, creaming well. Add eggs, chocolate and vanilla. Blend in dry ingredients and nuts. Mix well. Pour into well-greased and floured 9x9x2 inch pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.), 25 to 35 minutes. Cool and frost. Cut into bars or squares. Makes about 1½ dozen brownies.

Mint Cream Frosting

Combine 1½ cups sifted confectioners' sugar and ½ cup of light cream or evaporated milk in a saucepan. Cook over direct heat until a little syrup dropped in cold water forms a soft ball (232 degrees Fahr.). Remove from heat. Add 1 tablespoon butter and cool to lukewarm (110 degrees Fahr.). Add ¼ teaspoon peppermint flavoring and 1 drop green food coloring and beat until thick and creamy. Frost cooled brownies. Spread 2 squares (two ounces) melted chocolate over frosting. Cut into bars or squares when thoroughly cool.

And now to the old German favorite with these sure-fire recipes.

Pfeffernusse

Four and one-half cups sifted enriched flour, ¾ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon each: Cloves, nutmeg, salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 2 teaspoons anise seed, 4 eggs, slightly beaten, 2 cups firmly packed brown sugar.

Sift together flour, soda, cloves, nutmeg, salt, cinnamon and pepper. Add anise seed. Combine eggs and brown sugar; add to dry ingredients and mix well. If desired, dough may be chilled. Shape dough with well-floured hands into balls the size of walnuts. Place on greased baking sheets. Cover cookies with towel. Let stand at room temperature overnight. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahr.) 20 to 25 minutes. Shake warm cookies, a few at a time, in paper bag containing confectioners' sugar. When cold, store in tightly covered jar. Makes about 4½ dozen cookies.

Springerle

Three and three-fourths cups sifted enriched flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, 2 cups sugar, anise seed.

Sift flour and salt together. Beat eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Continue beating for 15 minutes. Fold dry ingredients into egg mixture.

Roll dough to about 1-3 inch thickness on lightly-floured board, keeping rectangular shape. Press springerle board well into dough. Or use a rolling pin on which springerle forms are marked. Cut cookies apart with a sharp knife. Place on ungreased baking sheet sprinkled with anise seed.

Extravagant delicacy makes French cookies ideal for gifts.

Cease-Fire Order "Mistake" Korean War Starts Again

Defence Production In US Dangerously Behind Schedule

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Production of defence items has "fallen dangerously behind schedule," a United States Senate sub-committee reported Wednesday night. It recommended that the government "take a greater bite out of civilian production." Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem. Tex.) chairman of the Armed Services sub-committee set up to keep an eye on the military preparedness program, said in a statement accompanying the report:

"Under any circumstances we will have to have both guns and butter. But somebody is going to have to decide how much butter and how many guns. Furthermore that decision will have to be made in terms of the national defence instead of the national appetite."

In a critical 10,000-word report, the group reported "deliveries of defence hard goods — planes, tanks, ships and guns — have fallen dangerously behind schedule."

The sub-committee suggested appointment of a new "procurement czar" with broad powers within the defence department.

Other Aims

The report said that, after meeting all needs to reach production targets, any other resources should be used:

"1. To expand the industrial base so that if an attack comes we will have the industrial capacity necessary to produce the enormous quantities of weapons and goods required by a total war.

"2. To assure an adequate supply of critical war materials for essential wartime production.

"3. To maintain as healthy a civilian economy at as high a rate of civilian production as possible in view of the more compelling demands upon our resources."

Such officials as mobilization director Charles E. Wilson have publicly taken a less pessimistic view of the situation.

Although Congress provided more than $110,000,000,000 in defence funds and contracts were let promptly, the sub-committee said, deliveries of aircraft, guided missiles, tanks and electronics lagged seriously behind initial estimates.

The group said it could not give details of secret military reports. But it listed this production date for the April-June quarter this year: aircraft 34 per cent short, guided missiles 70 per cent; tanks 40 per cent; electronics 30 per cent.

Fail To Solve Mystery Orders To Halt Fighting

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 29 (AP) White House denials that it ordered a halt in the United Nations ground action in Korea did nothing today to solve the mystery of where the instructions came from.

Despite official denials, they are known to exist at the Eighth Army level where they were first classified as "top secret."

Army officers, alarmed at the furore the news has caused in Washington and elsewhere, refused to talk any more.

But the facts of military life are so well known that it is possible to make some deductions.

First, calling a halt to Allied offensive action in Korea is not entirely a military matter. Like most major decisions, it involves political policy.

Consequently, it is logical to assume that the orders did not originate at Gen. James A. Van Fleet's Eighth Army headquarters.

Not Acting On Own

The next higher command army is Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Far Eastern headquarters in Tokyo. Even at that level it is stretching belief too far to think that Ridgway would act on his own.

The only higher headquarters that Ridgway answers to are defence headquarters in Washington and the President as commander-in-chief. The Washington denials by the White House press secretary, Joseph Short, said there was no "cease fire" in Korea.

Strictly speaking that is true. There is firing from both sides, although extremely little by normal standards. But the denials did not deny that a damper had been put on offensive ground action.

Saw Orders

Milo Farneti, Associated Press correspondent, saw one copy of the orders in black and white. Keyes Beech, corespondent of the Chicago Daily News, heard one officer paraphrase the orders aloud from a coded teletype message.

Some officers explained the action as a reasonable desire not to guarantee immunity to the front-line Communists by publishing the Allied plans for restraint in the fighting.

The sudden halt in Allied offensive action could, of course, end as suddenly. A simple order from the same source of the "cease fire" order could start the ground war raging again.

$150,000 Fire Damages Garage

CORNWALL, Ont., Nov. 29 — (CP)—Fire early today did $150,000 damage to the Ed Warner garage and service station. At least 12 cars and trucks were destroyed and hundreds of gallons of anti-freeze and oil lost.

Some 30 firemen attending the Eastern Ontario Firefighters' School augmented the local brigade. Six instructors from the Ontario fire marshal's office, here to conduct the week-long course, directed fire fighting.

All 110 guests in the nearby Cornwallis Hotel were evacuated but firemen confined the blaze to the garage.

Fire Chief Cory Moore, who suffered a cut hand, was the only man injured.

The fire was thought to have started from an oven-heated furnace in the basement.

Chief Editor Killed By Bomb In Parcel

BREMEN, Germany, Nov. 29—(Reuters)—Adolf Wolfard, chief editor of the Bremen daily newspaper Nachrichten, was killed today by a bomb in a parcel sent through the post. The bomb exploded when he opened the package.

Werner Wien, another editor of the independent paper, was injured seriously.

An instruction on the package said it should be opened only by the addressee.

Police said only that the package was sent from Goettingen and that an investigation was continuing.

Liberals In Nfld. Lead With 15 Elected

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 29 — (CP).—The Liberal party, returned to power in Newfoundland's provincial election, waited today to learn the size of its majority. Indications were that it would be of record proportions.

When the slow process of counting under a unique 1913 election law ceased Wednesday night Liberals had elected 15 members to the 28-seat house. Progressive Conservatives had elected three.

In the 1949 election, Newfoundland's first as a Canadian province Premier Smallwood and his Liberals captured 22 seats, the Progressive Conservatives five and an Independent one.

Of the 15 Liberal seats decided Wednesday night, one was a gain from a Progressive Conservative and another was won in a district which elected an independent in 1949.

Badman's Spree At End B. Cook Gets Death Sentence

EL CENTRO, Calif., Nov. 29—(AP)—The savage criminal career of William Edward Cook, a 23-year-old pint-sized desperado who kidnapped nine persons and killed six of them, has been halted.

Cook, product of wretched environment in a bleak and desolate abandoned mining section near Joplin, Mo., Wednesday was sentenced to death in San Quentin gas chamber for the murder of a Seattle oil salesman, Robert H. Dewey.

The five-foot, four-inch badman already was under five consecutive sentences of 60 years each for the kidnap-murders of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mosser and their three children at Atwood, Ill., last summer.

The federal director of prisons, James V. Bennett, now may order the transfer of Cook from the federal prison at Alcatraz island to California's San Quentin. There the killer will await action of the State Supreme Court on his appeal for a review, automatic under California law.

If no reversible error is found by the high court, the federal authorities then may surrender technical custody, so that Cook may pay the supreme penalty.

Under a law passed by Congress last summer, Cook would have been eligible for parole from Alcatraz prison after serving only 15 years of his 300-year sentence.

Superior Judge Lurary J. Mouser said he found no extenuating circumstances in his study of trial testimony or of the transcript of grand jury testimony.

He branded the killing of Dewey as premeditated and deliberate.

Cook twice uttered feeble, almost inaudible "No's" when the court asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. He showed no visible emotion as the court ordered the death penalty, but as soon as it was delivered two of the 10 husky guards inside the court railing pounced upon him and clamped on handcuffs.

UK Offered To Quit Suez By 1956

Made One Condition Troops Must Return If Threat of War

LONDON, Nov. 29. (CP) — Britain disclosed today it had offered to withdraw British troops ffom the Suez Canal zone by 1956 if Egypt will permit them to return in time of war or threat of war.

In a 20,000-word White Paper laid before parliament, the foreign office detailed the history of the Anglo-Egyptian dispute over guarding the canal zone and the future of the Sudan.

The offer to withdraw British forces from the canal zone was made last April 11. It was the last solely British proposal made to Egypt. On Octo. 13, the United States, France and Turkey joined Britain in offering Egypt a plan for a five-power Middle East defence command.

Offered Revision

The British proposal of April 11 would have revised the 20-year Anglo-Egyptian treaty of alliance of 1936 to include:

1. Entrusting British bases in the Suez Canal zone to the Egyptian armed forces with overall control of them under an Anglo-Egyptian control board.

2. Setting up a co-ordinated Anglo-Egyptian air defence system.

3. The return of British forces and the forces of its allies to Egypt "in the event of war, imminent menace of war or apprehended international emergency."

At the same time, Britain told Egypt that the question of the Sudan is a separate matter. Britain added, however, it "would be prepared to discuss the question of the Sudan if the Egyptian government think this would be useful."

Egypt's Answer

Egypt replied:

1. British troops should be evacuated in one year.

2. The canal bases should be handed over to the Egyptian armed forces immediately after British evacuation was completed.

Kennedy Plans Make Statement

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP) — Agriculture Minister Kennedy said today he will issue a statement Monday outlining action the government will take in regard to Ontario Milk Board operations and recent milk price increases.

Mr. Kennedy repeated what he told Mayor Sargent of Owen Sound Wednesday: That the government has to take notice when mayors of municipalities make a suggestion.

Mayor Sargent, president of the Ontario Mayors' and Reeves' Association, reported to Mr. Kennedy by telephone that 20 to 25 mayors in the province support the idea of an inquiry into operations of the milk board "and the whole situation."

Deny Elizabeth Taking Holiday Over Charles

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Reuters)—Buckingham Palace officials were indignant today about published reports that Princess Elizabeth has demanded a vacation to get re-acquainted with her son, Prince Charles, because he did not greet her affectionately on her return from Canada. The reports were not carried by The Canadian Press.

"There is no truth in such reports," a palace spokesman said. "It is ridiculous and absolute nonsense."

The report apparently arose from television and newsreel pictures of the homecoming to London of the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh.

At the railroad station the Royal parents saw their three-year-old son for the first time in six weeks. There were no kisses or hugs for him—only a pat on the head and a few words.

The palace spokesman said: "The arrival in London of the Princess and the Duke was a public one and the Royal family couldn't have long, cosy chats on the railroad platform. A guard of honor was waiting to be inspected as soon as the first greetings were over."

It is a rule of British Royalty that private emotions are not for display in public and must not interfere with public obligations.

The palace spokesman said Elizabeth had always intended to have a week or two free of engagements on her return from Canada.

"But there is no question of her remaining away from public functions because Prince Charles did not recognize her or greet her properly," he added.

The Princess has already attended an official home-coming reception.

The spokesman added it had also been suggested that Elizabeth was resting because her doctors were concerned about her health. But after one strenuous tour and before a second one—to Australia—lasting six months, anyone would want to rest, the spokesman said.

Annual Requirements 80 Million For CPR

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 — (CP).—The Canadian Pacific Railway's average annual capital requirements are about $80,000,000, Vice-President N. R. Crump told the Board of Transport Commissioners today.

The CPR's chief operating officer, Mr. Crump testified in the railway's application for a further general freight-rate increase of 10 per cent.

He said the $80,000,000 figure is necessary for expansion of rail facilities to meet demands of an expanding economy.

Garson Says Gov't Hands Tied On Chinese Blackmail

OTTAWA, Nov. 29. (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Wednesday in the Commons it is difficult for Canada to do anything to stop blackmailing in China. He made the statement after G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West) said Chinese in Peterborough have received telegrams from relatives asking for sums of $5,000 and $2,500 to protect themselves from torture.

Mr. Garson said the government has looked into the matter. The telegrams were from relatives in China and not from those doing the blackmailing there. Canada has no diplomatic communication with China and it is difficult for this country to do anything about blackmailing in China.

See No Way

Mr. Fraser said something should be done to prevent the money from leaving Canada.

James Sinclair, Parliamentary Assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, said the only way this could be done would be for Canada and the United States to stop all communications with China and to institute postal censorship.

Such action would create a hardship for Chinese in Canada who for years have been sending contributions to their families.

Triplets Arrive On Schedule

STURGEON FALLS, Nov. 29—Mrs. Leo Theoret, 29, could smile Wednesday with more than normal maternal pride. Shortly before midnight Tuesday, she gave birth to triplets — the first this town of 5,000 could boast of in its 70-year history.

The babies—Pauline, Peter and Paul—were in an incubator Wednesday night, but "doing very well," hospital authorities said. The triplet birth had been forecast through X-ray photographs.

One of the boys weighed six pounds four ounces, the other five pounds eight ounces, and the girl four pounds nine ounces.

Syrian Army Stages Coup

DAMASCUS, Nov. 29 (CP). — The Syrian army today seized power for the fourth time in three years, arresting cabinet ministers of a civilian government formed less than 24 hours before.

Damascus radio broadcast a communique announcing the army had taken over control of all security forces "in view of increased instability in the country."

The coup was led by Col. Adib Shishekly, army chief of staff who ousted premier-for-a-night Maaruf Dawalbi, leader of the Populist party.

Col. Shishekly issued a declaration saying the army "refuses to be the tool for fulfilling imperialistic aims, and proclaims that the Populist party does not represent the people."

Maaruf Dawalibi formed a government Wednesday of seven Populists, two independents and one member of the Moslem Brotherhood—ending a three-week political crisis. The previous government of Hassan Hakim broke up on differences over the invitation by the western powers to join a Middle-East defence command.

US Wants Army Of 43 Divisions

ROME, Nov. 29 — (AP). — The United States today threw its full diplomatic weight behind efforts to push forward plans for a 43-division European Army.

High officials who attended the National Council meetings—ended here Wednesday—said the US is extremely eager to have a treaty outlining precise plans for this international force ready for the next council meeting, opening in Lisbon next February 2.

They feel this is urgent because:

1—The European countries will be preparing their 1952 budgets just after the turn of the year. Unless appropriations for European army forces are made, the six-country effort to build up a force will be delayed again

2—If negotiations drag on, West Germany is expected to show increasingly less interest in participation.

UN Artillery Now Told 'Shoot To Kill' Instructions Misunderstood

Units Across Entire Front Badly Confused By Sudden Shift In Orders, No One Will Reveal Source of Information

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 29. (AP)—Allied artillery opened up on the western front today after officers reported receiving new orders to "shoot to kill." The front-line report came shortly after Gen. James A. Van Fleet announced his Eighth Army command had issued "certain military instructions" which some troops may have interpreted as a cease-fire order. He said any such "misinterpretation" would be corrected. An official Eighth Army spokesman said the original —and still secret—directive remained "completely unchanged." Any changes showing up on the front, he said, were the result of clarifications ordered by Van Fleet.

The spokesman's comment apparently applied to the "shoot-to-kill" orders reported received by artillery officers of the 3rd Division. Artillerymen said apparently their new instructions do not apply to the infantry.

The original report of an Eighth Army directive not to fire on the Reds unless necessary came Wednesday from a 3rd Division officer.

Not Cease-fire Order

First high official acknowledgment that some sort of directive had been issued came Thursday from Van Fleet, UN ground commander in Korea. He said it was not a cease-fire order—but did not disclose its nature because security was involved.

He promised action to clarify the directive for those "who misinterpreted" it.

Shortly thereafter front-line dispatches from the western front reported the allies were again firing artillery and mortars at a nearly-normal rate after a day of abnormal quiet.

Front-line troops were reported confused by the big guns opening up on the front, where the day before they had watched Chinese Reds play volley ball.

A 3rd Division briefing officer said reconnaissance patrols went on scouting missions as usual, but with the understanding they would not look for trouble.

The change came on the same front where reports of a new "don't-shoot-first" policy originated.

Extra Food For Britain Not From Canada

LONDON, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Canada's Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner indicated today that Britain can look for little extra food from Canada in the immediate future.

Before boarding a homeward-bound plane, he said:

"The only way there can be more food produced in Canada is for some plan to be laid down to produce it."

His statement implied that no such plan is forthcoming.

He said there is no hope of Canada sending Britain any beef or bacon nor of increasing present cheese exports.

"At the moment, Canada is selling all her surplus beef to the United States," Gardiner said.

Trapped In Hull

15 Die Like Sardines In Tin When Tanker Hits Trawler

BOSTON, Nov. 29 (AP)—Fifteen fishermen of a 17-man crew perished Wednesday night when the 10,000-ton tanker Ventura crashed into the stern of the 170-ton trawler Lynn in Boston harbor.

None of the 50 crew members on the Texas Oil Company tanker was injured.

The sea was calm and the night clear at the crash scene—a 500-yard-wide channel six miles from the Boston fish pier.

Coast Guard observers said 13 of the victims went down with the trawler, "trapped in its steel hull like sardines in a can," while eating their evening meal or working in the engine room.

The other four were plucked from the water by one of several boats in the vicinity. Two died later.

Capt. J. Carl McNamara, 41, of Medford, one of the survivors, said the crash came with such little warning that he hadn't time to give an abandon-ship order.

Helmsman John J. King, 40, of Winthrop, the other survivor, said the Lynn went down in about a minute. "The ship flipped over like a fish on the starboard side," he said.

S. O. Pederson of Port Arthur, Tex., skipper of the tanker, told the Coast Guard the fishing vessel "cut across our bow and we rammed her."

Both vessels were outward bound — the Lynn for Georges Bank, 180 miles east of Boston, and the Ventura for Philadelphia after discharging gasoline here.

Domestic Friction Drove Greene To Leave Family

WINDSOR, Nov. 29 (CP) — A story of domestic friction and the nearness of "an attractive, alluring woman" was told Wednesday night by Alfred P. Greene, Toronto school teacher who faked his own "murder" 15 months ago.

Interviewed at the Windsor police station where he awaits arrival of Toronto police, Greene described circumstances which led to his elopment in August, 1950 with Mrs. Beatrice Reason, thrice-divorced wife of a Toronto contractor.

Attractive, Australian-born Mrs. Reason is being held in Detroit pending approval from Ottawa of her re-entry into Canada. Greene will be taken to Toronto to face trial on a charge of deserting his wife, Mary, and their four children.

The sauve, dark-haired school teacher said that inability to support his family and his mother on his $60-a-week salary had caused him to plan the bizarre "murder." His wife resented his regular donations to his mother's support and "nagged because I could make no more money with my education."

Student In Class

He met Mrs. Reason several months before elopement when she signed as a student in his night class in public-speaking. The acquaintance ripened slowly. "Once or twice we had coffee together and she seemed to be a good companion—quick, witty and intelligent."

As his domestic relations grew colder, Greene thought more and more of the "tempting, alluring woman" who attracted him so strongly. "Once, jokingly, I said it would be easy for us to shake off our marital obligations and run away together."

100 Firemen Battle Blaze

MONTREAL, Nov. 29 (CP) — A two-alarm fire on Montreal's waterfront raged out of control for an hour Wednesday night before firemen could check it. No one was injured.

Harbor authorities said it was impossible to estimate the damage until shipping firms who rent space in the destroyed shed can give official figures of their loss today.

Stored in the shed at Victoria Pier was straw for the manufacture of brooms and cork, baled and ready for shipping. Victoria Pier is in the oldest section of the city.

Flames quickly ate through the straw and shot through windows. Some 100 firemen poured 30 streams on the building.

92 MPH Gales Lash British Columbia Area

VICTORIA, BC, Nov. 29 (CP)—A Pacific storm took a hurricane-force wallop at British Columbia Wednesday night, downing wires and trees.

Winds, with gusts up to 92 miles an hour, whipped the southern section of Vancouver Island.

Despite the force of the blow, coastal stations reported no distress calls. Fishing boats dashed for shelter when the storm flags went up.

Telephone services from Victoria to up-island points was suspended when wires went down.

All plane flights to and from Victoria were cancelled.

Won't Let 7 Ships Keep Canadian Registry - PM Says

OTTAWA, Nov. 29. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent s Wednesday that the Ming Sung Company has been told that seven Canadian-built and Canadian-registered ships they have been operating in Asiatic waters will no longer be allowed to "carry on under Canadian registry." In reply to questions by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader in the Commons the Prime Minister said, however, that the order-in-council allowing the ships to fly the Canadian flag has not been revoked.

The ships have not returned from recent runs from the port of Hong Kong to Macao and Canton. The government does not know where they are at the moment.

The banks which gave a $12,000,000 government-backed loan for construction of the ships by the Ming Sung Company of Canada, have instituted legal proceedings following failure of the company to meet interest payments.

Can't Carry On

Since the start of these legal proceedings, the prime minister said, the Ming Sung Company has been advised that the ships cannot carry on under Canadian registry.

Negiotiations were going on with the Ming Sung Company looking to the transfer of registry of the ships where there also could be transfer of the mortgages against them.

Activities of the ships were first brought up by Maj.-Gen. George Pearkes, VC, (PC—Nanaimo) who charged that they were carrying contraband from Hong Kong to Red China ports.

A recent dispatch from Hong Kong said the ships are lying rusting in the Whangpo River.

Lively Debate On Federal Aid For Education

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—The Commons Wednesday topped off a lively day with a lively discussion on a long-debated subject—federal aid to provincially-controlled education.

Prime Minister St. Laurent sat smiling but saying nothing as CCF and Social Credit members took him to task for what they considered a new and surprising attitude on the matter.

R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) charged the prime minister is denying equality of education to Canadian children. J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South), a teacher for 20 years, said the prime minister should explain his attitude to the House.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said the prime minister would "live to see the day" he gave a "no" answer to a request for federal financial help for education. The Canadian people would not forget and Mr. Low said he was going to help them remember.

The controversy stemmed from an answer the prime minister gave Tuesday to Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) who had asked if a request of the Winnipeg school board for federal aid is being considered.

Mr. St. Laurent replied he had not heard of the request. But, as head of the government, he said he would have to "ask my colleagues to join with me in refusing to consider such a request."

The debate on education came at the close of a short Wednesday session which produced two votes. A CCF motion for reimposition of price controls and subsidies was defeated 169 to 19. And the Commons voted 145 to 55 against a Social Credit motion criticizing the government on failure to increase war veterans allowances.

Plowman Loses Hand

OSHAWA, Nov. 29 — (CP). — Doctors Wednesday amputated the right hand of Allan Meyer, 28, of Stouffville, winner of many plowing match awards at regional and provincial competitions. His glove caught in a corn-picking machine and his arm was pulled into the whirling machinery.

Passing On Right Obligation On Driver-Court

In passing a car on the right side, that is about to make a left hand turn at an intersection, the obligation is on the driver of the oncoming car, to make sure he can do so in safety.

Magistrate W. R. Philp made this decision in police court today in finding Donald Dunford, RR 3, Lakefield, guilty of a Highway Traffic Act violation.

Dunford was convicted of failing to turn to the left as far as necessary to avoid a collision and was fined $5 and $6.25 costs. He pleaded guilty to driving without brakes and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Both charges were laid October 27, after Dunford was involved in a collision with a car driven by Roy V. Cooper, 774 Park St. south at Hunter and Aylmer streets.

Turned Right

Dunford claimed he believed Cooper was about to make a left hand turn and was passing him on the right hand side, when Cooper made a right turn east on Hunter St., and collided with Dunford.

It is illegal under the Highway Traffic Act to pass a car on the right side, except, when the car ahead has clearly indicated it is about to make a left hand turn.

Cooper testified he had given no signal and Dunford said from the position of Cooper's car which was about 10 feet west of the east curb of Hunter St., he believed Cooper was going to turn left.

Dunford and a passenger in Dunford's car testified they had overheard Cooper say after the accident he was going to turn left, then changed his mind. Cooper said in court he intended to turn right and had never Mayor Max Swanston, Mayor-

Part of the evidence was heard Wednesday and the case was adjourned until today.

Disagreement

Both Dunford and Elwood Sweeting of Lakefield, the passenger in Dunford's car testified that Cooper's car was stopped at the intersection as they drew up behind it. Cooper and two passengers said his car was moving at about five miles an hour.

Defence counsel Robert Carley said that although this was a simple accident, the evidence was very confusing.

Mr. Carley claimed that if Dunford had turned to the left, he would have collided with oncoming south-bound traffic and that seeing Cooper was stopped near the centre of the intersection, he believed he was going to turn left. Therefore, Mr. Carley contended, the charge should be dismissed.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw said that passing on the right at intersections was permitted in large cities where traffic lanes are set forth but was illegal in Peterborough. "In any event," said Mr. Bradshaw, there is the officer's testimony that has to be accepted. The man wasn't in the middle of the road."

Constable W. G. Scott investigated and testified the collision occurred a few feet south of the pedestrian crosswalk on the south curb of Hunter St., crossing Aylmer. Dunford and his witness claimed the two cars collided near the centre of the intersection.

Cooper, the driver of the other car was charged with not approaching an intersection as close as practical to the curb when he was intending to make a right hand turn.

He pleaded not guilty to the charge and is being defended by J. C. N. Currelly. Cooper testified for the crown in the Dunford trial under protection of the Evidence Act but Mr. Currelly asked for a new trial on the charge against Cooper.

Mr. Bradshaw had asked that subject to defence evidence, the evidence in the Dunford trial be entered in the charge against Cooper.

320 Red Jets In Air Battle

FIFTH AIR FORCE, Korea, Nov. 29 (AP)—The Communists hurled at least 320 MIG jets into the battle for supremacy of the skies over Northern Korea today as the ground front remained unusually quiet.

Never before have the Reds put up so many fighters aloft in a single day, Fifth Air Force headquarters said.

Twenty-two American jets tangled with 175 MIGs in a blazing 30-minute battle over MIG Alley this afternoon. The Air Force said three Sabres were slightly damaged but all landed safely.

One Red plane was damaged.

Nine Sabres spotted about 50 MIGs streaking north from Pyongyang, the North Korean capital. Neither side opened fire, the Air Force said.

At least 225 MIGs were spotted in the afternoon. A Fifth Air Force officer said "there was no chance of duplication."

Russians Follow Nazi Pattern Priest Declares

WINNIPEG—(CP)—The "Universal Kingdom of Satan" is the label placed on the Communist regime by a local priest who was one of the many displaced persons of the last war.

After 18 months in Canada the Rev. J. Rekem now is pastor for a group of Slovaks who hope to build the first Slovakian church in Winnipeg. Before coming to Canada he helped to plant underground units within Communist nerve centres in his homeland, printing anti-Communist news and opinion under the very noses of the Russian secret police.

Father Rekem says the Russian pattern of aggression is just the same as that of the German Nazis. When the Reds over-ran Czechoslovakia he and his followers lent every possible support to the anti-Communist underground, known as the "white legion."

In Concentration Camp

Father Rekem himself was thrown into a concentration camp along with 600 others accused of anti-Soviet activity, when the Communists took over the government of Czechoslovakia. On his release, eight months later, he started writing leaflets for the underground movement.

Members of the "White Legion," he said, not only secured systematic information on Communist activity but used the Russians' own typewriters and duplicating machines to circulate their material. Some even obtained high posts in Communist secretariats.

By 1947 however arrests were becoming commonplace and many Legion workers lost their lives or were thrown into prison. Father Rekem escaped into Austria the day before Russian troopers invaded his home. He came to Canada after serving as a chaplain in displaced persons camps in Austria.

UN Artillery

Van Fleet's statement did not say what directives the original Eighth Army order contained. Nor did he say that troops would be ordered to resume full scale fighting along the quiet 145-mile front.

Official quarters, ranging up to the White House, denied issuing any cease-fire order.

A cease-fire must wait until an armistice agreement is signed by truce negotiators meeting at Panmunjom. Thursday the Red delegation proposed immediate discussion of gradual withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea, instead of the Allied guarantee against reinforcements during a truce.

A spokesman for Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters in Tokyo said: "No order has been given to halt ground fighting in Korea...by the Eighth Army or anybody else."

Deny White House Order

President Truman's spokesman in Key West, Fla., denied an AP report that such orders had come possibly from the White House.

AP Correspondent Milo Farneti on the western front said he saw an Eighth Army order not to fire unless fired upon.

Fires blazed along the Communist side of the line, breaking the 17-month blackout.

Only the occasional rumble of artillery disturbed the unwarlike quiet. No offensive action by any UN unit was reported either Wednesday or Thursday, except the report from the western front of renewed artillery fire.

Isolated Communist attacks were reported from the eastern front, where Red communications are exceptionally poor. Firing was reported from Heartbreak Ridge in the east Thursday.

Some divisions reported no contact with the Communists all day.

The only sizable fighting broke out Wednesday afternoon northwest of the punchbowl on the eastern front. It was over by midnight (10 am EST Wednesday). In this action North Koreans launched two attacks and then retired.

Van Fleet's statement was the first official acknowledgment of the possible origin of the cease-fire attitude at the front. He said: "An incomplete digest of a military directive has led to unfounded speculation regarding a cease-fire in Korea.

Stock Prices Ease On Toronto Market

TORONTO, Nov. 29 — (CP)— Weak early-afternoon support today eased stock market prices to their second consecutive decline.

Industrials opened irregularly after Wednesday's late weakness. Constructions drew firm support to form the market's strongest section. Utilities, agricultures, foods, refining oils, textiles, manufacturing companies and retail stores held gains and losses in balance. Steels and miscellaneous industrials weakened.

A scattered list of speculative mining issues showed sporadic activity. Volume for the first three hours was 1,043,000 shares.

Base metals weakened steadily.

Western oils made little headway.

Senior golds posted a majority of losses.

The circular Cloth Hall at Huddersfield, Yorkshire, built in 1765, is 880 yards in circumference.

ALBERT FITZGERALD, general president of the United Electrical Workers, will address a meeting of Local 524, UE, at the Brock St. Summer Gardens tonight. Mr. Fitzgerald comes from Lynn, Mass., where he started work with the General Electric Co. 25 years ago. For the last 10 years he has been general president of the union. One of the union's founders, he will speak tonight on the UE's record in the United States and Canada.

Arms Debate Marking Time

PARIS, Nov. 29 (CP)—The debate on disarmament droned on in the United Nations' political committee today as delegates waited to hear whether Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia will agree to secret big-four talks on the issue.

The explosive Russian's name was 14th on today's speaker list. That meant the 60-country committee probably will not get his answer until tonight or Friday.

Brazil, the Dominican republic, Peru and Venezuela said today they consider the Western disarmament plan more practicable than the Soviet suggestions.

The conviction grew among UN officials and observers that Vishinsky would accept the Arab-Asian proposals for the private talks. They said refusal would place the Russians in the embarrassing position of rebuffing a move for peace.

In today's political-committee debate, Mario de Pimentel Brandao of Brazil said Russian speeches on disarmament were "hollow."

He suggested that Russia wants to sow terror throughout the world, and said the Western disarmament plan is more practicable than the Soviet suggestion of declaring the abolition of atomic weapons as a first step.

But there was too much evidence and too many witnesses to explain away the fact that Wednesday the Allies called off their ground attack against the Communists for the first time since the war began June 25, 1950.

Taking No Chances On New Assassination

SINGAPORE, Nov. 29 (Reuters) —Malaya authorities, taking no chances after last month's assassination of Sir Henry Gurney, high commissioner, assembled today the strongest security force ever mustered in the colony for a personal escort mission, 60 policemen, when Oliver Lyttelton arrived from London. The British colonial secretary is here to study means of intensifying the campaign against Communist guerillas.

Ridgway Explains Difference In Figures

TOKYO, Nov. 29 (Reuters) — Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway today issued a statement designed to show why different figures have been given on alleged massacres of United Nations war prisoners by Communists.

The statement said evaluation of reports of massacres is a continual process, with cases being dropped or confirmed whenever new information comes to hand.

The statement quoted the UN command's report to the UN organization in August which said 8,000 Americans were reported killed in war crimes.

On Nov. 20 the UN command said there was "considerable evidence to justify the presumption of death by atrocity of a large number which may approximate 6,000."

This followed a release by Col. James Hanley, head of the Eighth Army judge-advocate section in Korea, claiming that 5,790 allied war prisoners had been murdered since the war began.

Today's statement said: "Reports are gathered from many sources—from eyewitnesses, escaped UN and enemy prisoners, intelligence sources and from evidence uncovered by advancing forces."

Too Many Immigrants Can't Absorb Them

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP)—Immigration Minister Harris said Wednesday night that immigrants to Canada are coming in so fast that not many more new citizens can be absorbed at present.

He spoke as honorary visitor in a debate at the University of Toronto in which the resolution "that his house deplores Canada's immigration policy" was defeated by a vote of 37 to 32.

The unemployment situation is the reason for the apparent need for a temporary limit. Mr. Harris felt it would not grow much worse.

Start Relief Fund To Assist Italians

TORONTO, Nov. 29 — (CP).— Three Toronto organizations and others across Canada are rallying to aid some 80,000 flood-stricken Italians. The formation of a Canadian flood relief for Italy fund, under the patronage of James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, was announced Wednesday. Three RCAF planes already have transported Red Cross supplies to Italy for the thousands of victims.

Canadian Hogs May Compete Soon In US

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (CP.) — Canadian hogs may soon be able to compete for top honors in the United States at the International Livestock Exposition.

The Dominion's porkers — famous the world over for their lean bacon—have not been shown at the International because the accent here has been on a larger, fattier corn-fed variety.

But this year the trend has been reversed. The grand championship went to a Poland China barrow, bred by Oscar Anderson of Leland, Ill., which caught the judges' eyes because of its lack of excess fat.

American hogs have always been lardy—as anyone who has eaten bacon in the US can testify—because of the breeding and the fat-producing corn diet.

Allan Williams of Cedar Rapids, Ia. superintendent of the exposition's swine show, said that the tendency in recent years has been toward a lighter, meatier hog with good balance of body.

That is just where Canadian hogs shine.

Hard To Market Lard

Williams said that packers today are finding it increasingly difficult to market lard because of intense competition from vegetable oils. Consequently he said, hog breeders are being encouraged to produce a lighter-type animal with more meat and less lard.

To encourage this trend, competitive weight classes at the International were cut by 10 to 20 pounds this year. Minimum weight in the lightweight division was dropped from 200 to 190; the heavyweight minimum fell from 280 to 260.

Combined with the problem of marketing excess lard, hog raisers are finding that more and more American housewives are demanding bacon which is lean and not mostly lard.

United Church Boards Meet

MILLBROOK, Nov. 29 (ENS)—A joint supper meeting of the boards of Cavan and St. Andrew's United Churches was held in St. Andrew's Sunday school room on Wednesday evening. The Rev. A. M. Butler acted as chairman.

A committee was appointed to see about buying a strip film projector for the use of both congregations.

Mrs. John McKnight, president of the WA, reported that the oil heating system installed in the parsonage had been paid for completely, and that there was still a substantial balance in their treasury.

It was decided that in accordance with the policy of the United Church in general, communion services would be held on the Sunday nearest the festivals of the church such as Christmas rather than at regular three-month periods.

A white gift service is to be held in both churches when the children of the Sunday schools, and also members of the senior congregations will give gifts of money for children in hospital and for those in need in Korea and in Europe.

Further plans were made for the district mission to be held in January for which all the churches of the village and the congregations of Bailieboro and Springville are uniting.

The missioner for the district mission is to be the Rev. Gerald Gregson, who as a wing commander in the last war was chief Padre for the RCAF. The services are to be held from January 27th to February 3rd.

Mrs. Tom Douglas was in charge of serving the supper, assisted by other wives of board members of St. Andrew's.

BREAK THE LAXATIVE HABIT THIS PROVEN WAY

If you take laxatives regularly, here is how you can stop! This proven plan helps you establish your natural powers of regularity, controlled tests prove.

Stop taking whatever you now take. Instead, every night for one week take two Carter's Little Liver Pills. Second week—one each night. Third week—one every other night. Then nothing! Every day drink eight glasses of water; set a definite time for regularity. This plan was proven in scientifically controlled tests.

How can a laxative break the laxative habit? Because Carter's unblock the lower digestive tract and from then on let it make use of its own natural powers. Further, Carter's contain no habit forming drugs. Break the laxative habit with Carter's be regular naturally.

When worry, overwork, overeating make you irregular temporarily—take Carter's temporarily. Never get the laxative habit.

Get mild, gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills at any drug store. Only 35c. You'll be grateful the rest of your life.

Revenue Branch Cleanup Staged, 31 Fired In US

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—(AP)—A big broom swept through the scandal-ridden US Internal Revenue Service Wednesday and when the dust had settled 31 "unsuitable" employees had been ousted from jobs in 16 cities.

President Truman fired James G. Smyth, San Francisco's tax collector, for "failing to manage his office properly."

Revenue Commissioner John B. Dunlay ousted 30 others, including 9 deputy collectors. He said 18 had been fired outright and the rest forced to resign.

Five cases have been turned over to the Justice Department for possible criminal prosecution. Without disclosing the charges against them, the revenue bureau said the five involved are:

James J. Christman, deputy collector, San Rafael, Calif., branch of the San Francisco office.

James K. Harris, deputy collector, Denver.

Mary A. Cook, clerk, Syracuse, NY.

Cletus H. Gerdel, clerk, St. Louis

John A. Festa, internal revenue agent, Philadelphia.

There were signs of more ousters to come. Several investigations haven't been cleaned up yet, and the cases of a number of employees under suspension still have to be disposed of.

Wednesday's housecleaning was the biggest since Congress started to dig several months ago into charges of widespread graft, corruption, irregularities and inefficiency in the nation's tax collecting system. Smyth and a number of others let out already were under suspension.

STEWART CLYSDALE was returned for his third term as reeve of Dummer township when three other candidates withdrew their names at a nomination meeting this week.

U.E. Bemoans Lost Trade With China and Russia

Last week U.E. members of District Five (which includes Peterborough) held a one-day conference in Toronto. Layoffs in electrical manufacturing industry making small motors were discussed. Mr. C. S. Jackson, the president, said: "The trade policies of the Canadian Government in cutting off trade with virtually half the world, including such countries as Australia, Brazil, Argentina, China and the Soviet Union, (to which countries motors of various kinds were exported in some volume up to as late as 1947) also operates to restrict production and employment."

* * *

Trade with Australia has fallen off because Australia is in the sterling area, and has large amounts of British credits at its disposal, a legacy from the war. It is using them to buy British. Canada has a most-favoured nation trade agreement with Brazil, supplemented by the Geneva tariffs and trade general agreements. These general agreements are part of the western world's attempts to reduce tariffs and to free trade. Canada is trying to increase rather than to reduce her trade with Brazil. That is one reason why she has not only an Embassy in Rio, but also a Consul and a Trade Commissioner in Santo Paulo.

* * *

Sometimes on ethical grounds—countries do profess to have moral values as well as political virtues—a nation will feel unhappy about trading with another. Perhaps that is why trade with Argentina has declined—if it has declined. Dictator Juan Peron's regime is a hard one for many Canadians to stomach, including, we suspect, most members of U.E. For similar though now more forceful reasons, Canada is officially discouraging trade with Communist Russia and Communist China. Is Canada justified in sending China and Russia electrical motors (even small motors are very useful for these nations' war industries) in order to give workers ten minutes' extra employment? We think that men and women working at the Peterborough C.G.E. plant are not anxious to make motors for China and Russia.

* * *

In the official press release from the Toronto U.E. headquarters dated November 23rd, reporting Mr. Jackson's statements and the conference, there appears this remarkable statement:

"By Virtue of the Canadian Government's acceptance of a position of 'satellite' of the United States, the markets of China and the Soviet Union are now closed to manufacturers in this country. In 1947 the Soviets bought Canadian motors valued at $577,953 and China bought motors to the value of $356,994."

* * *

Mr. Jackson and his satellites do not seem to realize that times have changed since 1947. How far removed the U.E. professionals are from Canadian opinion, how out of touch with the realities of international affairs. Have they not heard the rantings of Mr. Molotov and Mr. Vishinsky at U.N. and witnessed their attempts to disrupt U.N. and the way of life in Canada and the West? Do they know nothing of Communist Mao's conquest of China and his threat to India and the whole of Asia? Who, we ask, put up the Iron Curtain and barred trade and travel with East Europe? Who, we ask, is the arch-enemy of free trade, free movement, free discussion and even freedom in the trade union movement: Russia or the United States? And have the gentlemen at U.E. headquarters never heard that there is a war in Korea, in which Canadians have been fighting Communist Chinese?

A trade in Canadian motors amounting to $577,953 with Russia, and to $356,994 with China is insignificant in comparison with the total Canadian production of motors. It is certainly not worth salvaging at the cost of sacrificing democratic principles and perhaps the lives of Canadians in battlefields.

Disproportionate Representation

We have several times discussed the system of proportionate representation which exists in some countries—France is one—and we have tried to point out its virtues and its faults fairly. Its virtues are obvious: it gives as nearly as possible an accurate proportion of voting power in the legislature to each political group in the population. But it has one by-product which we think weakens government shockingly: it leads to a multiplicity of parties. Our blunderbuss system of voting gives a fantastic picture of party power, but it discourages splinter parties, and it can give strong and certain government.

The recent provincial election was a triumph for the Progressive Conservatives. And yet they polled only about fifty per cent. of the votes. It was a crushing defeat for the C.C.F., but they polled about nineteen per cent. of the vote. The Liberals gained two per cent. of the number of voters, having about thirty-one per cent. of the total, but they lost five seats. Clearly representation in the Legislature is no accurate indication of the voting strength of the Ontario parties.

It is a fact, also, that there is a disproportion in the representation of rural, as opposed to urban, Ontario. It is right that a rural riding should contain fewer voters than an urban one, or otherwise the rural voters would have too little representation. But at present it is plain that they have too much. Ontario is now, primarily, an industrial province, but it is the rural vote which politicians solicit. A redistribution which would accurately allot the seats in Ontario is desirable, but it would present great difficulties to those who were charged with making it.

We repeat, our system of voting grossly misrepresents party strength. But so long as it ensures secure and capable governments we would not suggest that it be changed. But it is necessary, also, that we should not delude ourselves by looking at only one side of an election victory.

Canadian French Academician

Major-General George P. Vanier, Canadian Ambassador to France, has been elected to the French Academy. We believe him to be the first Canadian ever to be a member of l'Academie francaise in that famous institution's long and illustrious history. It is a special honour to General Vanier personally, a recognition in which Canada takes pride.

The French Academy was established in 1635 with Cardinal Richelieu as its protector, and quickly became the focus of most of the great men of learning in France, the goal of their juniors, and the admiration of foreign men of letters. The crowning work of the Academy, which has made it the perpetual ruler and judge of French speech, was a dictionary of the French language, begun in 1639. The Academy has survived several monarchies, republics, revolutions, literary schisms, and even contumely on the name 'Academician'. (Great in French literary and scientific history have failed of election; but some geniuses, like the poet Verlaine, are of a kind that no academy can ever be expected to recognize.)

After the Revolution and Napoleon's era the Academy was reconstituted as the National Institute, with five sections, of which the class which deals with literature and language takes precedence. In all there are 184 members living in Paris, 184 in other parts of France, and 24 foreign members, of which General Vanier is the latest, in the place of the late Belgian author and critic Maurice Maeterlinck. General Vanier has been elected to the Moral and Political Sciences class.

Matthew Arnold has praised the French Academy as a high court of letters, a rallying-point for educated opinion, and master in matters of tone and taste. It is to this high court of French science and letters, with its Mazarine palace in Paris, its magnificent estates at Chantilly and its national authority, that Canada's Ambassador to France has been elected.

Why We Use The Oxford Dictionary

In this office we use the Oxford Dictionaries as our standard of reference in matters of definition and spelling. The handy Concise Oxford is in constant use; we have the Shorter Oxford (two volumes containing 2,475 pages, and thus shorter only than the many-volumed Great Oxford Dictionary) for further study when that seems necessary.

Why do we use these dictionaries? Well, one reason is that in Webster's New International Dictionary the word "journalistic" is thus defined:

> Characteristic of journalism or journalists; hence, of style, characterized by evidences of haste, superficiality of thought, inaccuracies of detail, colloquialisms, and sensationalism.

The Oxford dictionaries which we use say that "journalistic" means characteristic of writing in journals; it does not imply that such writing need be of an inferior quality.

Webster's dictionary has long been regarded in this office as a poor guide, though we keep one for checking American spellings; we now regard it as even poorer than we had thought. What, we wonder, would some of the great journalists of the past—Daniel Defoe, Dr. Samuel Johnson, Macauley, Leigh Hunt, Hazlitt, Coleridge, Shaw, Max Beerbohm, Chesterton, Frank Harris, Henley, C. P. Scott, Walkley, James Agate, C. E. Montague, Neville Cardus, Winston Churchill; these, and a host of other painstaking, gifted writers—say to the Webster definition of "journalistic"? They would say among other things, that the editors of Webster—if it has editors, and is not prepared by office-boys—had been reading the wrong journals.

Journalism has set and achieved high standards, and serious journalists bear them in mind. That is why they rely on the Oxford dictionaries.

A Year After Shaw's Death

By A. C. WARD

(Ed. Note: A. C. Ward is author of "20th Century Literature 1901-1940" and a forthcoming study of Bernard Shaw.)

THE years immediately following a famous author's death are often fatal to his reputation. With the genuinely great writers this speedy loss of favour is inevitably followed, after intervals of varying duration, by a recovery of fame which settles once for all their permanent place in literature; but what constitutes genuine greatness, or whether there will or will not be a recovery of fame in any particular instance, is a matter about which no level-headed critic cares to speculate. The judgements of posterity cannot be forecast.

Bernard Shaw died in November 1950 after a writing career which lasted for 70 years. For 50 years he was the most widely publicized writer of his generation and his fame extended far beyond Britain. He was most certainly famous, but it is less certain that he was popular, if popularity implies unlimited praise from the majority. He was greatly admired by many, but as greatly detested by many more and understood by very few. For at least the last 25 years of his life those who spoke or wrote about his works were largely occupied with the question of whether Shaw's plays would "live" beyond the limited period of interest which attaches to current social and political problems. Or, to put it more briefly, was Shaw a literary artist or only a propagandist?

THIS question was in fact well on the way to being answered before his life ended. His first plays, written in the early 1890s, were assumed to be nothing but propaganda plays. Widowers' Houses was seen to be a play about the social evil of slum dwellings in which poverty-stricken people lived in squalor while those who owned the dwellings prospered on the rents extorted from the unfortunate and unhappy poor. Mrs. Warren's Profession was seen to be a play about the social evil of sexual prostitution, the root cause of which was believed also to lie in social oppression and poverty. And so with the majority of his plays: they dealt with themes which touched the welfare of living people; they were plays in which argument appeared to be the central point of interest. Critics who ventured to prophesy that Shaw's dramatic works would quickly be forgotten, took the view that argument about current social and political problems would soon exhaust its interest, because the next generation always has problems of its own and is profoundly uninterested in those of its fathers. Slums and prostitution would vanish as social conditions improved and, so, Widowers' Houses, Mrs. Warren's Profession, and the rest would soon become no more than quaint—or perhaps merely boring—relics of "the bad old days".

Yet the critics who prophesied thus were wrong.

WHEN the plays named were revived on the London stage in the late 1940s, more than 50 years after they were written, playgoers old and new found to their delight that, far from being relics of stale propaganda, the plays were full of life, and even of fun; and that instead of the characters being mere puppets mouthing outmoded doctrines of social reform, they were real human beings, interesting in themselves as persons. Audiences might no longer need to care much about the problems, but they found themselves caring about the characters, interested in what they did and what they said—particularly in what they said, for they said it so well.

Since Shaw's death his have been among the most successful plays done in the London theatres. For the revival of Caesar and Cleopatra it was impossible to find an empty seat; Man and Superman ran prosperously for months, and once a week the company acted it in its entirety (the long third act is usually omitted), those special performances lasting between five and six hours. [In Toronto on November 12th last, there was the brilliant dramatic reading by Boyer, Laughton, Hardwicke and Moore of this third act, the Hell scent. This twice filled Massey Hall.] In addition, at a smaller theatre, the whole of Shaw's 18 one-act plays were given. This enterprise was specially enlightening, for it established that Village Wooing, when the players approach it with sympathetic understanding, is a small masterpiece of human perception; and, moreover, this one-act play season confirmed earlier impressions of the excellence of The Shewing-up of Blanco Posnet and, in its very different way, of The Dark Lady of the Sonnets, which introduces Shakespeare and Queen Elizabeth. Shaw's Captain Brassbound's Conversion was also revived, and, outside London, Pygmalion. In addition there have been many performances of his plays by amateur companies.

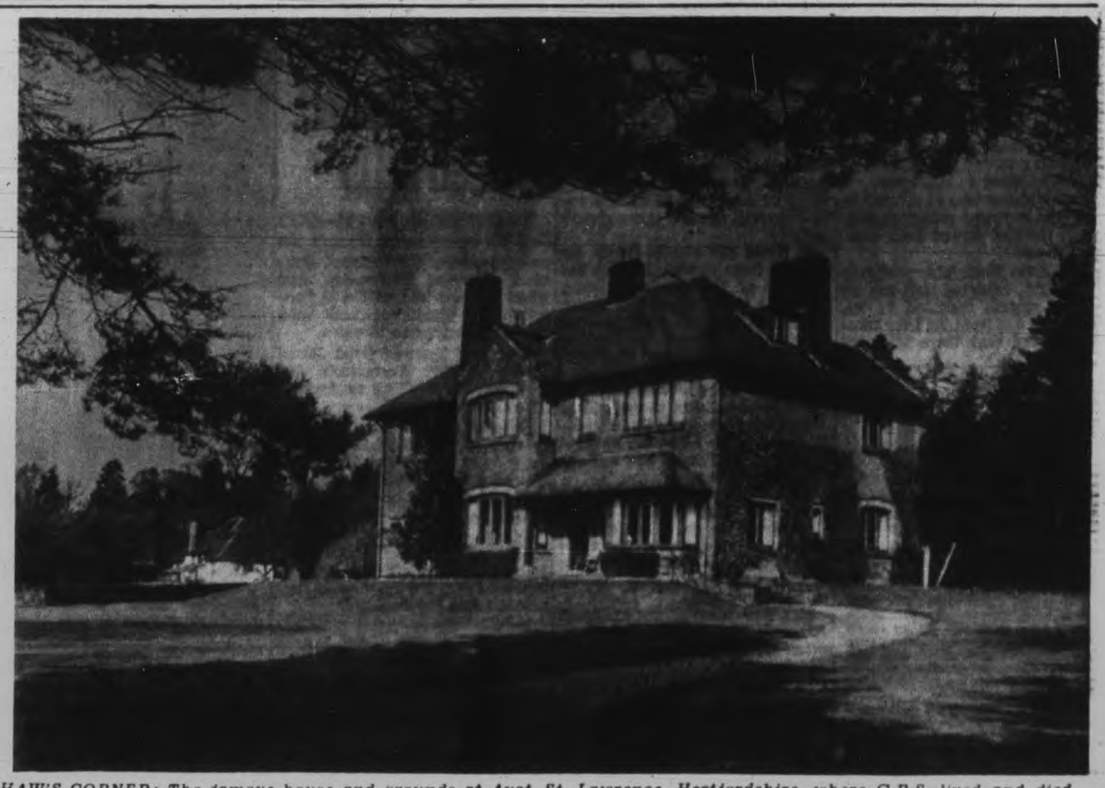
IN 1951, therefore, Shaw was still the outstanding playwright in the British theatre, and possibly more successful than in any single year during his own lifetime. The conclusion that might be drawn from this is that Shaw, who was in so many ways an exception to general rules, is to be an exception also in not suffering from an early posthumous decline of reputation. But it is still too early to feel certainty about that.

One of Shaw's most valuable assets was his uncommon skill as a manipulator of words. This was partly an inherited gift, for he was an Irishman, and the Irish have a great power with words; and he was also a native of Dublin, where 18th-century manners have tended to persist. Though the Irish have differed strongly from the English, in Dublin they have been unable to avoid the stately influence of English 18th-century architecture or the dignity of 18th-century ways of speech lingering on into the 20th century.



Shaw, therefore, grew up in an environment where native poetry of utterance was controlled by an imported sense of form. In addition he had an amazingly sensitive ear which could detect and distinguish between the slightest variations in pronunciation, diction, and tone. As a writer of the English language Shaw was nearer in style to Jonathan Swift, Daniel Defoe, and John Bunyan of the 18th and 17th centuries than to the less elegant and lucid style of the 20th century. Yet he learned to use modern idioms with masterly effect; while he never gave the actors words which could not be spoken with complete natural ease.

OF Shaw's wit it is less necessary to write, inasmuch as it was always so apparent as to be sometimes an obstacle to proper appreciation of his other qualities. His epigrams and paradoxes gave such brilliance to his work that his underlying seriousness was often doubted, but his regard for truth was such that he determined to make truth attractive and never dull: truth must gleam and sparkle, not be drab and dismal. Besides wit there is also humour in his plays. Nothing in the modern theatre is more heartwarming than to hear the laughter of spontaneous enjoyment that is still aroused by Shaw's humour. Whereas wit comes from the mind alone, humour comes also from the heart and is concerned with the foibles and endearing absurdities of men and women in their relationships with each other, not merely with their intellectual activities. The dazzingly brilliant first act of The Doctor's Dilemma, for example, is as rich in humour as in wit, for it is not only packed with clever sayings but is also a very remarkable exposition of human nature represented in the contrasting characteristics of the several doctors.

One of the most curious features of critical writings on Shaw during his lifetime was the inability to perceive his essential humanity. Time and time again it was said that the characters in his plays were no more than puppets moving only as Shaw pulled the strings. But puppets have no life once the puppet-master is dead. Shaw's characters, on the contrary, still have abundant life, and those who act in his plays are in no doubt that the author created for them human beings they can believe in and portray with conviction and often with affection.

Where The Slaves Are Envied

By HARRY FANKLIN (In Jedda, Saudi Arabia)

SAUDI ARABIA claims to be the oldest country in the world and its Red Sea port of Jedda is so named because "Jedda" means "Grandmother", by implication here "Grandmother of all". The reason for the name is that the tomb of the original Eve lies somewhere under an acre of barren ground surrounded by a dirty white wall near the port's aerodrome. That, at any rate, is Jedda's story.

Slavery is still a proper part of the Saudi Arabian social system. It is not unknown, of course, in other Arab States, but there its existence is not so openly acknowledged. The Saudi Arabian trade is centred on the holy city of Mecca, fifty miles inland from Jedda. Open slave markets are no longer held, but a rich man may buy a boy or a girl brought from Baluchistan or the Persian Gulf area, from a slave broker in Mecca, paying cash in the form of golden sovereigns. Slaves are expensive, about three hundred pounds; sovereigns and silver rials are the only currency of the country and gold is easier to pay out for large amounts.

It seems to be agreed by almost everybody in Saudi Arabia, including European residents and the slaves themselves, that slavery here is a very comfortable social status. There is probably truth in the assertion that a boy or girl of a Baluchistan family which is too poor to be able to feed its children is better off with a wealthy Saudi-Arabian family. It is certainly true that slaves are far too expensive nowadays, both to buy and to maintain, for them to be ill-treated and their efficiency reduced; in any case, Moslem law forbids such ill-treatment.

THE law governing slavery is strictly applied. As with the Romans, the master is responsible for the slave's offences. If a female slave bears a son, she is immediately freed and the child taken into the master's family. Slaves can, and sometimes do, inherit their master's property, and are often freed upon his death. Those whose forebears have been with the family for generations are invariably in charge of the free servants of the household. As members of the King's Guard, chauffeurs of brilliant Cadillacs, bejewelled household favourites, slaves enjoy many more privileges and comforts than the ordinary Arab workers, by whom they are more envied than pitied.

To the Western visitor, however, it all seems very odd, but so do many other Saudi-Arabian practices—the cutting-off of hands as a punishment for housebreaking, execution by the sword, the possession of up to four wives and many concubines, and the complete and effective ban on hard liquor.

King Ibn Saud, leader of the Wahabi, the most fanatically puritan sect of all Mohammed's followers, which forbids music, dancing, smoking, and a good many other pleasures, is still in fact trying to rule Saudi Arabia as he once ruled his own small desert tribe. With Western civilization seeping into the ports, towns and oil areas, he is finding this a hard task. But maladministration is having at least one good effect. The almost incredibly high cost of living in Saudi Arabia is achieving what the sloops of the British Navy, patrolling the Persian Gulf until the last war broke out, did not quite succeed in doing. It is gradually eradicating slavery, as a too expensive luxury.

Song For The New World

(Manchester Guardian)

[An expert at Cincinnati University suggests that hydrogen bomb explosions may be used to change the earth's orbit and thus make it possible for man to alter the weather, shorten or lengthen the day, and change the seasons.]

If you're waking, call me early, call me early, mother dear;
Things are always so unsettled in this hydrogenic year.
If one is not up and doing when the morning daylight breaks
One may miss some new enchantment as the world in wonder wakes.

Yesterday the hours I fancy, numbered fully twenty-four,
But to-morrow, readjusted, may be down to just a score;
As for weather fluctuations, we seem well and truly lost—
Butterflies and bees on Monday, Wednesday with a chilling frost.

Shall we swing to blithe Midsummer with its gracious Longest Day?
Friday last was Christmas Eve but Tuesday brought the First of May.
Hard it is to know what undies should be chosen as a boon
If we reach a Month of Sundays or that fabulous Blue Moon.

These, they hint, are signs and wonders all in time proceeding from Cincinnati thumps and thunders with a hydrogenic bomb.
Very strange these new-found phases; could they as they ride the storm
Bomb all Quarter Days to blazes in their Calendar Reform?

Bible Message

Knowest thou not this of old, since man was placed upon earth, that the triumphing of the wicked is short, and the joy of the hypocrite but for a moment? . . . He shall fly away as a dream, and shall not be found: yea, he shall be chased away as a vision of the night. (Job 20: 4, 5, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness. Therefore let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober. For they that sleep sleep in the night; and they that be drunken are drunken in the night.

But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breastplate of faith and love; and for an helmet, the hope of salvation. (1 Thess. 5: 5-8.)

Unconsidered Trifles

"How do the young couple upstairs get on with each other?"

"Oh! Very well. They have one thing in common. She thinks he's wonderful and he thinks he's wonderful."

"I'll not appear in your new play unless you alter the cast. Two of the players can't act for toffee."

"Indeed," said the producer, dryly, "and who is the other?"

Glancing up from the advertisement in the old magazine he had found, the hobo said to his companion: "Do you think it does any good to have your character analyzed by your handwriting?"

"All it ever got me," said the other, grinning, "was six months in jail—for forgin' a cheque."

SHAW'S STUDY: kept as it was when he died a year ago this month. The house is now open to the public.

SIX MEN who in the past year stole outboard motors valued at $15,000 from summer resorts in the Montreal area—and who stole from each other when times got tough—are in jail because two of them were careless enough to be caught in the act of breaking into a cottage at Lachute. Police got on the trail of the gang when reports reached them of persons attempting to sell motors at sharply reduced rates. One man told police that his outboard motor had been stolen, and that the next day a man appeared and sold him another. The next day this second motor also disappeared, as the gang pulled a triple play.

Petrillo Orders Orchestra Off Job

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 — (AP) — The orchestra for the opera "Carmen" walked out of the pit Wednesday night at the bid of James Petrillo, Musician's Union boss, who decided the orchestra's dignity had been bruised. The performance was delayed 15 minutes.

Petrillo said Alfred Bruening, New York violinist, had complained that after the New York Opera Company's performance of "Madame Butterfly" last Saturday, he was hit by a baton thrown by conductor Laszlo Halasz.

Halasz allegedly acted in a moment of pique expressing his displeasure with the orchestra's performance, Petrillo said.

The orchestra returned with conflicting reports on whether Halasz had apologized.

Campbellford Parade Slated For Dec. 15

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29 — (ENS) — Campbellford children will be able to see Santa again this year, when he arrives in the big Canta Claus parade on December 15. The local Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the parade and hope to make it an even bigger affair than the last two years.

Last year, and the year before the parade was claimed to be the biggest and best held in any Ontario town of comparable size. Officials report many new types of costumes have been rented, and no doubt this year, as last, many of the costumes will be the ones used in the large Toronto parade.

December 15 is the day Santa will arrive in Campbellford, and as in other years, the population of the town will be practically double on that eventful day, giving police a king-size headache in directing traffic and straightening out traffic snarls.

Must Abandon Big Oil Well

MINTON, Sask.—(CP) — "Big Muddy" the deepest hole ever drilled in the ground in Saskatchewan, has been abandoned with no oil found.

The well was drilled to a depth of nearly two miles in the continuing search for oil in the southern Saskatchewan section of the Williston Basin, which has produced rich oil wells in Montana and North Dakota to the south.

Abandonment of the well, Shell Big Muddy No.1. after five months of drilling came as a major disappointment to the 200 people of this community in rolling cattle country a few miles north of the Montana border.

It cost about $600,000 to drill the hole. The rib covered an acre of ground, the mast towered 160 feet in the air, and the weight of the equipment totalled 600 tons. After the hole was abandoned cement plugs had to be set in the well to prevent salt or mineral water from rising to the surface.

The oil company isn't writing off the expenditure as a total loss. The venture has added bulky files to Saskatchewan's oil exploration records. Said Texas-born F. M. Stewart, in charge of the drilling crew.

"Oil is here somewhere. At times I thought we were going to hit it. Maybe it's a mile or 10 or 20 miles away. But it's here."

A couple of basketball fixtures by the femmes tomorrow e'en in the YWCA, starting at eight. Normals play Lindsay first, followed by Black's against the Nurses. First part of the schedule concludes on Dec. 21. Likely a men's YM house league twin bill the following p.m. up that way. Meantime, the school cagers are getting re-organized once more, but won't be playing till after the first of the year. A bit of friction, we hear, betwixt intermediate OABA men's clubs as they get lined up for their season. Some squabbling over players, as well as use of the floor for practices. It'll make for keen rivalry.

Those Jap wrestlers, serving up their Sumo style in the States and Canada for the first time, certainly get around. They were in Peterborough recently. A Kitchener item says: "They have been in 219 cities and will appear a day in Florida, the next in New York, and the next in Chicago. Wrestling six times a week doesn't leave much time for sight-seeing. Another difficulty is getting enough rice and fish, their favorite food. They've gotten to the point where they'll take a big steak now. But at one sitting, they stung the tour management for $64 worth of rice and fish where they found a restaurant with a big supply." They are indeed paunchy parties.

One Of Those Classics

Petes and Eagles tangle tomorrow night in Civic Arena, an 8.30 OHA senior "B" joust. Eagles are in second spot at present with four points while Petes have two. Latter can tie their civic rivals with a win, or Eagles can pull further in front of them by taking a victory. As it looks like a keen race all the way among the four well-matched clubs, these early triumphs are plenty important. No play-off arrangements have been made so far by the group conveners. This Friday fixture between the old ice enemies should pack in one of the biggest crowds of the winter, as few puck followers miss these senior hockey classics.

Chap asked us after their last game if we'd seen a player on one team's bench reach over and poke a rival skating by. The latter naturally was plenty burned up about it, but the ref missed it. That shows the feeling between these clubs when they face each other on the frozen water. They'd sooner win than get paid! Two good sqads, under capable and scrappy coaches, all add up to sizzling action every meeting. OHA refs don't relish these assignments a bit—and who can blame them? They're always in wrong with one team and one half of the crowd or the other. Anyway, it's hot and exciting hockey for the customers.

Kin Clicked In Third

Lindsay Kin proved opportunists in the third period here last night to capture a 6-4 junior "B" win over the Oddfellows. A speedy game, fairly clean, but rugged. Eight penalties a side, a few of 'em costly. A three-goal surge in the final frame wrapped it up for the strong Scugog squad after the Godfrey gang outplayed them till then. Home defence wasn't at its peak in this one, but the whole crew fought hard. Looks like a real stiff schedule, same clubs clashing again in Lindsay on the morrow. Red Robinson, Ab Buckton and Clare Ferguson were probably the pick of the IOOF-ers. And 14-year-old Reg Truax in the winners' net showed why he is on Eddie Shore's list.

Jack Dempsey is staying in Toronto this week and viewing more than two dozen prospective heavyweight fighters who go in an elimination tourney next Monday in the Gardens. The ex-champ has been on the prowl for years trying to unearth a hungry young fighter of 180 or more pounds—a guy similar to himself when he started on the ring trail that brought him a million bucks. But they're awfully scarce, good boxers. Dempsey will referee the semi-finals and final bouts and present the cash prizes after the tourney. No mitt-slinger entered from here so far, but we have entry blanks if any big scrappers want to try their luck. Though that's unlikely now.

Here and There In Sport

The Boston Red Sox Wednesday traded catcher Les Moss and outfielder Tom Wright to the St. Louis Browns for Ken Wood, strong throwing outfielder, and Gus Niarhos, smooth working but not too rugged catcher. A Sox spokesman said no cash was involved.

Moss came from the Browns to Boston early last season. Wright is a good hitting outfielder who spent most of last season with Louisville.

Niarhos became St. Louis property only Wednesday when he figured in an eight-man swap between the Browns and the Chicago White Sox.

At Philadelphia, Nick Liotta, star football guard for Villanova College and a top-ranking all-American candidate, was found dead Wednesday in the basement off his dormitory.

Police reported that a coil of telephone wire was twisted about Liotta's neck and that his body, clad only in the top part of his pyjamas lay beneath a strip of piping.

The 22-year-old Liotta, a resident of Everett, Mass., already had been chosen on the Football Writers' Association All-America team selected for Look Magazine and on The Associated Press all-Pennsylvania team.

Friends reported that he had seemed despondent after Villanova lost, 20-13, to Boston College at Boston two weeks ago. They said his depression increased when Villanova was shellacked, 45-7, by Louisiana State last Saturday.

At Hamilton, Scotland, police have arrested one man in connection with an attempt to bribe a Scottish League soccer player to lose a game. Joseph McCudden, a baker, appeared in court here Wednesday and was bound over until Friday.

Three bribery attempts were reported by Scottish players last week.

At Miami, Fla., Fitzie Pruden, 147, of St. Catharines, Wednesday night scored a split 10-round decision over Marcel (Rocky) Brisebois, 146½, Montreal, with a strong rally in the last six rounds. Brisebois took the early rounds but Pruden came on in the fifth and scored the only knockdown in the sixth when Brisebois took a nine count. From then on Pruden had a slight edge.

Bratton Earns Draw With Gavilan

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (AP). — Johnny Bratton, Chicago's unpredictable welterweight, charmed a Chicago Stadium crowd on Wednesday night with a piledriving assault that earned him a draw with champion Kid Gavilan.

The end of the non-title 10-round bout, which was televised nationally, found the 7,397 spectators on their feet, cheering the unpredictable "brat."

Then, when the verdict was announced—the referee for Bratton, one judge for Gavilan, the other calling it a standoff—the crowd cheered even more.

Probably never before had the Brat been so popular with his home-towners.

He went into the bout scaling an over-the-limit 149 pounds, as did Gavilan, the Cuban kid. Bratton was a 3-1 underdog.

Supporters worried lest Bratton prove ring-shy after suffering jaw bone breaks in three losing battles—to Gavilan last May, to Ike Williams in 1950 and to Beau Jack in 1949. Furthermore, the Brat was known to have a habit of going on the defensive when the going was toughest.

But Bratton was a changed man Wednesday night. At no time did he give evidence that he was worried about another bust in the jaw. On the contrary, he weathered Gavilan's ferocious flurries and came out of them swinging—and connecting.

Ringside observers were agreed the Brat fought the most impressive battle of his major competition.

He stole the crowd at the start. In the first round, one of the champion's cutting left hooks opened a cut on the 24-year-old Chicagoan's cheek, near the eye, and in the second the Cuban Kid gashed Bratton's nose.

Both times, Bratton made a gallant stand, exchanging blows with the whip-armed Gavilan and finishing strongly.

St. Alphonsus Wins

St. Alphonsus defeated Immaculate Conception 6-1 at Civic Arena in their first clash of the Separate School Hockey League. The winners' goals were by Doris (2), Smith, Adamson, Daley and Driscoll. The losers' marker was by Fitzgerald. Teams:

St. Alphonsus: Reid, Adamson, Gordon, Doris, Driscoll, Smith, Daley, Lawless, Rochetta, Soulby, Hamblin.

Immaculate Conception: LeFevre, Ayotte, O'Toole, Fitzgerald, Anthony, Moher, Ross, Crowley, Garvey, Guerin, Byrne, Dellellaro.

BAD LUCK continues to plague Peterborough's senior "B" teams. George Steele, Petes only import this year, suffered a fractured jaw in two places Wednesday night at the Civic Arena. He collided with another Petes' player during a practice session. His condition was described as "fair" today in St. Joseph's hospital. (Examiner Staff Photo.

Gene Killen Leads

Gene Killen of the Hearts had high single of 316 last start with the CYO Bowling League, and he led in triples with 673. Fred Attard of the Spades rolled a 261 single and a three of 636, among other fair trundling scores turned in.

Spades had pinnage of 2,401 against Queen's 2,242, Hearts led with 3,040 as Diamonds got 2,520, Kings edged Clubs with 2,305 to 2,340, as Aces rolled a total of 2,609 and Jacks got 2,382.

Suspended McKenzie Can Play For Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP). — Jack McKenzie, who was suspended from the Ontario Hockey Association last week, can still play for the University of Toronto team.

J. P. Loosemore, secretary of athletics at U. of T., said Wednesday that the intercollegiate body is not affiliated with either the OHA or the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and McKenzie is welcome to play for Varsity.

McKenzie, a third-year physical education student, was suspended because he signed a card to play for the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and then decided "commuting like that all winter was going to hurt my work at Varsity. So I just quit and decided to play in Toronto."

McKenzie led the Manitoba Junior League in scoring with Brandon Wheat Kings the year before coming to Toronto to play for Marlboro juniors and seniors in the last two seasons.

Pittsburgh Hornets Down Barons 9-6

By The Canadian Press.

Pittsburgh Hornets kept their hold on first place of the American Hockey League, winning a scoring marathon over Cleveland Barons, 9-6, Wednesday night before 7,805 fans.

Hershey Bears, leaders of the eastern division of the loop shut out Indianapolis 4-0, maintaining their lead.

At Cleveland, the Hornets' Bob Hassard, Tim Horton and George Armstrong scored two goals each while Ray Timgren, Charley Blair and Phil Maloney had one each. Paul Gladu had two for Cleveland and Ken Schultz, Phil Samis, Joe Lund and Ike Hildebrand scored one each.

At Hershey, Norm Corcoran, Bob Armstrong, Arnie Kullman and Leo Labine looked after the scoring for the Bears.

The St. Louis Flyers moved into second place in the western division by blanking Syracuse Warriors 6-0 before 3,338 spectators on home ice.

Stanky Certain To Become Card Manager

By JOE REICHLER.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP). — Eddie Stanky virtually is certain of succeeding Marty Marion as manager of St. Louis Cardinals.

No definite agreement has been reached, but presidents Horace Stoneham of New York Giants and Fred M. Saigh of the Cardinals will meet within the next few days with the hope of closing the deal, brewing since the world series.

Th transaction may not be announced until the minor league baseball convention in Columbus next week.

The Cards will be asked to turn over pitcher Max Lanier and outfielder Chuck Diering for Stanky, who will then sign as a player-manager for two years at $35,000 per season.

Although Saigh has been quoted as saying that he had three men in mind for the job, he has not seriously considered anybody but Stanky.

The only question was Stoneham's willingness to part with the Giants' scrappy second baseman, the spark that drove the team to the National League flag last season.

Stoneham is agreeable to the transaction only because he does not want to be accused of "blocking Stanky's chance of realizing his dream" — managing a big-league club.

Saigh, who had rejected an earlier New York request for Enos Slaughter and Harry Brecheen, is equally reluctant to part with Lanier.

Lindsay Juniors Triumph Against Triple Links With a 6-4 OHA Decision

Lindsay Kinsmen won their second game of the young junior "B" hockey season by defeating Oddfellows 6-4 Wednesday night in a hard-fought game at Civic Arena. A fair-sized crowd viewed the struggle that saw the Godfrey lads take an early lead and later see it melt as Red Mitchell's boys staged an uphill battle to tie the game in the hot second frame then went on to win out in a flaming finish.

Goals by Dave Lucas, Doug Powell and Norm Dysart in the last half of the third frame proved decisive after Ab Buckton had tallied the tie-breaker midway in the period on an individual rush from mid-ice to beat young 14-year-old Reg Truax with a blistering 25-foot drive. Oddfellows fought hard in the late stages to equalize the score before Dysart's goal that came late with Links a man short as Bigford sat out a costly elbowing penalty. Kinsmen held off every thrust before the final clincher. It was a clean, though rugged game, a typical Lindsay - Peterborough battle with eight penalties evenly divided.

A Neat Goal

Oddfellows scored at the three-quarter mark in the first after outplaying the Mitchell men, when Ab Buckton worked neatly with Red Robinson to fire the disc home as the red-head passed out from behind the net. They made it two as Kevin Heffernan banged in Coyle's pass directly in front of Truax outside the crease at 16:28; Wilson drew an assist on the play. Fighting back, Norm Dysart, who played well, tallied on a sharp angle drive to the right corner late in the session on a quick blue-line break with Bruce Hall, to keep Kin in the game.

Leo Sullivan gave IOOF an added margin early in the second as he combined with Heffernan and Roger Wilson to fool Truax with a low screened drive through a dozen legs. The Godfrey gang worked hard defensively until costly penalties to Armstrong and Twist enabled Kin to creep up as Gary Copeland deflected Doug Powell's pass behind Wasson from close in. Then Gary Vassy fired the tying marker near period's end on a low drive similar to Sullivan's.

Breaks Did It

With a new hockey game for 20 minutes, both squads opened the throttle to give it all they had in typical fashion and it became apparent the breaks would finally decide the issue. Kinsmen took quick advantage of what breaks came their way to win out though Oddfellows outplayed them over the route. Defensively, the Dysart, Bill Smith, Hall line were best for Lindsay with Lucas, Sherrington, Schenkel, Doug Marshall and Powell good both ways.

For Oddfellows the Robinson, Buckton, Clare Ferguson line were best in a scoring way with Ferguson toiling hard in his first game. The Lakefield line worked hard to collect four points and though the Floyd, Morrow, Sullivan trio failed to register, all worked hard. The defence, though fair, was not quite as effective as usual on a whole, though every man tried hard. Armstrong and Wilson proved most effective.

Lindsay — Goal, Traux; defence, Lucas, Sherrington; centre, Vasey; wings, McDonald, Burns; alts, Powell, Copeland, Deeth, Dysart, Smith, Hall, Schenkel, Marshall, McGuire (spare goalie.)

IOOF—Goal, Wasson; defence, Armstrong, Clapper; centre, Robinson; wings, Buckton, Ferguson; alts, Coyle, Wilson, Twist, Heffernan, Floyd, Sullivan, Morrow, Bigford.

Referee, J. Crombie; linesman, Bun Kingdon.

G. Braund, H. Hamblin, and E. Braund are playing in the bonspiel up at High Park, Toronto.

According to last night's standing, W. M. Crothers' rink is the only unbeaten rink in the schedule.

Owing to many ladies' bonspiels being held during the same week the local ladies intended to hold their open bonspiel for the Warne Trophy, it is likely they will change their date—official information later.

All of the 70 local schedule rinks have been entered in the Neill Trophy competition. We believe this is an all-time record.

NY Rangers Come To Life Topple Black Hawks 6-3

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Frank Boucher, that astute cutie from Pembroke, who has been making Broadway his stamping grounds these many years, had a few observations to make before the 1951-52 National Hockey League season opened. Among them was a note that his Rangers would hit the playoffs "for sure" this time.

It's a little early to go along with the one-time great poke-check artist—his Blueshirts have been acting like doormats since the season started. But as of Wednesday night they suddenly showed signs that the bottom rung is a most unsavory spot.

The Broadway Blues, playing it cleanly (only two penalties) as Frank insists they should play, walked over Chicago Black Hawks 6-3 to move into three-way tie for third place. That isn't playoff money in the bank because nearly every NHL club has been fattening its averages against the hapless Hawks the last few years, but it did show the Rangers can come up with goals when they count most.

It wasn't the victory that hoisted Rangers into a tie with Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins that cheered the 8,135 fans. It was the way they did it after being held to a 3-3 tie going into the final period.

Something New

The Rangers' three counters in the final 20 minutes were something new to New York fans. They've been accustomed the last few years to watching the club blow one and two goal leads and fail to come through with the sorely-needed goals.

The 1950-51 season was a case in point when Rangers set an NHL record with 21 tied games. Beyond their first-string line, they didn't have the scoring power to turn these into two-point victories.

Another cheering note about Wednesday night's decision was that the New York goals were distributed around.

Defencemen Allan Stanley and Hy Buller each got one. The others went to forwards Edgar Laprade, Nick Mickoski, Reggie Sinclair and Herb Dickinson.

Opened Scoring

Chicago opened the scoring at 6:42 of the first period on a goal by Bep Guidolin. Markers by Dickenson and Buller gave Rangers a 2-1 first-period lead. This was wiped out at 2:41 of the second when Bill Mosienko netted for the Hawks but Mickoski notched his at 8:36 and Bill Gadsby made it 3-3 within three minutes.

The fans were resigned to another tie (it would have been the sixth for Rangers this season) until Laprade broke the deadlock at 10:10 of the third frame.

There'll probably be some shuffling around the third-place rung tonight when the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs play at Montreal and Boston travels to Detroit.

Stankiewicz Top Goal Getter

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP). — Eddie Stankiewicz, 22-year-old forward with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, is setting a torrid pace in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scoring.

League statistics show the Kitchener product has 17 goals and 125 assists, both tops in the league, for a total of 32 points. The statistics do not include Wednesday night games.

Stratford's Mickey Roth holds second place with 29 points. Third, four points behind Roth, is Frank Liscombe of Hamilton Tigers.

Tommy Burlington, Owen Sound Mercury centre who led the league in the opening weeks, dropped to fourth place, tied with Dinny Flanagan and Jack White of Stratford. Each has 24 points.

Stratford's Bruce Dale leads in the netminding department, having passed 42 pucks in 16 games, for a 2.52 average.

Fighting For Life

PARIS, Ont., Nov. 29—(CP)—A 10-year-old Paris boy was fighting for his life in hospital here today after being struck Wednesday night by a motor vehicle which did not stop on the eastern outskirts of Paris. Hospital officials said Wednesday night Dennis Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Little, is in "very critical condition" with a compound fracture of the skull. Provincial police from Niagara Falls to Chatham have been alerted to be on the lookout for the hit-and-run vehicle.

Mercurys Snap Losing Streak Beat Dutchmen 4-3 In OHA Tilt

By The Canadian Press.

Whether Owen Sound Mercurys carried rabbits' feet or horseshoes Wednesday night wasn't made known, but the Ontario Hockey Association senior team was lucky enough to snap a six-game string of losses. Mercurys beat Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 4-3 with Ray McCallum scoring the winning goal.

In other senior encounters, Hamilton Tigers downed Sarnia Sailors, 4-3, and Stratford Indians turned back Brantford Redmen 9-3.

OHA junior action saw St. Michael's hand Barrie Flyers a 6-3 lacing. Waterloo Hurricanes edged Oshawa Generals 7-5 in overtime.

Sudbury Wolves improved their second-place standing in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association circuit by edging Sudbury Miners 4-3.

Stratford's victory, at home, protected its half-game lead in the senior loop and meant the second reverse for Brantford in two nights. Billy Flick scored three goals for Stratford, Mickey Roth and Ken Ducharme got two each and Dinny Flanagan and Bill Walsh added the others. Brantford's tallies went to Ken Stemmler, Beb Hewson and Bob Wrightsell.

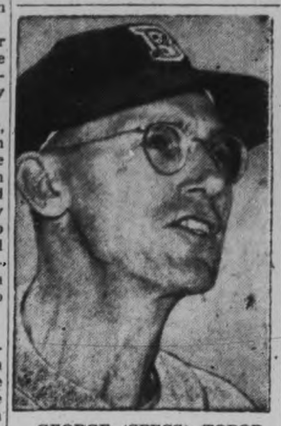
Winning Goal

Fred Pankoski won the Hamilton-Sarnia game for Hamilton with a goal—his second of the game—seven minutes before the final bell. At the time, his team was shorthanded. Fred Liscombe and Bill Hammond were the other scorers. Colly Beauchamp tallied twice for Sarnia after Billy Taylor opened.

Owen Sound led all the way in the game at Kitchener. Harry Kazarian and Mike Bukacheski scored early for Owen Sound, Buchakeski added another and Ray McCallum finished up. Jim Pernfuss, Doug Verity and Ed Stankiewics were the Kitchener-Waterloo goal-getters.

A four-goal splurge in the third period gave the third-place Toronto St. Michael's their victory over Barrie in the junior game in Toronto. Jack Caffrey and Ron Wallace each tallied twice and Toppazzini, and Bill Plata got singles for Toronto. Chuck Wood, Johnny Martan and Paul Emms were the Barrie scorers.

Five unanswered goals in the third period clinched Galt's victory at Windsor and strengthened its hold on fourth place. Windsor's defeat was its 14th.



Get Three Goals

Centre Ken Wharram and right winger Tony Poeta each notched three goals for Galt and singles went to Pete Conacher, Neil McDonald, Tom Tyles, John Sleaver and Walt Gardiner. Ross Craven potted two for Windsor and Al Arbour, Bob Brown and Willie Hass added the others.

Two goals in the overtime period spelled victory for Waterloo on seventh place. Oshawa was left in an eighth-place tie with Barrie.

Jimmy Connelly and Paul Oliver fired the overtime counter. Connelly scored twice in the regular time, Gerry Horton got two and the other went to Jack Armstrong.

Bob Holden got two for Oshawa and Bobby Attersley, Paul Oliver and O'Connor added the others.

Mounties Visit To Britain May Boost Their Recruiting

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Nov. 29 — (CP) — "Dear Mounties" the nine-year-old writes tremulously, "do you always get your man like they say and do you see real Indians? It must be smashing to do all that."

The nine-year-old, who writes from Chester, Cheshire, wants to know whether he can join the Canadian Mounties when he grows up. From Clifton, Yorkshire, another nine-year-old sends a particularly urgent request for an autograph of "any Mounties" and in London's Manor Park district a 12-year-old girl records her regret that the poor mounties have to travel in jeeps and automobiles instead of romantically on horseback.

These are excerpts from three of the deluge of letters received in London since five members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, visiting Britain last week, proved that the lure of the scarlet tunic is a good deal stronger than most Canadians probably think.

The RCMP has no official address in London, or anyway none that appears in the telephone book, so Britain's boys and girls put some weird directions on their envelopes, including simply to "Five Mounties, London," but the missives usually get their man. About four out of five contain a request for autographs or pictures.

Most of the male correspondents express an interest in joining the force. All are promised an individual reply, in which they will be told age and height requirements and warned they must find their own fare to Canada.

The five visiting mounties, headed by Assistant Commissioner M. F. E. Anthony, came to Britain with Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh and went home last week. Their pictures appeared on the front pages of most national newspapers.

Havelock Women's Association Holds Bazaar, Tea

HAVELOCK, Nov. 29 (ENS).—Yuletide decorations made a colorful setting for the annual bazaar and afternoon tea held on Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday school auditorium of Havelock United Church under the auspices of the Women's Association. There was an excellent attendance of members and friends from other denominations, who were welcomed by the president, Mrs. N. Blakely. The proceeds amounted to $188.37.

The post office where parcel post packages were sold at 25 cents was one of the most popular booths. This department, from which $35.45 was realized, was in charge of Mesdames Cecil Anderson, Harold Hamilton, Fred Chase and Herbert Hoard.

The home baking table was in charge of Mesdames J. Chatterton and Wesley Johnston, and had a good supply of cooking that sold quickly. The candy booth was also popular, and this was in charge of Mesdames Harry Agnew and Henry Gerow. Attending an assortment of fancy work, aprons and other articles were Mesdames Cecil Toms and W. Nobes Sr.

Youngsters were particularly delighted with the thrill of a treasure hunt at Solomon's mine, where treasures were dug from tubs of sawdust. Over $6 was realized at this department, which was under the direction of Mrs. G. Emery and Mrs. W. Forsyth.

Mrs. P. Haig and Mrs. T. Easterbrook poured tea at a linen-covered table centred with an electric three-light candelabra, around which were arranged silvered evergreen and small white deer. Gleaming silver tea services were at either end. The quartette tables where the guests were served were centred with red candles. Serving were Mesdames Clarence Wellman, W. Nobes Jr., Russell Williams, R. B. Sayers, J. Beatty. Arranging the plates was in charge of Mesdames A. Anderson, Rae Williams, J. Wilde, J. Shotton, W. W. Hill.

Annual WI Tea Realizes $205

COLDSPRINGS, Nov. 29 (ENS)—The annual bazaar and tea was held on Tuesday afternoon by the Coldsprings Women's Institute. It was held in the basement of the new township hall and the sum of $205 was realized. The WI members, numbering about 45, were kept busy all afternoon. The basement was decorated with the WI colors of blue and yellow predominating. New plastic curtains had recently been donated and put at the windows by the WI.

The tea tables were gaily decorated with air ferns as a centrepiece and were attended by Mrs. M. Anderson, Mrs. M. Minifie, Mrs. A. Bowman, Mrs. A. Willis, Mrs. M. Lacey, Mrs. H. Jibb, Mrs. N. McIntosh, Mrs. E. Jamieson, Miss A. Moffatt, Mrs. E. Bowman, Miss I. Gibson and Mrs. T. Cusworth.

Replenishing the sandwich, cookie plates and relish dishes were Mrs. William Maughan, Miss E. Hoskin, Mrs. E. May and Mrs. R. Willis.

Tea makers were Mrs. M. Dines, and Mrs. H. West. Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. Ford, Mrs. T. McBride, Mrs. R. Bray, Miss A. McKinley, Mrs. L. McIntosh, Mrs. E. Lean, Mrs. C. Davidson and Mrs. S. Wallace.

Treasurer for the tea tables was Mrs. H. McKinley.

The tempting array of home cooking was in charge of Mrs. C. Bowman and Mrs. C. Baptist. Mrs. W. McMann attended the candy booth. Pickles and jam were sold by Mrs. C. Avery. What was not sold was donated to Cobourg General Hospital.

Mrs. M. Linton sold the potted plants, and Mrs. J. Rosevear the vegetables.

A great display of aprons was shown and these sold early, with Mrs. A. Linton and Mrs. C. Timlin in charge. Attending an assortment of socks, fancy work, towels and other articles were Mrs. J. Gordon and Mrs. H. Minifie.

Mrs. K. Grieve was in charge of the used clothing table.

Great interest was shown in the tea cup reading, and the younger generation were delighted with the fish pond, which was in charge of Mrs. N. Timlin and Mrs. E. Turk.

Mrs. K. Harper, the WI president, moved a vote of thanks to the members for their work.

Van Doos Receive New Korean Mortars

WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 29—(CP)—The Royal 22nd Regiment has the newest mortors in Korea.

Monday, every mortar in the battalion was replaced.

The reason: Thousands of bombs were fired at the Chinese during the unit's great defense of a barren ridge-top in the Mount Kowang area, 40 miles north of Seoul. The fire was so heavy and so fast that the Van Doos' old mortars got red hot.

In case they suffered by such treatment, all were taken out of service. A complete new issue was delivered to Lt.-Col. J. A. Dextraze of Montreal, the Van Doos' commander.

Father, Son Reeves In Percy, Alnwick

ROSENEATH, Nov. 29 (ENS)—A father and son were acclaimed reeves in adjoining townships on Monday.

The son, Fred Broadworth, was re-elected reeve of Alnwick township when he was acclaimed in Monday's nomination meeting at Roseneath.

The father, George Broadworth, was elected reeve of Perry township by acclamation at the nomination meeting in Warkworth. George Broadworth was deputy reeve of Percy in 1951; he has not been reeve before.

Canadian Track Customers Spend $7,000,000 Playing Horses In 1951 Turf Season

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 — (CP)— Race-track customers loosened their clutch on bankrolls in Canada's 1951 turf season, feeding into the pari-mutuel machines almost $7,000,000 more than last year.

Pari-mutuel betting on the horses increased to a record $60,384,287, the federal agriculture department reported today, from $53,469,032 wagered in 1950.

There were 30 meets totalling 359 days at the tracks against 31 meets and 356 days in 1950.

Purse money to owners of winning horses also went up increasing by $144,435 from $3,009,014 to $3,153,450.

More than half the money that went into the machines was wagered in Ontario. In that province's 148 racing days, fans sent $37,606,139 through the windows, nearly $4,700,000 more than last year's $32,925,119.

Each of the six reporting provinces had a higher pari-mutuel take than last year. British Columbia patrons contributed the second most wagering $8,719,212 compared to $8,037,909 last year.

Britain Ties Up NATO Meeting

By PAMELA MATTHEWS

ROME, Nov. 29 — (Reuters) — Britain Wednesday stayed obstinately deaf to the pleas of the US, Canada and European countries, refusing to commit herself to an American admiral to command the Atlantic and the American .300 rifle as the standardized weapon for land forces.

The North Atlantic Treaty nations ended their biggest-ever conference here having had to shelve the year-old blueprint for the Atlantic naval structure because of British stubbornness.

They also put aside decisions on the Mediterranean and Middle East Commands. The latter have to await the blessing—or otherwise—of the Arab States.

The council meeting lasted four days with Canadian External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson in the chair.

(In the British House of Commons Wednesday, Churchill said Britain is reserving its decision on the standardization of a rifle and ammunition. The Defence Ministry, administered by Churchill, issued a separate statement that Britain is not irrevocably opposed to the .300 or the idea of an American commander of the Atlantic.)

An Allied spokesman in Rome said the council had ordered its defence production board to study the US rifle and the new British .280.

4 Utilities Commission Candidates Outline Policies To The Electors

A resident of Peterborough for 40 years, Dr. Gordon R. Langley, Burnham St., is one of four candidates contesting the single vacancy on the utilities commission. Now retired and with plenty of time to devote to public affairs, Dr. Langley is making his first bid for public office.

Dr. Langley was born in Toronto and educated in Upper Canada College. He graduated from Union University, Schenectady, NY, at the time the famed Dr. Proteus Steinmetz was professor of electrical engineering there.

In 1907 Dr. Langley started work with the General Electric Co. in Schenectady and he remained with that firm until his retirement this summer.

In 1911 he came to Peterborough as an engineer in the switchgear department. For the last 13 years he was chairman of the engineering committee, in charge of engineering in the Canadian General Electric chain.

Dr. Langley is a registered professional engineer for Ontario, a member of the Engineering Institute of Canada, chartered engineer of Great Britain, and a Fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

He has two married daughters living in Peterborough, and his son, Tom, is electrical supervisor of the Donnacona Paper Co.

Always prominent in athletics, Dr. Langley was captain of the Peterborough ORFU team in 1912-13. He was city tennis champion in both singles and doubles, several times. He has also captained a cricket club and pitched softball. Dr. Langley is a member of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, a former president of the Peterborough Club and former president of the Community Concert Association.

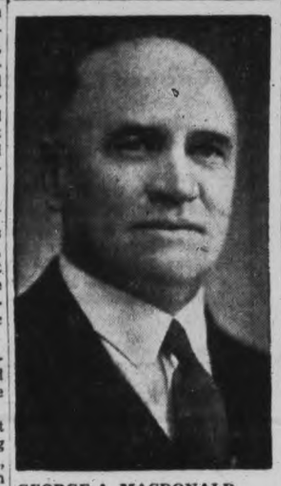
JAMES JUBY

A veteran of municipal affairs, James Juby, 319 Boswell Ave., will attempt to enter a new field this year as one of four candidates for the one opening on the utilities commission.

Mr. Juby said today that he feels he has the time now to devote to the work required.

"I also feel strongly that there should be a change in connection with all civic offices."

Mr. Juby, born near Stirling, came to Peterborough in 1904 and worked in the lumber business for 11 years. He then entered the grocery business which was his main occupation for 27 years, finally retiring in 1942.



Since then Mr. Juby has been partly retired, selling insurance among other occupations.

On City Council

For four years, 1936-40, Mr. Juby was on the city council, serving terms as chairman of the fire, light and water committee and chairman of the board of works.

Other positions held by Mr. Juby have included: director of the Chamber of Commerce for many years; a member of the Rotary club for 20 years and a former president; president of the Automobile club for two long terms; a director of the Ontario Motor League.

Mr. Juby is married to the former Florence Bestard and has three children, Robert, Gerald and Mrs. Marion McKee.

GEORGE A. MACDONALD

Geoorge A. Macdonald has been prominent in the public life of Peterborough since the years of his youth when he starred at outside wing on one of the city's best football teams. He has been tackling jobs ever since then.

He is plant superintendent of the DeLaval Company, was a member of the city council and served two years as Mayor, followed by elective transfer to the Utilities Commission.

Mr. Macdonald has pointed out in his appeal to the public for re-election to the Commission that in spite of all its program of new work, the only increase in rates to the consuming public was in the water service three years ago.

Good Staff

Mr. Macdonald says the Commission is happy in its efficient and faithful staff, Ross L. Dobbin and his assistant engineer Howard Powell; Harry Beatty of the electrical department, and so on down the line.

The Commission has been enlarging its physical plant from the new pumps to the farthest water main, all necessary expenditure, but with only slight change in the rates to the public.

Seeking election as utilities commissioner, Charles K. Hurst, resident engineer for the Trent Canal, says he believes that the present members of the commission are not considering public relations enough.

He feels his engineering experience qualifies him as good material for a member of the commission.

Born in Calgary, Mr. Hurst graduated in civil engineering from the University of Alberta, later taking a master's degree in hydraulics and sanitation at the State University of Iowa.

After two years work on the waterworks system of the city of Edmonton, Mr. Hurst went to Ottawa with the Department of Transport (canal services) and worked on the development of water resources.

Torpedo Officer

During the war he served as staff torpedo officer to the senior officer of the North Atlantic escort command. He held the rank of lieutenant-commander. On discharge, he returned to Ottawa, where he was assigned to the job of hydraulic studies and structural design on the St. Lawrence seaway.

In 1948, he came to Peterborough. Since he came here, he has been named president of the local United Nations Association, a director of the film council, and of Kiwanis. He is a member of the United Services Institute, and of Trinity United church.

Pope Reaffirms Statement On Childbirth

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 29 (AP) —A statement by the Pope made public Wednesday says the life of a mother and that of her unborn child are equally precious in the view of the Roman Catholic Church.

The child may not be directly killed to save the life of the mother nor the mother to save that of the child, the Pope said.

But a future mother urgently requiring aid may undergo an operation or other medical treatment which, as an indirect consequence, might cause the death of her unborn child, he said.

The Pontiff emphasized that, in a speech he made to Italian obstetricians Oct. 29, he declared the "direct killing" of an unborn baby to save the mother's life is not permissible.

Vatican prelates astonished by the outburst against the Pope's earlier speech, claimed that he was wrongly reported as saying that any attempt—direct or indirect—on the life of an unborn child was prohibited.

Today he said that in his ruling he had purposely used the expression "direct (italics) attempt on the life of an innocent person," or "direct (italics) killing."

The 2,000-word speech, also reaffirming his previous remarks on birth control, was made Saturday to the National Congress of the Italian National Family Front and published for the first time today.

The Pope said:

"Never, and in no case, has the church taught that the life of the child must be preferred to that of the mother.

"It is erroneous to put the question with this alternative: Either the life of the child or that of the mother.

"No, neither the life of the mother nor that of the child can be subjected to an act of direct suppression.

"In the one case as in the other, there can be but one obligation—to make every effort to save the lives of both, of the mother and of the child."

Athabaskan Gets Special Praise

OTTAWA, Nov. 29—(CP)—The Canadian destroyer Athabaskan, serving off the west coast of Korea, has earned a "well done" from Vice-Admiral Martin, USN commander of United Nations naval forces in the Far East.

Naval Headquarters said today the praise resulted from an inshore blockade and bombardment assignment the Athabaskan carried out earlier this month.

Under Cmdr. D. G. King of Victoria, BC, the Athabaskan acted as a decoy and fired on remote targets; delivered arms to a friendly island; stood by a Communist-threatened island for six days, and took aboard 47 wounded South Koreans for removal to Inchon for medical attention.

The ship's medical officer, Surgeon Lieutenant C. A. West of Toronto, and his mediacl assistant, Petty Officer M. B. Lavoie of Victoria, had to prepare facilities for the injured Koreans during the 18-hour trip south. Seamen evacuated mos t of their messdecks to make room.

The assignment over, the Athabaskan is again back at its regular job of screening United Nations aircraft carriers.

One Bottle Short, Driver Fined On Liquor Count

After pleading not guilty to having liquor in a place other than his residence, Bernard McCaskie, 117 Aylmer St., was convicted on the evidence in police court Tuesday afternoon.

He was fined $15 and $2.50 costs on the charge or one month in county jail in default.

The charge was laid against McCaskie by OPP constable Bert Howden of Apsley the night of October 27.

Constable Howden said he was on general patrol on an Anstruther township road when he saw a late model car a short distance ahead parked in the road. As he approached, constable Howden said it drove off in a hurry.

Overtook Car

He said he overtook the car and after stopping it found McCaskie and three other men in the car. He said McCaskie's brother tried to hide an open bottle of beer behind the driver's seat.

McCaskie and another man in the back, dropped some bottles of beer on the car floor, constable Howden said. There was in addition to a sealed case of beer in the trunk of the car, a broken case which constable Howden said had been inverted so that it appeared to be unopened. He said McCaskie identified the beer as his.

McCaskie claimed he did not know his brother had the open bottle of beer in the front seat and that the case had broken open at the warehouse in Peterborough where it was purchased. McCaskie said the bottles started rattling on the way to Apsley and he put them in the back of the car to keep them from breaking.

In finding McCaskie guilty, Magistrate W. R. Philp said that counting the bottles constable Howden found on the floor, and the one that McCaskie's brother had, there appeared to be still one bottle short.

ART AT THE SUPERMART — Shoppers at this Detroit, Mich., supermarket will get a large order of art with their groceries, in the 99-foot-long, six-foot-high mural being painted by artists George Teichner and Janice Craig. Left Companion For Dead, Man Fined $25 For Not Staying At Accident Scene

A 25-year-old hospital orderly who left an injured companion for dead after an accident was convicted of leaving the scene of an accident and fined $25 and $9.25 costs in police court Wednesday.

The charge was laid against Alvin Johnson, of 265 Hunter St., west, on October 31, after he had left Roy Bryan, 31, of 253 Dalhousie St., lying injured and bleeding at the scene of an accident at Lake and George streets.

Johnson was also charged with driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol and has been on bail of $1,000 since November 8.

Fractured Skull

Both charges were laid as a result of the accident in which Bryan received a fractured skull, concussion and lacerations. The second charge of driving while impaired was dismissed on Wednesday.

Johnson and Bryan admitted they had been drinking just before the accident. Bryan was in hospital for three weeks recovering from his injuries and was not able to state definitely whether he or Johnson was driving the car at the time of the accident.

Johnson testified that Bryan was driving the car south on George St. and as Bryan was turning the car east on Lake St., Johnson said the door came open.

"I went out, he made a grab for me. Just at that, the car hit a pole. Bryan must have come in contact between the pole and the car. The car came to rest about 20 feet past the post. I saw him (Bryan) beside a tree lying on his back. I felt his pulse, couldn't find any and thought he was dead (Johnson claimed he is accustomed to taking the pulse of hospital patients). I then walked over to the car and drove home," Johnson said.

Mr. Bradshaw also asked that the charge be ammended to read did have "the care and control" instead of " did drive" while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

Shortly after reaching his home, Johnson telephoned police and admitted under cross examination by Mr. Bradshaw that he used the words: "I have just killed a man," during the conversation with the police at the station.

Under Influence

Acting patrol sergeant Harold Mesley interviewed Johnson at his home about 10 minutes to 12, the night of the accident. "He told me he had been drinking in a local hotel and he was under the influence of alcohol although he wasn't actually drunk," at that time, A.P.S. Mesley said.

Defence counsel Gordon H. T. Farquharson did not have Johnson take the stand on the impaired charge. Mr. Farquharson argued for a dismissal on the grounds that "there is no evidence that accused was driving at the time of the accident. There is nothing to indicate the accused was under the influence while he was driving. Any evidence concerning the conditions of the accused 50 minutes after the accident is not pertinent. He is not now charged with driving but having care and control of a motor vehicle while his ability was impaired. There is nothing to indicate how much beer the accused consumed," Mr. Farquharson said.

Mr. Bradshaw submitted that if "a person has reached the point where he would leave his companion at the side of the road, I submit the inference can be drawn that his ability was impaired."

In dismissing the charge, Magistrate Philp said that regardless of whether a person may have consumed liquor, if that person "drives several blocks and commits no negligent act in driving does he fall in that section? I would say not. His inability to drive properly must be shown.

Phoned Police

On the charge of leaving the scene of the accident, Mr. Farquharson agreed to let the crown's evidence on the impaired charge apply. He argued in defence that Johnson had not rendered any assistance because after feeling the man's pulse he believed him to be dead and then went home and phoned the police. "He wouldn't be considered guilty if her went to the police station to report it and his home was closer than the police station," declared Mr. Farquharson. Johnson testified that he had bought the car the previous Friday, had not had the ownership transferred and before the accident had made a deal with Bryan to trade cars. Mr. Farquharson claimed that Bryan was only a passenger at the time, of the accident.

Magistrate Philp said he could not agree to the proposition of Johnson not being the owner but disregarding the "callousness of the action," here is a man who declares in evidence he left a man believed dead, lying on the street, then goes all the way home to call the police.

"The act states that a person indirectly or directly involved in an accident shall remain at or return to the scene and render all possible assistance."

To Stand Trial At Assizes

CORNWALL, Nov. 29—(CP)—Elias Meek, 21, a farmhand from nearby Harrison's Corners, will be tried at the Supreme Court assizes here next March for the murder of his employer's wife.

Meek was formally committed for trial Tuesday by Magistrate C. P. Bergeron at a preliminary hearing into the knife-and-hammer slaying of the woman, Mrs. Alice May Alguire, the 29-year-old wife of Meek's employer.

Eighteen crown witnesses testified Tuesday on details surrounding the slaying of the woman, mother of four children.

Before committing Meek for trial, the magistrate ruled admissible a statement the accused made to police following his arrest. Contents of the statement were not made public at the request of defence counsel.

Thinks Pensions Not For Rich

OTTAWA, Nov. 29*— (CP) — Senator Donald MacLennan (L., Nova Scotia) Wednesday commended the government's legislation granting $40 a month pensions to all over 70 but questioned the need or desirability of making it available to the rich as well as the needy.

Because it had received such wide, non-partisan support "it must be a step in the right direction," he said, but he regretted so many of the pioneers who had built Canada had passed on before gaining such rewards.

"We can only hope they will receive their rewards at the throne of grace," he said.

Senator MacLennan was speaking in the resumed debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

Speaking of the attitude of some colleagues toward the proposed Strait of Canso bridge, Senator MacLennan said there was a vast difference between a project such as the St. Lawrence Seaway which bring benefits to a great many sections of Canada, and the Canso bridge which would also benefit an important segment of the population and harm no one.

Stress Older Veterans Have Problems Too

TORONTO, Nov. 29 — (CP) — The increasing number of older veterans in veterans affairs department institutions has focussed attention on rehabilitation problems of this group, Central Council of the Red Cross was told Wednesday.

D. W. Lang, chairman of the society's national arts and crafts committee, said in a speech prepared for delivery that the society has extended its program of diversional therapy, now operating in more than 29 DVA hospitals, to include a group of 60 older veterans in an Ontario lodge.

Red Cross lodges and canteens, operated in conjunction with DVA hospitals, perform a unique service for the veteran in hospital, Mr. Lang said. At one lodge 128,-523 persons were served in the canteen during the first six months of 1951 and 862 next-of-kin guests were registered for overnight accommodation.

New System For Calls Out Of Town

Bell Introduces Direct Dialing In Long Distance

A new direct dialing network for out-of-town calls has been installed at the Peterborough branch of the Bell Telephone Co.

E. G. Baker, manager of the Peterborough branch announced today that direct-dialing circuits were put in service recently on the heavily used routes between here and Lindsay and Port Hope. The manager also said that similar circuits will be in operation between here and Toronto within the next few days.

Oshawa and Ottawa will be added as soon as the necessary facilities can be installed.

Under this new system, for a call to Lindsay a Peterborough operator plugs into a direct circuit and dials the Lindsay telephone number.

Continent Wide

The new system is part of a continent-wide plan which eventually will enable operators to dial directly to telephones all over Canada and United States, without the assistance of operators at the distant centres or at intermediate points.

A large number of regional direct-dialing networks similar to those linking Peterborough with other centres are either in the operational or formative stages. These will be gradually expanded and interconnected, ultimately becoming part of the continent-wide system.

Figures in Peterborough show that residents place about 2,300 outgoing long distance calls a day, compared with a daily average of about 1,200 in 1945.

Exhibition Dates Clash If Shifted

Unless Peterborough is willing to ignore the established dates of the fall fairs at Beaverton and Sunderland, the proposed change in the local Exhibition from August to September will have to be cancelled for the present.

M. H. Johnston, G. A. Gillespie and Dave Fleming attended the district fairs meetings at Port Perry Wednesday. They were instructed by their directors this week to ask for a transfer of date, to follow immediately on the close of Toronto CNE.

Two Other Fairs

It was learned today that the two district towns to the west do not wish to make any calendar alteration, and that understandable attitude halts the Peterborough idea for the present unless the directors would think of overriding the two smaller fairs.

The report the local delegation will bring back to the Exhibition directors is simply that the proposed change could not be arranged within the district meeting.

THE HUNTING'S GOOD, especially for Mrs. Nina McCluskey and her husband, George, Hall's Landing, Rice Lake. This year the couple, who depend upon trapping and hunting for part of their yearly income, tried their hand at raccoon hunting. The result was 11 pelts. Drowning Of Youth, Child Accidental Inquest Finds CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 29. (ENS)—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death in the drowning of a youth and three-year-old girl when they were trapped in a car which plunged into a pond the night of October 26 on the property of Building Products Limited about three miles northeast of Havelock. James Cook, 18, of Cordova and Thelma Ruth Edwards, 3, also of Cordova, were drowned in the man-made pond when they were unable to get out of the submerged car.

Mother Escaped

Two other occupants of the vehicle, Mrs. John Edwards, mother of the dead child, and 16-year-old Carl Cole escaped from the vehicle as it plunged downward. Both testified at Wednesday's hearing.

Dr. W. M. Judd of Havelock said death was due to drowning in both cases. The car, he said, was barely visible in the water. Part of one wheel was protruding above the surface, and it appeared to be lying on its left side. The headlights were still on. Nothing had been done to remove the car or to recover the bodies in it, he said, so he called for assistance to do this.

Dr. Judd said that from the appearance of the car and the position of the bodies in it, Cook may have died trying to reach into the back seat to rescue three-year-old Thelma Edwards.

Dr. Judd also stated that a light, shown in one of the photographs on exhibit, attached to the side of the building housing the pumping equipment at the edge of the water, was out when he arrived, but that it was turned on later.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine of Campbellford said he found an empty 12-bottle carton which had contained beer as well as an empty pint beer bottle in the back of the car after it was removed from the water.

He had tested the car the following morning and found the brakes and steering of the car to be in apparent good order. He said there were no signs on the road leading to the pond that would warn motorists of the danger, and that the road was a private one on the property of the Building Products Limited.

Chief Constable Wesley Hall of Havelock described the scene when he arrived.

Jack Fitzpatrick, an employee of the Building Products Limited, fifth witness to testify, said he first knew of the accident when a woman, later identified as Mrs. Edwards, ran up to him shouting that her baby was in the water. He and a fellow-employee accompanied the woman in one of the company's trucks to the scene but did nothing as far as a rescue attempt was concerned.

Used Occasionally

He said Mrs. Edwards appeared very upset and very wet. He said that this road is a blind road used only by company trucks occasionally.

Another road leads through the property and is considered a shortcut to Cordova, as it joins the county road to that communing a short distance away. It may have been this road that Cook thought he was on on the fatal night.

When asked by Coroner Dr. Herbert Young of Peterborough if he thought a barrier should be placed at this spot, Fitzpatrick said it might be a good idea.

At Dance

Edith Althouse of Havelock, who was taking tickets at the door of the dance hall young Cook entered a few minutes before he drove to his death, said that Cook smelled of alcohol and that he staggered. He went by her at the door and returned a few minutes later to ask why she was taking the money.

Cook then offered Mrs. Althouse his cigarette lighter as security for the admission price to the dance explaining that he had only six cents in his pockets at the time. Mrs. Althouse refused the lighter and Cook went out, accompanied by Carl Cole whom he met in the hall.

Cole testified to knowing Cook ever since he could remember. Cook was his cousin. He said he saw Cook first that day about 5:30 pm on October 26 in Marmora at which time Cook was "feeling pretty good". At 6:30 he again saw Cook in Havelock with a woman and a baby. He later identified the woman as being Mrs. Edwards.

On Way Home

He said after leaving the dance hall with Cook, the party of four had proceeded to drive to Cordova to take Mrs. Edwards and her daughter home. Cook had been drinking but his driving was normal. "I sat in the front seat with Cook driving and Mrs. Edwards between us" he said.

Cole said he had had nothing to drink and that there had been no drinking in the car. He also said that this particular stretch of road was unfamiliar to him and he saw no sign of danger in

Husband, Wife Hunting Team Bag 11 Raccoons

Few women kill raccoons, fox, muskrats or any other animal, but Mrs. George McCluskey, Hall's Landing on Rice Lake, thinks nothing of it. In fact, trapping and hunting provide part of the yearly income for her family.

For the past five years, she and her husband, who is partly disabled due to an accident some years ago, have been working hand in hand in the fall, winter and spring seasons trapping and hunting various animals for pelts.

Her first experience with the outdoor life was in her early years on Manitoulin island where she was born. There "we trapped a bit when we were kids, usually only rabbits."

The high cost of living necessitated a change from city to country life for the family five years ago and then the couple started into the fur business.

Get Better

After a lapse of some years from trapping, the first year's results included a couple of mink, red squirrels and muskrats in the spring. Since then the results have become better and better each year as their experience increases.

Today Mrs. McCluskey came to Peterborough with 11 raccoon pelts, the first results of raccoon hunting with her husband.

Mr. McCluskey bought the 'coon licence on November 1 and in three nights they bagged the 11 raccoons. On the first night out, they scored seven raccoons and then followed up with two each on the other nights.

"Where we are, that's pretty good luck," said Mrs. McCluskey.

She explained that the raccoons don't travel unless the weather is warm, and if it's cold, the coons den up."

According to Mrs. McCluskey, except for the long hikes, sometimes as much as three miles, raccoon hunting is quite simple.

Use Light

Armed with a powerful light and dogs, they started out. The dogs picked up the scent, began barking and brought Mrs. McCluskey and her husband to the tree. There the raccoons were shot.

"It's easy as long as the dogs are good scenting them," she said.

Finding a good market for the pelts was more difficult. After inquiring at several furriers, each refusing to buy at any price, Mrs. McCluskey found a buyer at $1 a pelt. Incidentally raccoon coats, made of backs, sell for $400.

Hunting this year for the McCluskeys has produced two foxes and several jack rabbits. But fox furs, too, are practically worthless on the market.

"The main thing from fox hunting is the bounty," said Mrs. McCluskey. "It makes fox hunting worthwhile."

Prepares Hides

Not only does Mrs. McCluskey take part in the trapping and hunting, she does the skinning, scraping and drying. The coon skins, laid on stretchers, were dried for three days, turned and dried for another three days, before ready for sale. The same procedure is followed with fox pelts.

Their summer is spent with the tourists, cooking, baking and operating a booth.

The McCluskeys often break the monotony of summer work by turning to the outdoors for entertainment. They both like fishing. Their catch in the past two years has always included several muskies, one weighing 20 pounds.

Open Air Rinks Waiting For Cold Spell To Provide Skating For City Youngsters

A cold spell may mean skating on the city's open air rinks this weekend.

However, Parks Superintendent Amar Butcher is doubtful whether the required cold snap will come along in time for Saturday. But it is the weather that will determine when skating on the rinks will begin, he said.

The boards are up at five of the rinks: Turner, King Edward, Riverside, Inverlea, and Stewart and McDonnel. Three of these have already received their first flooding.

There will also be rinks at McKellar playground and Hamilton park this year. These two rinks will not have boards.

Otonabee Hears Candidates At Lang Meeting

Otonabee ratepayers heard their assessment problems aired for the second time in a week Wednesday night at the town hall in Lang.

Norman McConkey, candidate for reeve, said he believed the principle of having a county assessment was sound business.

"I would like to see the townships freed from the obligation of hiring their own assessors," he said, suggesting that the county hire three or four to cover all the municipalities.

Mr. McConkey also suggested a balance sheet be sent out with tax bills, showing how tax monies were allocated.

Council candidate P. J. Mather said that if taxpayers' incomes were taken into consideration when their rate of assessment was set, "we could in that way have a more equalized assessment."

Fire Protection

Richard R. Stewart, seeking reelection as reeve, touched on the need of fire protection in the township.

He told ratepayers that the present township assessment was not enough to finance fire-fighting equipment. But he agreed with a member of the audience who suggested that the spraying equipment in Keene could be used.

P. J. Mather decried the lack of fire protection and said ratepayers might wait until they have a few bad fires before petitioning council to do something about it.

Gravelling Roads

Answering a question about improvement of roads in the township, Reeve Stewart said the council planned to gravel 35 miles of road each year and so cover all township roads every three years.

Charles Edwards asked the support of the ratepayers.

Bruce Speirs, of Lang, an 80-year-old voter, said that if they left the road through Lang alone for two years more, no hard surface would be needed on it; the road would be worn down to bedrock.

At the close of the meeting, chairman Gordon Bailey expressed regret that the other three candidates, William Chambers, Gavin Shearer and Roy Speirs, could not attend.

Life In Northland Shown On Color Film

A capacity audience was taken on a tour by film through northern Canada in the second of a series of Audubon Screen Tours sponsored by the Peterborough Nature Club at the Queen Mary auditorium Wednesday night.

Speaker was Bert Harwell, of Berkley, Calif., who has lectured in Peterborough before.

An extensive traveller in Canada, Mr. Harwell showed a picture journey from Fort Churchill on Hudson's Bay down the Mackenzie river to Norman Wells, Aklavik and Richards Island, the summer home of the caribou.

Fascinating color close-ups were shown of northland flowers, birds, animals, Indians, and Eskimos. Mr. Harwell entertained the audience before the lecture with excellent imitations of bird calls. To finish his lecture, the speaker played a couple of songs on the piano and whistled accompaniments.

Hamilton Brigadier Urges Meyer Release

HAMILTON, Nov. 29 (CP) — Brig. W. Denis Whitaker, DSO and bar, one of Hamilton's outstanding soldiers of the Second World War, said Wednesday he believes Kurt Meyer should be released from prison.

Meyer was sentenced to life imprisonment after conviction of responsibility for the death in Normandy of 18 Canadian prisoners of war. He recently was moved from Dorchester, NB, penitentiary to Germany.

"I feel that Meyer was a good soldier who was fighting for his country," said Brig. Whitaker. "I fail to see how a man in his position could be responsible for the individual actions of every man of the 10,000 in his division."

The brigadier said he had never been satisfied that Meyer had been guilty of inciting any of his men to kill Canadian prisoners. He said he believes that in the heat of battle any soldier might shoot down another in cold blood.

Union Certified At Silverwood's

Local 251, Peterborough General Workers Union (CCL) have been certified by the Ontario Labor Relations Board as the bargaining agent for the employees of Silverwood Dairies Ltd.

Local 251 supplants the Silverwood Employees' Association at the Peterborough plant.

Two weeks ago a vote was held at the plant and the employees chose Local 251 by more than two to one. The association's contract expired at the end of October, and a vote was ordered by the OLRB after an application was made by Local 251.

Office staff and other salaried workers are not included in the bargaining unit.

John Hedges is president of the union.

Gov't To Sell Ex Fur Farm

Kirkfield Fur Farm, 80 acres, east of Kirkfield on Balsam Lake is to be sold. It was originally set up by the Ontario Games and Fisheries Department, now Department of Lands and Forests, in 1925.

The establishment consisted of an office, laboratory building, animal pens and two residences and until 1934 it was manned and used extensively in the study of wild animal diseases. A variety of fur-bearing animals were raised there for study.

It was decided by the Department in 1934 that the farm was not able to serve its purpose due to pressure of study requirements. Personnel and their work were transfered to the experimental station at Maple and to Guelph where a working agreement was made with the Ontario Agricultural College. The land was rented to Charles Brotherson who operate it as a fur ranch until four years ago.

The property is now being offered for sale by tender by the Department of Public Works for the Province.

Man Knocked Down Crossing Intersection

Slightly injured when struck by a car at Hunter and Water streets at 11:30 Wednesday night, James Ayotte 178 Douro St., was taken to Dr. Herbert N. Young for treatment.

Constable Arthur Beardsmore reported Ayotte had bruises and scrapes and complained of his right side hurting.

Ayotte was struck in the centre of the south crosswalk on Hunter St., as he was walking across Hunter St., by James W. White, 755 Jane St.

White is reported to have been driving west on Hunter St., and just as he was turning south on Water St., on a green light, he said he was blinded by headlights from oncoming traffic and did not see Ayotte who was crossing the street.

Aged Man Discovered Shot Second Weekend Tragedy In Family Of Minden Couple

Husband's Brother Found Dead In Hotel; Stop At Lindsay to Pick Up Wife's Father, Find Body In Home

LITTLE BRITAIN, Nov. 29. (CP)—Double tragedy has struck the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kirkwood of Minden, 35 miles north of Lindsay. Wednesday they were in Toronto arranging a funeral for Mr. Kirkwood's brother who was found dead in a Toronto hotel during the weekend. On the way home they stopped here to pick up Mr. Kirkwood's father-in-law, Charles W. Shafe. They found the 78-year-old man dead in the house where he lived alone. He had died of a gun wound.

Returned Friday

Mr. Shafe was undergoing treatment for eye trouble. He had spent five or six weeks with his daughter in Minden before they took him back to his home on Little Britain's main street Friday.

On their way back from Toronto, the Kirkwoods stopped at Little Britain as arranged to pick up Mr. Shafe and take him back with them again to Minden.

The house was locked and many of the neighbors did not know he had returned home. He had last been seen in the village Saturday.

Mr. Kirkwood forced his way into the locked house and found Mr. Shafe in an upstairs room. Cpl. Kenneth Dennis of the Lindsay OPP investigated.

Work Begins On Minden Arena

Carpenters began to rebuild the Minden Community Centre today, and at the same time a group of Peterborough businessmen are preparing an appeal to Peterborough citizens to help the Haliburton town.

The first snowfall buried the town in financial difficulties when part of the community centre roof collapsed. The cost of repairing the building will be about $25,000 besides the mortgage of $15,000.

A large Peterborough company has offered posters and a commercial photographer pictures of the $2,000 mink coat which will be raffled to raise funds for the centre.

Donations Start

Besides this help, donations, the largest so far $25.00, have been promised by citizens, factories, and stores.

A direct appeal from Minden will be made Friday night at the Petes-Eagles hockey game at the Civic Arena. Kenneth Currie, former president of the Peterborough Rotary Club, and now leading the Minden drive for funds, with members of the Minden Monarchs, who led their grouping last year in the OHA Intermediate B, will be present to promote the project.

Modelling the fur coat will be professional figure skater, Diane Hamley of Oshawa.

Canada Needs God-Fearing Parents-Barr

A three-point theme has been the basis of addresses given by the Rev. Robert Barr of Toronto at a four-day teaching mission in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The first address was given Tuesday night.

Points of the theme are: The sinlessness of Christ, the sinfulness of man, and the saviorhood of Christ. Mr. Barr used as a general theme the death of Jesus as an explanation of God and human nature.

He dealt with the question of the need of the human heart for forgiveness, and told how that need could be met by Christ.

"The basic trouble in the world boils down to the individual man and woman," he declared. "We must eradicate the ancient passions."

Mr. Barr told his audiences at the first three addresses—Tuesday night, Wednesday afternoon and night—that there was a need for the influence of God-fearing parents on children, and for women of quiet, undramatic faith.

Two addresses will be given today (afternoon and night), and the teaching mission will conclude Friday evening.

3 Soldiers Home From Korea

Three men from the Peterborough district, who have spent the past year fighting in Korea, will be spending Christmas at home with their families.

Cpl. R. McCartney, RR 3, Peterborough, Cpl. A. Meecham, 24 Pottinger Street, Lindsay, and Lce.-Cpl. W. C. H. Sawyer, Havelock, are expected to dock at Seattle Friday. From there they will go to Vancouver and then to Calgary before coming home for 30 days' special leave.

All three men are in the second draft of 165 officers and men of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricias to return to Canada under the army rotation plan, after 12 months' service in the war theatre.

The 2nd Battalion is being replaced by the 1st Battalion of the PPCLI. An earlier draft brought 202 members of the battalion home on November 13.

Say Cotterill Relieved Of CCL Position

TORONTO, Nov. 29—(CP)—A Toronto paper says today that Murray Cotterill has been relieved of his position as national political action director of the Canadian Congress of Labor, an office he has held since 1948. It says it has learned his resignation was accepted by the CCL executive council at a meeting October 29.

(Questioned directly, Mr. Cotterill, on loan to the CCL from the United Steelworkers of America (CCL-CIO) in which he is political action director and public relations director, said that each year, as a matter of course, he submits his resignation to the incoming CCL executive after the CCL convention. He said he has received no communication indicating that the exeecutive council has dealt with his latest offer of resignation.)

The paper's newspage story says:

"The decision (by the executive council) predates the (Nov .22) Ontario election by at least three weeks but was kept secret because of the provincial campaign. An announcement that Mr. Cotterill had resigned was planned for next week from Ottawa."

In Ottawa, a CCL official said the "story is substantially correct" but did not enlarge on this statement. He added that a CCL statement on the question "will be issued—probably soon."

IT'S THE TOP

Sitting behind the ripped-out windshield, the driver was only slightly hurt, when the box of a truck ahead broke free and crashed into the bus. Inset is Georges L. New Yorkers Empty Streets Quickly In Raid Tests

NEW YORK, Nov. 29 (AP).—For 10 minutes Wednesday, New York's 8,000,000 people cringed in grim, eerie silence beneath imaginary atom bombs.

It was the first allout air-raid practice since the Second World War.

And there won't be another practice alert. The next—if it comes—will be the real thing.

"A success," Mayor Vincent R. Impelliteri labelled the test.

Said civil defence director Arthur W. Wallander:

"I feel it would go just as well if an actual raid occurred."

He called it New York City's pattern for survival. The teeming city became a monument to fear within instants after the sirens wailed out their warning at 10:33 am EST.

The pulsing roar of New York faded abruptly then snapped off as though some giant switch had been pulled.

Pigeons wheeled nervously over deserted streets, the flap of their wings clearly audible in the silence.

In the busiest streets in all the world the droning hubbub, the jarring toot of horns, the mad forward surge of crowds ceased.

Almost Unbelievable

Silence was so complete that the click-click of traffic lights could be heard as they changed from red to green and back again.

Five thousand persons were swept off Times Square as though by an unseen hand. Not a thing moved as the barker's din of Broadway subsided.

From tier to tier of the Empire State Building's 102-storey grandeur, Venetian blinds snapped shut with military precision in thousands of windows. Then the office workers headed for shelter.

A funeral mass was interrupted in St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue.

But in the offices of news agencies in the centre, such as those of The Associated Press and The Canadian Press, teletypes operated and deskmen remained at work almost oblivious to the alert.

Gets A Job

HAMILTON, Nov. 29—(CP)—Robert Patterson, who Tuesday night put up his family at the police station because he was out of work and had no place to stay, today has a job and dozens of offers of shelter and other aid. Police bought the family's breakfast and told Mr. Patterson of a job open in a warehouse. He hustled out and got the job.

Kennedy Denies Bd. Review

TORONTO, Nov. 29 (CP). — Agriculture Minister Kennedy Wednesday denied a report by Mayor Edward Sargent of Owen Sound that the Ontario government was willing to review operations of the Milk Board and recently-ordered increases in consumer prices.

Mayor Sargent, president of the Ontario Mayors' and Reeves' Association, was reported as saying he was given the information in a telephone conversation with Mr. Kennedy earlier Wednesday.

Mr. Kennedy said he had been talking to Mayor Sargent by telephone on the matter of complaints over increased milk prices. He said the Mayor suggested "some review" take place.

Mr. Kennedy said similar suggestions had come from Toronto and Hamilton.

"I made no suggestion that it was the intention of myself or my department to hold an immediate review into the board's administration," Mr. Kennedy said.

"All I said was that when the mayors of such large municipalities made a suggestion, we had to take notice."

Mayor Sargent reported 20 to 25 mayors in the province had wired him supporting the idea of an inquiry into the operations of the Milk Board and the whole situation."

Brigade About Complete

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Movement of the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group to Europe will be almost completed with the sailing next Monday from Quebec City of 650 officers and men of the 1st Canadian Highland Battalion, the army announced Wednesday. The Highland Battalion, minus two companies which will sail later, will board SS Canberra under command of Lt.-Col. R. L. Rutherford, 35, formerly of Vancouver and Kingston.

ATTENTION CGE WORKERS and PETERBOROUGH

A leaflet was distributed to all C.G.E. workers on Tuesday, Nov. 27, 1951; the leaflet announced a membership meeting would be held Thursday, Nov. 29, 1951. It also announced that Fitzgerald, the President of UE, would be the principal speaker.

This man is one of the three general officers of UE. His record is known to all union members in the U.S.A. We do not know what sort of propaganda and statements he will make Thurs., Nov. 29, and in order that the G.E. employees do not become confused by his statement, we in the IUE-CIO challenge "Fitzie" to a debate on union policies.

IUE-CIO proudly presents as its speaker:

JOHN H. CALLAHAN

MR. CALLAHAN is willing to debate any issue with the outcast US Club.

McGregor Says Resale Price Dangerous Thing

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Fred A. McGregor Wednesday described resale price maintenance as a "negation of freedom" that will kill the kind of enterprise "so much needed by the Canadian public."

The 63-year-old former Combines commissioner, who resigned after clashing with the government on a delay in tabling a Combines report on the flour-milling industry, supported a government proposal to make resale price maintenance practices illegal.

Appearing as a witness before parliament's special committee on retail price-fixing, Mr. McGregor, now in charge of writing the Mackenzie King Memoirs for the Rockefeller Foundation, maintained:

1. Extension of the price maintenance 'practice' has become "alarming" in recent years. If the vital element of price competition is removed, Canada will not have a free economy, but a price-controlled economy—"with prices controlled by manufacturers."

2. The "avowed object" of the practice is the "maintenance of retail prices and the prevention of retail price reduction."

3. The practice whereby a manufacturer or supplier determines the price at which his goods will be offered to the public keeps prices "higher than they would otherwise be—right across the board."

Serious Thing

4. It was "serious enough" that prices could not be reduced in many industries without the manufacturers' agreement, but the "limit surely has been reached" when retailers were prevented from making any reduction in the price of bread.

Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw) suggested to Mr. McGregor that if resale price maintenance tends to increase the outlets, would not the converse be true if the practice was eliminated—small businesses would be forced out by big department stores.

Mr. McGregor agreed that there might be some curtailment of outlets, but he also believed that the community would continue to patronize those establishments if wants continued.

685,000 Expected To Apply For Pension

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Health Minister Martin said Tuesday in the Commons he expects that by Dec. 31 a total of 685,000 people will have applied for the federal pension of $40 a month, starting next January.

The number of applicants would not be very far from the 700,000 originally estimated as the total of persons 70 and over who qualified for the pension.

George McIlraith, parliamentary assistant to Trade Minister Howe, said it now is possible for applicants to ask that census records be used as proof of their age.

Find Murdered Child

DETROIT, Nov. 29—(CP)—A golden-haired boy whose body was found floating in a canal at the north end of Grosse Isle in the Detroit River is believed by police to have been murdered. Police said Wednesday night that a murder and suicide might be involved.

Life Insurance Firms Pay Record Amounts

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadain Press Business Editor

Life insurance companies in Canada paid out a record $180,000,000 in the first nine months of this year, compared with $173,000,000 in the same period last year.

Of this sum, nearly two-thirds was paid to living policy-holders and the remainder to beneficiaries.

At present, Canadians own more than $15,000,000,000 of life insurance.

The figures are from the 50-odd Canadian, British and United States Life Insurance Officers' Association.

Dollar Hope

A mixture of hope and discouragement concerning the European dollar shortage was expressed Wednesday by I. K. Johnston, president of the Imperial Bank of Canada. Addressing the bank's annual meeting, he said:

"While the dollar situation has deteriorated recently, one should not draw conclusions about the future too hastily.

"The fact remains that production in Western Europe continues to rise. The Iranian situation may yet be settled so that oil flows to Britain once more. A tightening supply situation in the United States may cut dollar exports, and increasing US and Canadian defence spending on the European Continent will increase world dollar supplies.

"Nevertheless, Britain continues to suffer from the lack of overseas investment income, lost during the Second World War. Overseas holders of sterling balances still are able to use them only to purchase British goods. Such exports earn no dollars. Other goods which might have been exported have been attracted to the home market by a rising domestic demand.

"Whatever the long-run upshot of these various tendencies, there is little doubt that renewed dollar scarcity will seriously delay the removal of trade and exchange restrictions now imposed by non-dollar countries. It may thus retard the restoration of our export overseas."

4 Candidates For Utilities Outline Aims At Meeting

All four candidates for the single vacancy on the utilities commission Tuesday night addressed an open meeting of electors.

The meeting, held in the committee room of the city hall, drew a crowd of 120 men and women. It was sponsored by the Women's Study Group on Civic Affairs.

Charles K. Hurst, civil engineer, said he was interested in the utility commission's attitude toward public relations. The public are not getting a proper explanation of what is going on, he said, and this makes them "angry".

Mr. Hurst said there is often low voltage and residents are finding their hot water is lacking.

"There may be a legitimate reason," he said, "but the people haven't been told whether this is temporary or permanent or whether anything can be done about it."

Recent Survey

As an example, he said there was a recent survey made of water valves. People were not informed that their water supply was to be cut off. The "boast" was made that there was only one complaint and that was because a hot water tank collapsed.

Mr. Hurst advocated some long-range planning. Some of the wires and cables should be put underground.

He said that there was an aspect of civil defence. An atomic bomb isn't needed here. A well-placed detonator charge would knock out the Aylmer St. sub station and then "we've had it". There is also a single, vulnerable line coming into the Aylmer St. station from Lily Lake.

James Juby, retired, was born and raised in Peterborough. He told the electors he was 27 years in the grocery business and he served on the city council under former-mayor George A. Macdonald, now also contesting the utilities vacancy.

Mr. Juby said he has been a Rotarian for 25 years, an executive chairman of the chamber of commerce for nearly 10 years, and was also on the executive of the automobile club.

"I'm pretty well known to you all," he said.

Asked 6 Years Ago

He recalled that six years ago he was asked to run for a vacancy on the utilities commission but he declined in favor of Mr. Macdonald. Now, in good health and with plenty of spare time, he feels that he can do a good job for the electors.

Dr. G. R. Langley, retired electrical engineer, said the job of the utilities commission was to provide their services in adequate quantity, proper quality, and at minimum cost.

"Engineering problems inevitably arise," he said. And at present there is no electrical engineer on the commission.

Ross L. Dobbin is a civil engineer so the water supply problems are looked after, but, he suggested, the "electrical end is not in so favorable a position."

Dr. Langley retired this year after 45 years in the electrical and mechanical engineering profession. For 13 years he was chief engineer at the Peterborough works of the CGE.

Apart from his accompanying administrative experience, Dr. Langley, feels he can make a contribution to the long-term planning of the commission.

Excellent Job

He said that the present commission had done an "excellent job," and was not as much open to censure as some people had indicated.

"No other item on the household budget has gone up only 10 per cent in the last 10 years," said Dr. Langley.

George A. Macdonald, superintendent, said the average consumption of electric power has increased six times over that of 1926 without increase in cost to the consumer over the last 15 years.

Water rates went up 25 per cent because of the increased cost of labor and material.

Four substations have been built during the last four years, said Mr. Macdonald. In 1947 one was built at Romaine and Park Sts. to carry electrical load for industry and serve the new residential area south of Lansdowne. In 1949 another was built on Clifton St. to service Ashburnham. In 1950 a transformer substation was built at the Auburn dam. And in 1951 a unit substation was built on High St. to serve the west end.

Transformer Station

A transformer station was erected on High St., near Lansdowne, to serve growing industrial load.

New water mains have been installed from the pump house to the city, relieving low pressure in the north-west, and the mains across to Otonabee to Burnham Pt. also helps ease the pressure in Ashburnham.

Mr. Macdonald said there is a utilities workman on duty 24 hours a day to look after complaints. But some of the low voltage complained of could be the extra load from additional electrical gadgets in the house. There are now 6,131 flat rate water heaters in Peterborough homes and 11,937 domestic consumers of electricity. Low voltage might be caused by the transformer in the area being overloaded on account of extra local demands made upon it. This is something the utilities staff would not beware of unless advised by the people concerned.

OAC Team Wins 3rd Place Tie

CHICAGO, Nov. 29 (CP)—The meat judging team from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph Wednesday won third-place tie with the University of Missouri at the 52nd International Livestock Exposition.

Iowa State won the intercollegiate meat judging contest with 2,728 points with Oklahoma A. and M. close behind with 2,710.

The OAC and the Missouri teams both scored 2,678 points.

The OAC team, coached by E. C. Stilwell of the Animal Husbandry Department, was made up of Robert Smallfield, of Guelph; John Elliott, Petrolia, and Robert John Steckle, of Kitchener.

Contestants were required to judge nine classes of wholesale cuts and carcasses of beef, pork and lamb. They also graded 10 lamb carcasses and classified and graded 20 beef carcasses according to United States government grading specifications.

Stilwell said the competition was keen with 20 teams competing and he was pleased with the Ontario team's placing.

Approve Claims Arising From Collision

TORONTO, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Claims approved Wednesday brought to $64,750 the amount settled in claims arising from the collision between a Nickel Belt Coach Lines Limited bus and a Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train last February 9.

Nine miners died and 29 others were injured in the accident at a fog-shrouded level-crossing at Coniston, near Sudbury. Thirty-six claims remain to be settled and the total assessed may exceed $200,000.

Chief Justice James C. McRuer Wednesday approved two claims totalling $35,000 to the families of Herbert Vincent Conlon, 58, and David Louis Martin, 45, both nickel workers from Coniston who were killed in the accident.

Mrs. Lucy Conlon will receive $10,250 from the bus line and her two children will get a total of $3,750. Mrs. Dorothy Martin will receive $10,250 from the company and five of her children will share $10,750.

Last August, a settlement gave Mrs. Edna Landriault, of Sturgeon Falls, $7,000 and her children $12,000. Mrs. Maria Beauparlant was awarded $8,250 and her children $2,000.

Costain To Write History Of Canada

TORONTO, Nov. 29 — (CP) — Thomas B. Costain, Canadian-born author, Wednesday signed a contract with Doubleday and Company to write a history of Canada. The history will appear in three or more volumes to be released separately, with the first scheduled for publication in October, 1955.

Mr. Costain, born in Brantford, and formerly a newspaperman in Guelph, said at a contract-signing ceremony at Toronto's Arts and Letters Club that he feels Canada's historical past is more colorful than that of any other country and offers particularly fine material for a historian.

Moscow Orders Europe Reds Speed NATO Disintegration Plan

By LEON DENNEN

PARIS—(NEA) — Cominform orders which may give some clue to Moscow's latest strategy in the hot-cold war have been issued to all Red parties in the West, according to French Communist sources.

"The fate of the dying capitalist order has finally been sealed," the Kremlin's instructions to its fifth columns state. "The relation of forces on the international arena is becoming increasingly unfavorable for the imperialist (Western) camp."

Faithful Reds are therefore urged to speed the "disintegration" of the North Atlantic Treaty countries through political strikes, violence and increased acts of sabotage.

The orders were the main topic of discussion at a secret meeting of the Cominform in East Berlin Nov. 15. To encourage Western Reds, they listed four "major defeats" already "suffered by the international reactionaries":

1. The creation of the Chinese People's Republic and the "historic victory" of the Chinese people.

2. The stablishment of the pro-Soviet German "Democratic" Republic.

3. The "victory of Communism" in the countries behind the Iron Curtain.

4. The "national liberation upsurge" in Korea, Iran, Egypt, North Africa and other "colonial and dependent countries."

Moscow is obviously convinced that "the undermined position and growing weakness" of the West "add to the rage of the imperialists."

But the western democracies are not expected by the Soviet Politburo to "withdraw voluntarily from the historical arena." On the contrary, "the aggressiveness of the imperialist camp headed by the United States is being instensified."

Cripple Program

Western Communists have been ordered to exert every effort to cripple the armament program of the north Atlantic Treaty Organization. Above all, they must prevent at all costs the integration of West German troops into the European defense system.

A similar policy was recently outlined by Benoit Frachon, French Communist trade union leader, at a meeting of the pro-Soviet World Federation of Trade Unions held in East Berlin.

Addressing top WFTU leaders who met immediately after the Cominform session, Frachon called for the infiltration of Red agents into non-Communist labor groups in order to sabotage Western rearmament.

The way to do this in countries where the Communists are weak is to encourage political strikes for higher wages, Frachon indicated.

Since the disappearance of Maurice Thorez, Secretary of the French Communist Party who went for a "cure" to Russia last year, Benoit Frachon is considered the number one Soviet spokesman in Western Europe.

He is the undisputed leader of the CGT, strongest trade union federation in France, and is said to have more than 50,000 agents entrenched in the most strategic industries of the country.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is reported to regard France as the pivot around which the West European defense strategy — the whole concept of a European army, in fact is being planned.

Continued Communist control of labor as well as of strategic economic centres in France and in other parts of Western Europe thus represents a serious threat to the NATO's program.

The Cominform's latest orders to the Western Reds also throw new light on the tactics pursued in the United Nations by Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister.

With the "capitalist West" already "doomed," to their way of thinking, Soviet strategy is to use all means to push it along the path of destruction and await patiently the final crash.

BENOIT FRACHON: 50,000 agents in major French industries.

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER, commander of the Atlantic Pact forces, stands with hands behind his back as he addressed the Council of Foreign Ministers, North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Rome yesterday. He complained of a serious lag in the output of equipment and said everyone—including the United States could do more. Seated at left is W. Averell Harriman, Director of Mutual Security Agency. Next to him, hand to chin, is Lieut. Col. Charles M. Spofford, chairman of Atlantic Pact Council. In foreground, backs to camera, are Secretary of Defence Robert Lovett (left), and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Town Attends Funerals

MATHESON, Ont., Nov. 29 — (CP)—Nearly every resident of this small Northern Ontario asbestos centre turned out Wednesday for the separate funeral services of Viola Durham, 18, and Robert Ford, 17, who died Sunday from what now is believed to be carbon monoxide poisoning. The cause of death was established by Pathologist W. A. Burr, of Toronto, who said in Toronto Wednesday he was "fairly sure carbon monoxide was the cause" but further tests will be made in Toronto to establish it beyond doubt.

M. Brough President Of Bancroft Champs

BANCROFT, Nov. 29. (ENS)—Bancroft Pontiacs, champions of the Hastings-Addington Hockey League in 1950-51, started their plans for the coming season at a meeting in the Legion hall on Monday night. Officials elected were Milton Brough, president; Brian Murray, secretary-treasurer; Bernard Shapiro, manager; Harold Watson, trainer; Earl Hawley, chairman of the finance committee; and Cliff Broad, chairman of the transportation committee.

One big spot that is still vacant is that of a successor to Coach Don Simpson who moved to Ottawa in September. A board of strategy, consisting of Milton Brough, Bernard Shapiro, Cecil McAlpine and Stewart Stringer, was given the job of locating a coach.

As the finances of the club are now at a low ebb, with a bank balance of just less than $60, there was quite a discussion on this subject. The consensus of opinion of the gathering was that the share of the gates received from the community centre commission should be raised to 50 per cent. Last season the split was 60 per cent for the commission and 40 for the club. Since there has been a vacant seat on the commission since Don Simpson moved the hockey association recommended that his place be filled by President Brough.

Airline Utilmatum

NICE, France, Nov. 29 (Reuters) — Pan American Airways Wednesday presented an ultimatum to the world's main airlines—either they accept a $477 Trans-Atlantic tourist-class round-trip ticket or face a price war. The company originally proposed a $405 round-trip ticket but upped it to $477 in face of opposition from other airlines who want a higher fare rising to $560, the state-run Air France figure.

WATERLOO, Nov. 29 (CP)—C. F. (Professor) Thiele, owner of four Waterloo music and manufacturing companies, Wednesday announced that 12 key employees have been made shareholders in the business. Each received shares in proportion to his number of years of service.

DOROTHY DIX

Trying Drastic Measures When Family Meddlesome

DEAR MISS DIX: Is there any prescription for curing meddlesome relatives? I am a widow and a professional woman in my early thirties. I have always had a good reputation and social prestige. Several years ago I moved to a small city where I unfortunately have several curious relatives. Their actions are beginning to wear on my nerves. If I purchase clothes and have a dressmaker alter them, they find an excuse to go to her house. I have always been active in civic, fraternal and religious affairs. Recently, my relatives have acquired psuedo-religion and trail me to church. If I have a date or friends call at my home, these kinfolk are so curious they suddenly need fresh air to the extent of walking or riding in front of my home. They phone or drop in for a visit if we have guests or even turn a light on in the living room.

Dorothy Dix

Even my 7-year-old daughter cannot have her friends at our home without inquiries. My parents live with me and are also annoyed by these actions. We have tried ignoring them, insulting them and being excessively polite. Nothing seems to do any good. I would have no difficulty in securing employment in another locality. Even though it means giving up a good home, position, etc., I do not want my life and my child's blighted and thwarted by busybody relatives. Please advise me what to do.

COLLEEN

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Busybodies are the hardest people in the world to combat; they are absolutely insult-proof, ignoring them only whets their curiosity and politeness is lost on them. So what to do? Changing your position and home would cure the situation but it seems a shame for you to be driven away by your meddling family. They certainly seem to have you covered from any angle so apparently there is no escape whatsoever where you are.

Be Outspoken

You may curb their obvious curiosity by plainspoken announcements to the effect that you are entertaining on a particular night and would prefer no casual calls for that occasion. Furtive snooping, however, is practically incurable.

One case similar to yours was cured by direct attack. The meddlers were informed by their victim that, in order to conserve time and energy, she would hold a family gathering, of perhaps an hour's duration, once a week to pass on all news. Her activities were then relayed in bulletin fashion and questions invited. The shamefaced relatives never even showed up for the second meeting, and thereupon turned their attentions to someone else in the family. Try it; it might work.

Of course you are in a very vulnerable spot. The actions of young, successful widows are always, for some obscure reason, of especial interest to friends and relatives. Possibly they resent your independence and contentment. Who knows? At any rate, keep your change of location as a reserve ace, and try other systems first. If they do force you to move, I wouldn't even leave a forwarding address if I were you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married four years and through all my married life I have gone out with other men. My husband knew about it but didn't seem to care. I was married at 15, he was 16. Now he has begun to go out with other girls and I am very jealous. I am ready to settle down but he is not. I have tried to show him I am sorry. He doesn't want a divorce. I am sure he loves me and I love him.

JANE S.

ANSWER: The time to settle down, Jane, is at the beginning of marriage; not four years later. Naturally your husband has been hurt at your behaviour, even if he didn't show it; now he finds the opportunity for retaliation and is taking it. Not a noble procedure to be sure, but very human. What you are proving is that 20 would have been a much more suitable time for you to marry than 15. For youngsters your age to make a success of matrimony is very rare. It takes more than a clergyman's blessing to turn a child into an adult.

I hope you are right in assuming your husband still loves you. Nothing will undo the past; what matters is the future. If you can get together on that, you can bring happiness out of disaster. All you can do is show in every possible way that you realize how wrong you were, and intend to create a happy home from now on. Whatever happens, don't slip back into the old habits even for a moment.

Women's Role Growing In Public Affairs

MONTREAL (CP).—Mrs. Cicely Sampson, recently-elected vice-president of the Progressive Conservative women's organization for the Montreal district, thinks women are becoming more and more aware of their responsibilities in public affairs.

Mrs. Sampson, a lawyer, who recently became the first woman to plead a case in the Supreme Court of Canada, said in an interview women's growing attempts to have their viewpoints heard will lead many of them into politics.

This is as it should be, she says, because "women are just as responsible for the state of the world as men. After all, Government is only housekeeping on a larger scale."

Law and politics are not Mrs. Sampson's only interests. She has worked on possible prison reforms and feels that jails should be operated like federal penitentiaries where prisoners are put to work learning trades and producing things.

For relaxation, she runs a 100-acre farm in Brome County where she spends every available weekend growing vegetables and apples.

Mr. Sinclair reported the teachers were donating $15 toward candy for the Christmas concert on December 20. Six ladies volunteered to fill the candy bags.

Mrs. Gordon Stackhouse's resignation as program convener was accepted. Mrs. Jack Stewart was appointed to take her place.

Kenneth Trumper's room won the attendance shield. Up to date there are 73 paidup members.

Mrs. Stewart, program convener then called on Mr. Sinclair who introduced the speaker of the evening, K. O. Birkin, inspector of public schools. His talk was on our heritage of literature of the ages. Mr. Birkin said that at home and at school, we must develop an appreciation of good literature, in our children, and that every child should have a repertoire of verse and stories. He then proceeded to illustrate with selections suitable for the different age groups. Mrs. Kennie Edmunds thanked the speaker.

Mrs. Stewart then introduced Mrs. A. W. Nelson, district chairman, who stressed the need of studying the requirements of the school and community, and working toward the fulfilling of these needs.

Lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Donald Paxton, Mrs. A. R. Atkinson, Mrs. Stanley Flett, Mrs. F. T. Cole, Mrs. Keenie Edmunds, Mrs. Stanley Fife, Mrs. Horace Brown, Mrs. Gerald Baker, Mrs. Harold Eason, Mrs. Wilson Small, Mrs. Roy Cromie, the Rev. and Mrs. R. D. Duncanson.

Abbey Roll Honors Blitz Heroines

LONDON, — (CP) — An illuminated roll of honor, first tribute of its kind to commemorate the deaths in war service of ordinary women at home, has found a final resting place in St. Nicholas Chapel, Westminster Abbey.

To a fanfare of trumpets, the Queen took her seat in the sanctuary of Westminister Abbey at a dedication service given in memory of the 241 women named in the roll of honor, and many others who died in the Second World War, "keeping the home fires burning."

"We wanted ordinary people to feel that ordinary people can be commemorated too," said Lady Reading, chairman of the Women's Voluntary Services, when the roll was first shown in public last spring.

Toured Britain

Since then the beautifully-embellished volume, with its gold-inscribed parchment pages, bound in red Morocco leather, has toured Britain. The names and citations in the roll represent 34 counties from Renfrewshire to Cornwall.

The roll of honor was brought to the high altar by Miss Claire Evans, the London scribe and illuminator for whom this work has been a labor of love since 1947. Lady Reading then asked the Queen to unveil the roll.

The book will rest in an oak chest in the chapel and will be on view to the public. The names recorded for posterity are those of women who died serving hot food and coffee to bomb disposal squads, driving ambulances and caring for the needs of those who overnight became casualties of war.

Wise Shoppers Will Learn Many Uses Of Fibre Fabrics

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP).—Is it animal, vegetable or mineral?

The old game is up against some tough sledding in the new fabrics that are on the market today. A generation ago the answers were simple. Most fabrics were either cotton or linen (vegetable) or wool or silk (animal).

But now we have clothing, upholstery fabrics, automobile tops and tires, awnings and outdoor furniture covers that are none of these. They are members of the vast new family of synthetics which are changing our way of life faster than we think.

The woman who goes shopping in the new wonderland of miracle fabrics, with the purpose of getting the most for her shrinking dollar, needs to be fully informed as to the specific advantages of each.

The man-made fibres are getting more and more wonderful—but they are arriving on the market so fast that most average shoppers are confused as to which is which and why.

Knew Early Ones

Most women are familiar with the first of the synthetic fabrics, rayon, used in a great percentage of feminine apparel. But many do not know the difference between its two forms—viscose and acetate. Viscose rayon, the first to be evolved from chemists' test tubes, is sturdy and tough, can be laundered almost as casually as cotton, does not melt under ironing.

Acetate rayon, introduced shortly after the stock market crash of 1929, is a more luxurious fabric in drape and appearance, requires greater care in handling. A move is now under way to require specific labeling of rayon fabrics as "viscose" or "acetate" or a blend of both, for consumer guidance in correct cleaning and care of garments.

Next and most sensational of the synthetic fibres was nylon, which was introduced late in 1938 and since has revolutionized the stocking and lingerie market. Because of its great strength and quick-drying properties, nylon has become a staple wardrobe item in most North American homes. Nylon stockings have replaced silk almost entirely, and most women have a wide range of nylon wearables, including nightgowns, slips, girdles, bras and blouses.

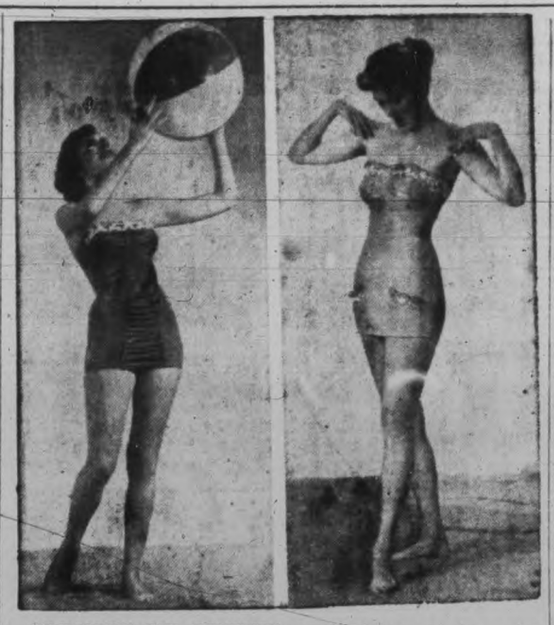
Instant Success

Nylon was an instant and sensational market success, and the demand for it still exceeds the supply. Its resistance to wear and its easy laundering endeared it to women almost overnight.

However, there were some points in which nylon was found lacking. Nylon curtains were found to shrink or stretch according to weather conditions. It did not withstand exposure to sunlight well.

So the chemists got to work and produced a new fibre, orlon, which had many of nylon's favorable characteristics and in addition stood up under all kinds of adverse weather conditions. Orlon has greater absorbency than nylon, a softer feel and is impervious to humidity changes. It is used for a great variety of outdoor fabrics, one of the most important of which is automobile tops. It also is used in curtains and in experimental quantities in clothing.

Newest Development.



Newest of the synthetic family is dacron, which promises to give men a new freedom from cleaner's bills. This man-made fibre, on the market now in small quantites, is used in men's suits and blends, in women's blouses and other wearing apparel. Its greatest value, in addition to quick-drying and easy laundering, is its ability to shed wrinkles.

Men's suits of dacron have been submerged in a swimming pool, dried, and then worn without pressing, looking as fresh and smooth as if they had just come from the tailor.

Still other synthetic fibres are still in the test tubes. Newest of all is Du Pont's "fibree," a form of viscose rayon which will be used for upholstery and rugs, is impervious to moths, resistant to wear and weather and promises new fields of usefullness.

So when you go shopping, read the fabric labels well and remember what they mean: viscose rayon, for sturdy wear; acetate, for luxury fabrics, to be handled with care; nylon, for quick-drying and resistance to abrasion; orlon, for weather resistance; dacron, for crease resistance; "fibre E," for long-wearing upholstery and rugs.

All of them offer a new horizon of luxury and usefullness at prices within the reach of average budgets.

Woman Editor Criticizes Education of Girls In US

CAP DE LA MADELEINE, Que., Nov. 29 — (CP). — The United States educational system for girls is inadequate, says Mrs. Dorothy Day, editor of the New York Roman Catholic Daily Worker.

Main trouble with the US school scheme is that the girls are taught in the same schools as boys, she said, and cannot fully develop their feminine traits.

Learning the same things boys do, girls cannot properly learn to take over responsibilities in the home.

The net result, she said, is the lack of balance in US homes.

Mrs. Day, who said she is writing a series of articles on Canadian girls' education, is spending a few days at the Val-Marie School of Household Science here.

In order to write more accurately on the subject, she is taking part in daily routine courses.

She said she found the Canadian scheme of separate schools for girls—particularly in Quebec Province—is "simply perfect."

"We hope you (of Quebec) will guard jealously those educational methods.

Mrs. Day said she did not have to come to Canada to learn household education.

Daughter There

"My own daughter has told me a lot about it since she has been studying at an institution similar to Val-Marie at Ste. Martine in this province."

Mrs. Day had a lifelong dream come true Wednesday— for the first time she operated an old-fashioned spinning wheel.

The wheel, she said, "once was the soul of the home."

"It's a shame that we have forgotten the real value of this family symbol."

Mrs. Day attended classes of instruction from a nun on the operation of the wheel. Then, she and the students took turns at spinning the wheel.

Val-Marie is a well-known institution in this city, a Roman Catholic shrine, halfway between Montreal and Quebec City, on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River.

Masonic Ladies' Night Held 232 Couples Enjoy Event

Masons and their wives enjoyed a lovely dance Wednesday evening which was arranged by the three Peterborough Masonic Lodges. Annually these men entertain their ladies in this fashion, also giving them favors and valuable draw prizes, and the event is generally considered one of the nicest of the year. It was held at the Club Aragon, with admission by invitation only.

Receiving were the Grand Masters of the lodges and their wives: Mr. John A. Bradshaw, Royal Arthur Lodge, and Mrs. Bradshaw, Mr. A. E. Ellis, Peterborough Lodge, and Mrs. Ellis, Mr F. G. Parsons, Corinthian Lodge, and Mrs. Parsons. Two hundred and thirty-two couples were welcomed.

Bandstand decoration showed the significant letters "A F & A M" in large size. About 20 prizes were given out on draws made by GM Bradshaw, whose lodge was in charge of this year's dance. Favors to the ladies were powder puffs and perfumed sachets.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cream Puffs Will Puff Your Reputation

If you think cream puffs are difficult to make you are due for a pleasant surprise. Cream puffs are easy to make even for you and me. That means too, that once you are convinced they are for the likes of us, you can have delectable chocolate eclairs and those Frenchy-like bouchees sometimes served at [illegible] and informal receptions. Soon we'll be so advanced with our cookery we can invite the Princess to tea. (How would you like to try daintily eating a cream puff in front of the Princess?)

The pastry or dough from which cream puffs are made is called "choux paste" because it is French. When you have made your cream puff shells and taken them from the oven (all puffy and light and palely golden!) you can fill them in a dozen ways. The filling of whipped cream is the most usual—but there are variations you will like to use at different times for even the family cream puff. For any kind of sweet filling, let your empty puffs become completely cold on your wire cake-rack. But for a hot savoury filling use them directly the [illegible] oven—or heat them before filling at serving time. You will find such things as creamed chicken or tuna fish or an a la king mixture gaining new interest when you serve it in puff shells.

Bouchees are exactly the same as the big puffs, but they are kept small—you just drop your completed choux paste mixture by the rounded teaspoonful onto your baking sheet. When the tiny shells have puffed and baked, they are simply delicious filled with a hot chicken or fish mixture in a rather thick sauce—or the bouchees are equally good served cold, with a filling of finely-cut salad mixture (chicken, lobster, shrimp, etc.) These tiny bouchees are served as finger-foods at afternoon tea or reception—but, of course, you will have to serve your large puffs that have similar fillings complete with plate and fork.

Cream Puffs (Choux Paste)

Bring to boil over direct heat, ½ cup butter with 1 cup boiling water; sift measure and add all at once, 1 cup flour—Stir and cook until mixture leaves the sides of the pan, and forms a thick mass. Cool. Add one by one —3 eggs (4 if small) beating until very smooth after each addition. Give a final thorough beating after the last egg is added, then cover and chill. (The mixture must be firm enough to hold its shape.) Drop chilled mixture by spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet, rounding it up into balls; keep at least 1 inch apart, and in pieces about one-third to ½ as large as desired in the finished puffs. Bake in a hot oven 475 deg. Fahr. until mixture puffs (15 to 20 minutes); then lower heat to moderate, 350 deg. Fahr. and continue baking until very light to lift (20 to 25 minutes longer). When stone cold slit and fill with sweetened whipped cream or cream filling as below:

Cream Filling

Scald over boiling water, 1 cup milk, combine thoroughly one-third cup sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon cornstarch. Stir scalded milk slowly into sugar mixture, return to double boiler and stir and cook until the mixture thickens smoothly. Then cover, and cook with occasional stirring, until no raw starch flavor remains. Stir slowly into 2 beaten egg yolks. Return to double boiler and stir and cook until the egg thickens. Remove from heat and add ½ teaspoon vanilla. Cool and use to fill eclairs, cream puffs, etc.

Eclairs

Shape long and narrow with a pastry tube. Bake as cream puffs above. Slit and fill with cream filling as above and top with chocolate frosting as below.

Chocolate Frosting

Cream until very soft 1½ tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons sifted icing sugar—add 2 tablespoons hot water and stir in gradually ½ cup sifted icing sugar. Melt over hot water and add 1 to 2 squares unsweetened chocolate and mix in sifted icing sugar until the icing is thick enough to harden when put on the eclairs, but still soft enough to spread very easily. Flavor with a few drops vanilla and add a shake of salt.

Bouchees

Drop Choux paste from teaspoon into a ball on cookie sheet. Bake as cream puffs. When chilled fill with chicken or lobster or shrimp salad or hot creamed chicken or lobster in very thick sauce

If you would like me to give you some savoury fillings for bouchees, let me know.

13-Year-Old Girl Famous In Japan As Golden Singer

By WARREN WHITE

TOKYO (Reuters). — A young pocket-size "Jenny Lind" is sweeping Japanese song-lovers off their feet.

She is the "Golden Girl of Song," 13-year-old Hibari Misora, daughter of a Yokohama fishmonger. Praised by the nation's starchy concert critics who formerly ignored her, she is going from height to height, winning the emotions of millions of Japanese song-sentimentalists.

Doctors are unable to give a satisfactory explanation why, even at the age of seven, baby-faced Hibari could walk on to small-town concert platforms and sing in the throbbing thrilling mature voice of a Japanese-style "sob-sister."

Now, six years later, with an average artist's lifetime of barnstorming behind her, this "female Sinatra" is in the big money. Japan's biggest entertainment field, the movies, vies with big companies for her contracts.

Hibari, with an astute manager, manages to handle both films and recordings. Since she was "discovered" in 1948, she has soared in popularity in the field of phonograph entertainment to a point where "Hibari" records are 60 per cent of one company's sales.

And she has made 19 films, including eight last year and seven so far this year.

Deceptive Appearance.

Hibari-can, a snub-nosed black eyed girl, well under five feet tall and with a long permanent wave, is nothing outstanding to look at.

Nor are the songs she sings anything out of the ordinary. They are sung in Tokyo night clubs every night and are on the lips of any whistling messenger boy. They range from "Flower Shades of Love" to "Muddy Boogie."

It is Hibari-san's particular voice that provides the phenomenal magic. Managers of theatres where she makes 10-day personal appearances for 3,000,000 yen ($8,000), have stated one strong complaint to her bookings.

"Audiences stand up in their seats to cheer," one man said. "It costs big sums after every show to mend broken seats."

Her immense success has meant little to Hibari-san. She continues school studies whenever she can fit them in. She lives with her fishmonger father and mother in their tiny cottage near the fish shop at Yokohama. But she hopes to build her parents a new house before long.

Habari-san is kept unaware of her disturbing success by her mother, who chaperones her night and day.

Wants Actors To Try Do Own Stunts

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 29 (AP)—Budd Boetticher, rising young film director, has this advice for budding actors: work on your biceps as well as your histrionics.

Boetticher (pronounced beticker) is making a name for himself as a director of action pictures. He has actors doing the darnedest things and what's more, they like it.

"I think the kids are getting too smart about pictures," the director argued. "They know what scenes are faked and when doubles are used. They feel cheated when things don't look like the real McCoy. That's why I think it pays for actors to do as many of their own stunts as possible.

But Within Reason

"I don't mean that you should endanger your actors; it would be too expensive if they were hurt. But I don't see any reason why they shouldn't take a few chances. It certainly heps the realism of a picture, and their fans realize the actors are real men."

Such performers as Burt Lancaster, Alan Ladd and John Wayne have done their own stunts. Boetticher advises other players to spend their spare time in gymnasiums and get in shape for the rugged stuff.

The director worked out his theories in his first major film, "The Bullfighter and the Lady." Robert Stack did his own scenes of practising with cows, even though he wasn't exposed to the danger of the bulls.

For a shot in "Bronco Busters," he wanted Chill Wills to roll barrels at a Brahma bull, who would toss them aside with his horns. Boetticher rolled a couple for practice and then Chill volunteered to try it.

"I must have been plumb crazy to do a stunt like that," Chill said the next day.

Boetticher said, knocking on wood:

"I've been lucky so far, I haven't lost an actor yet."

the headlights. The first indication of danger was when Cook suddenly yelled "where are we".

Cole jumped as the car hit the water and said he does not remember getting to shore. He then ran back to the dance hall, about a mile away, and returned with his brother. He did not know what happened to Mrs. Edwards or the others. Cole said he thought the driver might have thought the water was a puddle on the road, as there was no other warning of it. He said Mrs. Edwards screamed as the car hit the water.

Mrs. John Edwards, mother of the dead child was the last witness to testify. She told of Cook coming to her home early in the morning of October 26 and of later having dinner with him at his home. (Mrs. Edwards' sister is a housekeeper for Cook's father.) She said she was not with Cook when he got the beer and denied paying for it.

When the two were driving home, a short time after having dinner at Cook's house, Mrs. Edwards said Cook refused to let her out of the car and that she had to accompany him throughout the day.

Drank Nothing

She stated Cook drank nothing while he was in the car and that the empty beer bottles were in the car when they left his house. She said Cook drove carefully.

She said the first indication of danger was when the car hit the water and Cooke yelled "where are we?" Then he shouted "Get out and get the baby", said Mrs. Edwards. The baby was asleep in the back seat and the car rolled over before Mrs. Edwards could reach her.

After deliberating for 30 minutes, the jury returned the verdict of accidental death with no recommendations. At this point, Dr. Young said that he would recommend himself, that the Provincial Police get in touch with the officials of Building Products Limited with a view to constructing some sort of barrier or gate to prevent a recurrence of such a drowning.

FARMER-FISHERMAN—Joseph Dion, who works a 300-year-old farm on the Island of Orleans, turns fisherman for a few weeks during October and early November. Here he tramps away from the elaborate trap of wire netting which St. Lawrence River shore farmers use to catch eels, snake-like fish that sell mostly to United States customers. The farmers go to their traps at low tide and carry their eels home in cloth bags. Doing this for a few weeks nets a farmer up to $1,000.

Suggest MP Visit Front Get Facts

By BILL BOSS

WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 29 (CP)—The Canadian commander in Korea suggested today that a Quebec member of parliament visit the fighting zone to see for himself that there is no discrimination against French-speaking Canadian troops.

The member, P. C. Gagnon, Independent member for Chicoutimi, said in the House of Commons Nov. 15 that until an investigation is made he will not withdraw his charge that French-speaking Canadian soldiers in Korea are forced to serve in most exposed positions and given most unpleasant fatigue duties.

There is strong resentment in the 25th Canadian Brigade area over Gagnon's refusal to withdraw. His insistence on an investigation was read by the troops today in the forces edition of the Japan News, an English-language newspaper published in Tokyo.

"Why doesn't he come and investigate personally?" asked Brig. J. M. Rockingham, commander of the brigade. "I'll give him a jeep and turn him loose and he can go wherever he wants."

Lt.-Col. J. A. Deztraze, of Montreal, commander of the brigade's French-speaking battalion, the Royal 22nd, said: "The man is obviously misinformed—to put it kindly."

The Japan News issue containing Gagnon's statement arrived at the front just after the Van Doos were relieved from a five-day defensive stand on a barren ridge-top 40 miles north of Seoul —a stand described as one of the great actions of the Korean campaign.

Chapter News

MUNICIPAL CHAPTER

Film conveners from all primary Chapters of IODE were welcomed to the Municipal Chapter meeting Wednesday evening by regent Miss Mary Medd. The meeting was then turned over to Miss June Fraser, municipal film convener, who led in an interesting discussion and exchange of ideas on the film work of the IODE chapters.

It was thought advisable to purchase a screen to be used by all IODE chapters who have a permanent meeting place at the YWCA. Miss Fraser asked that all conveners attend film night at the Public Library December 11th for the purpose of reviewing new films.

In the absence of Mrs. G. Groombridge, post war convener, the regent reported 60 food parcels, many articles of clothing and Christmas stockings for overseas distribution shipped since September.

Of interest in the coming events was Edith Carleton Chapter's Christmas tea at the Y December 8th. The girls have been busy making aprons to sell and they are arranging a draw for a home-made Christmas cake.

Urgent need for blood at the city hospitals was emphasized by Miss Medd who urged any members who felt they could be donors to contact Mrs. Charles Ray of the Red Cross Society. Unknown to many there is no charge to patients for the blood.

The civic elections on December 3rd were announced and members asked to exert their right to vote.

Lunch was served by the Agnes Neil Chapter.

COL. AGNES NEILL CHAPTER

A highlight of the meeting of the Col. Agnes Neill Chapter was a traveltalk by Mrs. J. W. Pierce on her recent trip to Africa. Colored movies of her tour were shown by Mrs. J. G. Pierce. Miss Marjorie Benson introduced the guests and they were thanked by Mrs. Arthur Gertley.

Mrs. H. G. Shaw, regent, presided during the business period.

The Chapter will be sending gifts and sweets to the 32 pupils and teachers of the adopted school in Belmont township for their Christmas party. A library of books to the value of $10 will also be sent to the school.

Overseas conveners advised that complete Christmas dinners had been packed for the December parcels to friends in England.

Miss Isabel Shearer, post-war convener, reported that at the sewing meting, recently held at the home of Mrs. E. McClellan, babies' nighties had been completed. Next work meeting will be held at Mrs. G. Ardern's home on December 4th.

A needy family at Apsley will receive gifts and a food parcel at Christmas from the Chapter.

A report on the Stardust Ball was given and Miss M. Benson thanked the members who had helped make it such a successful occasion.

Social conveners, Mrs. R. Beck and Miss E. Jobbitt are making arrangements for the January banquet to be held at the YWCA at which the following new members will be guests—Mrs. B. Hamlin, Miss Catherine Hendry and Mrs. D. Cutmore.

A donation of $25 was made for Christmas cheer for the small patients at the Indian hospital at Moose Factory.

The following funds received contributions from the Chapter: Lucy Morrison Memorial; work in India; shipping fund; work room maintenance; cigarette, and the Canadian seamen.

Lunch was served at the close by the executive. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and evergreen and tree ornaments made an attractive centrepiece.

Refugee Finds Winnipeg Lucky Stop

WINNIPEG, — (CP) — Willi Neuendorff, 54-year-old German artist now three months in Canada, attributes his arrival in the dominion to a dilapidated 1929 model automobile.

The old car wheezed its last breath late in September, 1949, on the outskirts of Winnipeg. In it were Willi's son, Gert, and three Baltic friends. They had planned to go as far as Saskatchefan before the journey was stopped at Winnipeg.

Gert had been in Canada then for a year working on Ontario farms. He headed west to earn enough money to bring over his father and mother.

"The car seemed to know that I would run into luck in Winnipeg and left me stranded here with no money to continue further," he says. "By chance I happened to meet some representatives of a local art firm and showed them reproductions of painting my father had done.

The firm became interested at once, gave Gert a job and filed an application of admittance for his father and mother. They now live together in a tiny upstairs suite used by Willi as a private studio. One of his first paintings was a portrait of Princess Elizabeth.

Autumn Spree In Quebec Fishing For Eels, Smelt

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebecers, whose favorite meats are pork and beef, go crazy about fish for a few weeks every autumn.

For thousands of Quebec workers, every day-off means a trip to the harbor where, from a pier, smelts can be pulled out of the St. Lawrence river two to six at a time, depending on the number of hooks on a line.

The "Habitant," whose farm extends to the St. Lawrence shore, takes a holiday from farming for a few weeks and traps eels—dark-skinned snake-like fish that bring him a fair profit.

And, during the weeks of fishing activities, everyone seems to be going to or talking about oyster feeds — "Banquets Aux Huitres," as they are called.

So, altogether, more fish is eaten in Quebec in October and November than in all the other months put together. Hardware stores do a good business, selling bamboo rods and equipment.

Except for enthusiasts, who bundle themselves in sweaters and bring hot wine to keep warm in raw November weather, the smelt rush is over.

Freezing The Catch

The eel season is over too and fish establishments are freezing the catch for shipment, chiefly to New York city. Eels are a Christmas delicacy for families of Italian, German and Jewish descent.

The annual trip to New York harbor of a barge, with a perforated bottom and large enough to hold 90,000 pounds of live eels, has been cancelled this year because of high cost.

Instead fish exporters are filling some of the demand for live eels by packing them in water-filled barrels, and shipping them by rail.

Catch Small

This season's catch of 1,000,000 pounds was small in comparison to past years.

Island of Orleans farmers, whose land is surrounded by St. Lawrence river water, say eels enter their weirs most on overcast, windy night. Autumn this year was sunny and mild, hence the poor catch.

Eels are not widely eaten in Quebec— except in October among farmer-fishermen — although some still are salted and kept for sale later in rural districts.

Smelts on the other hand are popular everywhere. These little silvery fish are roasted in hot butter. A dozen smelts make just an

Do Excavating On Edge Of Historic Fort

TORONTO (CP)—Water mains and sewer lines are being built in old Fort York, but the historic graves of the fort's first burial ground are not to be disturbed.

For 150 years and more the bodies of British soldiers and early citizens have rested beneath the little park alongside the railway tracks, known as Victoria Memorial Square.

The first interment in the old burying ground was that of Katharine Simcoe, infant daughter of Sir John Graves Simcoe, who died at Fort York in April, 1794. That was the year after York county was given its name by Simcoe, the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada.

A steam shovel is excavating along a northern strip of the square, deeded to the city a year ago by the federal government for the extension of Wellington Street.

Civic officials gave assurance that the old graves will not be disturbed. They include the burial place of the three-year-old son of Sir John Colborne, once Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, and the bodies of British soldiers who garrisoned the fort until 1870.

Only a score or so of gravestones remain standing over the roughly 400 graves known to exist in the historic plot, and the years have made many of the inscriptions illegible.

At the opposite end from the burial ground are believed to be the bones of the horses of a British officer, Captain Battersby, sent out to command a provincial corps in the war of 1812. On being ordered home at the end of hostilities he ordered the horses shot and buried distant from the human burial ground, because he was unable to take them home with him.

For a while he supervised work for 100,000 German prisoners-of-war and more recently investigated the plight of Egyptian refugees in the Gaza area.

In Egypt in 1950-51, Mr. Wiens

6-Man Bandit Team Robs Bank Of $30,000

"NOW LEMME SEE, WHICH ONE?" ponders Christmas tree shopper Linda Hickey, 3, of 77 Park Hill Rd. It is a problem. How large a tree can I get for my money? Yet, something small enough that I can drag home on my sled. Should I wait for a while and think it over, or will it be too late? 10 Planes Shot Down By US Pilots

Huge Red Convoys Going To Front 300 Trucks Destroyed

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 30. — (AP)—American jet pilots today reported they shot down 10 Communist planes, damaged four and probably destroyed another in the greatest air victory of the Korean war.

Nine of the destroyed planes were bombers, the first to venture en masse across the Yalu river into MIG alley.

The fifth air force said no allied planes were lost.

Thirty-one American Sabre jets pounded on the flight of 30 Red bombers and their escort of 16 MIG-15 jets. The Sabres streaked through the lumbering bombers, swooped up and cut the escorting flight of Red jets in half, then raced down onto the bombers.

The Sabres did it all in one long deadly curve that sent nine bombers and one MIG tumbling down toward the mouth of the Yalu river.

Three other bombers were reported damaged. All were Russian-type propellor-driven planes. Twin-engined TU-2s and single-engined LA-9 fighter-bombers. The Red formation had just crossed the Yalu river boundary from Manchuria, apparently on a training flight.

Biggest of War

The 30-minute battle was the fourth air fight of the day and the biggest of any type—jet or propeller planes—fought in the Korean war. The earlier fights accounted for the probable and the fourth damaged Red.

The four-day total mounted to 18 Red jet planes reported destroyed, one probably destroyed and 13 damaged, against one US plane shot down and three damaged.

Earlier the fifth air force had studied films of Wednesday's fight and found one more MIG-15 was shot down than American pilots had reported.

Friday's great battle climaxed a week of increasing Red jet flights into North Korea and an astounding jump in Communist highway traffic to the front lines.

Huge Convoys

Long convoys of Red trucks were spotted Thursday night racing toward the quiet forward lines with their lights blazing.

Oh To Be There!

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 30. (AP)—A merchants' war drove the price of beer down to zero in Alaska. One dealer even delivered it free. Streets were jammed with residents who squeezed and pushed into retail establishments after the price dropped from $6 a case to nothing. It started when one dealer slashed his prices from $6 to $3.75 a case last week. A competitor cut to $3.35, scarcely what it costs to ship the beverage to Alaska plus taxes. The southside liquor market started giving it away on Thursday night. The proprietor, noting that many couldn't get in, started delivering it to downtown points. Police were called in to break up a traffic jam. But beer was still free. One market owner said he was going to make it even cheaper—he didn't explain how.

Use Sten Gun To Cow 30 People

Holdup Carried Out At Leaside Within Four Minutes

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP)—A six-man gang of bandits, working like a precision-drill team, used a sten gun today to cow 30 persons while they snatched $30,000 from a suburban bank branch and fled in a fast car.

The robbery, just before noon at the Royal Bank office on Laird Avenue in Leaside, was carried out in four minutes.

The loot was money on hand to cash month-end payroll cheques for employees of big Leaside industries.

One shot was fired—newspapermen could not learn whether it was by a holdup man or a bank employee—but no one was hurt.

Police said they believe some of the men were those who held up a Toronto bank Nov. 20.

No Motion Wasted

Bank employees said the men carried out today's holdup without a waste motion. The escape car was found later, abandoned on a side street a short distance from the bank.

Police said a description of the leader of the robbers tallies with that of Edwin Boyd, notorious bank robber who escaped recently from Don jail. He was awaiting trial on seven bank-robbery charges.

William Jackson and Leonard Jackson, no relation, who escaped with Boyd, also are still at large.

The method used in the Leaside robbery also tallies closely with that used at the Toronto bank robbed Nov. 20.

Two men jumped over the counter and cleaned out two tellers' cages. They could not enter a third because it was locked.

Two other men entered the office of manager A. G. Hockey, brought him out and stood him against a wall.

Russians Accept Secret Meeting On Disarmament

PARIS, Nov. 30. (AP)—The United Nations political committee voted unanimously today to suspend debate on rival east-west disarmament plans pending efforts by the big four to seek agreement in secret talks. The discussions among Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States are expected to get under way immediately behind closed doors. The committee asked them to report on their progress by Dec. 10.

The committee acted after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky agreed to participate in such talks. Britain, France and the United States agreed previously to do so.

Under terms of a resolution submitted by Iraq, Pakistan and Syria the Big Four plus assembly President Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico constitute a sub-committee. They were instructed to try to reconcile rival disarmament plans put forward by Russia on one side and by the western powers on the other.

In agreeing to discuss disarmament in secret talks with the west Russia still demanded immediate banning of atomic bombs.

Makes Conditions

Vishinsky in his long-awaited speech to the political committee, said Russia is prepared to accept international control of atomic weapons. But, he said the Soviet insists on these steps, to be taken more or less simultaneously.

1. A resolution by the General Assembly outlawing the use and manufacture of atomic weapons;
2. A convention banning atomic weapons; and
3. An international control organ to inspect immediately all atomic weapons plants and insure that the ban is put into effect.

He said control of atomic weapons should be under the UN security council but should be free from the threat of veto in its supervision.

The proposals came in Vishinsky's formal acceptance of a suggestion that Russia meet with the western big three behind closed doors in an effort to reconcile rival plans for disarmament.

Britain, the United States and France already had accepted the proposal.

Tough Job

Western delegates greeted his speech as an encouraging sign, but added that it will be a tough job to make any real progress in the talks.

US delegate Philip Jessup said the belligerent tone of Vishinsky's speech indicated the task ahead will be difficult. Similar views were expressed by spokesmen for Britain and France.

Vishinsky prefaced his acceptance with a blistering attack on previous speeches by Jessup and a castigation of the western disarmament plan.

Pusan Arsenal Blows Up, Damage Heavy

PUSAN, Korea, Nov. 30 (AP) —The Korean government arsenal here blew up today in a series of awesome blasts that spread damage across an area four miles wide.

United States soldiers housed in the general area escaped injury but US army authorities said six Koreans were killed and at least 50 injured.

Korean authorities said 48 homes were destroyed, 100 others badly damaged, and 400 more damaged to some degree. They estimated total damage at $20,000,000.

Civilian and army rescue workers dug in the ruins searching for more victims.

Cause Unknown

Col. Lee Hong Chong, chief of the arsenal, said it was not known whether sabotage or accident touched off the blasts.

However, a fire of mysterious origin destroyed the US Embassy building in Pusan Monday.

The arsenal manufactured hand grenades. Large amounts of ammunition also were stored there. The building, about a quarter-mile long, was destroyed.

Flames rose high over the area, spreading a red glare that lit up the night.

The arsenal was moved to Pusan from Yongdongpo on the outskirts of Seoul at the outbreak of the war in June, 1950.

The arsenal was greatly expanded in the last 18 months. Hand grenades were manufactured there. In addition a large variety of arms and explosives were stored in the area.

4 Canadian Nuns Tried By Reds

HONG KONG, Nov. 30 (Reuters)—Five Roman Catholic nuns —four of them Canadians—will go on trial before a peoples' court in Canton Saturday, charged with causing the deaths of more than 2,000 Chinese orphans, it was reported by a Communist newspaper.

The newspaper, Nan Fang Jih Pao, claimed the nuns' ill treatment and cruelty brought about the deaths of 2,116 children in their care at the Canadian mission of the Immaculate Conception orphanage in Canton between Oct. 14, 1949 and Jan. 1, 1951.

(In Montreal, authorities at headquarters for the mission had no comment except that they had learned in a cable from Hong Kong that the five were to go on trial.)

The newspaper gave the names of the nuns as: Sisters Saint Alphonse Du Redempteur (Antoinette Couvrette), head of the orphanage; Sister Saint Marie (Germain Gravel); Sister Saint Foy (Elizabeth Lemire); Sister Saint Victor (Germaine Tanguay); and Sister Saint Germain (Hilda Laperriere.

All but Sister Saint Victor, who comes from Nashua, NH, are Canadians.

The report claims the nuns flogged the children and tore their hair out by the roots when they did not work hard enough.

They were arrested in March following disclosure of their "criminal activities" and will be punished according to the demands of the Canton community, the newspaper report said.

The trial is the climax to a long campaign against the Nuns which was started Feb. 27 with a report in the Canton newspaper "Nam Fong Yet Pao" that mortality rate at the orphanage was more than 94 per cent.

Smallwood Piles Up Crushing Victory

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 30 — (CP) Premier Joseph Smallwood swept to a crushing personal victory and his Liberal party continued to pile up a powerful majority as the marathon-count in Newfoundland's General Election headed into the last lap today.

Liberals held 18 seats and led in one while the Progressive Conservatives had only three elected when counting re-opened today.

Liberals held 18 seats and led in one while the Progressive Conservatives had only three elected when counting re-opened today. The election was deferred in Labrador.

At the last report Thursday night Mr. Smallwood was leading the Bonavista North Battle with 299 votes while Progressive Conservative M. K. Pritchett had only one.

In the last house the Smallwood government had 22 of the 28 seats. Progressive Conservatives had five and an independent one.

Northern Ontario Ranger Hillbilly Who Hoaxed Army

SUDBURY, Nov. 30. (CP)—The apparent perpetrator of a huge hoax on the United States army was held here today on a vagrancy charge. He's Peter Ernest John Grainger, 25-year-old Northern Ontario forest ranger. Friends and police said he was the "shoeless hillbilly," the man who claimed to have seen only one woman in his life, who joined the US army in Texas on Nov. 3 and later deserted.

The army claimed at the time they gave the man, who gave the name of Peter Grainger his second shave of his life after he walked barefoot out of the mountains to join up. Before he disappeared he was interviewed, photographed, shown automobiles and given a taste of night spots in San Antonio.

Grainger was found Wednesday walking along the highway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. A tourist camp operator called police because the man's behavior was strange.

Sure Of Identity

Friends said after his arrest that he was the Texas Grainger. Sgt. Tom Crawford of the Sudbury detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said there was no doubt he was the same man. They based their identification on newspaper photographs. Like the man in the photo, Grainger has the index finger of his left hand missing.

In court Thursday he was remanded a week on a charge of vagrancy. Previously, Dr. Tom Dizon, psychiatrist at the mental health clinic here, examined Grainger and recommended sending him to hospital for treatment of a head injury suffered in the Second World War.

The man who enlisted in Texas claimed he grew lean and lanky on a steady diet of goats' milk. He told recruiting officers he left his New Mexico mountain cabin because his father died last May and added: "I buried Paw on the

Want Canada To Do More

By DOUGLAS HOW

WITH THE CANADIANS IN GERMANY, Nov. 30 (CP)—Canada's Atlantic Pact Allies and the Eisenhower headquarters are understood to expect Canada to field a division in Germany within the next two years to share in a 60-division army for the defence of Western Europe.

The opinion that a Canadian division will be established over here in that period, that the 27th Brigade now coming in is just an initial land contribution is general among Canadians already here.

This would represent a manpower commitment three times the size of the brigade or a total of about 18,000 men. It would be an important second to Canada's No. 1 commitment for Europe defence, the fielding of an 11-squadron pet-fighter air division capable of supporting a full-fledged army in battle.

The two together would cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

Canada is believed to be one of the few countries among the 12 now in the Atlantic Pact which are generally felt capable of doing more for the common cause than they now are doing.

Dollars For Britain

LONDON, Nov. 30 — (AP) — Queen Mary's hand-made carpet earned almost 120,000 scarce dollars for Britain. A cheque for $119,651.86 was sent to Prime Minister Churchill to be turned into the British Treasury. Churchill today wrote Queen Mary expressing the cabinet's thanks.

Things Bad All Over, Santa Out Of Money But Danes To Rescue With Special Grant

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 30 — (AP)—What millions of children all over the world have been fearing for hundreds of years happened Wednesday.

Santa Claus ran out of money.

He didn't have even enough for postage to answer the bagloads of letters he's getting these days.

At least that is what the budgetary committee of the Danish parliament was told. It called a special meeting Thursday night to deal with Santa's plight.

Don't worry—the parliamentarians took action. They unanimously decide to appropriate a special grant to Santa Claus. He will get 55,000 kroner ($8,400) to help him answer his mail.

You see Santa's main mail station is in Greenland, Denmark's Arctic olony near the North Pole. But all his mail is sent via the Royal Danish Greenland Administration, Copenhagen, Denmark. Here, Santa's helpers handled 130,000 letters from boys and girls all over the world last year. Santa expects 200,000 letters via this route this year and he plans to answer them all and enclose a picture from Greenland and a pamphlet of children's stories by Hans Christian Andersen.

That is the reason he ran out of money Wednesday.

US Jet Pilot Downs 4 Planes

TOKYO, Nov. 30 (Reuters) — A single American Sabre jet pilot today shot down three Communist bombers and one Red jet fighter over Korea.

He is Maj. George A. Davis, of Lubbock, Tex., who only last Wednesday was credited with downing two Red MIG jet fighters.

Today's bag consisted of another MIG fighter and three Russian-built Tupolev bombers. His total score for the Korean war is six Red planes down, one probably destroyed and one damaged.

His work today also gives him the Korean record for the number of Communist bombers downed.

Quote Secret Paper Ordering War Go On

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 30 (AP) —The White House quoted today from a hiterto unpublished secret document to show that the Eighth Army issued orders Monday directing the continuance of hostilities "until the signing of the armistice agreement."

Presidential Secretary Joseph Short read from the document at a press conference in which he denied that ground fighting had been brought to a halt over the Korean battlefront and challenged the accuracy of an Associated Press dispatch from Korea.

Short also took issue with a statement issued by the Associated Press in New York defending the AP story, and declared:

"This statement the Associated Press issued is designed to confuse the American people."

Brought Wireless To Canada, A. Johnston Dies

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 (CP) — Alexander Johnston, former deputy minister of transport and the man who brought the first wireless station to Canada, died in hospital today after a brief illness. He was 84.

A friend of Guglielmo Marconi, he was instrumental in obtaining a federal grant of $75,000 to enable the inventor of radio to establish Canada's first radio station and continue his experiments.

He retired as transport deputy in 1932 after 35 years' public service.

A native of Richmond county, Cape Breton Island, he graduated from St. Francis Xavier University with the degree of doctor of laws. His first job was as a reporter for The Sydney Record. He later became owner and publisher of the paper.

His political career started in 1897 when he was elected as a Liberal to the Nova Scotia legislature. Three years later, he defeated Sir Charles Tupper in Cape Breton North to take a seat in the federal house.

King Takes First Jaunt Visits Windsor Lodge

LONDON, Nov. 30 (AP) — The King left Buckingham Palace today to spend a weekend in the country at Windsor. It was his first venture outside the palace grounds since part or all of one of his lungs was removed Sept. 23.

The Queen went with him.

The Royal lodge at Windsor is 23 miles west of London. The King and Queen were greeted there by Princess Elizabeth and her children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne.

Daring Bandits Rob Bank Car

ORANGEVILLE, Nov. 30 (CP) —A holdup reminiscent of old-time stage coach robberies was pulled off Thursday by two daring bandits who made off with $2,100.

The robbery took place on a highway between here and Caledon, 10 miles southeast of Orangeville, while two Royal Bank employees were travelling by car with the day's receipts of the Caledon branch.

The bandits, wearing dark sunglasses and red polka dot handkerchiefs over their faces, forced the bank car off the road.

They took the car keys of William Dougherty, 36, acting manager of the Caledon branch, and his revolver which was in the glove compartment of the bank car. They forced Mr. Dougherty and his companion, clerk Marion Wilson, 16, to drive to a sideroad a mile from the nearest farm road before stranding them.

The Royal Bank employees were driving toward Orangeville, 40 miles northwest of Toronto, when the bandit car pulled alongside, its horn sounding. One man poked a gun through the window while the driver forced the bank vehicle to the side.

One gunman, grey-haired and middle-aged, told them: "We are not going to hurt you, just give us the money and you will be all right."

US Murderess Flees Hospital

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 30 (AP) —Winnie Ruth Judd, the red-haired "tiger woman" trunk murderess of 1931, escaped from the state hospital for the insane for the fourth time Thursday night.

Twenty years ago she shot two girl friends to death, dismembered their bodies and shipped the grisly remains to Los Angeles in a trunk and a suitcase. She was convicted and sentenced to be hanged, but was adjudged insane.

Mrs. Judd, 48, climbed out a second-storey window about 10:30 pm on a ladder frashioned from rags.

Hospital attendants said it must have taken her weeks to weave the ladder of yarn, rags and part of a heavy ironing cord. They said a screw driver and pliers used to open a heavy window screen must have been smuggled to her.

Attendants said Mrs. Judd had been upset for the last week after a patient told her she would be taken away from her mother, 84-year-old Mrs. Carrie B. McKinnell, also a patient.

Winnie Ruth had lived in quiet seclusion since her last break from the hospital in 1947.

Funeral For Dog

DENVER, Nov. 30. (AP)—Fred Schmitt buried his 15-year-old dog with a funeral that he estimated will cost him $1,000. "I don't care what it costs," Schmitt said. "That dog was my whole life." The dog, Pal, died on Monday after a short illness. Dozens of friends of Schmitt attended the funeral, where Pal lay in state in a mahogany casket.

New Elections Seen In Syria

CAIRO, Nov. 30 (AP).—Syria's parliament may be dissolved and new elections called as a result of the country's swift military coup, reports reaching here indicated today.

Accounts published here estimated that from 42 to 86 Syrian politicians were arrested in Thursday's bloodless shake-up led by Syria's military strong man, Lt.-Col. Adib Shishekly.

Among those arrested were the pro-Russian Premier, Populist party leader Marouf Dawalibi, and most of his predominantly-Populist cabinet. The arrests apparently cut deep into the ranks of parliament, in which the Populist party has the leadership although it does not hold a majority.

The army seized control less than 24 hours after Dawalibi was named Premier by Syrian President Hachem El Attassi.

Bloodless Overnight Coup

Thailand Military Clique Seizes Control

BANGKOK, Nov. 30 — (AP)—Thailanders awoke today to find that a military clique had abolished the constitution, dissolved parliament and seized control of the government in a bloodless overnight coup.

A nine-man "state temporary administrative body" ousted the former government, then reappointed Premier Pibulsonggram. He also was given the post of Defence Minister in the 15-man cabinet, which has seven new members.

There was no violence—in contrast to the naval revolt last June and a coup in February, 1949.

The military clique announced it had acted to combat Communism.

Radio broadcasts declared the coup will have no effect on Thailand's foreign policy.

Abolition of the constitution adopted in 1947 and reinstatement of the 1932 constitution gives increased power to the ruling group.

Under the old constitution which was restored, 50 per cent of the members of parliament are appointed by the government. It provides for one House of Parliament instead of two.

The sudden coup significantly occurred just three days before the return of King Phumipon and his family from Switzerland.

Some observers said it may have been a move to forestall any over-enthusiastic demonstration by pro-Royalist elements.

Motive for the coup was not clear. But there were indications that it was a move to solidify power by the military.

Military leaders who seized power include three ranking officers from the army, navy and air force.

They issued a statement citing reports of corruption, opium smuggling and infiltration of Communists into high places.

It is not clear just what power Pibulsonggram will have in the new government. It is understood he opposed the coup on grounds that it would damage Thailand's foreign relations.

New power apparently was given the police strong man, Director-General Phao Sriyanon, who was named "Protector of Peace" in the junta.

Churchill Has 77th Birthday, Spends It At Desk

LONDON, Nov. 30 (CP) —Winston Churchill—starting his 78th year today—awoke this morning to find letters, telegrams and presents pouring in from all parts of the world.

The prime minister breakfasted in bed, then donned his siren suit and carpet slippers and spent an hour reading some of the greetings and good wishes.

He planned to spend most of the day at his desk as usual. But this evening, after an hour of tea-time napping which he concedes to the encroachments of the years, there'll be a dinner party with his family and a few old cronies.

At 77, Churchill is the oldest man to take the Prime Minister's chair since William Ewart Gladstone began his fourth term. When Gladstone took over at 83, Churchill was a stubborn, red-haired nipper going on eight years old.

In the years since the Second World War, as Churchill's Conservative party slowly revived from the stunning Labor landslide of 1945, the wartime Prime Minister has snorted at stories that he was too old to lead his country again. He liked to remind his intimates of Gladstone with the chuckling implication that there was lots of life in the old dog yet.

Gets His Wish

A month ago he got his wish—a majority in the House of Commons which sent him back to the official ministerial residence behind the dingy facade of 10 Downing Street.

There still is lots of life in him, but the inroads of age are beginning to show.

In parliament he sits hunched forward, with a cupped hand to aid his faltering ears. The mop of red hair has thinned to a frosty fringe on a balding skull. His step has slowed and he is often grateful for the walking stick he carries.

But he still paints pictures good enough to hang in Britain's Royal Academy. His monumental memoirs of the war pour out in full stream. His rolling oratory still sets the pace for much of western statesmanship and he has enriched the language with many a memorable phrase.

An empire-building soldier and an empire-boosting politician for more than half a turbulent century, Churchill still is a man of quick action and quick wit.

To Have No Cease-Fire Till Armistice—Truman

KEY WEST, Fla., Nov. 30 (AP) — President Truman declared Thursday that the United Nations will continue to bring pressure on the Reds until an armistice has been signed in Korea and UN men will not be caught off balance by the enemy.

The President sternly lectured press associations and independent newspapers on what he called fake stories dealing with ceasefires after reading a written statement, which he allowed to be quoted.

"I hope everyone understands now that there has been no ceasefire in Korea and that there can be none until an armistice has been signed," the statement said.

"It is our duty to continue our efforts until UN objectives are achieved. Only then will the future safety of the UN forces, including those who are prisoners of the enemy, be assured.

Five Seek Seats On Dummer Council

WARSAW, Nov. 30 (ENS)—Five men are seeking seats on the Dummer township council. Four are to be elected Dec. 30.

They are: Walter Sloan, Russell Tedford, Harold Clifford, Al Oliver and Ralph Hamilton. John Gallaher who was also nominated, withdrew.

Reeve Stewart Clysdale was returned as reeve for his third term when three candidates withdrew their names in his favor.

Completing Plans

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Reuters)—Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, British high commissioner to Canada, said Thursday night that preliminary plans have been completed for Prime Minister Churchill to visit Canada early in the new year. The high commissioner made the statement before leaving London by air for Ottawa.

Toronto To Have Three-Way Race

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP)—This city's second civil election in a year Dec. 3 will draw voters to the polls to decide the winner of a three-way mayoralty race and the outcome of the few lukewarm issues.

At no point has this campaign reached the interest of last Jan. 2 when 170,000 cast ballots — the largest number in city history—to record approval of Sunday sports. At the same time they voted in favor of December elections which explains this one.

Although 367,400 are eligible to vote, lack of major issues may lower interest. Hiram E. McCallum—mayor since 1948—has tossed his hat into the ring for a fourth session. In his campaign speeches Mayor McCallum has spent time explaining his reasons for favoring amalgamation of surrounding municipalities.

He also has been on the defensive against broadsides fired by his two opponents, Alderman Nathan Phillips and former Controller Allan Lamport. Mr. Lamport opposed Mayor McCallum in the last election and was defeated by 1,600 votes.

Alderman Phillips has attacked both Mr. Lamport and the mayor. At one meeting he described himself as "a lone voice crying in the wilderness" of city council against proposed increases in Toronto Transportation Commission fares.

On the other hand Mr. Lamport charges the current civic administration with creating unnecessary expenses.

Reeve Peter Pearson Returned In Galway

Warden Peter Pearson of Peterborough County was returned as Reeve of Galway and Cavendish townships by a acclamation at a nomination meeting in Galway Hall.

William Ashforth, was given an acclamation to the four-man council, replacing Alec Kennedy who is retiring at the end of his 1950-51 term.

The other three councillors, Charles Molyneux, Ray Allen and George Young were all returned by acclamation.

Scholarships Offered In Physical Education

Scholarships valued at $6,000 for postgraduate study in physical education, recreation and physical medicine are to be awarded this year by the National Council on Physical Fitness, Alex Sinclair, recreation director, said today.

Application forms are available at the recreation office or from the National council's office in the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa.

The scholarships were set up three years ago to help overcome the scarcity of professional personnel with advanced training in physical education and recreation. They are for postgraduate work only and are restructed to Canadians who have had at least three years' full-time experience in physical education or recreation in Canada.

The total value of the scholarships this year has been increased from $4,000 to $6,000, no award being made more than $1200 or less than $300. Deadline for application in January 15.

Last Atomic Bomb In Series Set Off US Learned Much

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Nov. 30—(AP)—United States atom masters, satisfied that they have found new facets of nuclear know-how, closed the book today on the 1951 fall test series.

The Atomic Energy Commission and the Army wound up their joint show with an afternoon blast yesterday. It was the seventh and one of the least spectacular of a series that started Oct. 22.

Unofficially it was the 27th atomic explosion in history—all set off by the US, but Russia has admitted three.

Important Data

Test manager Carroll L. Tyler said the series produced "data important to the nation's military security".

"Each nuclear detonation resulted in increased atomic-weapons knowledge," Dr. Alvin C. Graves, A.E.C. scientific director, reported.

The final burst, a low flash of red ringed with black, caused speculation that the detonation might have been the first underground nuclear detonation. The AEC would not confirm this.

Troops took part in yesterday's test, although not in a tactical manoeuvre.

The series hit a high spot Nov. 1 with the first atomic manoeuvre in history.

For security reasons there will be no further report on the tests, Tyler said, except for some information on effects which may be released after analysis and screening.

Find Prices Mixed On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Nov. 30 (CP). — Weak, irregular support today held early afternoon stock market prices mixed and trendless.

Industrials opened slightly lower but recovered most losses within the first hour. Papers, refining oils and banks attracted most support to post a scattered list of fractional advances. Steels were firm while agricultures, constructions, liquors, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials held gains and losses in balance. Utilities and textiles weakened while foods dipped sharply.

Leading industrials changed hands slowly. Speculative mining issues, principally penny golds, drew moderate interest. Volume for the first three hours was 1,466,000 shares.

Base metals strengthened—Hudson Bay, Sherritt-Gordon and Quebec Copper among others. Eureka, Mackeno and Tungsten weakened.

Western oils drew firm support. Calmont, Central-Leduc, Commonwealth Petroleum, Devon-Leduc, Pacific Petroleum and Western Homestead gains ranging to about 15 cents. Ajax Petroleum, Canadian Atlantic, Central Explorers, Sapphire and Selburn dipped slightly.

Senior golds showed four advances against one decline. Junior issues climbed strongly.

Lake Scugog Cottage Burns, Table Saved

LINDSAY, Nov. 30—A cottage at Viewlake, south of Janetville on Lake Scugog, owned by a Lindsay man was destroyed by fire Wednesday night.

William Robertson had been at his Viewlake cottage Wednesday afternoon and was on his way home when he discovered his cottage was on fire. He was spending a few minutes in the local store when he was attracted by a glow in the sky. He investigated and found that the fire had too much of a start for anything to be done.

All that was saved was a table.

Origin of the fire is unknown. Besides the loss of the summer home, quantities of tools, clothing and equipment were burned.

Destroyer Christened By Lady Alexander

MONTREAL, Nov. 30 (CP). — Lady Alexander, wife of the Governor-General, today christened the first of 14 anti-submarine destroyer escort vessels at a launching here.

The new ship was named HMCS St. Laurent in honor of a previous Canadian destroyer which served with distinction in the Second World War.

The launching ceremony marked the successful conclusion of the first stage of a new technique in naval shipbuilding, involving an all-welded hull and extensive use of aluminum in the ship's superstructure and interior.

Approve Increases

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30 (AP) —The wage stabilization board Thursday night approved the 13-cent hourly wage increase negotiated last summer between the "big-four" rubber companies and the Rubber Workers' Union (CIO). The increases were negotiated by the 100,000-member union and the US Rubber Co., the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., the B. F. Goodrich Co., and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Intelligence tests cast doubt on his story that he had no formal education. He made a score of 93 on the US armed forces qualification test, on which the average US High School graduate makes 35. Passing score is 10. At the time of his desertion he was scheduled to enter officers' school on the basis of his tests.

Forestry officials said Grainger applied for a job with their Sudbury office Aug. 21. His application papers said he was born in London and served with the British Army in North Africa, Italy, France, Holland and Germany. He came to Canada in December, 1950.

He left his job Oct. 9 for a medical examination at North Bay and didn't return.

Police said Thursday Grainger was incoherent when brought in here.

While working here he had a strong English accent. There was no trace of the "hillbilly twang" reported used by the recruit in Texas.

10 Planes

Flare-dropping allied planes counted at least 9,200 of them, Far East air forces reported Friday. The figure is nearly double the previous high of 5,150, and a fifth air force re-count indicated it may be incomplete.

No one guessed at how many more trucks might have passed on without being spotted.

The Reds' phenomenal rush to build up supplies and presumably troops came as the ground fronts went through their third day of "twilight war" and Red truce negotiators again balked at guaranteeing against an increase in their forces during an armistice.

Returning pilots reported they destroyed 300 trucks and damaged an unestimated number.

Good Weather

FEAF suggested contributing factors to the huge number moving could be exceptionally clear weather and such heavy damage to Communist rail lines that the Reds had to take to the highways.

Both air and naval forces stepped up attacks as ground action remained quiet.

A United States Eighth Army communique reported the only ground action up to noon involved small attacks by three enemy platoons on the central front. It reported "no significant action" on either the western or eastern fronts.

Elsewhere along the bitterly-cold 145-mile front, quiet was broken by routine artillery fire. Defensive patrols were instructed to keep out of trouble.

The artillery shooting, on a reduced scale, appeared designed primarily to make the Reds keep their heads down.

"The tempo of ground fighting" was described by a general headquarters communique "as one of business-like activity as alert UN command units remained vigilant and determined to maintain positions along the current battle line."

100,000 Hunters Loose In Ontario

One hundred thousand licensed deer hunters in Ontario this autumn bagged an estimated total of 50,000 animals.

This information was released by Dr. W. J. K. Harkness, chief of the fish and wildlife division of the Department of Lands and Forests.

While figures from all sections are not complete, said Dr. Harkness, there is every indication that 50 per cent of hunters were successful this year compared to 35 per cent in 1950.

This year's good shoot is likely to indicate an equally good one in '52, Dr. Harkness said. But he qualifies his predictions by saying that heavy snow this coming winter and poor fawning conditions next spring might change the picture considerably.

New Blood Pump Aids Transfusions

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 (AP)—A new blood pump, pulsing like a heart, can give you a pint of blood in 90 seconds.

The usual transfusion time is 40 minutes, when blood is dripped into a vein. The pump is intended for emergencies when people need a lot of blood quickly.

The blood pump squeezes or milks the tube carrying blood from the bottle to the person's arm. Each squeeze squirts along a pulse of blood under pressure, as the heart does. The pump turns by hand, so the speed of giving blood, plasma, or other fluids is easily controlled.

The pump was developed by the American Optical Company, Southbridge, Mass.

Order Canadians To Keep Infantry Quiet

By WILLIAM BOSS.

WEST SECTOR, Korea, Nov. 30 (CP).—Canadian troops in Korea have been ordered to carry on normal military operations—except that no offensive infantry action is to be started.

High level orders to govern front line operations during the remainder of Korean armistice negotiations—orders subject to much speculation and controversy during the last 48 hours—were clarified tonight.

In effect, the orders as they now stand are:

1. Operations will continue as before except that no offensive infantry action against the Chinese Reds will be initiated by Canadian troops.

2. Present forward defence positions will be maintained and improved.

3. All normal precautions will continue to be taken to safeguard forward positions.

4. Patrol activity will be confined to aggressive reconnaissance.

5. Artillery, mortar and tank fire will be retaliatory, harassing, counter-battery or on enemy targets openly exposed.

6. Suspected enemy positions will not be engaged.

7. Retaliatory fire will be in the ratio of five to one. Harassing and counter-battery fire will be only on known enemy troop and gun positions.

From Highest Level

The operations order was handed down from the highest level. Within the Canadian formation, it was paraphrased by Brig. J. M. Rockingham, brigade commander, to ensure that it was in the most simple terms—easily understood by all ranks.

The clarification has resulted in a front noisier than it has been for 48 hours. Happily most of the fire is heading for the enemy.

Here is an example of how the order is supposed to work: Lt.-Col. J. A. Dextraze, of Montreal, commander of the Royal Canadian Regiment, spotted two enemy battalions on open ground ahead of his positions. Three times he brought down on them the entire Commonwealth divisional artillery.

If the enemy had not revealed himself openly, he would not have drawn Canadian fire.

Around the Home

Tom Gard's Note Book

I suppose we have all been reminded that it is good to store for a rainy day, and of course that means winter as well. This was brought very much to mind when travelling through the country recently, and inspecting equipment in a farm home.

Storage Bin

This farmer did not agree with the old type bin in the corner of the cellar, he had built an airy one for better results. The framework of the bin was out from the wall about three inches, firmly constructed with sliding shelves or trays for fruit, bulbs, and vegetables. Plenty of air worked up through the trays as each had a slat bottom. It is well to keep in mind that the room should be cool and dry for best results, and free from frost.

Stove-pipes for Stakes

Over in another corner of the basement I spied a storage place for stakes. These had been used for dahlias and tomatoes, some of bamboo and others of cedar. Stove-pipes had been fastened to the wall with heavy wire, and the stakes stood upright to prevent them from falling all over the place.

Protection for Cheese

Invited to partake of a little hospitality I was interested to note how the folks protected the cheese. A new flower-pot had been soaked in water, then placed over the cheese to keep it from drying out, and to protect it from flies.

Small Tool Chest

The principal of a school nearby invited me into the manual training room. One of the junior pupils had constructed a very neat tool box from pieces of lath. Given a little extra touch this could have been converted into a fine box for gloves, ties or handkerchiefs.

Freight Rates Dominate House Session

OTTAWA, Nov. 30. (CP) — Freight rates, the capital's current three-ring attraction, are overshadowing all other government business these days.

As the federal government's historic rate-equalization bill heads towards final passage in the Commons, the rate issue is under debate in two other forums on and about parliament hill.

The equalization measure—implementing recommendations of the Royal Commission on Transportation for levelling the burden of freight charges across the country—went through the next-to-last stage of passage in the Commons Thursday night.

Meanwhile, freight rates were under debate before the Senate's transport committee, studying the equalization bill in advance of its reaching the upper chamber. Sessions Thursday were adjourned to next week.

A couple of hundred yards from Parliament's centre block where these double-barrelled moves were under way, the board of transport commissioners is studying the latest railway application for a freight-rate increase. The companies are looking for a 10-per-cent hoist.

The Commons' Thursday night virtually cleaned up the government's sessional legislative program based on the Royal Commission report. Besides setting up the equalization bill for third reading, it gave final passage to two subsidiary measures embodying lesser recommendations of the commission.

Smooth Out Humps

The equalization measure will provide, in a measure, for the smoothing down of humps in the rate structure across the country, probably sending up Ontario-Quebec rates to give the west a better break. The Maritimes, which now have the lowest rate level, are somewhat excluded from the move by a special protective clause inserted by a House committee and approved by the Commons Thursday.

Another feature of the bill is a $7,000,000-a-year subsidy to the railways to reduce the charges on freight moving between the east and west.

Most controversial clause in the measure—which was fought until the measure went through committee Thursday night—gives the interior of the west part of the benefits of the low "transcontinental" freight charges between the east and the British columbia coast.

British Columbia members fought the provision, contending it might result in the eventual loss of their advantageous rates. Alberta members backed it.

Just before the committee cleaned up consideration of the bill, Transport Minister Chevrier told the House he believes BC will not be adversely affected by the provision and that its advantages to the interior of that province will outweigh disadvantages. He said the clause will straighten out a long-standing injustice against Alberta and western Saskatchewan.

Man Fined For Fight In Local Restaurant

Tommy Windrem, 98 Stewart St., was convicted of causing a disturbance in a public place by Magistrate W. R. Philp in police court Thursday.

He was fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

Windrem had pleaded not guilty to the charge on November 22 when the case was adjourned until Thursday.

APS Claire McGillen testified Windrem had been involved in a fight in a local restaurant on the early morning of October 24. Under cross examination by Windrem, APS McGillen said, "you (Windrem) told me it started when you started to eat off another man's plate."

Windrem admitted sampling some potato chips from a friend's plate which touched off the disturbance and soon involved "twelve or fifteen people in the restaurant," according to Windrem.

Street Signs Up

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30—(ENS).—The erection of street signs on all intersections of the town is now complete. This job was undertaken last summer along with a new system of house numbering. The numbering job was completed earlier in the year, but the street name signs were delayed due to the changing of the names of some streets. This now brings the town onto a more modern footing and the new black and white signs are clearly visible to assist visitors and townspeople alike. They are of the same type used in many section of the city of Toronto.

"Shoulder roast, lb. 10c; prime rib roast beef, lb. 17c; hamburg steak, 3 lbs. 25c; rolled roast, lb. 15c; veal chops, lb. 15c; leg lamb, lb. 30c; lamb roast, lb. 20c; stewing lamb, lb. 15c; sausage (get this) 2 lbs. for 25c".

Fish-Game Club Elects '52 Officers

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30 — (ENS).—Election of officers for 152 was held at the monthly meeting of the Campbellford and District Fish and Game Association Thursday evening.

The executive for 1952 is: president, Russel Ayrhart; vice-president, Walter Wiggins; secretary, Lloyd Taylor; treasurer, Bert Taylor; directors, Marcus Curle, Tom Little, Leo Doherty and Edward Rutherford.

Prizes for the fishing contest conducted by the club each year were announced and distributed to the winners. Two prizes went to Oshawa men. A. R. Wood of Oshawa took first prize with a 28 pound nine ounce lunge, while Harry Hutcheson of the same city took first prize in the pickerel contest with a six-pound two-ounce fish.

Jack Lueck of Codrington was first in the speckled trout section with a two-pound, four-ounce fish and Henry Kemp of Morganston won his prize for brown trout with a four-pound one-ounce monster.

Biggest Pike

W. B. Taylor of Cambridge, Ohio, took first prize in the pike contest with a 12-pound eight-ounce beauty. President J. H. Smith distributed the prizes to the winners, and will notify the out-of-town winners of their awards.

The club voted a donation to the local Christmas Seal committee.

Secretary W. George Braham announced that the film "Meet the Ducks," which the club had booked for this meeting had been damaged and would not be available until late in January. The club decided to book the film for the January meeting.

Fred Rutherford announced plans were well under way in organizing the local youngsters for hockey teams this winter. Six teams are now assured and double headers will be played in the local arena. The Fish and Game club is sponsoring one of the teams.

Bruce Grills operated the projector for the showing of color films on wild life and the club was also shown colored movies of last year's Santa Claus Parade in Campbellford. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Grills for providing and operating the projector. The next meeting will be held late in January with the new executive in charge.

School Board Refuses To Use Re-built House

COBOURG, Nov. 30—(ENS)—Attention has been drawn to the fact that the public school board, sponsors of a move to erect a new east end school to cost $280,000, turned down the opportunity to buy a large east end residential home for around $15,000 and it was felt by some that to renovate it and put it in shape for a school would cost about $35,000.

Harvey Brent, member of the school board, explained last night that the board had looked into the east end residence very thoroughly but considered that it was not laid out, and the rooms not the right size, for use as classrooms. It was realized that the accommodation would not come up to Department of Education requirements and so the idea was abandoned.

Both Drivers In Crash Fined

Charged with not approaching an intersection as close as practical to a curb when intending to make a right hand turn, Roy V. Cooper, 774 Park St., south, was convicted and fined $5 and $5 costs in police court Thursday.

The charge was laid October 27, after Cooper was involved in a collision with a car driven by Donald Dunford, RR 3 Lakefield at Hunter and Aylmer streets.

Two charges were laid against Dunford in connection with the same accident. He was tried before Cooper and was convicted of failing to turn to the left as far as necessary to avoid a collision, and also of driving without brakes.

Dunford was fined $5 and $6.25 costs on the first charge and $10 and $2.50 costs on the second to which he pleaded guilty.

The accident occurred when Dunford tried to pass Cooper on the right hand side, just as Cooper started to turn right on to Hunter St. from Aylmer St.

Rural Increase

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30 — (ENS).—Northumberland county's rural population shows an increase of 300 since the 1941 census. The population of the nine townships and the Indian Reserve now stands at 18,696. The 1941 census figures showed a population of 18,396. The increase represents a rise of 1.6 per cent in rural population. This total does not include the population of incorporated towns and villages.

Union Drops Its Application

QUEBEC, Nov. 30 (CP)—United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America withdrew its application for certification Thursday when Quebec Labor Relations Board ruled that evidence to support a charge the union is "Communist-directed" could be introduced immediately.

The union sought bargaining rights for employees at the Westinghouse Electric Company plant in Three Rivers, Que., home-city of Premier Duplessis who, as attorney-general, opposed the application.

United Electrical Workers also dropped its contestation of an application for certification made by the rival International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (TLC-AFL).

Lawyer A. Feiner of Montreal sought a two-week postponement before introduction of evidence to support the charge his client has Communist affiliation.

He said he requested the postponement to prepare rebuttal.

Decide To Withdraw

The Labor Relations Board, headed by Judge L. C. Pelletier, considered the request during a 30-minute adjournment. It ruled that Noel Dorion, counsel representing the attorney - general, could bring his expert witnesses Thursday as scheduled.

Judge Pelletier said Mr. Feiner could then ask for a postponement to prepare counter-evidence.

Mr. Feiner conferred with his counsel, Marie-Louis Beaulieu of Montreal, and presented a statement signed by Jules Rouette, president of Local 511 of the United Electrical Workers in Three Rivers, announcing withdrawal of the application.

Firemen Answer Call

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 30 — (ENS).—Firemen responded to a call Thursday afternoon when an oil heater in a Gary St. residence became overheated and threatened to ignite the home. The situation was soon brought under control by the firemen and no property damage resulted. This was the first call the local smoke-eaters have received in some weeks.

Lovely Scum?

"One who has progressed beyond the moronic concept of the five-dollar word ('algae') can discern the music in the names which botanists give them (the algae) — Chlamydomonas, Pandorina, Asterionella, Laminaria, Corallina—to name but a few of thousands".

* * *

So wrote the Rev. Farrell E. Banim, O.M.I. of St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, to the Ottawa Journal. He referred to our editorial on algae in the Kawarthas which the Journal had reprinted on its editorial page. There may be music in the words, but the algae in the Kawarthas, by any other name, still smell the same. If Father Banim thinks it is moronic to call them "noxious, many-particled green scum", as we did in our editorial, he had better come up here and have a cup of the stuff. Perhaps he would change his tune, or have no rapturous voice left. After all, algae-laden water of the Kawarthas has killed as tough-hided animals as cows.

* * *

There is a wonder about any living thing and every aspect of nature. A man can admire the exquisite beauty of a snowflake if he is not buried in six feet of them in sub-zero weather. A scientist can become entranced over a slice of diseased liver viewed under a microscope—provided it is not his liver. An objective botanist can take pleasure in an alga particle masquerading under the name Pandorina, if he is in his study in Ottawa and not grieving from his cottage lot on Pigeon Lake as he surveys the algae mucking up formerly clear water.

* * *

We do not expect farmers whose valuable cattle have been killed to wax lyrical over Asterionella and Laminaria—perhaps the vicious kinds of algae (pond scum and seaweed) infiltrating into the Kawarthas do not have such fancy names. But whatever the names of the Kawartha plankton, and even though algae may help reduce carbon dioxide in the water and restore oxygen to it, we in Peterborough cannot be calmly detached about algae.

* * *

This polluting stuff is destroying swimming and boating on our beautiful lakes; it is killing animals and is, we suspect, very dangerous to human life. It is a threat to the tourist business of this district. It is spreading through the whole chain of the lakes, and staying in the water for five months; not as formerly for a few weeks in a back bay of a lake or two. Scientists and experts of the various Federal and Provincial departments which ought to be concerned seem to be sitting back with folded hands and saying: "Nothing can be done". Under these circumstances, does the reverend gentleman in Ottawa expect us to meekly admire algae?

* * *

He asks: "Maybe the joke's on me. Was this article written by a botanist with a flair for exciting the astonishment of the vulgar?" It was not written by a botanist. It was not written to astonish the vulgar (how excited the Rev. Mr. Banim is!) It was written to call attention to a very serious situation. It was written out of exasperation with scientists and officials who are doing nothing to remedy the situation. Come up to Peterborough, Reverend Sir, and you'll find out who the joke's on. We'll not guarantee that you'll die laughing.

Housing In Fiji And Cooking In Iraq

Although we could not pretend that our advice would be any good to him; we would not mind being a cup-bearer to Professor Thysse of the University of Indonesia in the coming cold December days. Professor Thysse is an authority on tropical housing and has recently begun a survey of the Cook Islands, Samoa, Fiji, New Caledonia, Papua and New Guinea for the South Pacific Commission. The South Pacific is just coming into full summer. How dulcet to sit now under a coconut tree with Professor Thysse's cup while he wrote his notes on the type of building best suited to houses, schools, community halls and food storage sheds in these islands.

Civilized humanity has a powerful passion for improving the lot of the uncivilized; technicians for making the benefits of their techniques available to the technically uninitiated. We have no doubt that Professor Thysse will make valuable recommendations on converting bamboo into cement blocks. But it would be interesting, particularly at this time of year in cold Canada and warm South Pacific, to see for oneself the old ways before they pass under progress.

If Professor Thysse would not have us around, perhaps we could elbow into Miss Margaret Hockin's party in Dujailah, Iraq. The weather there at this time of year is gentle. Dr. Hockin, a Canadian home economist (how far from home she now is!) and international authority on rural welfare, has begun her work with the Iraqui Government as a member of the U.N.E.S.C.O. mission. Landless tenant farmers are being resettled on newly irrigated tracts, and Miss Hockin is going to teach teachers how to teach them to cook. It would have been amusing to have been her cook-book-bearer.

But no. Professor Thysse and Miss Hockin prepare to sweat it out without assistance from us in far Fiji and Iraq. We must prepare to freeze it out here in Canada. It's Fate.

In Praise Of Hats

Much as we admire our contemporary, the Lethbridge Herald, we feel that it is unsound on the subject of hats. It has recently pointed out that the Duke of Edinburgh seldom wore a hat during his visit to Canada and expresses approval of the Duke on this count. It points out that Indians and cavemen did not wear hats, and did not appear to suffer in consequence. It says: "Are hats really necessary, or are they just made to seem so by some very astute clothing manufacturers?"

We speak in defence of the hat. No doubt we shall be accused of being in the pay of the hat cartel, just as we are accused of being in the pay of the distillers whenever we suggest, mildly, that not all people who take a drink become axe-murderers, hit-and-run drivers, and sex-fiends. However, we are ready to suffer in a good cause.

First, we approve of hats because they keep the head clean. If a man's hair is exposed at all times, and in all weathers, it coarsens, bleaches, and catches dust and grit. The Duke of Edinburgh, we are sure washes his hair frequently, but we know many other hat-eschewers who do not do so.

Second, we like hats because they are useful for raising to ladies and other acquaintances. A man without a hat is a casual waver—a "Hiya babe!" type; a man with a hat moves in the tradition of the old cavaliers, who were able to express approval or disapproval of those about them by removing or retaining their hats.

We like hats because they are capable of expressing the character of the wearer, ranging from the felt pot de chambre worn by Milquetoasts to the minatory black Homburg and the racy snap-brim felt; out in Lethbridge they can, if they like, wear magnificent sombreros. We would like to see a revival of the fur cap for winter. We admire the nonchalant Panama of summer. We even like top hats, though few men wear them with style.

We like hats, and we are disappointed in the Lethbridge Herald.

To Shoot Or Not To Shoot

There is a pother in the Pentagon because an unofficial cease-fire happened in Korea before the official armistice. Perhaps the problem is not that the troops stopped shooting to kill but that the people back home heard about it.

It is senseless and inhuman to expect battle-line men to risk their lives, or even to fire in anger at an enemy during a time when an official cease-fire is being worked out. As we said three days ago, before we had news that the front had become quiet, some informal method of silencing guns and grounding bombers should be found during the weeks leading to final and formal armistice. Such an impromptu silencing of weapons was achieved, but apparently to the consternation of Washington. What are required now are orders to stand fast, to maintain alert watch, and only to fire if fired on. That tided Canadian troops over the last ten days in Holland before the capitulation of the Germans. It should be possible in Korea. We suspect that such orders have been given, and that the present fuss is political camouflage to fluster the Chinese Red negotiators. The biggest noises are now being made in Washington, not in Korea by artillery.

Dialling Beyond Peterborough

Peterborough is in the van of a remarkable new system of telephone communication with distant points. As announced in our news columns yesterday, a new direct dialling network for out-of-town calls has been installed at the Bell exchange in Peterborough. The operator merely dials the Lindsay or Port Hope number, without the intermediary of a Lindsay or Port Hope operator. Oshawa and Ottawa will be added to the local direct system; and we may expect that telephone numbers even in larger and more distant centres will soon come within reach of the tentacles of the Peterborough exchange.

This new method is already in experimental operation with a continental breadth in the United States. A suburb of New York has been directly linked with San Francisco. A person in this New York suburb can make a call to the West Coast as quickly and almost as directly as he dials a neighbour a block away.

Soon, it seems, a man will be able to get no farther away from the sounds of his office or family, whether he goes to British Columbia or British Honduras, than he is from a squalling baby in the next room.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

DEAR ALPHA: Do you know of any other Canadian city of 35,000 or more inhabitants where the bus and train services in the evening are as inadequate as they are in Peterborough? For instance, supposing you wanted transportation to Toronto in the evening, say after six o'clock. What would you do? Hitch-hike? Sunday evening is the only evening of the week as far as I know when transportation is available for the public.

RESPONSE: This cri de coeur has a warm echo from Alpha's heart. There is, additional to the lack of trains, a disdain of public convenience regarding the trains that do run. I have a complaint from another reader about his having had to wait at the station an entire hour last week to put a guest on the Toronto-Montreal train at two a.m. Nobody at the station seemed to know or care ahead of time whether the train was late; and when it was actually very late, had no idea when it would arrive.

GOLDEN RECEPTION: Jean Casadesus, the pianist, son of the illustrious French Chopin interpreter Robert Casadesus, was in town last night for a concert. He told me of being received in a small Texan town last year—Victoria—where he was giving a recital. Before leaving New York, he had had a letter saying that the hotel was not good and that a Mrs. X would put him up. At the station he was met by Mrs. X. Used as he is to meeting strangers, he was rather flabbergasted at this hand-shake. Mrs. X introduced herself with a smile, which was all gold—both uppers and lowers.

Two Mexican servants in grey livery took his bags. They crossed the tracks to the waiting car, which was a Rolls-Royce, done in grey to match the livery. They passed through a small succession of mean streets and scrawny huts into a succession of large estates with replicas of French chateux and Italian palazzi built thereon. Into one of these the Mrs. X. car was veered.

The mouth of gold informed Mr. Casadesus that Victoria had the distinction of having more millionaires per capita than any other place: 500 millionaires in a population of 15,000. Most of the other 14,500 inhabitants are servants to the five hundred.

A reception was held after the concert, Mrs. X. being at the head of the receiving line. Mrs. X. would say "Mr. and Mrs. Schlapps—Mr. Casadesus", and whisper in his ear as they passed "16 millions". "Mr. and Mrs. Hunkerdunker—Mr. Casadesus", and turn and whisper "2 millions". "Mr. and Mrs. Oiloroso"—whispering "11 millions".

A glittering party, a golden time. After telling this story and another too recherche for this column, Mr. Casadesus mildly remarked that manners and morals in America are remarkable.

FIFTY ORANGEY DOLLARS: Last week, I saw a fifty dollar bill for the first time in my life. In fact, I became its proud possessor. This is how it happened. I had been saving a dollar a week ever since learning that my old regiment would be sent to Korea. If it was still there by Christmas, I would send it a case of Chianti cheer, in remembrance of the vineyards of Italy where the regiment had been in 1945-45. Last Saturday, the sum reached $50. I wanted to send it all in one magnificent $50 bill to the regimental Hq. in Canada, with instructions about the Chianti.

In my innocence, I imagined that $50 bills were rare. I walked importantly into the bank and said to a teller: "I want a clean, crisp $50 bill" and planked down my fifty dog-eared ones. (Actually, I wasn't quite sure that such a grand thing as a fifty existed.)

I proudly thought: "That's going to set the whole bank a-titter". I imagined the teller calling the other three tellers; a quick conference with respectful glances towards me; then a summons to the manager who would bow and scrape and then go himself into some secret vault where one or two $50 bills were stored in case of unusual demands like mine.

But no. No huddle of tellers, no obsequious manager bowing me into his private office. And no foray to a secret vault. The young teller said offhand (painfully offhand): "Yes, sir". He opened his usual drawer and pulled out a wad of bills three inches thick. Every magic one of them a fifty! They might merely have been a pile like my fifty Ones! He ruffled the pile carelessly, nipped out from it a clean bill, and gave it to me. I clutched it and crept out of the bank. Was a wad of fifties as large as that in each teller's drawer? If so, big money must be pretty easy for many people in this town and district.

BACK HOME, I looked at the fifty reverently. It is orangey in colour: half-way between the pinkish ten and the brownish two. The obverse side of it is exactly the same (except for the figures) as the one, two, ten, etc. (that's as high as my familiarity with bills rises.) The reverse side is different.

The One has a diaphanously dressed plumpish wench sitting on a chair (of justice?) with a rake, a hoe and a pitch-fork over the arms. She is probably the Canadian Homemaker. The Two has a darker, more slender dame sitting on an overflowing urn of fruits of field and vine and cabbage-patch: she may be the Unspoilt Canadian Beauty. The female dollar deification is left off the Ten. It shows a classical sort of fellow, a hybrid of Mercury, a miner and an undressed young teller; muscular of belly, austere of countenance; with a background of ships in the St. Lawrence and a new Toronto subway train emerging above ground. He is probably the bright-eyed, earnest Canadian Bread-Winner.

The Fifty goes back to wenches. This time she is a forceful matron—the kind that probably has a well-heeled husband or personal income. She is rather scantily clad in a 19th century version of Grecian flowing gown, although better covered than the ten dollar male. She looks as if she belonged in the $50 bill class, despite her short hair. Maybe she is Pompismilke, the wife of Midas, or a career woman making a good job of social service work, higher society or Hedda Hopperish newscasting. As a matter of fact, she has a scroll in her hands and is broadcasting into a microphone. Perhaps she was once mayor of Bytown.

Banks have a mania for classical mimicry, from their Augustine porticos to the bills in their tills. Is this to give the almightly dollar a Jovian antiquity, a Delphic respectability?

I hope the troops in Korea enjoy their vino as much as I have treasured my brief look at the $50 bill—'Cinquante Dollars' it reads beneath the poised lady's feet.

THIN WEEK: Unless more questions come in to Alpha this column is going to be pretty skinny next week. I'm even running out of notes.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE RECORD: The Hon. Harold Scott was returned to the Ontario Legislature a week ago Thursday with his biggest poll yet; Alderman Hugh Waddell is to be our next Mayor, no one having opposed his candidature; and the weather has gone soft again, after a strenuous winter opening at the end of October. In the two weeks of the deer hunt in this district, 1,164 deer were shot officially. How many were shot at is not recorded.

Ike's Answer

Ancestor-Hunting In Britain

(FROM "ANSWERS" LONDON)

WHEN Walter Gifford, the new United States ambassador, stepped ashore at Southampton he smilingly told welcoming officials that he was determined to trace his Scottish ancestry during his stay in Britain. He's just one of 120,000 Americans who this year are blending business and tourism with the fun of hunting their ancestors.

At the modern office headquarters of the Society of Genealogists, in Bloomsbury, transatlantic searchers thumb through a card index of three million families, tracing references that lead to 11,000 parish registers and the 30,000 volumes of family history and thousands of precious manuscripts in the society's library.

For 10 shillings an American visitor can do a day's personal research for himself. Or for two guineas a day he can have the skilled help of an expert, adept in reading the crabbed handwriting and misspelling of archaic script, probing the roots of a family tree back to 1538—the date of the earliest parish registers—or beyond.

One American spends £400 a year on his ancestry, tracing not merely the male line but seeking out less direct branches in the hope of proving kinship with the figures of history. A Tennessee librarian who discovered his descent from Lady Godiva spent £1,000 on an eight-day flying trip to Coventry to lay a bouquet at the foot of her statue.

✧ ✧ ✧

GREAT-great-grandfather, in fact, is in a gold rush. Our ancestors are earning dollars and professional searchers and copyists of medieval manuscripts are working overtime to cope with this boom in our forebears.

There's even a brisk mail order trade in family trees. Often beautifully inscribed on parchment with rich coats of arms, few exports meet with a readier welcome.

A Boston businessman confessed that his wife was "sorely troubled" by neighbours who boasted descent from one of the founders of the American republic. A member of the Society of Genealogists was able to show his descent from Richard Warren, a boy who sailed with the Pilgrim Fathers on the Mayflower. The Boston client was so delighted that he doubled the fees.

Not long ago, 78-year-old Miss Mabel Taylor flew in from Philadelphia determined to spend six months tracing the history of the entire Taylor clan. So well sign-posted are the ancestral trails that she completed her essential task within a fortnight.

Faster still, John Shakespeare Hart, of Illinois, traced his kinship with William Shakespeare so quickly that within 11 days he found himself shaking hands with his distant cousin, Harold Hart, a West Wycombe engineer whose "nine greats" grandmother was the playwright's sister. No less delighted was a Kansas man named Pedlingham, who learned that the Pedlinghams are Britain's most exclusive family. Only 40 or 50 members are known in the world.

Ancester hunting, in fact gives value for money. Everyone can claim blue blood—as well as an occasional blot on the escutcheon—and most people are related to royalty.

✧ ✧ ✧

PROUD of her connections with George Washington, a Mrs. Porteous discovered that the Queen herself is also related to Washington through the Porteous branch of the Bowes-Lyons. The president of an apple brandy firm knew that he stemmed from three brothers who left a whisky distillery in the Highlands in 1667 to sail to America. During a short vacation he not only proved his ancestry but traced the actual family distillery.

Genealogy is not snobbery. It's fun to trace your great-great-grandfather, even if he was hanged for sheep stealing or banished for life. Bond street art agents win big profits with ancestral portraits, often from quiet country homes, which find ready American buyers once a "link" is authenticated.

But currently the biggest spender is the Mormon Church, which insists that all its dead ancestors should be baptized by proxy. Throughout Europe 17 microfilm crews are methodically combing the registers to trace the ancestors of present-day Mormons.

In the great temple in Salt Lake City, stand-ins are baptized for their ancestors, day in, day out. One man has undergone 3,000 baptisms, and the queue at the front already reaches back to the year 1320.

How Small We Are

(Fort William Times-Journal)

Anyone suffering from a big head and a well-developed case of self-importance can find an antidote by checking in with the National Geographic Society in the United States. That organization is taking part in a "sky survey" at Palomar Observatory in California.

Dr. Albert G. Wilson, in charge of the work, estimates the number of stars in the Milky Way galaxy, to which the sun belongs, as between 200,000,000,000 and 300,000,000,000 —"just about as many as there are dollars in the national debt."

But, he says, "there may be well over 1,000,000,000" such star systems. That being the case, he concluded:

"The final figure on how many stars, if it could be computed, would be so large as to be meaningless."

When a man is set up against the background of the universe, he becomes something less than an infinitesimal speck.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Keep thy heart with all diligence: for out of it are the issues of life . . . Turn not to the right hand nor to the left, remove thy foot from evil. (Prov. 4: 23, 27.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou are also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses. (I Tim. 6: 12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For we know in part, and we prophesy in part. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away. For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known. (I Cor. 13: 9, 10, 12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. For in this we groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven. (II Cor. 5: 1, 2.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The dentist in a mountain town looked sympathetically at his patient and said: "I'm sorry, Zeke, that it was necessary to extract your front teeth, but——"

"Hit's all right, Doc," lisped the bearded mountaineer. "Shucks! I learnt to pull jug corks with a knife blade when I lost my first teeth."

One girl seemed to be just what the film producer interviewing applicants for the heroine's part, wanted.

"Yes, you're just what we need," he told her. "Right face, right colouring, right voice, everything called for in the part. By the way, what salary are you expecting?"

The girl named her figure.

"Sorry", said the producer, hurriedly, "you're too tall."

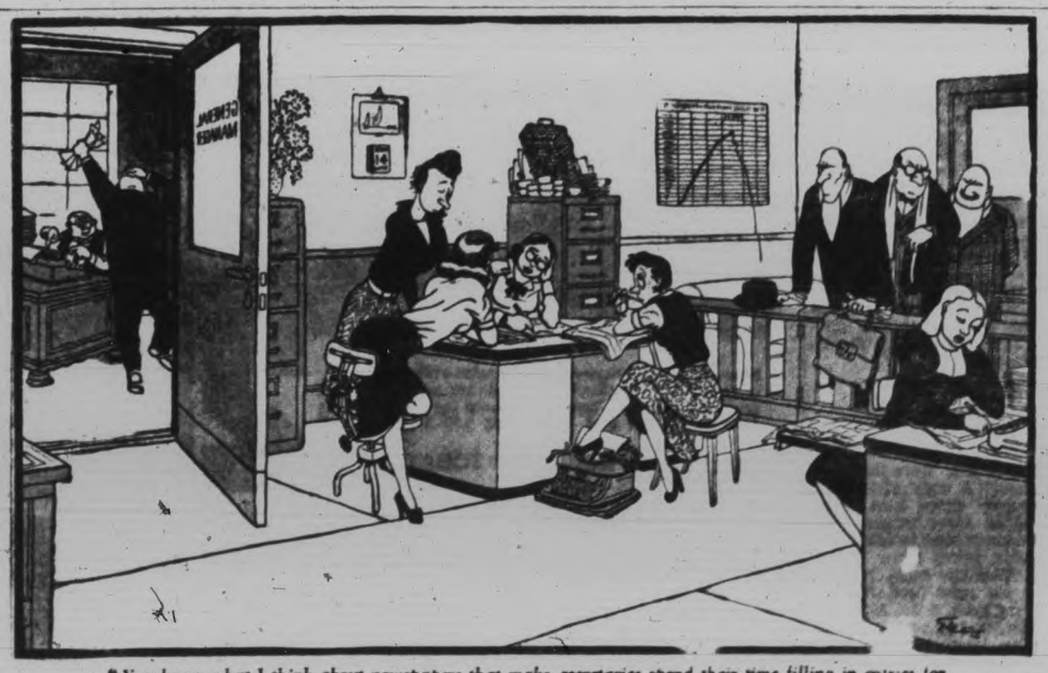
In a crowded store two shoppers met. The woman, a haughty dowager type, stepped to her left to go round a grey-haired, dignified man who was approaching. He, having the same idea, stepped to his right, and they stood face to face. Their next attempt at getting round each other had the same result.

The man sighed, shook his head in a defeated manner, and announced "Madam, if you'll just stand still, I'll jump over you."

Agnostics In Canada



(Letter to the Ottawa Citizen)

Editor, Citizen: Many of my friends, who have studied philosophy and religion quite extensively, are agnostics, and I feel sure there are a great many rationally thinking Canadians who hold similar views. I am afraid, however, that the "statistics" to be provided by this year's census will indicate that there are no such persons in Canada. That is, if the methods used here are an indication of those used throughout the Dominion. The agent who recorded my own vital statistics for the census called during normal working hours, and requested the information from my wife. When she gave him my religion as agnostic, he informed her that there was no space provided on the questionnaire for agnostics or atheists. My religion, he said, would have to be recorded as one of those "accepted" by the department, and the space provided could not be left vacant. He declined an invitation to return later when I would be at home.

When Mr. Mason is provided with statistics, he will certainly have a strong argument against some of Mr. Williams' statements, but can we truthfully say how many agnostics and atheists, thinking or otherwise, live in Canada when we officially deny them existence?

Weaved On Road Caused First Of 3 Collisions

By weaving across the centre of the highway into oncoming traffic, Arthur Druce, 66, of 221 Brock St., caused the first of three collisions involving four cars on Thanksgiving night, Magistrate W. R. Philp ruled in police court Thursday afternoon in finding Druce guilty of dangerous driving.

Druce was fined $25 and $104.35 on the charge.

The accident occurred the evening of October 8 on Highway 28, about a mile and a half southwest of the city.

Druce was driving towards Peterborough when he collided with a westbound car driven by Charles G. Harvey, 28 Bellhaven Rd., Toronto. Druce's car sideswiped the car driven by Harvey and came to rest after striking a car travelling behind Harvey driven by Robert Bennie, 78 Horsham St., Willowdale.

Hit Eastbound Car

After being hit, the car driven by Harvey went out of control and collided with an eastbound car driven by Kenneth Rappell, 483 McLaren St., Ottawa. No one was seriously injured in the series of crashes.

Alvin Nesbitt, 31 Conger St., travelling east between Rappell and Druce managed to avoid the accident. He testified he had followed Druce for about three quarters of a mile before the accident at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. "During that time he crossed the centre line a few times and weaved back over towards the shoulder. Just before the accident I saw the car cross the centre line, then it collided with a westbound car," Nesbitt said.

Started Tuesday

Part of the crown's case was heard on Tuesday afternoon so out-of-town witnesses from Toronto and Ottawa could give their evidence without having to return when the case was completed Thursday.

Driving towards Peterborough in a line of traffic, Rappell said he could see cars passing the car holding up the procession until there was only one car between him and the car ahead.

"As we approached, I could see him zig-zagging on his own side of the road. Then I saw the leading car cross the centre line, it didn't come back. There was a terrific crash A car travelling in a westerly direction hit mine."

Druce said he "might have been close to the line but I don't think at any time I was over the line." He had trouble from Bewdley on, he said, with lights shining through the rear window of his car and reflecting in his rear view mirror. Also, he said, the lights of oncoming cars had bothered him.

"All the evidence indicates the accused was trying to get home and was completely aware of and respecting the rights of others," said Mr. Carley in urging an acquittal.

Holding Up Traffic

Mr. Bradshaw argued that Druce showed "gross culpability and negligence in driving over many miles knowing he was holding up traffic. Knowing he was having difficulty with lights, he should have stopped."

In convicting Druce, Magistrate Philp said that in driving in the manner he did for some miles, and by crossing into the path of oncoming traffic, thereby causing the first collision, Druce's driving was dangerous within the meaning of the charge.

Return To Work

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 30 — (Reuters)—Five thousand meat-packing workers, whose strike earlier this week threatened Britain's Christmas meat supply, will go back to work today at Berisso, near here. A further 6,000 strikers at another plant will return to work Monday, the Meat Workers' Federation decided Thursday. Three weeks ago workers at the Swift packing plant objected when women were hired. They were locked out. Then 5,000 employees at Armour's went out in a sympathy strike.

Tax Collector Trouble

HONG KONG, Nov. 30 (AP)— The Chinese Communists are having troubles with income tax collectors. Reports from South China said officials have appealed for help in exposing and correcting "corrupt and degenerate" tax officials and unscrupulous merchants. First results: two senior tax officers were executed.

Reds Can't Join Guard

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Reuters)— War Minister Anthony Head Thursday night told the House of Commons the government will bar Communists and fellow-travellers from joining Britain's new home guard.

HELD IN MURDER—Turnkey Alexis Boucher, left, escorts Leo Bertrand of Ottawa through Hull courthouse halls following his arangement on a formal charge of murder. He was charged after a coroner's jury found him "criminally responsible" for the Nov. 10 death of his wife in a flaming hunting cabin in the Gatineau Hills.

Ravenna in Italy in ancient times was a port on the Adriatic but owing to the sea receding, now is about six miles inland.

Ask Ottawa Abandon Annuity Sale

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 —(CP)—A request that the federal government abandon the sale of annuities was made today by the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association.

The request was contained in a 2,000-word brief submitted to the Commons committee on industrial relations, studying proposed changes to the government annuities act.

The association, whose membership includes 64 Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies conducting business in Canada, suggested that the need for government annuities has largely disappeared with adoption of the $40-a-month universal old-age pension.

The association said that if parliament decides that the government should continue to sell annuities, then they should be sold at self-supporting premium rates; the maximum amount of the annuity should be decreased, and no cash surrender privilege should be granted.

Subsidizes Sale

In the bill before the committee, the government proposes to increase the maximum amount of an individual annuity to $2,400 from $1,200. It also provides for a cash surrender privilege in some cases.

The association said the government now "subsidizes" the sale of annuities. The government bore the $800,000 cost of administering the government annuities act.

The subsidy meant that taxpayers as a whole were providing cheap annuities for people, mainly in the well-to-do class.

"It is not a proper function of government to subsidize a small part of the population at the expense of the general taxpayer, especially when many members of that part are better able to take care of themselves than is the average Canadian," the brief said.

Annuity rates of insurance companies are from five to 15 per cent higher than the government rates, partly due to more active merchandising and servicing and partly due to subsidy.

"The people of Canada, with few exceptions, are unaware of the actual reasons for this rate differential and erroneously conclude that the companies are either making excessive profits or operating inefficiently."

Denies Misconduct

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Nov. 30 (AP)—Janis Carter, once ballyhooed as the actress with the "bedroom eyes," Thursday denied charges of boudoir misconduct with film executive Noah Dietrich, 62. Miss Carter, 30, was named the other woman in a separate-maintenance suit filed by Mrs. Carol Dietrich.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Injuries are taking their toll already of our senior "B" puck squads. Joe Rochetta is out for the season; George Steele is through for a spell, and Chum Fryia is a doubtful starter here tonight. It's Petes vs. Eagles at 8.30 this eve in Civic Arena, another of those OHA senior classics. Bitter rivals since right after the last war, these teams dish up more hard hockey against each other than against Belleville or Kingston clubs. They love to drub one another. And every win is most important now, as all four group teams are closely bunched in a hot race. This Friday fray will pack in the hockey fans again, and they're guaranteed steaming action.

* * * * * *

Scribe George Carver seems to enjoy this rivalry, as he pens: "The hockey civil war rolls merrily on up in Peterborough. The keen rivalry of recent years between Petes and Eagles appears to have reached an all-time high, as the boys battle on and off the ice, and in committee and OHA conclaves. They may have to appoint a truce committee or declare George St. a buffer state, if the hostilities get any hotter. There's no panty-waist stuff handed out in district senior 'B' play this season. In five games between Belleville and other teams, 68 penalties have been handed out. In these days a period with less than five players serving in the hoosegow is something for the record." Alas, yes.

* * * * * *

An Oldtimer Returns

Ed Renton dropped in yesterday. He's stopping a week or so at the Empress and would like to see old friends. He left Peterborough in 1913, having been a fine all-around athlete, moving to Fort William to play senior hockey. Went then to the Pacific Coast for hockey and basketball, later buying a hotel in Penetang. Sold it last summer and has retired. Used to play second in ball and was rover in hockey here in the days of Ernie Wasson, Rollie Glover, Bill Crowley, Mel Moore, Fred Whitcroft, Harry Morgan, Chris Graham, Bill Cavanah, and others. A top sprinter, he won the YMCA field day championship just before leaving this city.

* * * * * *

While here the other night to referee a wrestling match, Jack Dempsey remarked that too few promising heavyweight fighters were coming up. They just aren't "hungry" enough. He drew $2.50 for his first pro fight, he said, and thought he was over-paid! Guess times are too good now. In his early 50s now and scaling 225—some 30 pounds over his fighting weight—he nearly ruined a young heavy in Toronto the other day when demonstrating short blows to the body. He made the million-dollar gate because he was a kayo puncher who always bored in, rather than a fancy boxer. The average fan wants to see a killer in the ring, and Dempsey was just that. He's conducting a mitt tourney in Toronto next Monday.

* * * * * *

Cook Compiled 'Em

OHA member Lorne Cook of Kingston sends along some senior "B" hockey scoring statistics to Nov. 28, showing Don Murray of Kingston leading with 13 points. One more than Vern Goyer of Belleville. Best local mark is that of Bert Hill of Eagles with nine. Goyer leads in penalties, too, with 14 minutes, and teammate MacDonald has served 10 minutes. Kingston took a 9-5 win o'er the Hawks the other night to move into a second-place tie with Eagles, each having four points to date. Belleville has six and the Petes two at the moment. Next Wednesday sees Belleville vs. Eagles here, and the Petes in Kingston. IOOF juniors are at home Monday to Kingston Vics.

A goodly gallery at the arena last gloaming to see six lively PMHA games. Lakefield and Marines tied in one juvenile joust, IOOF edged Trojans in another, Martin-Hewitt midgets won from Trojans, St. Peter's midgets beat Snowbirds, Otonabee Wolves won their bantam game from Lions, Marines in the last second of play of a rugged match, and it and St. Peter's bantams blanked Trojans. Lakefield tied the touched off some fireworks. Wound up in Goalie Delahaye of Marines drawing a match misconduct penalty which means a suspension till his case is dealt with by the executive. That'll be Monday night. We're told to warn PMHA coaches, managers, refs and players that the executive will clamps down hard on rough play and profanity.

Cincinnati Mohawks Whip Syracuse 3-2

CINCINNATI, Nov. 30 (CP).—The rampaging Cincinnati Mohawks bounced back into a second-place tie with St. Louis in the western division of the American Hockey League Thursday night whipping Syracuse 3-2.

The Warriors lost their eighth straight game when Cincinnati's Chick Webster fired the winning goal at 12:41 of the final period.

Buddy O'Connor plunked in the first Mohawk counter in the opening period and Jackie McLeod, who joined Cincinnati from New York Rangers just four hours before game-time, followed with the second tally.

Syracuse got one goal back on Ken Hayden's screen shot in the second and tied the score at 2-2 in the third on Armand Lemieux's shot before plunging to defeat.

Marine Cagers Set To Go This Weekend

Coach Gord McIntyre will lead his Marines into the first game at the Eastern Ontario Amateur Basketball Association Saturday night at the YMCA when they are hosts to the Belleville Glen Boys.

Last year, Marines played in the lakeshore league and went undefeated. They entered the intermediate "B" playdowns and continued through to the Ontario semi-finals.

This year they decided to enter the Eastern Ontario League where the teams are stronger and the schedule slightly longer, beginning before Christmas.

Strong last year in the intermediate "B" grouping, also defeating Belleville along the playdown trail, the Marines have strengthened further this year with several new additions.

Good Defence

The rear guard line will be strong this year with the addition of former PCVS star Harold Grafstein. He will be working with stalwarts Rocky Kidd, Doug McPherson, Bill Trimm and Bill Dadson.

Up front, direct from the PCVS Garnet and Greys, Neil Thompson, starry forward with Coach Bev Goulding's senior cagers last year, will add to the scoring power. He played several games last year, sparking the team in each with high scoring efforts.

Thompson's speed will be matched by Ted Payne and his experience by Jim Thorburn. Payne and Thorburn throughout last season's play racked up an average of 18 points a game, a record in any league.

In Good Shape

The Belleville Glen Roys, coached by Bill Spafford, were a stronger team last season and according to press reports are "one of the strongest aggregations to represent Belleville in some time." They have been drilling for a month.

But Coach McIntyre reports also that the Marines "are one of the best I have ever seen in local circles."

Besides the Peterborough and Belleville teams there are entries from Trenton, the RCAF Flyers, and from Picton, the Athletics.

The playoff series will be between the first and second teams and will be played in best-of-three games, the first team having the choice of home floor. In case of a tie for second place, or a triple tie, sudden-death games will be played.

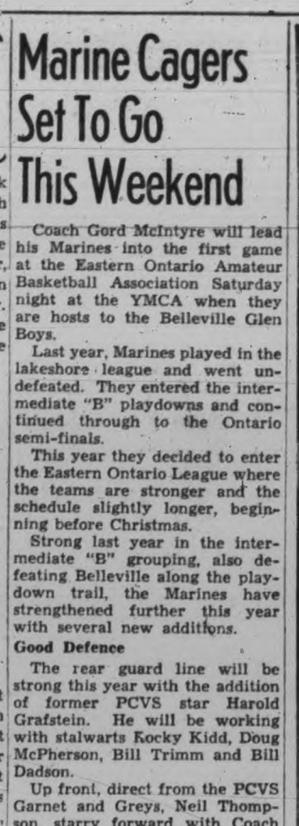
On Tuesday the Marines have their first game away when they play the Flyers in Trenton.

Rickey Fights High School Rule

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 30 (AP).—Branch Rickey is going to baseball's minor league annual meeting with a determination to get the high school rule changed.

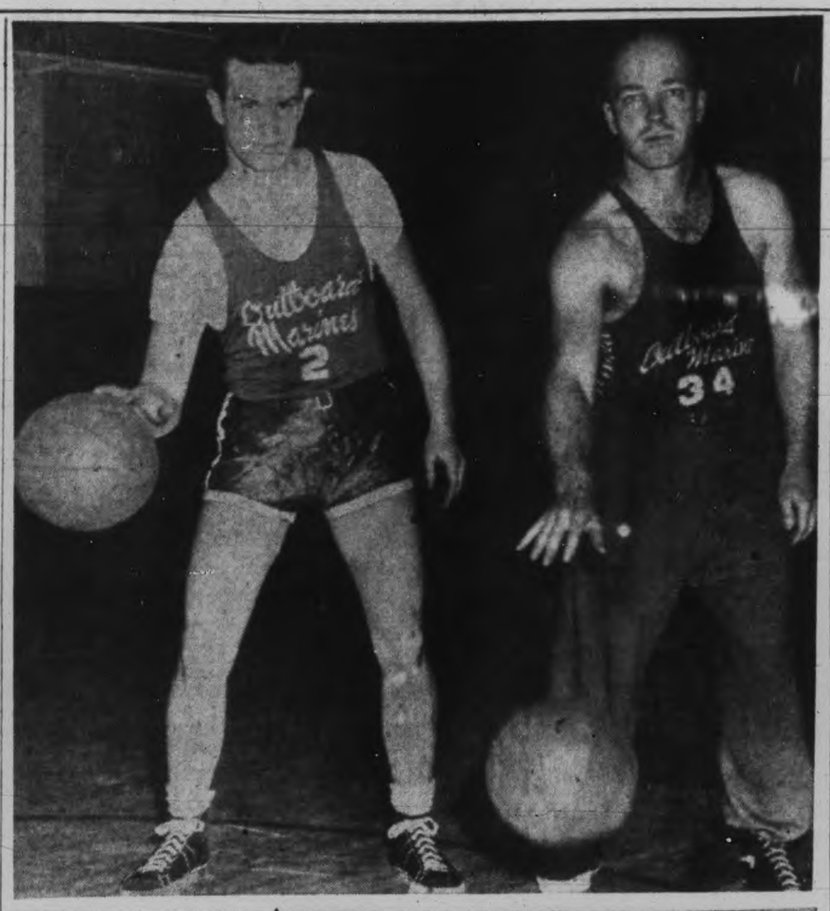
Rickey, engaged in the terrific job of trying to rebuild the Pittsburgh Pirates into a pennant-winning club, says a manager should be able to sign a high school youth to a contract.

The present rule forbids a manager from even talking business with a high school student. Rickey says the law is being violated — and often.



He thinks a proposed amendment to the rule that would permit baseball's front office to have a heart-to-heart talk with a high school boy, but forbids a contract, is equally ridiculous.

The old Mahatma is preparing for a stiff campaign at the minor league meeting in Columbus next week to make it legal to sign a high school boy but not to pay him or play him.



Rickey says he's going to work just as hard for the change at the major league meeting which comes a few days later, in New York.

"I believe the high schools must come to a different definition of amateurism" says Rickey. "I believe the parents with the cooperation of their sons should not be deprived of the right to make contracts for future services."

Rule Medhurst Ineligible Play

PORT HOPE, Nov. 30 (CP). — Ken Medhurst, a member of the Port Hope Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate "A" club, has been ruled ineligible under the OHA residence rules and a game he helped Port Hope to win against Cobourg has been ordered replayed.

Cobourg originally protested against Medhurst and Bernie Flesch. An OHA sub-committee ruled Flesch ineligible.

Medhurst lives in Port Hope, but is working in Cobourg. The OHA rules state that a player must live and work where he plays hockey.

Port Hope will protest the Medhurst decision. Team officials said other teams in the Lakeshore group have players under the same circumstances.

By The Canadian Press

Joe Louis, an up and coming young fighter making his 11th professional start, knocked out Charley Massera in three rounds at Detroit, 17 years ago tonight. The Brown Bomber collected $1,100 for that fight, compared to the big gates in which he shared after winning the world heavyweight crown three years later in 1937.

ONE UP AND ONE DOWN—Just as Harold Grafstein and Doug McPherson (left to right, top photo) of the Peterborough Marines are dribbling in practice Thursday at PCVS, the Marines hope to meet and defeat Belleville Glen Roys Saturday at the YMCA. It will be the first game of the Eastern Ontario (western section) league. Added scoring punch will be supplied this year by Neil Thompson (lower photo), last year a scoring star for PCVS' senior Garnet and Greys.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Lakefield Ties Marines As Goalie Gets Penalty

Lakefield juveniles tied Marines 2-2 last night in the PMHA play at Civic Arena, scoring the tying goal in the last second of play. Goalie Delahaye of Marines was handed a match misconduct penalty for abusive language to the referee for swinging his glove at the official as he left the ice. His case will be dealt with by the executive Monday night. The game was rough with Marines drawing seven of the 10 penalties.

Oddfellows edged Trojans 4-3 in their juvenile joust in a clean hard-fought fixture between good clubs. Doris, Cupoli, Allan and Chapman scored for the winners, while Sidey, Gell, and Clarke clicked for Trojans. The winners drew two of three penalties.

Martin-Hewitt midgets took a 4-1 win over Trojans in a lively fray, Trojans suffering from nine penalties and the winners three. Heffernan counted two for them, aided once by Floyd, the latter also tallying, and Strickland notching another from Chamberlain. For Trojans, McFadden was the sniper.

Several Fights

St. Peter's midgets were victorious 3-1 over Snowbirds in a game marked by several fights. SPS drew five penalties and the Snowbirds got six. Ferren hit the mark twice for the Saints and Garvey once, while Ruttan counted for Snowbirds on a pass from McMillan.

Otonabee Wolves downed Lions bantams 4-1 in fast stepping by the boys, Gary Lonsberry sank two for the Wolves, with Gary Darling and George Heron getting the others. Eric Batten had two assists, and Bob Revoy and Gary Darling one each. Chesney got the Lions' goal from Murphy. The winners drew three of the four penalties.

St. Peter's bantams blanked Trojans 3-0 with some neat goaltending seen. Forestell scored twice for the winners, aided once by Crowe, as Johnston got the other from Coombs. Trojans had four penalties and St. Peter's two.

Aitken and Gatlin, of Kingston, have 11 scoring points each and teammate McGregor 10. Desjardin, of Belleville, MacDonald of the same team and Hill of Eagles are next with nine points each. Barrett of Hawks and Stewart of Eagles each have seven, while six each go to Vitarelli of Eagles, Jones of Belleville, and White and Tinkess of Kingston. Five apiece go to F. Mortimer and Brabin of Eagles, Fryia and Mason of Petes, and Larmer of Kingston.

Lindsay Muskies In First Place

LINDSAY, Nov. 30.—Despite a heavy opening week schedule of four games in six days, Lindsay Muskies are sitting on top of the OHA Intermediate "A" Lakeshore League with three victories.

Led by former Peterborough senior playing coach Al Burns, the youthful Muskies finished up their busy card of games with a 7-2 clean-cup win over Port Hope Redmen, who are presently tied for second place with Cobourg Comets with one win in three games. The locals received their only setback from the Comets, while Port Hope's lone win came against Cobourg.

The other two entries in the five-team league, the artificial iceless Bowmanville Imps and Lakefield Indians, don't open up until December. Another ex-Peterborough Eagle, Sixty Coombs, is leading the league in scoring with six goals and five assists for 11 points—one better than Muskie mate, rugged Bob Lewis, who has seven markers. Linemate Vic Corley completes the scoring monopoly with three goals and six assists.

Montreal Fans Very Happy Canadiens Whip Leafs 5-1, Richard Hero With 2 Goals

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal hockey fans whose special delights are watching Maurice Richard scoring goals and Canadiens whipping the bejabers out of Toronto Maple Leafs, today are chortling in their coffee cups. They've just had a double dose of cheer. Their beloved Canadiens snapped a three-game National Hockey League losing streak with a thumping 5-1 home victory over the Leafs Thursday night. And the hero of the piece was Richard with two goals.

The triumph sent Canadiens into the position of third place, five points behind the Stanley Cup champion Leafs and one up on Boston Bruins who settled for a 1-1 draw at Detroit. They were the only games on the schedule.

The Montreal verdict, before a howling mob of 14,542, was the first in four games against the Leafs this year. It also broke a three-game Toronto winning streak.

After a scoreless first period, Canadiens burst out with a three-goal second-period splurge and then beetle-browed Richard cut loose with his two counters in the third frame.

Dick Gamble, Elmer Lach and Paul Meger were the other Montreal scorers with Sid Smith notching the Toronto marker early in the final 20 minutes.

Going Rough

As usual when these two clubs meet, the going was rough and at times the game threatened to blow up into some fist-swinging, and probably blood-letting, but the officials were on top of three incipient brawls the culprits were let off with minor penalties.

Canadiens drew seven minors and Leafs six.

Boston, seeking its first victory in 11 games, took a 1-0 first-period lead on veteran Milt Schmidt's goal. Red Wings evened it in the second on a counter by Sid Abel.

It was the 15th tie played in 62 NHL games this season, a talking point for Boston, New York and Chicago officials who want a return of the sudden-death overtime, abandoned during wartime due to transportation difficulties.

The one point sent Detroit six up on Toronto. Red Wings and the Leafs each have six drawn games, two less than the Bruins who lead the league in this department.

The Leafs lost more than a hockey game Thursday night.

Rookie defenceman Hugh Bolton wound up in hospital with a slight jaw fracture and facial lacerations suffered during the game with Canadiens.

He was struck by a flying puck from the stick of Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

Hockey's Big Seven

By The Canadian Press.

There's no separating Montreal's Siamese twins—Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach.

For more than a month, the two have been tied in first place of the National Hockey League's individual scoring race.

In Thursday night's encounter with Toronto Maple Leafs, the Rocket picked up two goals and an assist, while Lach got a goal and two assists to b. ig their point total to 23. Richard is top goal-getter with 15, five more than Detroit's Gordie Howe, and Lach leads in the assists division with 18.

Five points behind them is Howe who got an assist in the Detroit-Boston game.

Charges Army Staff Withheld News Of Chinese Intervention

BOSTON, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Christian Science Monitor, in a copyrighted story by Gordon Walker, said Thursday "There was strong evidence" that General MacArthur's staff "withheld intelligence information on Chinese intervention.... from the present and front line commanders" in the ill-fated 1950 Yalu River offensive.

Walker is assistant foreign editor of the Monitor and former war correspondent attached to General MacArthur's command in the Pacific and Tokyo.

"Front-line commanders ordered their troops into battle without prior knowledge that they faced overwhelming odds—odds which in most cases were as high as th... our to one," the Monitor said.

Walker wrote that first information about Chinese intervention "actually had reached Tokyo in mid-September." The Yalu offensive started in late November.

Told Mistaken

"War correspondents in Tokyo who sought to establish the fact, however, were officially discouraged by headquarters from writing about it," according to Walker. "A correspondent for this paper (the Monitor) pointed out at one briefing that he personally had spoken to Chinese prisoners in their own language, and they had told him of their recent entry into Korea. He was informed that 'he must be mistaken.'"

Walker said that the Yalu River story is in the news again because of the charges of Maj.-Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, former chief intelligence officer for MacArthur, that correspondents wrote about the operation with "bias."

Gen. Willoughby, in New York, said he would stand on his magazine article which was "carefully documented," and added:

"Those (Walker's) statements are deliberately false, whether they are in the Christian Science Monitor or the Police Gazette."

W. Indies Make Sound Start

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 30—(Reuters)—The West Indies, put in bat by Australia, made a sound start to the second cricket test here today.

They reached 286 for the loss of six wickets by the close. Robert Christiani, top scorer with 76, fell to the last ball of the day.

Others to find their best form were Frank Worrell (64) and Clyde Walcott (60).

Walcott and Christiani put on 79 in 68 minutes for the fifth wicket before Walcott chased a ball from Doug Ring well wide of his off stump and was caught at the wicket.

Earlier, Worrell had batted with his old assurance, playing all the bowlers with equal skill.

Lindsay Hassett, Australian captain, won the toss and because of overnight rain gave West Indies first use of the pitch. But it played truly and gave the Australian Page attack no help.

Australia won the first test in this best-of-five series to decide world cricket supremacy.

Ontario Men Get Top Honors

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Ontario sheep breeders brought the most honors to Canada of any of the Canadian exhibitors at the 52nd International Livestock Exposition.

The Canadian sheep—mostly from Western Ontario—captured four championships and many top placings in the medium and long wool breeds.

Two championships each went to M. H. Lee and Sons of Highgate, Ont., and Don Head Farms, Richmond Hill, Ont.

The Lee flock—from the Rolling Leeland Farm—took the championship ram and ewe in the Lincoln breed Thursday. However, the Lee victory was traditional. For almost every year for the last 42 shows the Lee flock have shown the champion or reserve champion.

The Don Head flock—handled by Anson Balsom—won the championship for the best ram and ewe in the Southdown class Tuesday. The big Don Head outfit on rich farm land about 12 miles north of Toronto also shows Angus cattle.

Ontario Exhibitors

The Ontario exhibitors were George S. Brien and Son of Ridgetown, Ont., and F. W. Gurney of Paris, Ont., who showed Shropshires; W. J. Brodie, Stouffville, Peter McCaron and Sons, Thamesville, Ed. D. McEwen of London, Ont., with Southdowns; the Lees with Lincoln and Charles J. Shore of Glanworth, Ont., with Cotswold.

The Lee entries were in charge of John Lee, a red-haired young farmer who handled his flock in the ring with the same skill which brought his father international fame as one of the top showmen in the sheep business. John followed the Lee tradition this year by making practically a clean sweep in the Lincoln class.

In the Cotswold competition Shore placed first in the wether lambs and the pen of wether lambs class. Shore first attended an international in 1924.

Brien, making his second trip to the international, explained that the competition is much stiffer here in all breeds, particularly in the medium wool class, than at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto. Brien won 12 ribbons with his flock.

Art Seabrooke, shepherd of the McEwen flock, said it was a "pretty good year for the Canadian entries. On an over-all basis, I would say it was the biggest win for several years."

Asked why the Ontario sheep did so well against the biggest sheep herders in the United States, Seabrooke explained:

"Many of the flocks have been built up over 60 years. Besides it takes good land to make a good farm and a good farm to produce prize-winning herd. And that is just what Ontario — especially Western Ontario—has."

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

The smiling thin man, fired only recently as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, Thursday signed not one contract but two with the St. Louis Browns for a three-year hitch. One contract was as a coach and the other as a player.

Owner Bill Veeck, said Marion could leave the Browns any time he gets a chance to manage a major league club.

To get the 33-year-old Marion, Veeck reportedly had to put $15,000 a year on the line as a coach and another $10,000 or so if he makes his comeback as a shortstop. Marty reportedly got around $35,000 for his one year as manager of the Cardinals.

Marty says his knee is well. He was out last season following an operation on it.

At Cedar Rapids, Ia., a 16-year-old high school student died in a school shower Thursday while trying to sweat off enough weight to make a weight limit for a wrestling match.

The body of Kenneth Averill was found in a small individual shower room by coach Lloyd Wilson. Coroner Robert Brosh who ordered an autopsy, said there was "strong indications" the boy had suffocated. Wilson said the boy, who wrestles at 95 pounds, was a pound and a half over the weight limit for a scheduled match Thursday night.

The largest daily double of Lincoln Downs' fall meet at Providence, RI, paid $1,513 Thursday, with 21 patrons holding $2 tickets on the winning combination. Sandy Lane Farm's Deep Down, a 35½-1 choice ridden by Louis Pafundi, won the first race, paying $72.80. Big Dance, owned by Arthur Walt and ridden by Jimmy Vinson, took the second and paid $29.40.

The New York Rangers Thursday sent forward Jackie McLeod down to Cincinnati of the American Hockey League. Manager Frank Boucher of the National Hockey League club said at New York that forward Zellio Toppazzini of Cincinnati would be brought up to the big league club next week.

At New York, Maurice Podoloff, president of the American Hockey League, Thursday fined two Hershey players $150 each for their actions in separate incidents in the Hershey-Buffalo game at Buffalo Nov. 18. Norman Corcoran received a match penalty for striking Ab Demarco of Buffalo on the head with his stick, and Leo Labine received a similar penalty for attacking Lloyd Finkbeiner.

At New York, the District Attorney's office reported Thursday that Joseph Serota, 38-year-old Brooklyn bookmaker, has been arrested in Scranton, Pa. for questioning in the national collegiate basketball scandal. Authorities said Serota is alleged to have given a $2,000 bribe to Harvey (Connie) Schaff, former New York University player, to rig the score of a game last New Year's day. Schaff went to prison this week, beginning a six-month sentence for conspiracy in the fixing of collegiate games.

Rugby Tickets Reported Stolen

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30 — (AP)—Postal inspectors disclosed Thursday hard-to-get tickets to the Shrine east-west football game are missing as a result of a mail robbery.

They asked purchasers to report immediately if they haven't yet received tickets ordered by mail. Some 57,000 were mailed out.

The theft was discovered last Sunday, inspectors said, when John F. Chiaro, a 39-year-old Southern Pacific baggage agent, was arrested on a charge of stealing a check from the mails.

Forty-three of the football tickets were found in Chiaro's home. Inspectors said he admitted selling others in Sacramento bars.

The ducats sell for $5 each, but since each year's game is a sellout, scalpers are able to command as much as $20 for a good seat to the December 29 grid classic.

Stormy Food Debate

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Reuters)—Food—the price of it and the quantity of it on British Christmas dinner tables—produced a stormy session in the House of Commons Thursday night and a 301 to 264 vote in favor of the Conservatives. Whistles and catcalls from Labor party members greeted a decision by the Conservative government against boosting the food rations to allow housewives extras for Christmas —a concession established in the now-defeated Labor government.

Federal Election Not Far Off To Quebec Board

SHERBROOKE, Que., Nov. 30 (CP)—John G. Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Lake Centre, Sask., said Thursday night a federal election is not far off.

Speaking at a meeting of the Sherbrooke district Progressive Conservative organization, he said the general election date would have been announced within a few weeks had it not been for the Liberal setback in the recent Ontario provincial elections.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there were countless indications in government action forecasting the election.

Among improvements brought about by the government to gain public support, he said, were:

1. The recent increase in old age pensions for everyone over 70.
2. Increase in veterans' pensions.
3. Repayment next April of excess income tax payments.
4. Payment of $100,000,000 in grants to western wheat farmers.
5. Efforts being made to improve the unemployment situation that will result from present artificial prosperity.

He scored the federal authorities for the constant use of "emergency powers" to encroach on provincial rights.

Cotterill Resigns CCL Position

OTTAWA, Nov. 30. (CP)—The Canadian Congress of Labor announced Thursday Murray Cotterill of Toronto has submitted his resignation as national director of the CCL's political action committee.

The announcement gave no reasons for the resignation which it said would be placed before the Congress' executive council at its next meeting early in the new year.

The political action committee has been sponsored by the Congress for the last few years to aid in the election of CCF members to parliament and the provincial legislatures. The CCL designates the CCF as the "political arm" of Labor.

It was understood Mr. Cotterill's resignation was handed in before the Ontario election of last Thursday, in which the CCF lost heavily in its legislature representation and was displaced by the Liberals as the official opposition group.

Golf Association Approves Of Match

CHICAGO, Nov. 30 (AP). — Only a few details remain to be worked out before United States and Canadian golf professionals begin playing a yearly match, much like the traditional Ryder Cup series between the US and the British.

The Professional Golfers' Association approved the match on Thursday.

As plans stand now, the series will extend over three years running with the first match to be played at Montreal in 1952. The 1953 match will be played in the United States and the third in Canada.

Each squad will be represented by 10 players, as are the US and English Ryder Cup team.

No dates have been set. These and other details will be worked out later.

Four Socialists Named Barons In King's List

LONDON, Nov. 30—(Reuters)—The King today conferred titles and other honors on selected members of Britain's Labor Party, which provided the country's government from 1945 until its defeat by Winston Churchill's Conservatives last October.

Four Socialist stalwarts were made barons. One is David Kirkwood, 79, a fiery Scot from Glasgow who has long fought for the poor and under-privileged.

Kirkwood declined a knighthood some years ago. He also refused a gift of a 60-acre farm offered him by Viscountess Astor, first woman to sit in the House of Commons.

Viscount Jowitt, 66, who held the post of Lord Chancellor—Britain's chief law lord—in the Labor government, was made an earl.

A knighthood was given to Dr. Walter Hanay, who treated former Prime Minister Clement Attlee for a duodenal ulcer. Herbert Morrison, former foreign secretary, was made a Companion of Honor.

The honors are awarded traditionally on the recommendation of an outgoing government. The three barons, in addition to Kirkwood, are:

James Milner, 62, deputy speaker of the House of Commons in the last parliament.

George Mathers, 65, former Labor whip.

Frederick John Wise, farmer and veteran of two world wars, and a Labor MP since 1945.

Four other Socialists were appointed to the Privy Council, the King's highest advisory body. They are: Arthur Bottomley, former overseas trade minister; Douglas Jay, former financial secretary to the treasury; Baron Shepherd, Socialist whip in the House of Lords, and Robert John Taylor, who was a deputy whip in the Commons.

Recover Body

BUFFALO, NY, Nov. 30 (AP)—A body found in Buffalo harbor was identified Thursday as that of a crew member of the tug Dauntless, burned Oct. 29 when a Great Lakes steamer and a gasoline barge collided in the harbor and burst into flames. Four men now are known to have lost their lives. Six others are missing.

Bogus Doctor No Fraud To Cayuga Men

WINNIPEG, Nov. 30—(CP)—The navy's bogus doctor, Ferdinand Demara, Jr., alias Joseph Cyr, was no fraud to the men of the ship on which he served, a homecoming Winnipeg sailor said Wednesday.

"The officers and men of the Cayuga are 100 per cent behind him," said Able Seaman Jack Deakin.

Demara had been acclaimed in the navy's own press releases for a brilliant series of operations while serving aboard the destroyer Cayuga in Korean waters as a surgeon lieutenant. Later, he was discharged for misconduct when it was learned that he was not Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmundston, N.B., as he claimed, but Ferdinand Demara, Jr., formerly of Lawrence, Mass.

"If he isn't a doctor, he should be," said AB. Deakin. "He worked miracles out there. When we first heard the reports, we would not believe them."

Blackmail Demand

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 30. (CP)—A retired Chinese business man living here said Thursday he had received a cablegram from Hong Kong allegedly signed by his son demanding $10,000 to prevent the liquidation of the businessman's family in Communist-held China. The cablegram is similar to letters received by other Chinese here and in other parts of Canada in what has been described as a blackmail racket by Communists in China.

Use Local Help

OAKVILLE, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Ford president Rhys M. Sale Thursday night told a gathering of prominent Oakville residents that the majority of an estimated 5,000 workers to be eventually employed in the new Ford assembly plant here will be drawn from this community and its surrounding Toronto and Hamilton areas. Mr. Sale said that if business conditions are reasonably good when the Oakville plant begins operation, many of the company's Windsor employees would be absorbed in the expanded manufacturing program of the Windsor plant.

Roland Sicotte Heads Cheesemakers

CORNWALL, Nov. 30. (CP)—Roland Sicotte, of Sarsfield, on Thursday was elected president of the Eastern Ontario Cheesemakers' Association at the group's 22nd annual convention. He succeeds W. A. Buell of Monkland.

Bruce Shangraw, of Harrowsmith, was named vice-president and J. F. Singleton, of Kemptville, secretary-treasurer.

Major award winners in the export show were David Dean of Delta, and Wallace Partridge, of Pakenham.

Great Britain and United States Unveil New Jet Fighter, Bomber

LONDON, Nov. 30—(Reuters)—Britain took the secrecy wraps off her Flying Triangle Thursday, claimed by its makers to be the most powerful and formidable jet fighter in the world.

Officially known as the Gloster G-A-5, the new plane is the first in Britain to be called a multi-purpose fighter. This means it is a long-range, radar-equipped, all-weather, day-and-night fighter.

Made by the Hawker-Siddeley Corp., the plane is powered by twin Armstrong Siddeley Sapphire jet engines. Speed, range, armament and radar gear are not yet released. An experimental Gloster Meteor, which recently set a world speed climbing record of 39,370 feet in three minutes, seven seconds, also carried twin Sapphires.

The United States and Russia have both experimented with triangular wings," an air ministry spokesman said Thursday. "The US discontinued them some time back. So far as we know only the British persevered with the Delta wing."

The flying triangle had a first flight of 35 minutes Thursday, and jumped into the news incognito. A German and an Italian were picked up by police on suspicion of filming the test flight. They were later released.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30—(AP)—The first heavy long-distance all-jet bomber—a plane so shrouded in secrecy that camouflage and canvas drapes will keep it from public sight—trundled out of an aircraft factory in the predawn hours Thursday.

The XB-52, described by its manufacturers as a global bomber, was rolled out of the Seattle, Wash., plant of Boeing Airplane Co. Ltd., to a near-by hangar.

Air Secretary Thomas Finletter issued a statement emphasizing the extreme care being taken to keep the huge plane from either curious or enemy eyes.

He said "every effort will be made to protect the security of the aircraft by means of drapes, camouflage and other procedures." He requested that no attempts be made to photograph the XB-52 and asked co-operation of all news organizations in helping to keep information about the bomber "from any potential enemy as long as possible."

Finletter, in a press conference last spring, indicated that the XB-52 would be somewhat similar in appearance to the Boeing B-47 medium bomber, which is a swept-wing design in the 600-mile-an-hour-class.

Monster Eels

SYDNEY (Reuters). — Scientists of the Danish deep-sea expedition believe that monster eels up to 100 feet long may be swimming in the deepest ocean waters. They have found six-feet-long larvae of eels at great depths off the Philippines.

Nudists Munched Corn While Police Crept Near

ST. JEROME, Que., Nov. 30 — (CP). — There were movies on Thursday in Judge Oscar Gagnon's court—movies of a nudist camp, a place where the disrobed munched corn.

When the all-day court session ended, Judge Gagnon found Gaetan Couture of Montreal guilty of "Being in a state of nudity, in company with other persons, in a manner so as to be exposed to public view." He sentenced Couture to six months' imprisonment.

Defence counsel told the court an appeal would be taken.

The camp, where policemen sneaked up within 100 feet of naked persons, was on Couture's farm, in the foothills of the Laurentians about 40 miles from Montreal.

Three others facing similar charges will be tried December 12. They are Couture's wife and Mr. and Mrs. Gaston Wilson.

At the outset Thursday Judge Gagnon cleared the courtroom of spectators. Provincial Police who arrested the two couples on a hot day last July showed photographs and a short movie they filmed while gathering evidence.

Lieutenant-Detective Leopold Trottier testified he was able to get within 100 feet of four naked persons and two others "more or less dressed."

"We then arrested the undressed persons," said Trottier. "I then asked who was director of the place. Couture told me he was."

Judge Gagnon asked: "What were the persons doing?"

"Two of them were eating corn."

"What time was it?" "Eleven am."

Officer Maurice Lamoureuk, who accompanied Trottier, said: "We saw people in the field and we took photographs."

"What happened then?" asked defence counsel.

"Couture then forbade me to take any photographs because it was a private place. He then asked me if I had a membership card. I told him I did not have one."

"Anything else said?" asked Judge Gagnon. "Couture did not seem to be happy about the whole thing and he even called me names."

M. Bernard, formerly of the Provincial Police and now an official photographer for the Montreal Police Department, was the movie man who testified.

Get Quite Close

"After we landed near the camp we crawled to within 100 feet from where we saw people standing in the nude," said Bernard. "And then I filmed the scene before me, about 30 feet of film."

"What happened after you filmed the scene?" asked defence counsel.

"I suddenly felt a blow on the face as Couture punched my camera. The result was I had a cut lip. I asked Couture whether or not he wanted me to take photographs. Couture replied that he did not want photographs because he feared some newspaperman might get the photographs and get his place bad publicity."

Jean-Pierre Trickey testified he had been invited to go to the place, which he called "Queaton's Club," through the "Sunbathing Association."

He said he signed an application but could not recall whether it was with the association or Couture's club.

He said he went there last summer and proceeded to disrobe like a few other who were there.

"What did you intend to do there?" asked Judge Gagnon. "Take some physical culture and work in the open air."

In announcing his finding, Judge Gagnon said: "Couture was on his own property, very well; and neighbors could not see him or persons undressed on the ground. But the fact that other people were admitted to his property while he was in the state of nudity implies that the law was violated."

Finds Production In Canada At Record High

By FORBES RHODE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Canada's gross national product—her total production of goods and services—is expected to pass $20,000,000,000 this year, an increase of more than $2,000,000,000 over last year.

It is nice to revel in such figures, and certainly to take pride in the national expansion which they represent.

Still, if it is good that once in a while we should think modestly of ourselves, we can look across the border at the gross national product of the United States which will, this year, be around $325,000,000,000.

It illustrates, for one thing, in what a big league we are operating, and perhaps it is not surprising that we get bumped around occasionally.

Incidentally, though some of this year's Canadian increase is due to higher prices, there is a real increase of perhaps more than five per cent.

Trade Expediter

The International Chamber of Commerce has issued a 1951 revision—a two-year job—of the 1933 brochure, "Uniform Customs and Practice for Commercial Documentary Credits." Gerald G. Ryan, of Montreal, president of the Canadian Council of the ICC, comments:

"With Canada's huge stake in foreign trade, we are particularly pleased that a wide area of agreement has been reached between bankers and business men from many countries in drawing up a series of regulations which enable exporters and importers to handle conveniently the financing of the goods exchanged between them.

"We are indebted to the late T. B. Weatherbee of the Canadian Bank of Commerce for his work in representing Canada on this (revision) committee, and subsequently to J. H. F. Turner of the Bank of Montreal."

Imperial's Plans

Imperial Oil, Ltd., is actively considering an expansion and rehabilitation program for its refinery at Ioco, near Vancouver, and a modernization program for its refinery at Regina.

Both programs include the erection of fluid catalytic cracking units, under which the daily rated capacity of these refineries would be increased to approximately 22,500 and 25,000 barrels respectively. (Present rated capacities: Ioca 12,000; Regina 20,000). Preliminary estimates based on present price levels indicate a total cost for the two programs of $24,000,000.

The company, in conjunction with others, has entered into arrangements with Trans-Mountain Oil Pipe Line Company for the construction of a 24-inch pipe line from the vicinity of Edmonton to the vicinity of Vancouver.

If the necessary permits are obtained, this line, under present plans, would be completed for operation at the beginning of 1954 at a cost of $80,000,000.

SECONDS AFTER Pete Zuechero parked his car and left it in a downtown street in St. Louis, pressure from gas formed in an underground electrical cable fire sent this manhole cover high into the air to land on the front of the auto. The owner will be without transportation for a few days.

New Bond Series

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP)—The Ontario government has issued a new $50,000,000 bond series at four per cent interest, to mature in 10 years. The bonds are dated Dec. 15, 1951 and can be called on Dec. 15, 1959. Last provincial issue was offered at 3½ per cent.

To Raise Price

VICTORIA, BC, Nov. 30 (CP)—Victoria's two daily papers Thursday announced the price of a single copy of their papers will be increased from five to seven cents, effective Dec. 1. The Victoria Daily Colonist, morning, and the evening Victoria Daily Times said the boost was the result of rising production costs.

Small Milk Bottles

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP)—Five-ounce bottles of milk costing six cents each may soon become a reality in Toronto. The Health League of Canada discussed the scheme Thursday at its annual convention. The plan is to sell the small bottles of milk from vending machines the way soft drinks are sold now.

Exorbitant Bill From Doctor Reduced By Judge To $700

MONTREAL, Nov. 30—(CP)—A doctor's bill for $8,300 was slashed Thursday to $700 by Mr. Justice Archambault.

The $8,300 represented $100 a day for visits, the Superior Court judgment found, to a patient who most of the time was not ill and went out almost daily with an attendant.

The $8,300 claim, which the court held grossly exorbitant, was made by Dr. J. D. Fieldman against Ernest Evans. In May, 1950, Evans engaged quarters in a convalescent home of which the doctor was president and his wife manager or superintendent.

At the time, evidence showed Evans was not ill but required a place to stay where he could have medical supervision and care if necessary.

His lordship noted that Evans regularly took his meals outside the institution and nearly every day went for a taxi drive with an attendant.

For a period of about 14 days Evans suffered an attack of pneumonia and a heart ailment, when Dr. Fieldman attended him, but otherwise his health for the most part was good.

An attendant said some of the doctor's visits were merely "social calls," often only a "how are you?" from the doctor.

His lordship said that, although not pertinent to the case, it was shown Evans had paid some $3,500 for accommodation at the home at the rate of $20 a day.

In deciding the disputed medical bill his lordship said that in view of absence of any pre-arrangement between the parties he had absolute discretion to fix a fair amount. From judgments of other courts, his lordship took a number of factors into consideration.

Confused Witness

Mr. Justice Archambault found Dr. Fieldman a rather confused witness, particularly when he "made the extraordinary statement that he had charged for the case as a whole."

It was not a question of visits, said the court, but of "the case," and the doctor could have told the patient the amount a month before entries in the itemized bill ended.

His lordship found the account as produced in court a fabrication and that an item of $700 was inserted when "the plaintiff in itemizing his account found out that he was $700 short of the $8,300 and just added that item."

As to the fee, his lordship said Dr. Fieldman was not a specialist and no evidence was produced to show that he had an outstanding reputation as a physician, and consequently would be entitled only to the fees of a "good average physician."

Mayor To Retire

TIMMINS, Nov. 30. (CP) — Mayor Phillip Fay, mayor for two years and active in civic affairs 16 years, announced Thursday he will retire from politics. He will finish his present term, but will not run for re-election Dec. 12. Senior councillor Leo Del Villano is the only one to announce so far that he will run for mayor.

Ontario Able To Go Ahead On Seaway Plan

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP) — A fresh step towards the harnessing of urgently-needed power potential in the St. Lawrence River was taken here Thursday by the federal government and the government of Ontario.

The two governments announced that they had reached agreement on the details of arrangements which will permit Ontario to go ahead with the appropriate United States authority—presumably New York State—to develop the hydro phase of the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

The announcement came from Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Frost at the conclusion of two meetings:

Details of the $400,000,000 project, the cost of which will be shared equally by Ontario and its American partner, will be announced here Monday when the agreement is formally signed in Mr. St. Laurent's office.

Nothing Right Now

Mr. St. Laurent indicated to reporters later that he does not expect any immediate move to reach an agreement with Quebec for the harnessing of power in the St. Lawrence near Montreal. Quebec's need for power, he observed, is not as urgent as Ontario's.

The proposal is for the development of 1,640,000 kilowatts of firm power in the international section of the St. Lawrence. Half of this would go to Ontario and half to New York State.

Under the agreement completed today, Ontario will bear all the cost of the dams and power development. The federal government will carry the cost of building locks for navigation purposes and use later in the seaway side of the project when the Dominion itself goes ahead with that stage.

Cost of the seaway project has been estimated at $250,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Butter Prices Up

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP) — While butter prices climbed moderately this week, they are not expected to move much higher, a trade spokesman said Thursday. Up one cent a pound on the retail level to 70 and 71 cents a pound for first grade, butter is reflecting the "natural movement due to storage costs," he said.

Ready For Worst

AMHERST, NS —(CP)—A new piece of equipment here, a salt spreader, has been placed in operation with the purpose of keeping streets free of ice and snow during the winter months. Fed from a truck, the spreader covers a width of 30 feet.

House Begins Move To Block Possibility Of Price Wars

OTTAWA, Nov. 30—(CP)— A move was initiated Thursday to block the possibility of widespread price wars in the event that parliament bans resale price-maintenance practices.

David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina), a lawyer, placed before parliament's retail price-fixing committee notice of a motion to make cut-throat price-cutting and loss-leader selling illegal.

This move came at the end of a stormy session in which charges of "gagging" and using "delaying tactics" were made.

It likely will eliminate a big segment of opposition to the government's proposal to make price maintenance illegal and enable the committee to finish work in time to allow Justice Minister Garson to place legislation before parliament at the current session, expected to end about Dec. 19.

Mr. Croll's notice of motion goes to the steering or advisory group of the main committee for consideration.

Under Mr. Croll's proposal no dealer will be allowed to sell "directly or indirectly" any commodity—with certain exceptions—at a price less than five per cent above cost.

Some Exceptions

Excepted from the loss-leader ban would be sales of goods:

1. Damaged, or sold because they are the balance of a line being discontinued or out of season.
2. For charitable purposes or relief agencies.
3. Which are perishable and must be sold promptly to prevent deterioration and consequent loss.
4. Sold in clearance sales, provided in advertisements and mark-ups, if it is made clear that they are bona fide clearance sales.
5. On final liquidation of a business.
6. Under the bankruptcy or winding-up acts or by judicial order.

The MacQuarrie committee, which had recommended the government to eliminate price maintenance, had also criticized the use of loss leaders by which merchants sold quality goods at below cost to attract customers.

E. D. Fulton (PC—Kamloops) charged chairman James Sinclair (L—Coast Capilano) with trying to "gag" and "applying the hatchet" to committee members to prevent full investigation into resale price maintenance.

Mr. Croll countered that certain members were deliberately using "delaying tactics" to prolong the committee's work.

The exchange was sparked by an attempt by Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw) to have the committee reverse a decision taken previously not to probe manufacturing costs and margins of profits on consumer goods. He was voted down 19-9.

PatersonWarnsSenate About Seaway Costs

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Senator Norman Paterson (L, Ontario), Canadian shipping magnate, warned the Senate Thursday that if the St. Lawrence Seaway project is paid for out of tolls, then Western farmers will pay the bulk of the shot.

He said the 9,679,000 tons, or 97 per cent of the total freight through the St. Lawrence system in 1950 was transported in Canadian vessels. Yet to the best of his knowledge not a single vessel owner had been given a hearing or consideration regarding the proposed seaway.

"I want to warn this House that if it is to be paid for out of tolls then the farmers of Western Canada will pay the bulk of it because a toll must be added to the freight charges and grain passing down the St. Lawrence for export must pay the toll."

Senator Paterson's address ended the long throne-speech debate in the Upper Chamber. The Senate unanimously adopted the address in reply.

Clan Reunion

BADDECK, NS—(CP)—The clan Fraser will hold a re-union at nearby St. Anne's during the annual Gaelic Mod next summer. Chief of the clan Fraser, Lord Lovat of Inverness, Scotland, will attend.

Strange Pair Team Up For TV Show

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 30 (AP).—Ethel Bardymore was preparing for her television debut in a small rehearsal hall.

The first lady of America's greatest acting family seemed to be enjoying herself immensely.

One of the foremost declaimers of the English language, she was teamed with its arch-murderer, James Durante.

"It's a 'catastrophe'," Miss Barrymore exclaimed.

"Ethel, ya got the wold wrong," Durante corrected. "It's 'catastroke.'"

The incnogruous pair went through several hilarious routines for Durante's V show Saturday evening. He gave Miss Barrymore a dramatic lesson, illustrating how she should register certain emotions. Then she sat down at the piano to play "Who will be with you when I'm far away?" while he sang the raucous song.

"She ain't bad at the pianner," Jimmy confided. "But she don't bang it the way I do. But then—who can? Even Iturbi is inferior."

Old Pals

The Durante-Barrymore friendship goes back many years, she said.

"I used to see Jimmy a lot when he was playing night clubs in the '20s," she said, "and Jimmy was a great favorite of my brother, Jack. I remember watching Jimmy one night when Jack, as was often the case, was feeling no pain. For some crazy reason, he slipped a ring on my finger, and I have never been able to get it off."

Jimmy told an anecdote concerning Miss B. She was sitting in the M-G-M casting office while making "Rasputin" with her brothers. Jimmy, whose failure to remember names is fabulous, thought she was an actress looking for work.

"Is there anything I can do for you," he asked.

Highgate Man Has Best Ram At Fair

CHICAGO, Nov. 30. (CP)—N. M. Lee and Sons of Highgate, Ont., Thursday took most of the top honors in the breding Lincoln classes at the 82nd International Livestock Exposition.

The Lee farms, consistent championship winners for 40 years, again showed the champion ram and ewe in the Lincoln class which was judged by T. C. Glaspell of Oshawa.

The Lee flock placed first in the two-year-old ram class, the yearling ram and in the ram lamb division they placed first, third and fifth.

In the ewe competition, they placed first in the three ram lambs, ewe yearling and in the ewe lamb won first, second, third and fourth.

They also placed first in the three ewe lambs, flock and in the get of sire, bred by exhibitor they placed first and second.

In the Shropshire class, F. W. Gurney of Paris, Ont., placed third in the ram class, with George S. Brien and sons of Ridgetown, Ont., placing fifth.

In the three ram lambs, the Brien flock placed third and in the association specials they placed second. In the yearling ewe association specials they placed sixth.

The West African river Cambia, navigable for 300 miles from its mouth, was discovered by the Portuguese in 1447.

Didn't Prove Meyer Guilty

NORTH BAY, Nov. 30. (CP)—A lawyer who was on call as a prosecution adviser at the court-martial of Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer said Thursday the trial did not prove that the German officer was guilty of murdering 18 Canadiaun prisoners of war, or of ordering them murdered.

The lawyer, Dalton Dean of Haileybury, was a colonel on the judge advocate general's first Canadian army staff and was associated with the prosecution at Mayer's 1945 trial at Aurich, Germany.

"The public believes from press reports that it was shown in Kurt Mayer's court-martial that Kurt Meyer murdered Canadian soldiers or ordered them murdered," he said.

"That is completely false.

"The worst ever proved against Meyer was that he commanded troops who killed Canadian prisoners, and that he made certain remarks indicating that the objective of the attack was not to secure prisoners."

Mr. Dean suggested that a panel of judges from the Supreme Court of Canada review the Meyer case.

Canada's Baby Deaths 11th Lowest In World

TORONTO, Nov. 29 — (CP)—Canada's infant mortality rate is 11th lowest in the world, the Health League of Canada was told Thursday.

Dr. Ernest Couture, head of the Federal Health Department's Child and Maternal Welfare Division, said at the league's 32nd annual meeting that the rate in 1949 was 43 deaths for every 1,000 live births.

Canada's rate was "more than double" that of Sweden and New Zealand.

Canada has a highly-trained medical profession, well organized public health services, good voluntary agencies, and a receptive population in matters of health.

But, said Dr. Couture, an "outstandingly weak feature" in the Canadian mechanism is that efforts are isolated; "very little teamwork" exists among the agencies concerned.

Omemee WA Meeting

OMEMEE, Nov. 30 (ENS)—The largest attendance this year was recorded at the November meeting of Trinity United Church W.A., held at the home of Mrs. V. Lang.

Mrs. H. Deyell opened the meeting and conducted the business, after which the program convener, Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, led in the devotional.

Announcements included the notice to turn in all talent money at the December meeting which is to be held at the parsonage. Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. V. Lang and Mrs. E. Bradburn volunteered to be hostesses on that occasion.

Mrs. Vaughan was assisted by Mrs. W. D. Weir and Mrs. Jane Bradley. Mrs. Weir read the scripture and Mrs. Bradley presented the topic—"The Parable of the Talents". There are three considerations in the parable said Mrs. Bradley: opportunity, fidelity, and reward. In effect, she stated: The ordinary run of the ruman race come in the two-talent category, a few are in the five-talent class, and there is no one to whom has not been given at least one talent. Only according to the measure of the steward's gifts is he held accountable for the increase. In all cases the truest satisfaction is realized in the Master's approval.

After the pronouncing of the benediction by Mrs. Vaughan, a social time was enjoyed with Mrs. S. Meyer, Mrs. H. Deyell and Mrs. J. B. Hough as hostesses.

More Relief Paid Out For Welfare

Unemployment, Sickness Blamed By Welfare Officer

As unemployment and sickness increased this fall the amount of financial help by the city for needy people has increased. The amount this year surpassed the totals for the same period in 1950.

In his monthly report for October, A. G. Metheral, Welfare Officer, said that during the month there was a total of 209 people including heads of families, dependents and single persons on relief. This is an increase of 30 people over October 1950.

At the same time the amount of money per person increased to $21.94 a person from $20.29 in 1950.

Food, fuel, clothing, shelter, doctors, medicine, household and special home care bills for the relief people amounted to $4,584.71 as compared with a total of $3,632.21 for the 1950 October bill.

Hospital Bills

Other expenditures this year in October included $1,871.82 for the Civic, St. Joseph's hospitals and sanatorium aftercare as well as administration costs of $529.68. The total costs for October amounted to $6,987.21.

Twenty-one Peterborough residents were admitted to the Peterborough Civic hospital, Queen Elizabeth hospital, Sick Children's, Ontario hospital, St. Joseph's hospital, Toronto General and Muskoka santatorium. More than 25 hospital investigations were made and six applications for hospitalization were refused.

Hospitalization expenses paid by the city for the first 10 months of this year for both hospitals is $9,277.60 more than the same period in 1950. There is an increase of $7,832.45 at the Civic hospital and $1,445.15 at St. Joseph's hospital.

Hospital expenses through the city at the Civic hospital increased more than three times the amount paid out in October 1950. Mr. Metheral reported that the Civic bill this year was $1,105 for October as compared with only $293.84 last year. The total for the Civic hospital this year was brought up to $11,241.00.

During October the city-paid hospital expenses at St. Joseph's hospital decreased from last year, to $567.90 from $823.35 in 1950. But the total for the 10 months was $7,718.90 as compared with $6,273.75 last year.

Venison For Dinner

Residents of Anson House and the House of Providence shared in the disposal of steaks and other cuts of meat, distributed by Ross L. Dobbin of the Utilities Commission. A big buck had become surplus stock at the Filtration Plant zoo. Permission was obtained from the Department of Lands and Forests to liquidate him.

Press Protests Restrictions On Royalty News

LONDON, Nov. 30—(CP)—The trade paper Newspaper World today protested against the way the British press is treated in covering Royal news stories.

A three-column, unsigned protest contrasted the way British newspaper men allegedly are treated with reports of "superior" press facilities on the recent Royal tour of Canada. Newspaper World blamed minor officials whom it said showed superfluous zeal in "improving on" instructions ascribed to Buckingham Palace.

It said reporters describing the third birthday of Prince Charles last Nov. 14 met with such little co-operation that they had to do a little improvising, with the result that final accounts of the celebrations were "far from accurate."

Simple Story

"Now why on earth could not someone have told the press quite simply what this important young person did, and where it took place?"

The Royal family, day in and day out, is probably Britain's biggest news story. Canadian correspondents in London generally share the frustrations experienced by their British colleagues, but appreciate that press officers work under strict instructions to respect Royal privacy where possible.

He was working on rafters of a two-storey home. He landed on his feet and then fell over backwards. He was taken to Cobourg General Hospital.

Evelyn Hajnik Wins Trophy In Separate School Oratory

A speech entitled "Peace," given by Evelyn Hajnik of St. John's School won her first prize at the second Separate School oratorical contest Thursday evening at the Immaculate Conception Parish Hall. The Knights of Columbus Trophy was presented to her by the Rev. W. C. McCarney. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hajnik of 159 Albertus Ave.

Second prize, the Catholic Women's League Trophy, was won by John Driscoll of St. Alphonsus School; his talk was entitled "The Montreal Rocket". The trophy was presented by diocesan president of the CWL, Miss Agnes Grant.

During two short intermissions choral music was sung by members of the St. Peter's High School girls' choir. More than 250 parents and their children from the several city parishes filled the hall to near capacity.

Driver Crashes Car Parked On Bolivar St.

Driving west on Bolivar St., about 8.30 Thursday night, Mrs. Madeline Henry, 576 Bolivar St., collided with the rear of a car owned by Richard P. Williams, parked in front of Williams' home at 600 Bolivar St.

Constable Harold Andrew investigated and reported Mrs. Henry said she was attempting to catch her two-year old son as he fell forward in the front seat just before the accident.

Both cars were slightly damaged in the collision.

Colored Lights For Streets

Colored lights will again deck Peterborough's main streets during the Christmas season.

These lights used to be a regular feature of the city's Yuletide celebrations, but a few years ago disappeared because of hydro restrictions.

Now that these restrictions have come to an end, the Chamber of Commerce suggested to the Utilities Commission that the lights go up this year. The commission has decided to follow this suggestion.

Strings of 1,500 green and red lights will hang over George St., from Sherbrooke to Brock Sts., Charlotte St., from Bethune to George Sts.; and Hunter St., from Aylmer to Water Sts. Hunter St. in East City will also be decked out.

R. L. Dobbin, general manager of the public utilities said today that the lights will be up by mid-December.

Cars Skid On Ice Crash At Corner

Icy pavement was blamed for a two-car accident at Armour Rd., and Maniece Ave., at 7 am today which resulted in $150 damage to the two vehicles involved.

Paul A. Mongraw, 129 James St., was making a right turn to go east on Maniece Ave. when his car was struck in the rear by a car driven by R. G. Davidson of Lang.

Constable Cecil Bowyer investigated.

Fine Technique Of Pianist Marks Community Concert

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

The Community Concert Season for 1951-52 opened on Thursday night with a pianoforte recital by Jean Casadesus. The artist was warmly received by an audience which filled the PCVS auditorium to its utmost capacity.

Mr. Casadesus, who is twenty-four, has already won high praise from the most exacting critics in the U.S.A. and in Europe. They have not said that he is a great pianist in the sense, for instance, that his father is one; they have acclaimed him as one who may, in the course of time, join that small group of pianists to which, in each generation, the adjective "great" may be applied without compromising the principles of the most exacting judges. It was easy to see, on Thursday night, why great achievement is expected of him. He has already most of the attributes of the first rank.

One of these is, of course a fine technique. No less might be expected of an artist with his background. The listener is not conscious of his technique, and that is as it should be, but beauty of tone and a mastery of the instrument are there. Mr. Casadesus is not one of those young pianists who regards the piano as a percussion instrument he is of the poetic school of pianists, and it is from among these that the greatest players come.

To isolate a single element of his technique is perhaps foolish, but I cannot deny myself the pleasure of commenting upon the truly magnificent rhythm which he revealed in everything he played. Every pianist of consequence must have rhythm, of course, but it is a strongly individual element; Mr. Casadesus shows his mastery of the pulse—the very heart-beat—of what he plays. It was this which gave rich life to the Bach Fantasia in C minor with which his program began; it was this which illuminated the piece of early Prokofieff with which his formal program ended.

His poetic gift as a pianist revealed itself most clearly, to this hearer at least, in his wonderful performance of Beethoven's "Pathetique" sonata. This is a piece in which even very able players are tempted to tear a passion to tatters; Mr. Casadesus, without any suggestion of understatement, chose to reveal the tenderness and delicacy of the emotion in it, and his interpretation was a truly memorable one.

It is not in such newspapers as this, or by such critics as the present writer, that the reputations of artists are made; it is as a purely personal feeling, therefore, that I suggest that his playing of Chopin did not quite approach the level he attained in this single selection from Beethoven. It is not an easy thing to be the son of a great father, and perhaps it was recollection of Robert Casadesus which prompts such an opinion. But at twenty-four an artist's development has just begun, and Jean Casadesus is richly gifted. It is a privilege to have heard him at the outset of what promises to be a very great career.

Soldiers' Vote Supports Scott In Late Count

Cabled results of the active service vote in the recent provincial election were received Thursday night by Douglas J. Lawrie, District Returning Officer. Of 79 votes cast, 50 were for Harold R. Scott, 20 for F. P. Burke, and nine for William C. Grant.

Originally the official counting of votes was to have taken place Thursday night, but the date was moved on to December 3 to await complete results from the armed forces.

The active service vote for Peterborough candidates said Mr. Lawrie, will be treated as a separate poll in the official counting.

UE Local Rejects Challenge By IUE

A challenge issued by the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL) to their rivals, the United Electrical Workers, was turned down by the latter. The whole thing got started when the UE announced that Albert Fitzgerald, Schenectady, NY, general president of the UE, would speak to the union membership Thursday night. Joe Wirtz, IUE representative issued a challenge to Mr. Fitzgerald to debate union policy, provided all CGE employees could attend. John H. Callahan, chairman of the IUE conference board, would be the speaker for IUE. The UE rejected the challenge saying that it was a meeting called to discuss union business and they had no intention of giving Mr. Callahan an audience he couldn't attract on his own.

MAIN ST. TOPICS

FRACTURED WRIST

Mrs. Albert Sparks, RR 2, Norwood is in Civic hospital with a fractured wrist. Mrs. Sparks received the injury when she fell at home Thursday afternoon. She was admitted to hospital at 4 p.m.

TWO OPERATIONS

Both Al Spencley and James Turnbull were mentioned at the Utilities Commission meeting Thursday as being in hospital for operations. Regret was expressed by the members of the Commission. Flowers were sent.

EDUCATIONAL FILM

An educational film on municipal government was shown to Kiwanians at their luncheon meeting Thursday. The arrangements for the showing were made by Charles Hurst, chairman of the public and business affairs committee.

WITHHOLD ANNOUNCEMENT

Utilities Commission decided Thursday not to announce until next week new gas rates for hot water tank heaters and building or space heating. The only comment was: "they are of benefit to consumers." These rates apply to domestic and commercial users of gas.

THOSE CORNER 'CAKES'

In sanctioning the stringing of 1,500 colored lights on down town streets, and on Hunter St. in Ashburnham, for the Christmas season, a humorous remark was: "Everything has been fine except those birthday cakes in centennial year." That festive feature of the city's decorations were too nice and fragile for drafty main street corners.

GARBAGE FIRE

The kitchen of Arthur Wilfong, 358 Aylmer St., rapidly filled with smoke Thursday night when one of the children threw a flaming piece of paper into a garbage container. There was considerable excitement, lots of smoke but not much fire, and firemen had no trouble extinguishing the blaze. There was no damage.

PETERBOROUGH BACKGROUND

Brigadier W. Denis Whitaker, DSO, of Hamilton, who publicly expressed the opinion that the German officer Kurt Meyer should be released, is a grandson of the late W. H. Moore, KC, one of the first members of the Peterborough Utilities Commission. Denny Whitaker, with a fine football record of a few years ago, has been mentioned recently as a possibility for the post of Canadian football commissioner.

REACH AGREEMENT

Management of the Western Clock Co. and the negotiating committee of Local 570, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL) have reached tentative agreement on the terms of a collective bargaining contract. Details will not be released until after a membership meeting which will probably be held Monday night. The membership will then decide whether to accept or reject the terms.

Would Stop Secular Music At Weddings

Ministers Favor Using Sacred Music At Church Ceremonies

Secular music in wedding ceremonies received only one favorable opinion in a survey of Peterborough Protestant ministers today.

Recently, the Canadian College of Organists wrote to the Council of Churches urging that such songs as "I Love You Truly" and "I'll Walk Beside You" be dropped in favor of strictly sacred music.

Of three opinions given by ministers, two were for replacing secular music with sacred music for wedding ceremonies.

Carry A Message

The Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church said he "certainly wouldn't want to ban 'Because' and what might be called semi-secular music. They're not semi-sacred; there's no such thing. But they do carry a message."

Mr. Cotton cited Edward Greig's "I Love Thee". The final line is "I love thee, dear, I love thee, to all eternity", which Mr. Cotton felt, is not purely secular but carries a suggestion of religion.

The Rev. Walter Gilling of St. Luke's Anglican Church, said that the dropping of secular music in wedding ceremonies is "a sound idea."

"It does sound rather silly to hear someone sing 'Til the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold'."

Mr. Gilling said he believed most Anglican ministers felt the same way. No secular music was used in marriage services at St. Luke's, and "although the brides don't always like it, we try to explain our position tactfully and they generally come around to our view".

At St. Luke's the hymnbook is used as a source of wedding music.

Limited Field

Although the "field is very limited" in both secular and sacred music for wedding ceremonies, the Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark St. United Church felt that sacred music should be used in a church ceremony.

He suggested that organists in the city provide ministers with a list of sacred music suitable for marriage services.

"Many of the clergy haven't delved into it very far," he said, "but there are songs that lend themselves better to weddings than 'I'll Walk Beside You', and others like it."

Mr. Morwood said he didn't believe that the composers of secular music so often used in wedding ceremonies meant the songs to be used in that way. "They're not always in keeping with the spirit of the ceremony," he said.

By HARRY THEOBALD

Crop Improvement Meeting Well Attended . . . . Robert Armstrong Re-elected President . . . . 160 Juniors At Durham Dinner . . . . Holstein Club Annual Sat., Dec. 8 . . . . Summary Of Forums' Review Night.

The interest of Peterborough farmers in the practical details of fodder crops and pasture management was reflected in the big attendance at the annual meeting Thursday at the Crop Improvement Association.

Dr. R. J. Weir, of OAC, discussed phases of silage, followed by a series of related slides in color, and finally took on a question period. Election of officers was quickly disposed of at the close in Carman Seymour's motion for the return of the entire executive.

Robert Armstrong, of Cavan, is president; Bert Armstrong, Otonabee, and Lyle MacMillan, of Norwood, vice-presidents.

The president and Everett Elmhurst were named delegates to the provincial convention.

Dr. Weir said he hoped there would be no lapse of interest in grass silage after this year's experience with plenty of rain and growth. "I hope our farmers will not get too far away from it if we come into a season when conditions are not so favorable for fodder."

Grass is not proposed as a substitute for hay in the mow and corn in the silo, Dr. Weir said. It is recommended as a supplementary feed, and especially as a method of saving the feed value of a hay crop in a rainy season.

Grass vs. Corn

"You really can't compare grass and corn silage," Dr. Weir said, anticipating a recurring question at crop improvement meetings. "Grass is a protein-rich feed, lacking in carbohyrates. Corn is carbohydrate-rich, lacking in protein. The nutrient composition of the two is great. Corn is considered a cultivated crop. It exerts a drain on soil fertility, leaving the land exposed to erosion.

"Grass silage can be well used in harvesting an excess of fodder growth. You sow the grass and legume mixture once, and you take off crops for three to five years. And, it is a sod crop. It keeps the land covered in winter. Its value in that respect might put more dollars in your pocket from that effect alone.

"There is more difficulty in making grass silage than corn. Our farmers don't have much trouble in the ensiling of corn.

"I hesitate to compare the two. They serve different purposes in your balanced farm program."

Dr. Weir said that in whatever countries he had visited he saw good crop production and the least evidence of soil erosion where farmers had a forage program developed to the fullest extent—pasture, hay, green manure, and so on.

Seed mixtures for hay and pasture have to be determined by the farm proprietor after making a careful study of his land. He needs grasses that will come up after cutting in dry weather.

"We recommend up to 26 lbs. of seed to the acre. Some sow up to 40 lbs. We wouldn't need to sow more than four or five pounds. The difference takes care of mortality of seed, due to poor preparation, lack of soil fertility. That work of thorough preparation does not cost you so much as the seed."

Management Is Important

"After you have done all that," Dr. Weir said, "you have hardly started. That is where good pasture management begins. Good management then becomes good insurance on your invested capital and work."

As to the grazing, Dr. Weir advised attention to balancing livestock with the amount of grass available. "More alfalfa goes out of Ontario pastures because for two weeks in September, the grazing of cattle doesn't give it a chance for winter."

Dr. Weir discussed a wide range of detail in securing a store of grass silage. Power machinery was essential; degree of moisture content highly important. Preservatives, he said, did not add much additional value. If the legume content was high, or the weather did not quicken wilting in the field, it was practial to use such preservatives as small grains, ground corn, molasses They stimulated favorable conditions for bacterial action and fermentation. But, they added to the cost and also to the trouble of applying them. It was preferable to allow grass-legume mixtures to wilt sufficiently to reduce the moisture content before ensiling, and thereby avoiding preservatives.

Tramping and packing the silage and sealing it at the top to prevent air reaching it were mentioned as important in preserving it.

HOLSTEIN CLUB MEETING

Peterborough Holstein Breeders' Club will hold its annual meeting Saturday Dec. 8 in the office of the Department of Agriculture at 1:30 p.m. This is a business meeting to review the Club's year and elect officers for 1952. There will be a draw for two motor rugs. All the members are being urged to attend. Although costs of nearly everything else is higher than a year or two ago, the Holstein membership fee is still only one dollar.

Morning and afternoon sessions comprise the program. Manager of more than 1,000 acres, Mr. Dichenson is a grass silage specialist.

✦ ✦ ✦

160 DURHAM JUNIORS

Margaret Aitken will represent Durham county Junior Farmers in the finals of the provincial public speaking competition in January which precede the Federation of Agriculture convention in Toronto.

Miss Aitken was the winner in the preliminaries at the Durham Juniors' third annual turkey dinner in Newcastle Community hall. Other contestants were: Mary Hoyle, Hazel White and Milford White. Winner of book presented by Massey-Harris Co., Miss Aitken spoke on the subject, Epidemics, and as a variation to mumps, measels and chickenpox, she suggested "how much nicer it would be for all of us if there was an epidemic of friendliness, smiles and goodwill".

Durham county president, Roy Challice, chairman, said he was delighted to see the attendance of 160 Juniors. Their meetings will be the third Wednesday of every month at Orono. Ross Metcalfe led in community singing, and Ruth Wilson's orchestra played for square and round dancing.

✦ ✦ ✦

ONTARIO CO-OP'S ANNUAL

R. Stanley, general manager of the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool, will be one of the speakers at the convention sessions of the United Co-Operatives of Ontario at the King Edward hotel, Dec. 5 and 6. Program for the first day includes reports, discussion, election of directors. Dinner speaker at 6 p.m. Thursday Dec. 6 will be M. J. Briggs, who is also on the afternoon agenda for an outline of Indiana Advisory Committees.

Another subject Thursday will be Co-Op Aid to India. Future plans for advisory committees, and the election of such committees are scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

FORUM REVIEW NIGHT

Clare Burt, secretary of Ontario Farm Forums reports lively Review meetings across the province. Seventeen Forums in the vicinity of the town of Durham assembled in the municipal hall as guests of the district Co-op to talk about Credit Unions. Guest speaker was Mr. Saurinson of Wisconsin.

Elimville north Forum of Huron suggested that more people attend council meetings "to know how our business is being looked after". That might be all right in winter when farmers are not pressed for time. Rural council meetings rarely make any records in their pace of arriving at decisions and getting things done.

Lynn Valley Forum of Norfolk discussed the prevention of hunters from crossing their land. They sent a resolution to the Ontario Federation of Agriculture about it. That protest is long overdue.

Camilla Forum, Dufferin, questioned the use of dog taxes, and "wondered whether the money was used to pay for sheep killed by dogs, when the dog owner was asked to pay for the sheep killed".

Peterborough and Halton forums "had bang up rallies".

Review night Dec. 17 will likely feature Christmas parties and appropriate programs.

SHORT COURSE RE-UNION

Frank C. Paterson was assistant agricultural representative in Peel county when the first agricultural short course was held there in the winter of 1914.

The agricultural representative was W. H. Tisdale of the Canadian Co-Operative Wool Growers.

Seventeen of the young farmers who attended that course held a reunion recently at Brampton. Some of them came from as far as Michigan and New Liskeard. Each member had to find his seat at the dinner table by identifying himself from a 1914 picture attached to his place card.

Chairman Tindale Rutherford called on the men in turn to give a brief summary of their activities in the intervening years.

Both Mr. Tisdale and Mr. Paterson were present with their wives. Guests included Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Carroll.

BRITISH CO-OPS

Since 1900, agricultural co-operatives in the British Isles have increased from 19 societies to more than 200. During that period their business turnover has expanded from £120,000 to £50 million.

HOLSTEINS AVERAGE $500

Sixty-five Holsteins averaged better than $500 at the dispersal Monday of Jarrott Brothers' herd at Kippen, Ont. A Vermont buyer took the young herd bull, Glenafton Excelsior for $3,000, and an Ohio man bought a yearling bull and four bred heifers for $2,395. Top female was the seven-year-old "Fancy Pietje Mercedes" that sold for $800. The herd was owned by Dr. G. C. Jarrott of Stratford, and Dr. J. T. Jarrott of Long Island, NY.

PRAISES TAX BASIS

Canadian farmers have "about the most fair basis for income tax payments" anywhere in the world, sid R. A. Stewart, a past president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, as guest speaker at the annual meeting of Perth county Federation.

Mr. Stewart said enquiries were coming from all over the world to learn about the Canadian income tax "basic scheme" as it affects agriculture.

"If we could induce all farmers to make reasonably accurate returns, we could show the true agricultural situation in Canada."

He produced a sheaf of statistical data on income tax payments in 1948 and 1949 by farmers in Perth, Oxford, Middlesex, Huron and Wellington.

As a result of revised basic exemptions the number of farmers who paid income tax in 1949 showed a decrease in those counties compared to 1948.

In Perth the 1948 figure was 3,590 taxpayers with a total assessment of $670,000 compared to 1949—2,590 with an assessment of $670,000.

In Oxford in 1948, 6,120 taxpayers paid $1,203,000 while in 1949, 4,940 taxpayers paid $889,000; in Middlesex in 1948, 5,030 taxpayers paid $1,538,000 and in 1949, 4,650 taxpayers paid $890,000; in Huron in 1948, 5,490 taxpayers paid $1,054,000 and 1949, 3,980 taxpayers paid $706,000; in Wellington in 1948, 4,750 taxpayers paid $732,000 and in 1949, 3,000 taxpayers $525,000.

Pimmetts Win A First At Chicago

A Canadian Press report from the International Livestock Exposition Wednesday shows that Canadian sheep and cattle breeders came up with 11 first prizes and three championships.

Some of the top winners among Shorthorns at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto competed here, but only one of them could bring Canada a first prize.

Strathore Duthie Violet, a 10-month-old heifer owned by M. H. Pimmett & Sons of Indian River, Ont., won first prize in the junior heifer calf class. She was the Royal's supreme champion earlier this month.

Pimmett Farm's Strathore Collynie Violet, reserve champion at the Royal, placed ninth in the junior yearling heifer breeding Shorthorns.

The Royal's champion Shorthorn bull—Scotsdale Dragoon, owned by S. G. Bennett of Georgetown, Ont.—was fourth in the two year old bull judging. An Ohio university entry was the winner.

In the class for female get, Reford Gardhouse of Weston, Ont., placed eighth, and Pimmett 11th. Pimmetts won 14th prize in the class for two females, any age, 13th in the pair of yearlings; and third in pair of calves, all in the female division.

Don Head Farms of Richmond Hill, set the pace among the Canadians with five first prizes and three championships,—the ram and ewe crowns in the breeding Southdown division and the reserve female Aberdeen-Angus title.

Judge of the Angus was J. Charles Yule of Calgary. He said: "This is the best cattle show I've seen on the continent." Of the 31 senior heifer calves he commented: "Look at them. They're just like peas in a pod."

(As far as publicity goes, the Pimmett family might as well put an "m" in their herd name. Reporters at the Royal and again at Chicago were unanimous in writing it 'Strathmore'.

The correct name of the top champion at the Royal was—Strathore Duthie Violet.)

STEAK ON HOOF—This angry steer escaped from the C.P.R. pier in Vancouver and led the police a merry chase through the business section of the city. The big hereford was finally felled by five shots from police revolvers.

"Keep Cattle Healthy" Subject Of Four Meetings

"How to keep cattle healthy is the theme of the four meetings Frank Paterson, agricultural representative, has arranged for next week in Smith, Dummer, Asphodel and back in the city at the Y.M.C.A.

Dr. Harold Worton will be the speaker at Selwyn on Tuesday and at Warsaw on Wednesday, Dec. 4 and 5.

Dr. D. C. MacKay, veterinarian for the Maple Cattle Breeders' Association, will give the main talk at Westwood on Thursday and at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday.

These meetings begin at 1:30 p.m. The program includes three films, "Meat on the Move" at 1:45; "Mastitis", at 2:30.

A final film is entitled "Life of the Soil". In between is the major speech and question period.

"I hope our farmers will turn out to these meetings and bring any questions from the r experience they would like to have discussed," Mr. Paterson said. "Dr. Worton of the city's department of health, and Dr. MacKay are both exceptionally well qualified. The more questions, the better they'll like it."

$450 Million Grain Crop Under Snow On Prairies

Farmers of Alberta and Saskatchewan estimate that more than $450,000,00 worth of wheat, oats and barley is lying under snow waiting until spring to be harvested.

Calgary Herald says most of it will eventually be salvaged, but its value after a winter in the open is a question mark."

"For a second successive year, a late growing season and early winter have combined with transportation and marketing problems to frustrate the farmers' hopes for a bulging crop of top quality grain, safely harvested and sold before winter sets in."

"Nearly three-quarters of the prairie wheat crop is still on the farms — either unharvested, or threshed and in makeshift storage. Farmers are without the cash they customarily receive in the fall when they deliver their grain to the elevators. Those with threshed grain are unable to get rid of it because most elevators are clogged.

Farm organizations are clamoring for financial advances from the federal government to see the farmers through the winter . . . . Manitoba has been relatively fortunate with more than 85 per cent of its grain crop threshed, and only $8,000,000 worth of grain under snow."

Here is the wheat picture statistically: The dominion bureau of statistics last Thursday estimated the wheat crop in the three western provinces at a potential 531,000,000 bushels. To this must be added 20,000,000 bushels of old-crop wheat still on the farms when the new crop year began Aug. 1.

From Aug. 1 to Nov. 8, the last date for which figures are available from the board of grain commissioners, farm deliveries of wheat totalled 162,000,000 bushels. That leaves 389,000,00 bushels, or about 73.5 per cent of the crop, still on the farms.

A lot of it has been threshed and is being stored in farm granaries and bins, or piled on the ground, until there is room in the clogged elevators.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Women Dig In Against High Prices

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Manufacturers may look on it as an unhappy omen. Store-owners may wonder where their customers have gone. For Canadian women have been digging in on the home front in the battle against high prices.

Initiated by one of the leading women's organizations, the National Council of Women, this move to combat high prices with thrift has already received the support of serious-minded housewives in all parts of the country. At Ottawa recently the local Council of Women was told a successful thrift campaign would be more effective in curbing inflation than price controls. Further, it would save the government the cost of subsidies.

"We are not asking you to stop all spending," said Mrs. G. D. Finlayson, first vice-president of the National Council. "Just slow it down."

She said women must learn to cut out the non-essentials, defer replacements as long as possible, and give careful thought to their needs, rather than their wants.

CAC Joins

The 12,000-member Canadian Association of Consumers has lent its support to the campaign. In the latest issue of the CAC bulletin readers are urged to buy the best quality, at the best prices.

The CAC also gently chides women buyers for chasing bargains. "No purchase is a bargain if we really do not need it," it says.

Finally, the bulletin introduced a few economical recipes as one practical way the housewife can practice what it preaches.

Peanut-Stuffed Peppers

Ingredients: six green peppers, one tablespoon melted fat, one-half cup uncooked rice, one-half cup minced onion, one-half cup chopped celery, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 cup water, two cups cooked or canned tomatoes with juice, one cup chopped salted peanuts, crumbs mixed with melted fat (to sprinkle over the top of the stuffed peppers.)

Prepare peppers by cutting off stems and removing seeds. Cook five minutes in boiling salted water.

Make stuffing by combining in ... pan melted fat, rice, onion, ... and salt. Add water slowly as mixture begins to cook. Cover pan and simmer five to 10 minutes. Add tomatoes and juice and simmer 10 minutes longer until rice is almost done. Add more liquid if needed, then stir in the chopped peanuts.

Pile this stuffing into the peppers and set them upright in a pan. Muffin tins are useful if they won't stand upright. Sprinkle crumbs on top of each pepper and put a little hot water in the tin with each pepper. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 to 40 minutes.

Thrift Hints

Newspaper can be used for kindling. A sheet of newspaper rolled up tightly from corner to corner and then twisted makes a better fire-lighter than kindling wood. Three or four will light an open fire or kitchen grate.

Finally, don't use up those fruit baskets for kindling. Sell them back to your fruit store.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Reader Requests Recipes Eccles Cakes, Strudel Dough

QUESTION: I would like very much to get recipes for Eccles Cakes and for the bread Apple German Strudel if it's made from flour and lard and pulled till it's paper thin. I've never been able to get the recipe yet—I'm very fond of it. I would also like to know if Pickled Cauliflower I put up is spoiled when it turns a pinkish colour as I'm afraid to try it in case it is spoiled. Last time I put it up it was a clear white.—Mrs. D. G.

ANSWER:

Apfel Strudel

Strudel Dough: 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1 tablespoon slightly melted butter, 1½ cups sifted bread flour, ½ cup warm butter or shortening, 4 tablespoons light bread crumbs.

Beat egg, salt, lukewarm water and slightly melted butter. Gradually add 1¼ cups flour beating till smooth. Add remaining flour if dough soft and sticky—dough must leave sides of bowl and form a ball. Strike dough against lightly greased board for about 5 minutes. If it sticks during process add small amount of flour. Place dough under hot bowl for about one hour. Meanwhile cover table with large pastry cloth sprinkled lightly with 2 or 3 tablespoons of flour. Roll and stretch dough unthin as tissue paper and cut away thick edges. Cut dough into two separate sheets.

Apple Filling: 4 cups thinly sliced apples (Jonathan or Delicious are the best), 1-3 cup granulated sugar, ¼ cup each steamed raisins, coarsely cut walnuts, and bread crumbs to sprinkle on apples. ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg combined with the sugar. A little melted butter may be drizzled over apples before rolling. Drizzle dough with part of melted butter and sprinkle with 4 tablespoons of bread crumbs shredded with filling. Place second piece of dough over first. Drizzle with part of melted shortening and crumbs. Fold end nearest you over filling, then lift cloth and roll up like jelly roll. Brush top of roll with warm melted shortening and bake on baking sheet for 30 to 40 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. If too large for baking sheet form a crescent.

Eccles Cakes

These are made with Puff (French) Paste cut into squares 4 in. by 4 in. Barely moisten dough with water. In centre place 1½ tablespoons of filling; 2-3 cup of currants, 1-3 cup chopped mixed peel, ⅛ to ¼ teaspoons each of mace and allspice, ½ to 1 cup bread or cake crumbs, 1 cup brown sugar.

When filling is in centre of square of dough, pinch corners together at centre top to seal filling in. Turn cake over and gently shape it into a round about ½ inch thick. Brush cakes with milk and dip in granulated sugar and bake at 375 deg. Fahr.

As for your pickled cauliflower which has turned pink during the pickling process, it is quite harmless if all the other ingredients in the jar are in good condition.

Shea-Shine

DOWNEYVILLE, Nov. 30 — (ENS).—St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Mary Shine, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Shine, became the bride of Mr. Joseph Shea, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Shea of Lindsay. Developing Social Skills Said Nursery School Goal

The YWCA Nursery Committee entertained the South End Nursery School mothers and friends Wednesday afternoon at "open house" in the nursery at Grace Church, Howden Ave. Young children who accompanied them played in the nursery room while the ladies participated in discussion on pre-school education.

Director of the school Mrs. V. C. Northcott confessed awareness to the suspicions and criticisms workers in the nursery school field are receiving, which usually comes from people completely unfamiliar with its accomplishments and goals.

To show how nursery schools are planned to aid the child, Mrs. Northcott described a typical half-day schedule. "Through the cloakroom, indoor table play, washroom, rest and nourishment routines, music circle, story time, creative work and outdoor free play, the children are developing not only their abilities, concentration, co-ordination and physical growth, but also are learning to share, to think of others, to be self-dependent and to know the need for bodily care and cleanliness."

"Music appreciation, self-expression and group participation, as well as development of the child's sense of rhythm and thinking powers is the purpose of the music circle," she said. "Imaginations and creative abilities are stimulated through the constructive and creative material used in nursery school. Discipline, through isolation, helps the child to accept responsibility for his actions."

Thus the goals of nursery education are not in terms of intellectual learning but to aid the child in his social skills. They are not to substitute for the home, but to offer additional opportunities for the child to develop socially, emotionally and mentally through association with contemporaries.

Mrs. Northcott commented that "nursery schools are necessary today but weren't in past generations because the large families made most homes nursery schools." Concluding she said:

"Adults often expect too much of a child and often forget to set an example to the child, as they learn much through imitating." She urged, "At no time should the expression "bad boy or girl" be used, a term most frequently employed in referring to a neighbor's child, so that the faults in one's own can be overlooked."

After discussing the subject the mothers were invited to enroll in a course on discipline which Mrs. A. A. Mathews will conduct in the new year. Mrs. Mathews is chairman of the Y nursery committee.

Mrs. T. J. Carley, president of the Y board, and Miss L. Brownscombe, executive director, spoke to the mothers, outlining the organization and financing of the nursery school.

Tea was served to the mothers.

Kinsmen Treated To Stage Show By The Kinettes

"Gentlemen's Night" it was called Thursday when the Kinettes entertained Kinsmen at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club with a varied program.

Mrs. Gorge Stone directed a unique and highly mirth provoking stage show which opened as a "backstage dressing room" and the entire group of 30 Kinettes was seen in forms of "backstage" attire, singing "I want to be near you."

The Kinettes performed a soft shoe dance, and another sang "Walter" to rounds of applause, but the seven Kinettes in very pretty costumes who danced the French "can can" polka were called back to do the number again.

A mystery woman put on a Dagmar of television act and sang "Who is Kitty Kinette?"

And Rutter as MC ad libbed the show to a grand finale with the entire cast singing "So long its been good to know you."

The entertainment then turned to dancing with about 135 enjoying the evening. A buffet luncheon was served later.

DOROTHY DIX

First Two Wives Worry To Third Woman

DEAR MISS DIX: At the age of 21 I have been married twice and my present husband has been married three times. He is 36. We have been married a year and a half, we get along fairly well, he buys me nice things and I think he loves me. But he does such odd things. Today he took my picture out of his wallet and substituted a photo of one of his ex-wives. Whenever we are near her, he stops in and visits his first wife, sometimes taking me along. I shouldn't think he'd want to see either of them again (they're both remarried). He drives a taxi during the day and I work at night so we have very little time together. He's difficult to talk to and drinks quite a bit. If I ask him where he's been he says it's none of my business, or lies to me. We are miserable with each other at times, but very happy at other times. What can I do with him?

JOY W.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: Being involved in so many marri[illegible] directly—is enough to try the spirit of a far older women than you are, Joy. While you probably would have been happier married to a man nearer your age, the die is cast and the thing to do now is work out a program for promoting happiness in the situation as it now exists.

Schedule Against You

The daily schedule, with both of you working different hours, is enough to create tension in itself. Your husband's meals are probably either non-existent or sketchy, which is bound to make him irritable, and the difficulty of managing housework and a job is hard on you. Can't you manage to give up your job and stay at home? That arrangement would be far easier on your nerves. Then, stop nagging! You may not realize you are doing it, but constant questioning is nagging and your husband is bound to resent it. Hard as it may be to keep your tongue under control, stop asking where he's been, or going.

Fundamental characteristics of his, which you knew about before you married him, are difficult to change—such as drinking, moodiness, etc. After all, he's 36 and bound to be set in his ways. These faults you must learn to live with; they're very hard to change. The big difference in your ages probably makes your husband look upon you as a child who hasn't the authority to ask questions, nor the sense to solve problems. Analyze your self. Decide what poor traits you have—such as nagging—and change them.

On one point you should be insistent. Hubby's visits to his ex-wife should be stopped. They're doing no one any good and are likely to make considerable trouble, particularly if the ex-wife's husband disapproves of them too.

You figure out what makes the difference between the difficult times and your happy times together. Eliminate the things that make the difficulties, and work more on expanding your happiness.

DEAR MISS DIX: Can you help me with my problem? I am a widower of 40, in love with a girl 28. I have proposed to her but she won't give me a definite acceptance. She goes out with me once a week but also goes out with a fellow 29 years old. Occasionally, she even breaks a date with him to go out with me. I've got an idea she thinks I'm too old for her.

In the meantime, a woman I know who is 39 keeps hinting that I'd make a good husband for her. She's pretty, well educated, but after all she isn't a girl anymore, though quite attractive. She might make a good wife except for her age. Do you think I ought to stop seeing the girl and ask this older woman to marry me or what?

M. D.

ANSWER: You certainly are inconsistent! You're disgusted because you think a 28-year-old girl considers you too old for her at 40; yet you in turn consider someone 39 ripe for the old-age home.

Your romance with the young lady does not seem to be progressing too favorably, and I think you're entirely too wrapped up with the idea of marrying youth. From an age standpoint, the other woman would certainly be a better match for you, but must also have attractions other than the fact that she's "willin'." Better break off with the young woman; if she does care for you, the idea of losing you might help make up her mind. Then take another look around. But don't be in too much hurry to marry anyone, least of all the "old hag" of 39, unless you're very sure of yourself.

Six Candidates Seek Positions On Board Of Education

MRS. ANNE ROWELL

Mrs. Paige Rowell (Anne), housewife, 494 Gilmour St., is a trustee seeking her second term of office. In the elections for the 1950-51 term, Mrs. Rowell, then a newcomer, polled second highest vote among the seven candidates.

This past year Mrs. Rowell has been active on three of the standing committees: property, advisory-vocational and health. Her special interest was the setting up of the new teacher-school board committee to discuss mutual problems.

"I was particularly interested in the setting up of this new committee," said Mrs. Rowell, "and I'm just as interested in seeing that it carries on and is a success."

Mrs. Rowell has also served on the supervision committee.

Children At School

A daughter is a student at PCVS, another is at University College, Toronto, and a son is attending public school.

Mrs. Rowell has been active in YWCA work for a number of years. She is chairman of the national commission on YMCA-YWCA relations, and she is a past president and a trustee of the local YWCA branch.

In campaigns of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund she has also been active. She is a former director, and an organizer of the women's division.

Mrs. Rowell was educated in Ottawa public schools, Havergal College, Toronto, and at Macdonald College, Quebec. During the Second World War she served on the Dependents' Board and she also did Red Cross work.

STANLEY R. ADAMSON

Stanley R. Adamson, 611 Bollvar St., works auditor and acting assistant works accountant at CGE, is trying for his second successive term on the Board of Education. He came fourth among seven candidates at the elections for the 1950-51 term.

In his first bid, in 1949, he was edged out.

Mr. Adamson was born in Ashburnham and educated at King George school and the Collegiate.

This year he was chairman of the advisory-vocational committee, a member of the accommodation and property committees, and chairman of the special committee on teachers' salaries.

Mr. Adamson said that his chief interest in seeking re-election is to see the drawing up of a long-range plan covering the Board's building program, the maintenance and improvement of the older schools, and a sound wage policy.

He has two young daughters, both of pre-school age.

More than 20 years ago he began work as a clerk in the accounting department at CGE and has received promotions to his present offices of works auditor and acting assistant works accountant.

Made Supervisor

In 1942 he was made supervisor of accounting at Genelco and after four years there he came back to the parent company as co-ordinator. He is also a one-time supervisor of costs and accounting at the Peterborough plant.

His favorite hobbies are golf and fishing. He is a former member of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club and he is a member of the Peterborough branch, Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants.

To Appear On TV

OTTAWA, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Health Minister Martin will travel to Detroit to participate in a television program sponsored by the University of Detroit. Mr. Martin, who represents the Ontario constituency of Essex East across [illegible] will be [illegible] in [illegible] on [illegible]

An interest in public affairs and education in particular prompted Ed. Humphrey to accept the challenge of running for board of education when he was nominated last Friday night.

"This is a challenge that anyone should accept who is nominated," Mr. Humphrey believes.

A maintenance mechanic with A. Wander Ltd., Mr. Humphrey came to Peterborough in 1946 and he is chairman of the Peterborough and District Labor Council's Political Action Committee. He is also an active member, Local 434 UPWA (CIO-CCL).

This is the first time he has sought a seat on the board of education.

Army Career

Mr. Humphrey was on the original staff of the Hamilton Trades School when it was opened in 1941. He was also one of five-man committee which drew up the course of studies accepted for this vocational school.

In 1942, Mr. Humphrey helped organize the RCASC training centre at Camp Borden and spent considerable time organizing an advanced course for mechanics and drivers there.

EDMUND HUMPHREY

During this time, Mr. Humphrey gained experience in supervising hundreds of men and handling large sums of money. He was a National Defence Headquarters Representative in Regina at the outbreak of the last war in 1939.

He is the labor council's delegate to the local United Nations Association and Film Council branch.

A desire to help in the progress of Peterborough prompted Arthur Pitchford to run for a seat on the Board of Education, of which he was a member from 1945 to 1949.

Always a keen student of civic affairs, he was elected to the school board of SS 2 in North Monaghan, and served six years on it before the board area was annexed by Peterborough. The area included Confederation and May's schools.

Came Here In 1910

Since he came to Peterborough in 1910, Mr. Pitchford has been employed by only two firms, and this week is completing 35 years of service with the Quaker Oats Company, where he is in charge of the cost department.

He completed his primary education at South Central school, and in the entrance examinations of 1913 was awarded the Burnham gold watch for high mark in the city. He graduated from PCI in 1915 with a commercial diploma.

The 1949 election ended his service on the board, but he has since worked on the advisory and vocational committee.

A member of Knox United church, Mr. Pitchford has served for many years as clerk of session. He and his wife have a family of three daughters, one of whom is teaching in Hamilton.

ARTHUR PITCHFORD

Candidate Withdraws

OSHAWA, Nov. 30. (CP) — Arthur Williams, nominated by the CCF for the coming federal by-election to fill the seat vacated by Ontario Liberal leader Walter Thomson in Ontario riding, has withdrawn. The announcement was made Thursday night at a special Ontario riding CCF association meeting. No new CCF candidate has been named.

No Medical Attention

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP) — About 10,000 Canadian mothers have no medical attention at the birth of their babies, Dr. Ernest Couture, director of the Federal Child and Maternal Health Division, said Thursday. He told the annual meeting of the Health League of Canada that this figure represents about three per cent of all births in Canada.

G. WILSON CRAW

G. Wilson Craw who is seeking re-election to the Board of Education was first elected to that body in 1939 and with the exception of one year has served ever since.

He is a past chairman of the board and since the difficult problem of school accommodation came to the fore, he has been chairman of the accommodation committee. In those six years additions have been built to the Queen Mary, Confederation, Parkhill and Prince of Wales schools. Four rooms are now being added to the Grove school and plans are underway to build a new school in Ashburnham.

Building also got underway this year on the Kenner Collegiate on Monaghan Rd. south. Mr. Craw has also been chairman of the finance committee of the Board for those six years.

He is a son of the manse and was educated in North Monaghan and the PCVS. He has been a member of the editorial staff of the Examiner for 25 years and for the past eight has been managing editor.

The third generation to manage his family's contracting firm, Charles Huffman is offering his services to Peterborough as a member of the Board of Education. This is his first bid for election to a public body.

With an increasingly large volume of business being done annually by the board, Mr. Huffman feels the Board of Education needs executive ability. He is prepared to offer his ability to the board.

Charlie Huffman was born in Peterborough in 1909, and was educated in the city's public school system and at Peterborough Collegiate Institute. After attending Peterborough Business College, he went into the Huffman contracting firm, working for his father and grandfather.

C of C Director

A member of Trinity United Church, he is on the church's board of stewards and is chairman of the property committee. He is as well a director of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and president of the Peterborough Builders' Exchange.

A Kiwanian, Mr. Huffman was recently appointed chairman for district 6 of the Key Clubs, the Kiwanis youth organization.

CHARLES HUFFMAN

Student Dies

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP) — George Thwaits, 16-year-old high school student, died Thursday night less than 24 hours after being struck by a stolen truck while riding his bicycle along a suburban Etobicoke township street. Shortly afterward police arrested Gordon Wood, 26, of Toronto, and charged him with failing to remain at the scene of an accident, dangerous driving and theft of the truck.

Work Stoppage At Ford Plant

WINDSOR, Nov. 30. (CP)—A disturbance among employees of Ford of Canada's final assembly plant 4 early Thursday afternoon caused a brief stoppage in operations in both plant 2 and plant 4, company officials said.

Officials of the Ford Local 200, of the United Automobile Workers CIO said that they had not been notified by the men of their intention to stop work.

A strong protest was made on Thursday to Labor Minister Daley against the seven-week-long delay of a conciliation board report which will affect 10,000 Ford workers.

Jack Taylor, president of Local 200, wired Mr. Daley: that "Ford workers are becoming more restless by the day, because of the seemingly endless delay in their conciliation report."

Last year's wage contract, due to expire May 29, is still in force pending the signing of a new one. The Union applied for conciliation proceedings in July and a board considered the dispute Oct. 8-9.

Need More Diplomacy

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP)—Percy J. Philip, Ottawa correspondent of The New York Times, today told the Empire Club here that the United Nations needed a return to diplomacy. "To some it may seem almost treasonable to suggest the United Nations has already proved wrong in method, however excellent it may be in intention," said Mr. Philip. He said it was time to reduce world hysteria by placing international disputes in the hands of trained diplomats who, working secretly, might yet preserve the peace of the world.

300,000 VD Cases

TORONTO, Nov. 30. (CP)—Despite development of penicillin as a cure for venereal disease, there are still some 300,000 syphilitics in Canada and doctors say the real enemy in the VD spread is sexual promiscuity. The subject was discussed by general director Dr. Gordon Bates as the Health League of Canada opened its 32nd annual convention Thursday.

Last Loading Drive

PORT ARTHURU, Nov. 30. — (CP)—Ideal weather and forthcoming increases in insurance rates for lake freighters combined Thursday to produce the last loading drive at the lakehead before navigation closes for the season. Twenty freighters were in harbor Thursday, most of them loading grain. Sixteen cleared on Wednesday night for eastern Ontario ports.

To take a load off horses' shoulders — and their owners' minds — a harnessmaker in Ontario has developed horse-collars with lightweight aluminum hames.

This company is just one of over 1000 in Canada who, by manufacturing aluminum articles, make life easier for everyone who has to carry or clean. Since this is going on all over the world, it means more and more people wanting aluminum. We in Canada are fortunate in having the waterpower to generate electricity to make aluminum for ourselves and the rest of the free world. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Price Controls Placed On Houses

TORONTO, Nov. 30 — (CP) — Government controls on the price of new houses were criticized at a meeting of the National House Builders' Association central committee here Wedesnday night.

Sam Jackson, of Oshawa, vice-president of the group, declared that only two weeks ago Resources Minister Winters had restated Ottawa's belief that direct price controls were not effective in combating inflation. At the same time the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation — an agency reporting to the minister — was imposing price controls on dwellings built under the revised National Housing Act.

Mr. Jackson said this appeared to be "the height of inconsistency."

"Running the gamut" derives from use of gamut as a term for the eight notes of an octave.

Few Interested In Ex-Teacher

TORONTO, Nov. 30 — (CP)— Only a group of curious, middle-aged women were waiting for a glimpse of Alfred P. Greene when the runaway school teacher arrived here Thursday night in police custody.

Green was brought from Windsor following his arrest in Chicago with Mrs. Beatrice Reason, triple divorcee and one of his night school pupils, with whom he lived in St. Louis, Mo.

Greene, who left his $60-a-week school-teaching job in Toronto and became a $350-a-week advertising executive, smiled when he saw the waiting group at the station.

Mrs. Reason was not with him. She had been detained at Windsor by immigration officials because of doubts over her citizenship.

Although he was carrying a large brown suitcase and an armful of clothing, Greene had a jaunty air as he clicked across the station concourse, followed by a policeman.

Full of bustle and smiles, the 39-year-old "pillar of the community"—who left his wife and four children after staging a fake murder scene—appeared in court today.

He was remanded on charges of deserting minors and causing a public mischief.

Drop Investigation

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 — (AP)— The police department today dropped its investigation of the Josephine Baker-Stork Club incident. The department had investigated charges that the negro entertainer had been discriminated against at the swank restaurant. A report said police and officials of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People had "agreed that the facts disclosed were insufficient to proceed against the stork club management in a criminal court."

Canadian Wins Praise From NY Critics

NEW YORK, Nov. 30—(CP)— Freda Trepel's fourth New York piano recital today met with qualified approval at the hands of New York's music critics.

The New York Times and The New York Herald-Tribune both mark the Winnipeg musician highly for style, color range, technical ability and inherent musicality.

But both complain that her performance demonstrated merely a "collection of isolated skills."

The Herald-Tribune says "she has strong, fleet fingers whose precise work she blurs with her pedal. All her talents are thus served; they exist, as it were, in a vacuum."

Miss Trepel, wife of Walter Kaufman, conductor of the Winnipeg Symphony, appeared at Town Hall. Her recital included selections from Vivaldi-Bach, Beethoven, Ravel, Mussorgsky and F. Kuhlau.

The Times' critic ranks her among those artists "who so impress the listener with their positive qualities that any descent from a top performance is a keen disappointment." She was praised for smooth and meaningful phrasing, a "fluid legato and a clean, smooth staccato," and an "unusually-wide dynamic range."

Some Criticism

The Times finds fault, however, with a "rather mechanical emphasis" and a lack of "intensity of concentration." The critic remarks that she may have been tired after the strong fortissimo of the pre-intermission Beethoven, for the Ravel afterward was "maturely conceived and contained considerable atmosphere, if little variety of tone color."

The Herald-Tribune remarks that Miss Trepel "has at her disposal all the necessary ingredients for stylish performance . . . (but they) . . . have not been well mixed."

"In spite of this, Miss Trepel has enough inherent musicality to overcome whatever obstacles immaturity places in her path . . . with continued study she will, perhaps, bring unity to her several skills."

Dollar Unchanged

MONTREAL, Nov. 30 — (CP)— The United States dollar today opened at 3 9/16 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, unchanged from Thursday's close. That is, it took $1.03 9/16 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling was $2.90, also unchanged.

Marmora Street To Get Another Face-Lifting

MARMORA, Nov. 30 (ENS)— Forsyth Street, Marmora, is to undergo more face lifting at the hands of A. J. Moynes. After erecting a new store several years ago, more recently he built the Plaza Theatre. Next he was responsible for the erection of the local liquor store. His new venture, consequent on his purchase of the building occupied for years by George H. Forestell as a garage and service station, is this: He plans to have the old building torn down and a new one erected in the early spring.

Present plans are to make two long, narrow stores and also a restaurant for rental purposes. It is understood that Mr. Moynes already has inquiries in regard to renting one of the buildings. The western side of the street thus in a few years will have undergone a change of frontage rarely equalled in a village the size of Marmora.

FLESHERTON, Ont., Nov. 30— (CP)— Ten starving dogs and three cats were taken Thursday night from what provincial police said was a filth-strewn farm house near this Guelph district town.

Two other dogs and one cat were found dead.

Acting on instructions from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelt to Animals, Inspector L. Shaw of Guelph took the surviving animals to the Ontario Veterinary College at Guelph.

The SPCA came into the case after Provincial Constable H. C. Black went to the house Wednesday on the complaint of a man who said he bought a dog and did not receive it.

Police said the owner of the house, a woman, has not been seen since Saturday. There was no food or water for the animals and they apparently had not been let out of the house for some time.

OVA officals said the animals were suffering from "malnutrition to the point of emaciation." Dr. James Archibald said that with proper care all would recover.

The house was vacant when police arrived but the furniture had not been removed and there were several trunks in the building.

Taking No Chances

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 30 — (AP) — The nude body of an unidentified elderly man—shot, hanged and stabbed —was found in a St. Louis County cemetery Thursday. The body was hanging by a sash cord from a tree limb. A stab wound was in the throat and shotgun pellets were found in the abdomen and legs.

Far Too Frugal

NEW YORK, Nov. 30 — (AP)— The woman known by neighbors as "Frugal Annie" died Thursday near her $9-a-month flat in Brooklyn. Anna Lampe, 70, was a pathetic figure for years, rummaging through trash cans for whatever she could find. After her death police discovered bank books showing deposits of about $16,000.

Things Not Going Well In Korea Canadians Told

Police Capture Murderess

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 1. (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, the one-time "tiger woman" who killed two girl friends 20 years ago, was recaptured last night and went back to the state hospital for the insane as meekly as a kitten. Her fourth escape from the asylum gave her slightly less than 24 hours of harried freedom. Two policemen picked up the 48-year-old trunk murderer three blocks from an apartment court in which two former women attendants of the hospital lived. Mrs. Judd, wearing a fur coat taken from one of the apartments, offered no resistance. "Why did you have to pick me up?" she asked. "I've served 20 years out there and I think I should be turned loose. I had a tragedy 20 years ago that I wasn't wholly responsible for."

It was in October, 1931, that Mrs. Judd shot her roommates, Agnes Anne Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson, to death here. She shipped their dismembered bodies to Los Angeles. Mrs. Judd was convicted and sentenced to hang. Within 72 hours of the execution time she was found insane.

Back To Bed

Mrs. Judd, still an attractive woman with tinted red hair, escaped Thursday night by prying open a second-storey screen window and sliding to the ground on a ladder fashioned of rags, yarn and an electric ironing cord.

At the hospital, Mrs. Judd was given warm milk and put to bed in her regular room.

At police headquarters, Mrs. Judd said:

"I am not a criminal. I am not a gangster. I have helped those sick people at the hospital who are sicker than I am.

"Why don't they send me to South America? I have a friend in Paraguay who is head of a leper colony and they (the lepers) are just like me—they're unwanted. I could do so much for the little children there, teaching them embroidery, crocheting and other things that I learned in 'that place'."

Mrs. Judd said she got tools used in her escape while workmen were remodeling part of the hospital.

4 Days Without Any Food 1 Of 8 Alive In Lifeboat

CHARLESTON, SC, Dec. 1. (AP)—The only survivor of a yachting tragedy which took eight lives sobbed out Friday night his story of a four-day nightmare aboard a small lifeboat without food or water. In the boat with the survivor, Gustav Emanuel Frazer, rescuers found the bodies of the yacht's skipper, wife and their dying 12-year-old son. Four others died at sea and the yacht's navigator had jumped overboard to end his life.

Frazer was given an emergency blood transfusion after he was taken aboard the minesweeper Token, which sighted the 14-foot life-boat Friday afternoon.

The boy, son of Capt. and Mrs. Samuel A. Luttrell, was still alive when picked up, but he died before the minesweeper reached shore.

Frazer, in broken, agonized phrases, related how the grim saga began last Monday at Morehead City, NC, where the yacht Amphitrite put out for St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Boat Sprung Leak

The yacht sprung a leak and Luttrell changed course for Charleston. High winds and heavy seas hurled the 96-foot craft on a reef.

All nine persons aboard took to the 14-foot lifeboat. But in their haste they forgot water and provisions. There followed four days and nights of exposure, hunger and thirst.

Luttrell, an experienced seaman had returned from the Virgin Islands to pick up the ill-fated Amphitrite, a converted submarine chaser.

Along the way he had to pick up a new navigator, the man who jumped from the lifeboat in wild desperation two days before the small craft was sighted by the minesweeper.

List Shuffle Of US Officers

TOKYO, Dec. 1 —(Reuters)—Gen. Matthew Ridgway today announced a reshuffle of his United States corps and division commanders in Korea.

Lt.-Gen. William M. Hoge, 9th Corps commander, will return to the United States for an unannounced assignment.

Maj.-Gen. Clovis E. Byers, commander of the 10th Corps, will come to Tokyo.

Armistice negotiator Maj.-Gen. Henry Hodes, who had been deputy commander of the Eighth Army, will take command of a combat division and his place on the truce talks team will be taken by 7th Division commander, Maj.-Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh.

The leader of the US 24th Division, Maj.-Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, will replace Ridgway's deputy chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Whitfield P. Sheapard, whose new assignment was not announced.

Russia Warns Turkey On Pact Participation

LONDON, Dec. 1—(Reuters)—Russia has warned Turkey her participation in the Atlantic Pact will "undoubtedly cause serious harm" to relations between the two countries.

Responsibility for the consequences of such a policy will rest completely with Turkey, Russia stated in a new note which Andre Gromyko, Deputy Foreign Minister, handed to the Turkish ambassador in Moscow Friday.

The text was made available in London early today by Tass, official Soviet news agency.

The new note said Russia "resolutely rejects all attempts of the Turkish government to justify its actions by slanderous references to an invented threat on the part of the USSR."

Big 4 Agree On Procedure

PARIS, Dec. 1 (CP) — United States, British, French and Russian representatives today agreed on the procedure to be followed in meetings of the big-four United Nations disarmament committee.

The agreement was reached when the fateful 10-day secret talks opened this morning.

Luis Padillo Nervo, UN assembly president who presided at a preliminary meeting, said there was unanimous agreement on the plan of work for future meetings. He said the atmosphere was cordial.

Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia who Friday agreed to the talks and called for banning of the atom bomb, arrived on the dot at 11 a.m. for the meeting.

Other delegates were Philip C. Jessup, of the United States, Jules Moch of France, and Selwyn Lloyd of Britain.

They talked for an hour in the assembly president's private office.

Padilla Nervo, chairman of the committee set up Friday announced they will meet again Monday at 10.30 a.m.

There would be two meetings every day until Dec. 10, the deadline set by the political committee for the four to report back with their findings.

Padilla Nervo told reporters: "We have completely agreed at this informal meeting on every single point I raised in respect to the organization of our meetings.

Find Many College Students Don't Know St. Laurent PM

MONTREAL, Dec. 1—(CP)—A McGill University students committee release said Friday that about a quarter of 746 students applying for entrance to McGill don't know who is Canada's Prime Minister, but later a professor said only about one in 20 of the group haven't that knowledge.

Professor Arthur L. Phelps of the English department, who said he set the test, declared the 25-per-cent figure was an error of the committe which classified the results. Complete figures on this phase of the special test given new students have not been compiled, he added.

Professor Phelps admitted that a majority of the 746 couldn't name the date of Confederation (1867) or the number of provinces participating when the Dominion was formed (four).

He blamed American influences, saying "we are letting your youth grow up as Americans instead of making Canadians of them."

The students committee release issued earlier also said that among those listed as present Prime Minister were Viscount Alexander (present Governor-General, Maurice Duplessis (premier of Quebec) and Mackenzie King (former Prime Minister who died more than a year ago).

The applicants favored External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson who was named, among other things, United States Defence Minister, head of the Canadian Seaway Council and Canadian Minister of Business.

And one students said the statue of Westminster was a monument in commemoration of a battle between French and English in 1773.

Uranium Geologist Flees To Berlin

BERLIN, Dec. 1 (AP). — The West German newspaper Die Welt said today the chief geologist of Russia's uranium mining project in East Germany had fled to Berlin. It said he was taken to "a secret place in Western Europe."

Die Welt identified him as Lt.-Col. Fedya Nikolayevitch Astachov, a Stalin prize-winner in charge of planning in the Soviet Wismuth AG Company in the Russian zone since 1947.

The newspaper gave neither the source nor the time of Astachov's reported flight to the west. It could not be confirmed elsewhere.

Keeping Wires Hot

SYRACUSE, NY, Dec. 1 (AP). Youngsters have been keeping the wires to Santa's headquarters so hot that fuses in central headquarters of the telephone company burned out. Company officials said yesterday that so many youngsters have been dialling a number listed for Santa by a department store that at one time all exchanges were inoperative.

Proof For Truman

TOKYO, Dec. 1. (AP) — The National Broadcasting Company representative here today said he had offered to send to President Truman the recording tape which NBC said caught the voice of army officers on the western Korean front ordering men to hold their fire except in self defence.

Platform Breaks Man Falls 25 Ft.

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 1 — (ENS)—Archie Dewey, 24, Campbellford, fell 25 feet and landed on a pile of logs when the platform on which he was working collapsed under him Friday about 11 pm.

He suffered undetermined back and arm injuries. Dewey was working at the Gair Co. pulp mill in the village directing logs from a conveyor chute to a pile below. The platform on which he was standing suddenly gave way.

He was found unconscious a short time later by a fellow employee, Marcus Radley. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

Meyer Driving Back To Prison

HANNOVER, Germany, Dec. 1 (CP)—Kurt Meyer said Friday night that he plans to return to Werl military prison today in a car owned by friends.

In a long-distance conversation from his home at Offleben, the wartime Elite Corps (SS) general convicted of responsibility for the murder of 18 Canadian soldiers in Normandy said he had spent his leave from prison playing with his children, looking at the scenery and talking with wartime comrades.

(Meyer was sentenced to death after his war-crimes trial but the sentence later was commuted to life imprisonment. He was taken to the federal penitentiary at Dorchester, NB, in 1946 but recently was returned to Germany where he entered the Werl prison.)

On his last night at home Meyer spent the evening quietly with his family. In the phone talk he showed great interest in parliamentary discussions about him in Ottawa.

Pearson In Paris

PARIS, Dec. 1—(Reuters)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs secretary, arrived here by train today from Rome, where he presided over the North Atlantic Treaty Council last week. He was accompanied by Arnold Heeney, Canada's under-secretary of state for external affairs.

Trouble Ahead

PARIS, Dec. 1. (CP)—Western Europe's economy is on a rough road these days and there are warnings of big rocks ahead. The only way to avert a catastrophe seen by economists is through drastic controls to stop inflation and quick transfer of United States dollars from military to economic aid. The western rearmament program is seen as the main cause of inflation in western Europe with Britain and France having the toughest time due to a necessity for bigger imports this year than originally expected. Other causes are bigger profits and wages, high consumer demand and easy credit facilities.

House Passes Increase In Pensions

Opposition Attempt To Get One Change For Veterans, Fails

OTTAWA, Dec. 1. (CP) — The Commons has approved plans to boost war disability pensions by 33 1-3 per cent. The enabling legislation was given third and final reading on Friday after comparatively-brief debate which featured renewed demands for raises in payments to dependents and in allowances to needy and prematurely-aged veterans.

The bill, which now goes to the senate, increases to $125 a month from $94 the basic 100-per-cent disability pension for single war veterans up to the rank of captain. A 50-per-cent pensioner gets one-half of those amounts, and a 10-per-cent pensioner one-tenth.

The allowance paid for a total disability pensioner's wife is increased to $45 from $31 and that for a first child to $20 from $19. Rates for other children remain unchanged at $15 for the second child and $12 for each subsequent child.

The increases all become effective Jan. 1 next.

Try For One Change

The Opposition made one attempt to alter the legislation.

Seeking to improve the lot of the needy veteran, Capt. Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) moved that the increases not be considered as income for purposes of the War Veterans' Allowance Act. His amendment was ruled out of order .

He suggested that a man getting both payments would have his allowance decreased as the disability pension was increased. This would be to keep his income within a ceiling fixed by law.

Col. A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal) and Percy Wright (CCF-Melfort) a veteran of the First World War, urged that the increases be made retroactive. They also suggested something should be done to increase the pensions of dependent parents.

Capt. George Cruickshank (L-Fraser Valley) joined Opposition members in urging that the war veterans' allowance be increased at this session.

Veterans Minister Lapointe said that pensions paid to dependents and to veterans with meritorius serivce will be reviewed by the pensions commission. These pensions are not set by law. ,

Chicago Results Satisfying Pimmett Says

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Canadian cattlemen at the 52nd International Livestock Exposition are generally satisfied with their showing.

In this, the biggest fat cattle show on the continent, Canadian cattle breeders failed to take any of the top honors but scored impressive placings in most of the classes they entered.

Lorne Pimmett, handling the M. H. Pimett and Sons entries from Indian River, said the Canadian Shorthorn showmen were "pretty well pleased" with their showing and "if we do as well next year we'll all be happy."

It was Lorne who chalked up the best victory for Canada in the cattle classes, winning a first prize in the junior heifer class. The heifer, 10-month-old Strathore Duthie Violet, was supreme champion at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto.

Other exhibitors in the Shorthorn breed placed high in their classes some of which had up to 60 entries. Thus an entry which made the first 10 rated high.

Tougher Competition

Pimmett said the competition was much tougher than at the Royal with some American herds bringing as many as 15 or 20 animals to the show.

Pimmett himself had five with him while all eight Canadian Shorthorn exhibitors had 40 entries.

Percy Webb, for 11 years Angus superintendent of Don Head Farms, Richmond Hill, Ont., said he was "awfully satisfied with the Angus showing the Canadian herds made. It's the hottest competition at the hottest show in the world."

He said there was no comparison in the Angus section between the International, which ends its eight-day stand today, and the Royal.

"The best Angus in the world are shown here," he said.

Deputy Defence Chief Believes Enemy Preparing New Blow

OTTAWA, Dec. 1. (CP) — Brig. C. M. Drury, Canada's Deputy Minister of National Defence, said Friday night things are not going "particularly well" in Korea.

"There are disquieting signs that it may not be the intention of the Communists to negotiate an armistice," he said.

"While our forces in Korea have not been getting any substantial strengthening, the opposing forces have shown signs of growth in strength and there are some disquieting indications that they are getting organized to fight a well-planned and well-supported offensive," he said.

Brig. Drury spoke at the St. Andrew's dinner of the officers of the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.

Substantial Build-Up

Communist artillery support was strengthening and "a very substantial build-up is occurring in the air. While we are getting considerable experience in jet fighter operations, similarly our opponents are acquiring valuable experience."

"Fortunately, if an offensive does take place we are in strong defensive positions, but it would be a little optimistic to look for an early end . . . to hostilities," the Deputy Minister said.

The temporary halt in Korean fighting last Wednesday was not the result of an order from this continent, Drury declared.

"But I suspect that at some high level in Korea, some officer did suggest a go slow'."

Indians Get Phones At Last

SUTTON, Dec. 1—(CP)—The 150 Indians who live on Georgina Island reserve in Lake Simcoe Friday saw workmen laying cable for their first telephones.

The phone service, sometimes vitally needed in winter to summon medical aid when the island is isolated by ice, will consist of two telephones at a cost of $4,500. The Indians paid the cost of the instalation—$4,500—out of their own pockets. They will also pay the monthly charges.

Despite constant demands to the Department of Indian Affairs the only way the residents finally could get phones was by getting them themselves.

Linesmen have had to chop an 18-foot channel in the ice to put down the two cables. The phones will sound their first ring in a couple of days. Eventually it is hoped any family will be able to have a phone.

The two phones now going in will be linked directly to Indian Agent W. Lyons at Virginia Beach.

Say UN Command Badly Worried By Red Air Power

MUNSAN, Korea, Dec. 1. (AP)—The United Nations command today disclosed anxiety over mounting Communist air power in Korea. It insisted in the Panmunjom truce talks that construction or repair of air bases in North Korea be banned during an armistice. The Reds promptly accused the United Nations of trying to deprive them permanently of the right to defend themselves. The air base issue was raised during a stormy Saturday session in which Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief UN negotiator, underscored the Allied demand that there be no military building and that joint observation teams be given free access to all Korea to police the truce.

Deeply Concerned

The official UN spokesman, Brig-Gen. William P. Nuckols told correspondents the UN Allies are deeply concerned over the threat posed by increasing Communist air strength. He said the UN command primarily fears the possibility of strong air support for Red ground forces.

North Korean Lt.-Gen. Nam Il insisted it is "necessary" to strengthen air bases. "I cannot but point out that the real objective of your proposal of allowing no increase of so-called military facilities is merely to deprive our side forever of the right to defend ourselves."

Won't Give In

Joy told Red envoys the UN Allies will continue to insist that there should be:

1. No increase of military forces by either side during an armistice.
2. No build-up of war materials during that period.
3. An armistice commission to supervise the truce, including joint observation teams free to move the length and breadth of Korea.
4. No discussion of withdrawing troops from Korea by the armistice conference since the question must be decided by the belligerent governments.

Joy's statement apparently added nothing new to the seven principles he proposed last Tuesday as a solution to the third item of the conference agenda—supervision of the truce. But it did emphasize UN assertions that

Conductor Saves Passengers On Train

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Dec. 1—(CP)—The quick work of a conductor helped avert major disaster Friday when all 10 cars of a Michigan Central Express train were set ablaze by flaming fuel after a collision with a fuel-oil truck.

The conductor, Wesley Kehrier of Detroit, calmly directed 275 pasengers aboard "The Michigan" to safety through the rear of the Detroit-to-Chicago train.

Six persons were injured, two critically, in the collision. And a retired railroad conductor passing by died of a heart attack in the excitement.

The flaming fuel spewed over a wide area and set three homes bordering the tracks aflame.

Canada Agrees To Widen Reciprocal Tax Exemptions

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 (CP).—Canada has acceded to a demand by the United States that reciprocal tax exemptions be widened for artists, musicians and professional athletes from each country temporarily performing across the border.

Under a new reciprocal tax agreement, professional entertainers, including athletes, from one country can work up to 183 days in the other without being subject to income tax in that country. At present they cannot stay longer than 90 days or earn more than $1,500 without being subject to foreign tax.

An amendment providing for this was endorsed Thursday by the Commons and sent to the Senate. The agreement has been approved by Washington and on final approval by Ottawa, will need only the final exchange of ratification between the two countries to become law. This is expected before the end of the year.

Finance Department spokesmen said it will apply to all artists, musicians and professional athletes such as National Hockey League players, whose performance take them from one country to the other.

The general provision provides that a person employed by say a Canadian firm, working only up to 183 days in the United States, shall not be subject to US income tax. At present such a person cannot earn more than $5,000 in the 183-day period without becoming liable to US tax, but the $5,000 ceiling is removed in the new agreement.

For persons not employed by a firm, but working on their own, the $5,000 and 183 day limits both apply.

If a person exceeds the limits set out in the treaty, he will be taxed by the country he is visiting. But on return home his own country will give him a credit for taxation purposes, up to the amount of foreign tax paid. However, if the foreign tax is more than his total tax at home, no refund is payable.

Russ Satellite Armies Growing Fast

ROME, Dec. 1 (AP).—Russia may not have increased her own armed forces lately, but the armies of her satellites are growing by leaps and bounds, western intelligence sources report.

One informant for a western power which keeps close tab on the iron curtain countries says Bulgaria has built up an army of between 160,000 and 180,000 men, spearheaded by some 500 tanks.

That would be three times the 55,000-man limit set by Bulgaria's peace treaty with the allies after the Second World War.

The Bulgarian air force has been converted to MIG-15 jets, the fighter plane which has proved so effective in Korea, the informant said.

This same informant said little Albania, now in the throes of a depression, has managed to build up an armed force of between 60,000 and 80,000 men.

Get Special Favors

He reported that Albania lacks Bulgaria's tanks and heavier armament, but the army is tough, well-trained and in good spirits. As in Bulgaria, troops are accorded special favors not granted the rest of Albania's people.

This report fits in with the general picture of conditions behind the iron curtain.

Western sources say the Russians have not been increasing their own forces, but the satellite armies have been strengthened recently.

The training level of both the Russian and satellite armies has been steadily improving, these informants say.

Russia herself is believed to have an army of between 165 and 175 divisions with almost one-third of them fully motorized or armored.

Crash Stops Stolen Car

HAMILTON, Dec. 1. (CP)—A car repoted stolen from Toronto was recovered in Hamilton Friday after a wild flight through city streets.

Noon-day crowds watched while detectives in a prowl car fired a warning shot and finally crashed into the fleeing vehicle.

The police car was side-swiped and almost forced onto the sidewalk before the chase ended.

Leonard McCauley, 17, of Toronto, is being held on a car theft charge. He is also charged with breaking, entering and theft.

His 15-year-old companion had trouble convincing police of his age. The boy is six feet, five inches tall and weighs 180 pounds.

Bus Drivers Walk Out Thousands Stranded

WINDSOR, Dec. 1 (CP). — Thousands of persons were left without transportation today when bus drivers of the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railway walked off the job. By 9 am all bus service had stopped.

The walkout began at 5 am when a group of drivers picketed the company garage. They made the move following a union meeting at 2:30 am, called at that hour because only then could a majority of the drivers be present. At that time it was decided to submit to arbitration complaints over the firing of seven men.

An emergency meeting of the SW and A board was called early today but by 9 am no decision was reached.

The walkout occurred when a small group of drivers decided they wanted the seven men who had been fired reinstated in their jobs until after arbitration.

Support Halts Stock Decline, Buyers Relax

By DICK BAIDEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nervous investors relaxed this week as strong stock market support reversed last week's sharp decline.

Some market observers, however, were disappointed at the "thinness" of the recovery. Pointing to generally slow trading they maintained that only a few leading industrial issues benefited from the upswing. From this they concluded that more wide swings could be expected.

Korean developments have been largely discounted as a market factor. United States authorities agree that regardless of the result of current truce negotiations, armament expenditures will not be reduced.

Toronto opened the week with little trend but prices bounced upward within the first hour of Monday's trading. In Montreal, papers turned upward.

Prices climbed steadily but more slowly at Toronto Tuesday until final-hour profit-taking skimmed gains. Industrials closed with a gain of more than two points. Papers and industrials climbed slowly in Montreal.

Wiped Out Gains

A late wave of profit-taking on Wednesday in Toronto wiped out early gains and dropped prices for the first time this week. In Montreal, papers and industrials weakened.

Toronto's final-hour rally on Thursday checked a slow decline. Montreal papers climbed while industrials steadied.

Sparked by strong final-hour support Toronto yesterday closed with an industrial gain of more than a point, base metals of almost two points and western oils of about a point. In Montreal, papers strengthened.

New York prices climbed steadily Monday in the busiest session in more than two weeks. The rise continued Tuesday and prices turned mixed Wednesday. Rails buoyed the market Thursday. Stocks swung upward Friday for the best rise since early August.

From Friday to Friday the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up 6.03 at 338.30, golds up 1.39 at 82.20, base metals up 3.53 at 188.81 and western oils up 4.06 at 123.58.

In Montreal banks were up .46 at 30.03, Utilities up .09 at 85.5, industrials up 5.7 at 219.4, combines up 4.0 at 174.7, papers up 41.93 at 779.26 and golds up 1.59 at 67.16.

In New York, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed $1.90 to $96.80.

FREEZE-UP SCRAMBLE—A total of 60 vessels line Montreal docksides as shippers start the first round of their annual fight to load and unload cargoes before the harbor freezes over. Pleads Guilty On Three Counts

COBOURG, Dec. 1 (ENS) — Joseph Convey, Hastings, pleaded guilty in police court here to being found in a bootlegging establishment, careless driving and driving without an operator's license. Provincial Constable S. Rose of Campbellford said that Convey was the driver of a car which rolled over in the ditch in Seymour township and ended up alongside a telephone pole. On the liquor charge he was fined $10 and costs; careless driving, $25 and costs and on the third charge, $10 and costs.

Month In Jail

Arrested November 20 by Cobourg police on a charge of theft of a fog lamp from an auto wreckers here, Joseph Johnston, AWOL from the army at Picton, was found guilty and sentenced to a month in jail. When picked up he was in a truck with Robert Edsell of Huntsville and the missing foglamp was in the truck. Police also found a considerable quantity of household goods said to have been stolen from summer cottages near Bracebridge in connection with that phase of the investigation.

Roger Corbeil of Cobourg, who said he borrowed a gun to go deer hunting, without the owner's permission, and forgot to bring it back, was given the benefit of the doubt on a theft charge. The gun belonged to Donald Mulvey of Cobourg and the evidence showed that Corbeil had taken the gun from Mulvey's home when there was nobody home. The accused said that when he went to borrow the gun there was nobody in the house, this was on November 12, and he had helped himself. It was on November 29 that police went to his home where the accused admitted taking the rifle, but said that he had forgotten to bring it back.

TORONTO, Dec. 1 (CP) — Official forecasts issued by the Dominion public weather office in Toronto today.

Synopsis:

Coal dealers in Southern Ontario are probably on the verge of tearing their hair out as unseasonably mild weather continues. Dense fog extended over rather large areas in the lower lakes regions and in Central Ontario Friday night, but much of this fog will have dissipated by mid-morning.

Although the deep low in the Atlantic, which is responsible for bringing in warm air from the south, is now moving up on Newfoundland, it appears evident that Jack Frost will require at least another 24 to 48 hours to collect his wits and his cold air forces, before he can renew his assault on Ontario.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Sunday:

Lake Erie, Lake Huron, Lake Ontario, Niagara, Southern Georgian Bay, Haliburton regions, Windsor, London, Toronto and Hamilton cities: sunny with a few cloudy intervals today and Sunday: clouding over by evening and continuing mild. Winds light. Low tonight and high Sunday at Windsor 38 and 55, St. Thomas, Toronto, St. Catharines and Hamilton 38 and 52, Wingham, London and Trenton 35 and 52, Muskoka 33 and 50, Killaloe 32 and 45.

Summary for Sunday: Mild, clouding over by evening.

Tells Texans Canada Land Of Opportunity

DALLAS, Texas — (CP) — A Montreal hotelman has given new twist to Horace Greeley's famous slogan, "Go west, young man."

"Go north, young man" was the advice given Texans by Richard H. Nash, general manager of Montreal's Mount Royal Hotel, on a visit here recently.

Mr. Nash, former hotel executive here, said there is more opportunity in Canada today than anywhere else in the world. The Dominion's natural resources are virtually unscratched and the situation is drawing millions from investing United States business men.

Going to Canada from Dallas in 1947, Mr. Nash managed the King Edward Hotel in Toronto before going to Montreal.

Insurance Firm Faces Strike

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP). — The Prudential Insurance Company, scheduled to have a strike today by 15,000 agents in 34 states, says it is prepared to service its customers by mail.

As a two-year contract expired Friday midnight, an official for the Insurance Agents' International Union (AFL) said all Prudential property will be picketed. However, picketing is not expected to start before Monday.

Federal mediation has failed to bring about a truce in the dispute.

The agents are demanding a raise in basic pay from $35 to $55 a week.

Prudential's president, Carroll M. Shanks, said such a boost would cost the company $35,000,000 a year. He said the agents now average more than $99 a week, counting commissions.

A union official said the average agent's salary is not more than $93.

The projected walkout would affect 28,000,000 policy-holders from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

Shanks said all offices would remain open and essential services would continue. Policyholders could mail in their payments or bring them to local offices.

Not Encouraging

The deputy minister said the picture in the Far East "doesn't look at all encouraging," Egypt was "an insoluble problem" but in western Europe "people are beginning to show determination to resist."

Speaking of military preparedness in Canada, Brig. Drury said the brigade group now being established in Europe would, if war comes, be augmented "and the only practical form of augmentation would be to raise it to a division. Following that there would have to be another division mobilized and these divisions would come from the reserves."

There was a certain feeling of unreadiness and frustration in the reserves "which must also affect those in the regular forces."

Scientists Experimenting In Hunt Against Cancer

Somewhere in a laboratory in Canada a research worker is trying to keep living tissue alive in a test tube. This is an experimental project to find the nutrients required to keep tissue alive. Somewhere else in this country a research worker is growing tumors on chick embryos. These are two of the many experiments being carried out towards conquering cancer in Canada which were outlined Friday night by Dr. O. H. Warwick, director of the National Cancer Institute of Canada, and the Canadian Cancer Society. Dr. Warwick was guest speaker at the fourth annual meeting of the Peterborough unit of the Canadian Cancer Society.

The noted cancer authority traced the growth in knowledge about cancer from an early Egyptian period down to the present.

Microscope

He explained that it was not until the microscope was invented in the 17th century that anything about living tissues was able to be discerned.

"Present work in cancer can be classified under three headings," Dr. Warwick said. "These three are physics, biochemistry and tissue culture."

He explained that much of this work consists of development and classification of tumors in animals. Mice are mainly used for these experiments.

Dr. Warwick also briefly outlined radioactive cobalt treatment for cancer. He said that radioactive cobalt produced at Chalk River has been sent to Saskatoon, Sask., and London, Ont., for use in cancer clinics.

Know Little

"Although research work on cancer is being done in approximately 75 laboratories in Canada, we don't know very much about this disease," he said. "The road is a long one and many of our present experimental projects will take years to complete, but we are keeping pace with England and the United States in this research."

Dr. Warwick was introduced by Dr. L. Zacks and was thanked by Dr. D. W. Clark.

Miss Isobel Oliver, executive secretary of the Ontario division, Canadian Cancer Society outlined the growth and work of the society.

She explained that there were 26 units in the Ontario division working on three aspects on the fight against cancer—education of the public, welfare service (providing bandages for cancer patients and transportation to clinics for treatment) and fund raising.

Arrive Too Late

She also outlined the growth of the society. It was the influence of the Canadian Medical Association that started the cancer society. Doctors were discovering that cancer patients were reaching them too late for effective treatment. They wanted a society organized which would aspread information about cancer and as a result the disease would be detected sooner.

Miss Oliver was introduced by Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the Peterborough unit and thanked by Miss E. M. Miller, corresponding secretary.

$100 Court Fine Boosts Price Bootleg Liquor

The price of bootleg liquor took a sharp jump in Peterborough today.

Four men, charged with having possession of liquor not obtained on their own permits, pleaded guilty in police court here. They were each fined $100 and $2.50 costs or three months by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

"It is quite apparent you boys either have lots of money or are protecting someone," Magistrate Philp said in fining the last of the four: Jim Bronson, 24, of RR 2, Peterborough.

Bronson together with Dow McDonald, 28, of 148 Hart Ave., and Basil Goolah, 22, of 996 High St., were found drinking in a parked car on Charlotte St., at 4.40 this morning by Constable Vic McConnell.

The men said they had been working until just before midnight. McDonald was drinking beer behind the wheel of the car, Goolah was also drinking when arrested and there was a pint case of beer in the back seat with four full pints in it.

The fourth man, William Whitfield, 30, of RR 8, Keene, was arrested by Constable Douglas Farthing in a car owned by William Turner of RR 8, Peterborouh, on Lansdowne St., at 3 o'clock this morning.

MOOSE JAW, Sask. —(CP)— Moose Jaw's Main street is famous. It's 100 feet wide and they call it the "golden mile."

It's not so long ago that it was paved with wooden blocks which used to up and float away in a heavy rain.

But today it's one of the west's widest and finest main stems. And if the business done there through the years were added up, its "golden mile" label wouldn't be far off.

Moose Jaw doesn't get much chance to forget that its business is based on agriculture and that wheat is a main reason for its existence.

The city, Saskatchewan's third largest with a population of just under 25,000, is the distributing centre for 40,000 square miles and a trading area for 20,000 square miles.

The towers that break its skylines are related to wheat. The provincial seed plant building, a flour mill and the federal grain storage elevator are Moose Jaw landmarks.

A Railway Town

But the No. 1 industry is railroading. It is a railwayman's railway town, the district headquarters in Saskatchewan for the Canadian Pacific Railway and the northern terminus of the Soo line to Minneapolis.

Moose Jaw is having one of its peak construction years. More than 800 new houses have been built during the last few years, enough to to make quite a difference in the city's landscape. And the small homes at the edge of town—the ones that have been there for decades — are freshly painted.

The city is enjoying good business — no rampaging boom but steady growth combined with prosperity.

Although this has been a bad harvest year, business has been "surprisingly good," says G. S. O'Shaughnessy, commissioner of Moose Jaw's Chamber of Commerce.

Bank debits for the first eight months of the year showed a 14.6-per cent increase over last year against an average increase for the prairies of 13.7 per cent.

Just south of the city a $3,000,000 home for mentally deficient is being built. It will house 1,000 patients with a staff of 300.

Big Air Force School

The air force is building a training school at the site of a Second World War station four miles south of the city. Some 120 houses are being built there as permanent staff quarters and other buildings and a branch rail line are under way. A $2,572,000 contract has been awarded for the job.

Changing the look of industrial Moose Jaw is a $5,000,000 expansion project at the British American Oil Company refinery. Installation of new equipment will double handling capacity for crude oil from the Alberta pipeline. When completed, the refinery will produce 230,000 gallons of gasoline a day.

Moose Jaw's schools are filled to capacity this fall. A $200,000 wing is being added to the Moose Jaw technical school. The school board has sites picked out for future schools.

The keynote today is steady progress. Forty years ago, Moose Jaw like many other western cities was a boom town. In 1913 its net assessment hit a high of more than $50,000,000. It dropped to a low of $14,500,000 in 1940.

Now it's on the way back and this year is expected to be about $20,000,000.

One thing the city has never been able to settle is how it got its name. Citizens are undecided whether it came from the shape of the Moose Jaw river or from the mending of a pioneer ox-cart wheel with a moose's jaw.

The Communists already have rejected the proposals. Saturday afternoon they again voiced strong objections.

After two hours and 37 minutes of debate, Joy emerged from the conference tent and told correspondents:

"As you know," Joy said, "we hold a flock of islands off the coast of North Korea. That seems to be a thorn in their side. They insist we withdraw from them."

Joy told the Communists Friday the Allies have no intention of abandoning the islands.

Doctor Protests Gov't Statement On Navy Hoax

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 — (CP) — A Liberal member and doctor, Brig. E. A. McCusker, protested angrily in the Commons Friday against a government statement concerning the youthful American who fraudul[illegible]posed as a physician in the [illegible]dian Navy.

Brig. McCusker, member for Regina and deputy-director of medical services of the 1st Canadian Corps during the Second World War, jumped to his feet and shouted:

"I object to this statement. It is an insult to the medical profession. The doctors who examined this man and admitted him to the service should be examined themselves."

Dr. McCusker is parliamentary assistant to Health Minister Martin.

His outburst came after the reading of a statement which said Ferdinand Waldo Demara, of Lawrence, Mass., had been questioned extensively by physicians whose reports "led us to believe that he had all the necessary experience and knowledge that a doctor would be required to have."

The statement was read by J. A. Blacchette, parliamentary assistant to Defence Minister Claxton, in reply to questions asked previously by an opposition member.

The statement said his general bearing and personality was sufficient "to merit the recommendation from the senior officers who convened to approve his appointment" and he conducted himself" in all respects as a gentleman and officer," performing successful duties "over and above the normal requirements."

CITY ..... PROVINCE .....

ALLURING TO VISITORS are the plantation and ante-bellum homes to be found in New Orleans. There are scores of them in and near the city to serve today as reminders of the golden age in which they were built. Fortunately for visitors, some of these homes are thrown open to them once a year during the Spring Fiesta, held in March and April. The interiors of these old houses are even more fascinating than the exteriors.

TRAVEL—with Jean Stenton

Spring Fiesta Colorful Event In New Orleans

Although Mardi-Gras and New Orleans are almost synonymous to most people, New Orleans offers a scarcely less spectacular and colorful event in its yearly Spring Fiesta in March or April. Then visitors are permitted to visit the private plantation homes and courtyards for a few brief weeks and are carried back into a golden age when New Orleans was considered the Paris of the new world.

This Fiesta is the greatest cultural event in the South. Its program includes old home tours, spirituals, garden tours, outdoor art exhibits etc. Two special events allow visitors to relive the gay life of an earlier day — "Courtyards and Crinolines" and "Patios By Candlelight."

"Courtyards and Crinolines" is staged two afternoons during Fiesta time. Ladies from New Orleans Society wear elaborate costumes from ante bellum days and play hostess to guests in various courtyards in the city It is a colorful and charming affair, that has become a kind of tradition and a source of visitors' enjoyment.

The big evening function is "Patios By Candlelight." It is even more appealing than the daytime activities. Choral groups, dressed as troubadors, wander through patios serenading tourists and natives with lovely lyrics.

New Orleans has somewhat the same effect upon the visitor as Quebec City. The charming mixture of old French and Spanish architecture carries the tourist back to Europe and the mother countries which nurtured the lusty colony.

As one wanders along the older section of the city, the visitor sees traces of the French, Spanish and early American architecture. Since New Orleans was first owned by France, the early houses are simple, but in the pattern which caused Thackeray to style it the "Paris in America."

Spain took over in 1768 and there were decided architectural changes. Tile and slate roofs were introduced and brick houses followed after the disastrous fires in 1788 and 1794. These simple rectangular houses surrounded by a verandah on four sides have a strong Spanish influence. This also predominates in the lovely courtyard homes.

From 1830 to the War Between the States, was a new era of ante bellum opulence. Homes became more costly and it was a period of Greek revival. People began designing their houses in what they fondly thought was the best tradition of ancient Greece. Most of these homes were almost crinoline in flavor.

The majority of these were built in the "Garden District, the centre of the American colony. Many are still in use today. The "Garden Homes" are two or three stories high, in an "L" shape. They are surrounded by iron fences or high brick walls and decorated with sturdy wooden columns or graceful slender ones, iron balconies and generally two tall chimneys.

Plantation Homes

The Plantation Homes were the third type, a blend of French, Spanish and American influences. They were raised about eight or nine feet above ground level and the houses were completely surrounded by broad verandahs that rested on massive brick columns. All the main rooms are on one floor, through the centre of which runs a wide hall. Because of the tall French windows, the verandah is reached from almost every room. Plantation homes are distinctive because of the basements, an innovation at that time.

In the tour of homes during the Spring Fiesta, the tourist will thoroughly enjoy his visit to the Garden District. It was established by the Americans after 1803 because of a Kentucky-like feud with the pleasure-loving Creoles. (Creoles are pure white descendents of French and Spanish parentage who founded and developed Louisiana.)

This is a region of beautiful mansions, half hidden in the profusion of great live oaks, sweet smelling magnolias and other varieties of trees. They boast large flower gardens, which in some cases are a block in area. This section has priceless relics of a bygone day in one of the most notable chapters in New Orleans history.

Many enterprising visitors prefer to do their inspecting on foot. This section is bounded by Jackson and Louisiana avenues, Magazine St. and St. Charles Ave. These homes are marked by high ceilings, cyprus construction, costly chandeliers and wide porches.

Has Personality

Cities have their own personalities. San Francisco has its Golden Gate, Washington its diplomats; Boston its Beacon Hill. But New Orleans has charm. The inseparable part of its charm are the courtyards or patios, built as part of the homes during the 1800's. They are elegant symbols of a past civilization.

Courtyards along the narrow streets in the French section are often hidden from sight behind a gate. Protected from the sun, these courtyards usually have a fountain in the centre and are decorated with banana trees and tropical flowers. During Fiesta, many of them are open to visitors and they can spend many delightful hours there.

Restaurants Must

Most tourists try at least one patio restaurant. Inspiration for writers and lovers of fine food is the famous "Courtyard of Two Sisters." It is one of the largest in the French quarter and was built in 1832. Visitors along Royal St. are always attracted by its high iron gates, the thick foliage of banana trees and its quaint French lamps. They serve luncheon and dinner and there is dancing at night.

The Patio Royal at 417 Royal St. is another lovely courtyard which should be seen especially in the spring. The perfume of the magnolia trees is heavenly and the food is good.

Although they serve no meals, the Brulatour Courtyard is a beautiful one. It has small hanging lamps, old vases and exotic plants. Its maze of strange wooden staircases, and delicate wrought iron stairways are most attractive. The gate is always open and it is a grand spot on a warm afternoon.

Some Practical Sugestions Teaching Child Obedience

By NANCY CLEAVER

"It is almost bed-time, Helen and John. Better start putting away your toys," mother calls to her small daughter and son.

"Mummy, do we have to go to bed now?" John questions.

"Do let us stay up a little longer! We are having such fun!" Helen pleads.

It is hard for a mother to close her ears to these pleas, but bed-time is bed-time and she asked her youngsters to start to get ready for the end of their day. What is she to do about this difficult problem of trying to have a happy bed-time? How is she to get the co-operation of her son and daughter in going to bed willingly?

One practical technique many mothers employ is using the clock as their friend.

"Go and look at the grandfather clock and see if it says bed-time is here!"

Somehow, as soon as a child can read the time, he finds it easier to follow the impersonal directions of the hands of the clock pointing to bed-time than give in to his mother's direct command.

Self-Disciplined Adult

Most modern parents agree that in thinking of obedience they must keep in mind training a child to grow into a self-disciplined adult. The little child needs a good deal of definite direction from mother and father. But as the years pass, a boy or girl should become increasingly responsible for his or her actions.

The over-strict parent who has been a dictator at home, demanding instant, unquestioning obedience, is not training a child to stand on his own feet and make his own decisions as a grown-up. On the other hand, the too-indulgent parent who lets a child do as he likes or gives an order and does not see that it is carried out, also fails his child in preparing him for a world where there are certain things he must carry out.

What are some practical suggestions to parents struggling with the problem of avoiding conflict and establishing the habit of obedience?

It is strange how often imperfect fathers and mothers expect perfect obedience all the time from their child! This is setting too high a standard for any healthy normal youngster with a will of his own. Of course he won't want to "mind" every time mother or daddy speaks to him!

Sometimes his failure to obey is partly his parent's fault because the directions give to him were too complicated for a little child to follow. At another time he was absorbed in his play and mother does not make sure that he heard and understands her command. It is little wonder that he does not do what he is told!

There is always a reason, (although sometimes it is hard to find) for contrariness. Disobedience may be a bid for attention from a child who longs for a little more loving or more interest in his small affairs on the part of the mother or dad. Every healthy preschool child passes through a "negative" stage when he wants to say "No! No!" to almost every suggestion.

Parents Should Agree

In making it easy for a child to obey, parents should agree on the minimum essential things to which the child must conform in his daily routine. Never let Junior set one parent's word over against the other parent's wishes, in order to get his own way! Mother's request should never be disputed or questioned by father, and vice-versa.

Never give a command unless you are in a position to see to it that your child carries it out. Give as few orders as possible, mean each command you give, and expect obedience from your child. Tact and courtesy are as important in dealing with a child as in any relationship.

Never shout or whine at a child in order to frighten him or arouse his sympathy to get obedience. Last, but not least, put yourself in your child's place when you give an order. Is it a reasonable request?

Is this command consistent with the "rules" which he had to obey yesterday? A normal child is reasonable, and will usually respond to sensible orders, which he knows he must carry out. Mother and father should see the habit of obedience as a necessary part of character training, but parents should not expect never to be opposed.

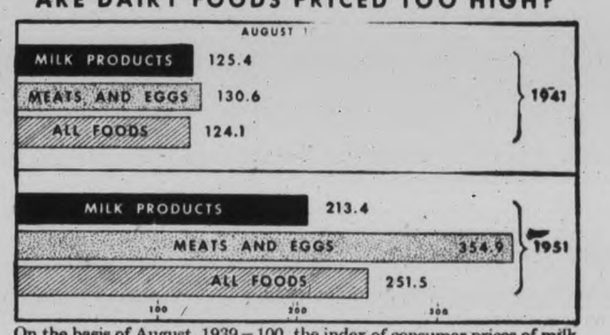
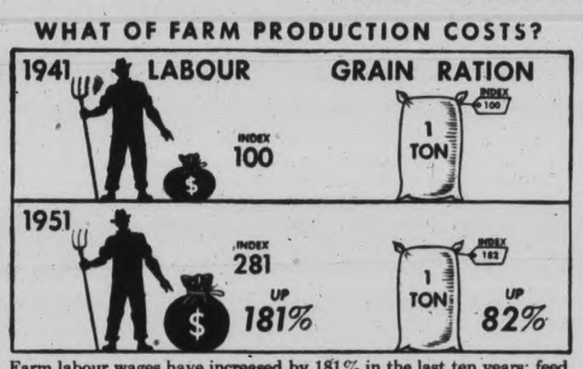
CANADA'S DAIRY INDUSTRY AT A GLANCE



THE CONSUMER OUTLOOK

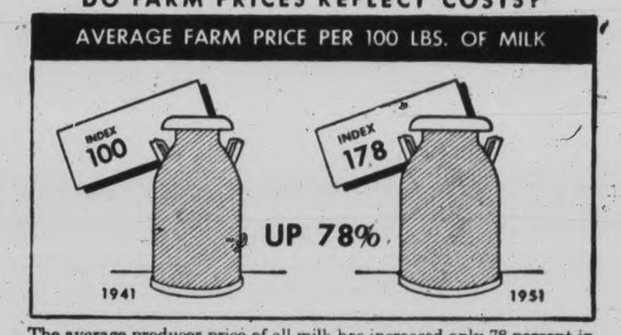
IS THE PRICE OF MILK TOO HIGH?

In 1939, the average hourly wage earner in manufacturing industry had to work for 15.6 minutes at his job to buy a quart of milk. Today 10.1 minutes of work at the average hourly wage in manufacturing industry will buy a quart of milk. Therefore, the price of milk is low in relation to the wage earner's income.



ARE DAIRY FOODS PRICED TOO HIGH?

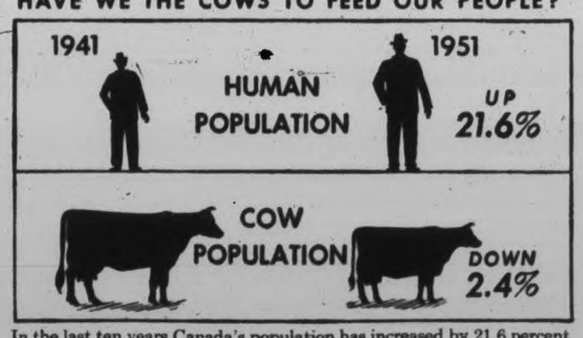
On the basis of August, 1939 = 100, the index of consumer prices of milk products stood at 125.4 in October, 1941; meat and eggs at 130.6, and all foods at 124.1. Today milk products are 213.4, meats and eggs 354.9 and all foods 251.5. Therefore, dairy foods are low-priced in relation to other foods.



THE PRODUCER OUTLOOK

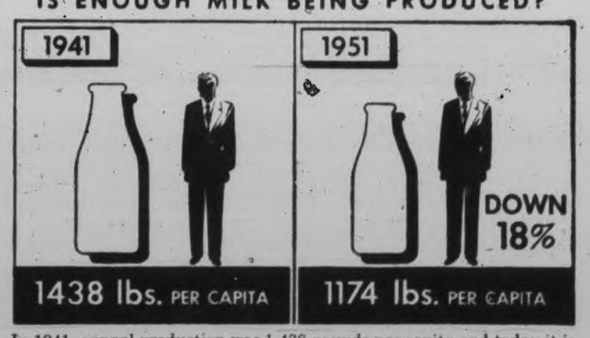
WHAT OF FARM PRODUCTION COSTS?

Farm labour wages have increased by 181% in the last ten years; feed costs, as represented by dairy grain mixture, by 82 percent. Labor and feed (dairy cows cannot be fed efficiently on home-grown crops alone) constitute the biggest items in milk production costs. The many other items in the cost of milk production likewise show big increases.



DO FARM PRICES REFLECT COSTS?

The average producer price of all milk has increased only 78 percent in the last ten years, a rise that has not kept pace with the greater increase in production costs. Three-quarters of the milk produced, including some from each shipper to the premium fluid milk market, goes to the lower-priced butter, cheese and manufactured milk markets.



THE NATIONAL OUTLOOK

HAVE WE THE COWS TO FEED OUR PEOPLE?

In the last ten years Canada's population has increased by 21.6 percent while the dairy cow population has decreased by 2.4 percent. More mouths to feed and fewer cows to feed them! The gap has been increasing with alarming rapidity in the last four years—a trend that can reach serious proportions in the near future.

IS ENOUGH MILK BEING PRODUCED?

In 1941, annual production was 1,438 pounds per capita and today it is 1,174 pounds, a decline of 18 percent. Today per capita consumption is 1,099 pounds per year. There is a margin of only 75 pounds per capita, or 6 percent, to feed livestock on the farms, leaving no margin to ensure continuity of supply of dairy foods.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO CANADA'S DAIRY INDUSTRY?

The above figures, drawn from official sources, show that Canada's dairy industry, instead of keeping pace with the nation's growth is in a period of decline—a decline that has become more and more marked since 1947. Simply stated, the costs of production and prices received are out of balance. Dairy farmers are cutting down or abandoning their dairy enterprise for more attractive fields of production. The immediate danger, if this decline remains unchecked, is the possible shortage at times of essential dairy foods in some Canadian markets. The longer range danger is the depletion of Canada's soils, so dependent on animals and crop rotation for the maintenance of fertility. Depleted soils lead to abandoned farms and blight of Canada's third largest industry with its major place in national income.

A More Peaceful Christmas?

As the Christmas month begins the prospects are that we may have a more peaceful holiday to celebrate the birth of the Prince of Peace than any Christmas has been for the last four years. There is a very good possibility of an armistice in Korea by Christmas; and yesterday's news that secret four-power talks on disarmament will be held by Britain, France, the United States and Russia, holds a ray of peaceful promise.

* * *

To qualify the word 'peace' as more or less, seems a logical error, as to say that a line is straighter than another. Is peace not peace, neither more peaceful nor less peaceful? If a line is straight, how can it be straighter? But modern international politics, like modern mathematics, have changed our concepts. We know now that a straight line can be curved; we know that we can have degrees of peace. It is a better degree of peace that the world sorely wants now. An end to the war in Korea would be a great relief. A lessening of the tension between East and West would decrease the possibility of an awful world-wrecking atomic war.

* * *

We are not so foolish as to believe that because Mr. Vishinsky has said that Russia is prepared to accept international control of atomic weapons, a workable international control of them will therefore be created and accepted. Because Mr. Vishinsky has agreed to a secret four-power conference on disarmament does not delude us into believing that disarmament will follow it. But the very fact that Russia has agreed to the principle of atomic weapons control and to attend a closed conference with the three major powers, shows the possibility of compromise to avoid war and decrease the discord between East and West. The Russian statements, no matter for what propaganda purposes they have been made, themselves lessen the tension. A more peaceful Christmas than any of the last four years is a probability.

Dickens Returns To The Platform

Mr. Emlyn Williams, celebrated as an actor and playwright—Night Must Fall and The Corn Is Green are standbys of the modern repertory theatre—is doing something very interesting in London; made up to look like Charles Dickens, wearing Victorian evening dress, and standing behind an exact reproduction of Dickens' own reading desk, he is giving readings from Dickens' novels at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, with very great success. So great is the success that he will repeat this performance in New York after Christmas.

No excuse is needed for such an entertainment. Dickens himself was a brilliant reader from his own works, and during the last twelve years of his life he made many tours for that purpose, and astonished the U.S.A. with his powers. It was his earliest ambition to be an actor, but two or three accidents diverted him to writing; all his life he was an enthusiastic amateur actor, and as a reader he was able to indulge his passion for acting to the full. He was a tremendous reader, overwhelming audiences with the violence of his passion; it was commonplace for him to reduce an audience to tears by reading of the death of Paul Dombey, or Little Nell. To his readings he gave a terrible degree of energy; during the last year of his life when he was very ill, he would read of the murder of Nancy by Bill Sykes with such force that his pulse would mount to the alarming figure of 118. There is no question about it, Dickens was among the greatest actors of his day; although his books do not dramatize well, they are full of the wild melodrama which filled the theatres in his time, and they provided him with the great range of emotion, comic and tragic, which his genius was so brilliantly able to body forth upon the stage of the lecture-hall.

It is fitting that these readings from Dickens should be revived, in our own day, by an actor and author of such distinguished gifts as Mr. Emlyn Williams. We sincerely hope that he may visit Canada to read Dickens to us, as so recently the Drama Quartette, under the leadership of Charles Laughton, came to Canada to read to us from the works of Bernard Shaw. For we all resemble children in this: we love to be read to, and a good reader—in Mr. Williams' case, a great reader, for so the London critics have called him—can always be sure of an enthusiastic audience.

Why has the practice of reading aloud fallen into disrepute, to be revised within the past three years? The question is easily answered. Elocutionists killed it. They were a race of men and women who read, with false and intolerable emotion, a repertoire of insignificant verse. They were not, like Dickens, or the readers of our day—Emlyn Williams, Charles Laughton, Charles Boyer and Sir Cedric Hardwicke—first-rate actors; they were, on the contrary, abominable actors. In Hamlet's words, "they have so strutted, and bellowed, that I have thought that some of nature's journeymen had made men, and not made them well, they imitated humanity so abominably." They sometimes read from Dickens, thereby giving aid and comfort to those who detest his work.

Let us, by all means, have good reading aloud. Let us have it in our schools, where this important art—for it is no less—is unaccountably neglected. Let us have it on the platform, when actors of first-rate abilities are ready to read to us. Let us seize upon this means of glorying in spoken language, for spoken language is too little regarded in Canada. From the seeming death to which the elocutionists condemned it, the art of reading aloud has risen again, and in the person of Emlyn Williams it appears to have renewed itself with special glory. Let us be thankful for this resurrection, and hope for more evidence of it.

Taxing Business And Industry

It may not be generally realized that business or industry in this Province with profits of more than $10,000 a year has to pay 52 per cent. of its profits to the Dominion and Provincial governments in special taxes. Thus more than half the profits are taken away from the business, industry and shareholders. Beginning next January 1st, the snatch will be even greater, for another two per cent. tax has been imposed to help pay for the old age pensions. Thus 54 per cent. of the profits go to the Government.

Owners of businesses and industries and shareholders are not quickly growing fat on what is left to them of the profits, i.e. 48 per cent—46 per cent next January. This minor share of the profits goes to them as personal income; and thus on top of what has already been paid, income tax is imposed.

The rate of income taxation on money from stocks is high, above a limited amount. And, actually, the total money which shareholders get from profits, even before personal income tax, is a small part of the personal income generally. Last year shareholders, owning Canadian stocks, got $245 million in dividends. This amounted to only 1.8 per cent. of the total personal income in Canada during the year; that is, 1.8 per cent. of the $13,827 million which was actually received by people in cash or in kind, as wages, salaries, farm income and the like.

People earning wages or salaries now complain, if they are paying ten or twelve dollars a week as income tax, that they are "working for the Government." It is obvious that industry and business now paying more than half what they earn in taxes are "working for the Government". It is a form of nationalization which can cripple initiative and hamper industrial and commercial development, if this severe taxation rate is not curbed. Will a workman, clerk or professional man do his best work if more than half his pay is taken from him by the Government?

Vote Monday

Peterborough folk have shown more interest in the municipal elections than Windsor people, who are also going to the polls on Monday to choose from 25 candidates for nine civic offices. At the close of a candidates' meeting held last Wednesday in Windsor, a reporter counted the people. There were present five candidates, a chairman, the reporter and five other persons. We cannot say that the Peterborough election campaign has been feverish, but at least it has not been as lackadaisical as Windsor's seems to have been.

There is no mayoral contest; when the Chief Magistracy is being contested the interest is usually keener and the voting heavier. But in its place, for the first time in ten years, there is a sporting field of candidates for the seat on the Utilities Commission—four candidates where usually there has been an acclamation. All told there are nineteen candidates for eleven offices.

Polls open at eleven in the morning in the city's public schools and close at seven. The public schools open at nine as usual, and close at ten. In the intervening hour the teachers are instructing their pupils on the ways and virtues of democratic government, and the duty imposed on a good citizen to vote. This piece of missionary instruction will, we presume, be promptly taken home by the youngsters, parents will be properly impressed. The unusual presence of their children at ten in the morning will be a reminder that the schools are closed early to clear the way for polling. We hope, therefore, that there will be a heavy vote.

The city's business is important enough to warrant the voice of every elector being heard through his ballot: it amounts to two million dollars a year.

Books For Winter Nights

THE UNFULFILLED, by W. G. Hardy, (McClelland & Stewart Limited).

IN HIS LATEST NOVEL, Dr. Hardy has turned from historical material to the contemporary scene. He deals with the period from June, 1941, to the present and in the chronicle of the Rolph family, we recall the tragic days of the war and the restless post-war period.

In Gregory Rolph, a Toronto newspaperman and novelist, there is an unresolved conflict. As a sensitive intellectual he considers himself a 'liberal, who believes in reason and persuasion . . . and reasonable compromise based on the belief that people are essentially decent', but his column, expressing this theory, is dubbed radical by representatives of vested interests. In addition, he seeks meaning in his own existence, and there is continual strife within himself between the conventional family of Toronto and that other, romanticized, existence which he glimpses on his visits to his New York publishers. There, with Lida, and later Paula, the epitome of the eternal feminine, he tries to recapture 'the happy pagan days before the Baptists and Presbyterians and Methodists and their disapproval of unthinking joys'. Gregory is also faced with another problem in New York, whether to follow his own ideals 'and write serious works, or slick scripts for Hollywood. Finally, when he has to make his decision on all scores, Gregory finds that the ingrained loyalties to Canada outweigh the glitter of Hollywood.

✧ ✧ ✧

THROUGHOUT THE MAJOR PLOT we follow the destinies of the family: Jane, his tolerant, loyal Canadian wife; Peter, the son so like Greg, with the same uncertainties caused by his own sensitive perceptions, his struggle to fit into Army life, the difficulties of the return to civilian life, and his private conflict over Pam and Peg; Cathy and her R.A.F. Husband; Bob, the son too young to enlist in 1941, who serves only a short time overseas before he is killed, and Shirley, the baby, who grows to womanhood in the post-war world.

Dr. Hardy is an experienced novelist and plies his craft with a sure hand. The absorbing plot flows smoothly, the characters are well drawn, and it is easy to identify oneself with Greg and Peter in their uncertainties about love and life. He re-creates most vividly the atmosphere of war-time days and the vignettes of goodbyes in Toronto's Union Station on the eve of the invasion of Russia, and again D-Day on Fifth Avenue, are excellent. Dr. Hardy has taken the advice given to Greg by his New York publisher to write 'a critique of the modern scene' and in his description of Hartley, the ethical, old-fashioned business man, being undermined and replaced by Drummond, the industrial empire builder, ruthless and implacable, we grasp the author's contempt for Canada's new artistocracy based on money.

✧ ✧ ✧

DR. HARDY HAS DONE a real service to Canadian letters in demonstrating that there is plenty of material close at hand for a roman de moeurs without turning to picturesque Quebec or the frozen fastness of the North. He has presented a graphic picture of the Anglo-Canadian in his natural habitat in a most engrossing novel. The reader will find so many familiar situations and his own half-formed ideas expressed in this book, that he immediately feels very much at home. It may be, however, that after Greg and Peter have made their decisions, there are still questions left unanswered. If so, do not blame the author—he writes as a reporter, not a prophet, and history has not yet provided the solution to Canada's problems in the 20th Century. Nonetheless, The Unfulfilled expresses the mood of one of the most eventful periods of our modern history and should have a wide appeal to anyone interested in Canada, her destiny and her people.

SENSE AND NONSENSE, by Eric Patrick Nicol (Ryerson Press, Toronto).

FUNNY BOOKS, LIKE funny men, strike different people differently. What is one readers' giggle is another's gaggle. As the author says in his introduction, humour is a risky product. Mr. Nicol (alias Jabez) bravely runs the risk in his first book. But he has run it before, and successfully, on the West Coast, for all the articles in the book have been printed before in newspapers there. They have the stamp—or humour, in the old-fashioned sense of the word—of a Canadian newspaper column, reminding this reviewer of a homely, bright-eyed, Toronto newspaper columnist, but with a smarter knack of phrase.

For instance, in the first essay 'First Province on the Left' (which incidentally packs a good deal of information about B.C.): "Something about the name, British Columbia, apparently suggests a tattered Union Jack fluttering over a few square miles of monkeys and malaria". Or: "Yet, at the time, (Captain) Vancouver thought he was barquing up the wrong inlet until he saw the Indians' welcoming committee standing on the shore. Approaching the Indians in his yawl, Vancouver hailed them: 'I am Captain Vancouver. I come in my yawl'. 'How yawl', drawled the Indians, who belonged to the southern tribes. 'Have you any cheap beads or worthless bits of glass you'd care to trade for these priceless furs?' "

That this reviewer is not contorted with hilarity is by no means an indication that the book, a small one, modestly priced, will not have a howling success. It covers a lot of Canadian territory and mores. It reminds me of Stephen Leacock, re-mining after "Sunshine Sketches'. When he has exhausted his scene's seam, is Leacock a humorist?

A comic writer, unlike a clown on a stage, does not have a homogeneous audience. He has one reader at a time, and if that reader happens to have just assailed his stomach with a gob of Danish blue, he may find the humour tainted by the cheese. This reviewer happens to like his humour urbane, its wit lit by wisdom.

It is refreshing, as Professor G. G. Sedgwick says in the Foreword, that there is no trace of 'social consciousness' or of 'global confusion' or of 'our threatened values'. One adds: 'of Canadian nationalism'. A Canadian book without these must therefore be a significant contribution to Canadian letters in this age.

OUT FROM EDEN, by Victoria Lincoln (Clarke, Irwin and Company, Limited).

THIS IS AN ENCHANTING story of an artist's family and their utter simplicity which is, of course, mistaken for immorality and lewdness by the people with whom they come in contact. 'Out From Eden' is not one, but three, love stories. Topsy, the artist's daughter who falls in love with and insists on being seduced by another artist; Todd, the artist's schoolmaster son whose love for the invalid Ellen brings him great grief; and, last but not least, the love of the artist himself for his wife and model Jessica, and her love for him. Davenport, the artist, has become famous for his paintings of Jessica in the nude, and so used is she to his moods that he only needs to get a certain look on his face and she will throw her clothes from her and strike a pose, regardless of where she is or who happens to be there at the time; needless to say this leads to some complications and makes their home a rather unusual place for the Davenport children to bring their friends. Jessica, a simple uneducated woman, has one great desire—to own a Bendix washer—and on her birthday her husband tells her he has a very large expensive gift for her—"Large enough to be installed?" asks Jessica hopefully, and then dashes down to clean up her cellar in preparation. In actuality he has bought her an enormous plate glass mirror in which he hopes to start a new era of 'Jessica nudes', and it is this gift which touches off a scene that brings tragedy into the closely knit family. This is an unusual story, amusingly written and with just the right amount of pathos, about kind and charming people.

UNDER WHATEVER SKY, by Irwin Edman (Macmillan).

THIS IS A LONG series of very short essays by Dr. Irwin Edman, an American professor of philosophy. So short are the essays, however, that the book runs to a manageable 246 pages. They are the ruminations of a well-stocked mind and an observant witness of the contemporary scene. The subjects all relate to events and phenomena since the recent war. Their topics range from 'On Being a Philosopher in New York' to 'The Renaissance of Sin'.

Dr. Edman deliberately calls them essays. (They have all appeared in the quarterly 'The American Scholar'). He shuns the word article. Judged as essays, I find them wanting in graceful profundity and deftness. As philosopher-professor, Santayana is much to be preferred; as journalistic essayist, Robert Lynd. Professor Edman has condescended to let his hair down in curlers, but I find his pate uninspiring. The American Ph.D. system does not produce essayists.

SOMEBODY SAID TO US recently that the coming of winter had greatly increased his work on the six or seven committees of which he is a member. This recalled to us that there was once a time when people stayed at home and enjoyed home in winter. As William Cowper said of the season which we now enter:

I crown thee king of intimate delights,
Fireside enjoyments, home-born happiness,
And all the comforts that the lowly roof
Of undisturb'd retirement, and the hours
Of long uninterrupted evening know.

But in our day people stay less and less at home, and pride themselves on being busy elsewhere seven nights a week. What folly! What barrenness of spirit!

Letters To The Editor

BELMONT METHUEN ROADS

Sir: I noticed in your issue of Nov. 27 that the County road committee and Mr. Kean did not like some of the criticism that they received from myself and two ex-Reeves of Belmont as well as many others in connection with their extravagant road expenditure on the county and suburban roads, a total of $242,996.14, in comparison with the value that the ratepayers are receiving for this amount of money, and on top of this a supplementary by-law raised a short time ago for $20,000.00. I stated that this short piece of Cordova Road would cost around $1,000 and this was the amount that was given to me by Mr. Kean himself, as an estimate, but now he states that it cost $1,700.

I am a little surprised at Mr. Kean with the experience and qualifications that he has, trying to make the people believe that we have value for the amount of $1,700, let alone the $1,000 that I had stated. Then he says $1,300 for motor grading and no material on the road to grade $1,300 dust laying with calcium chloride. I suppose that this is our share of the $20,000 worth of calcium chloride that was purchased this year by the County with $2,461.43 worth still in stock. According to Mr. Kean's figures, there are 133 miles of county roads and 72 miles of suburban roads, or a total of 205 miles. Now taking off our 15 miles county roads, there are still 190 miles of county and suburban roads, so if it cost $86.66 per mile for Belmont for calcium chloride, at the same ratio, it would cost the balance of 190 miles $16,765.40, and you claim that you have still $2,461.43 worth in stock. It does not look reasonable to me for the many more important roads, such as the suburban roads, to get only the same amount or less than we do.

However, let that be as it may, it looks to be a great waste of money for this expense on dust laying. Now the cost of repairs to machinery for the county is $18,787.03, the operating cost $9,890.04, or a total of $28,677.07 and the payroll to run these same machines is only $11,301.25. Compare this repair cost of the county to the suburban repair of $385.97 and their pay roll was $1,837.34. Why is the repair to the county machinery so much greater than the suburban? Is it because they are trying to do work in the county with equipment that is not suitable for the job?

I noticed another item of $1,400, being Belmont's share of a comfortable new garage along with our share of the superintendent's and secretary's salaries. Might I ask, would this be the garage that it has been said is sometimes used as a paint shop for some of the county employees to decorate their cars?

Sincerely Yours,
Havelock. W. E. GRIFFITH.

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTION TO TAXES

Sir: With regard to the matter of defence spending, I would just remark that this present economy of ours where defence tax is being paid directly or indirectly almost at every turn places conscientious objectors like myself and, I suppose, like many another in a very difficult position. As I understand it, last November, there was a tax levied on all rubber tires which would include those of buses, ambulances and other indispensable conveyances also, among other things on all toiletries, necessity items as well as luxuries.

While I have every respect and much sympathy for persons in high office in the state as well as in the church and elsewhere, I do think it would have been more fitting had the matter been put to a vote for the rank and file of people before any excise tax had been levied on essentials—that is—things needed for ordinary comfortable living.

Here are some facts on the correct attitude toward "war" given by an eminent authority, facts which no doubt will be found interesting. I quote his exact words:

"The man who fails to examine his conscience and fights an unjust war is guilty in the sight of God.

(2) The man who puts his selfish desire for life and ease and peace ahead of the needs of his Country is a coward and a slacker.

(3) The man who gives his loyalty to his Country in time of just war is living up to strict justice and right.

(4) But the man who turns from war as he turns from all force; who follows the Peaceful Christ rather than the victorious general; who fights, not with the easy weapons of man's war, but with truth and virtue and love and unselfishness; who battles but the immortal enemies of mankind—that man is a Christian Pacifist and a saint. And his road will probably be the road of martyrdom. (He adds:) Are you brave enough for that?"

Hoping that Finance Minister Abbott and some other officials at Ottawa see this letter and thanking you for space in the paper,

Sincerely,
A CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR

NO UTILITIES EXPLANATION

Sir: So far I have failed to see any explanation in reply to the recent editorial of the Examiner in regard to the power situation. Are they afraid to tell the public the truth? Why don't they be honest about it and tell how many hours a day they shut the power off to the hot water consumers.

No hot water is used in this house from 1 p.m. and yet by 6 p.m. it is not hot enough to shave with. I have just finished boiling a kettle of water and it took exactly 10 minutes and yet they are recommended to do the job in 2½ minutes and no doubt would if we were getting the power we are entitled to. I would like to see other letters from the suffering public and then we might get some action.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the word of the Lord came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, which is in Samaria: behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to possess it. And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the Lord, Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? . . . And Ahab said to Elijah, Hast thou found me, O mine enemy? And he answered, I have found thee: because thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the Lord. (I Kings 21: 17-19, 20.)

And thou, profane wicked prince of Israel, whose day is come, when iniquity shall have an end, thus saith the Lord God, Remove the diadem, and take off the crown: this shall not be the same: exalt him that is low, and abase him that is high. I will overturn, overturn, overturn, it: and it shall be no more, until he come whose right it is; and I will give it him. (Ezek. 21: 25-27.)

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children . . . For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light . . . Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. (Eph. 5: 1, 8, 10.)

He that committeth sin is of the devil; for the devil sinneth from the beginning. For this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil. STEAMBOAT FOREST CITY entering lock at Hastings in 1863. She was built at Hastings in 1858 and provided a link with the old Cobourg and Peterborough Railway at Harwood, as well as running picnic crowds. It took a boatload of Hastings people to see the Prince of Wales at Harwood and Peterborough in 1860. Note the piles of cordwood at left, used for fuelling the ship. It has a high smoke stack and side paddle wheels similar to those of the Calcutt steamboat "Whistle Wing," built in Peterborough in 1872.

Village Store Was Banker For Picnickers From Hastings To Peterborough In the 60's

By MRS. GERALD MARRYAT

The Examiner of Sept. 13, 1951 carried a story of banking conditions in early Nova Scotia under the heading "Lack of Change Plagued Early Banks". One might go farther along the same road and say that Lack of Banks Plagued Early Settlers.

No one would ordinarily expect to find the names of people who went to a picnic ninety years ago in the account book of a small village store, but, owing to the lack of banks and subsequently the lack of currency, the settler often found himself without a cent, or a ha'penny piece as it was in those days, and the Fowlds store at Hastings, following their custom at their Westwood store, performed sundry small duties for its patrons—paying taxes, school rates and taxes, church and lodge dues, the Bible Society and verbal orders to pay neighbors and debtors.

One incident will suffice to recall the difficulty of obtaining cash for their running expenses and payrolls from either Peterborough or Cobourg. One dark night William Fowlds was bringing home the weekly amount needed in business, when his companion, William Johnston, noticed a movement in the bushes in the long swamp west of the present day station at Birdsall. Shouting to his friend and whipping his famous team of blacks to a gallop he thwarted the intention of a man who jumped at the horses' heads, and William Fowlds hit him as he passed knocking him back into the swamp.

So the lack of banks is the reason why many a substantially well-off settler put his name down for "fares" for a picnic to Peterborough on Thursday, Sept. 26, 1861 at the store. Henry Lye, the organizer of the event, and head clerk, entered their names in his clear and distinctive hand-writing, where they are preserved until to-day.

A Political Meeting?

No reason for the picnic is given except its destination unless it was to attend a political meeting. For the Hon. Sidney Smith was elected by a majority of 180 over the Hon. Billa Flint of Belleville and there must have been plenty of excitement. Or it might have been curiosity to see the ruins of a disastrous fire that laid waste the entire square bounded by George, Simcoe, Water and Hunter Streets in the previous month. Or again it might have been just a picnic . . . a day's outing for a last look at the beauties of lake and river.

Some of the picnickers were John McCarthy, George Kane, John Hutchinson, Frank Mocassin, or Margassen, Blakely Shaw, Joen White and their wives, as well as Andy Orr, Ben Bowie, Con. Sullivan, William Clarke and William Coad who took along a child or two. Fares were fifty cents—not much for such a long said and a day in Peterborough. The boat was the Forest City, built in Hastings in 1858.

Another Excursion

Another excursion to Cameron's Pt. at the foot of Rice Lake had taken place on Friday, the 13th. Cricket was played and the event was long remembered as one of the happy days in the lives of our ancestors. Some of those present included Andy Lynn, Blakely Shaw, John Lamb, Joe White, John Hamilton, John McCarthy, John Wilson, John Hutchinson, George Russell, John Davidson, Robert Plunkett, Harvey and Ambrose Salisbury, George Kane, James Hamilton, Peter Insley, Henry Lye, William Fowlds and his bride, the newly arrived Dr. Coate, (who died soon afterwards in his house, which is now the home of Dr. J. H. Hess) and the surveyor, George Ranney. Miss Mowat took along a party of five and doubtless there were the usual number of women and children.

A year earlier the Forest City had carried a boatload of Hastings people to see the Prince of Wales at Harwood and Peterborough, when the excitement was just as great as today when we were looking forward to seeing Princess Elizabeth.

Forest City A Link

The Forest City provided a link with the Cobourg and Peterborough Rly. at Harwood and regular trips were run daily during the summer, hence the need to put off purely domestic excursions until the season's rush was needed.

In 1861 the new cotton factory was getting into production—the population was increasing, times were still good and the long drain of men and material caused by the American Civil War had not yet made its effect apparent.

Rice L. Tour To Cure Whoops

In 1864 David Gunn was captain of the "Otonabee", owned by his father-in-law, Thomas Short of Keene, and he often carried young passengers who found the balmy airs of Rice Lake soothing after the bracing breezes of their native Lake Ontario.

Like all the other lake and river steamboats, the Otonabee did a lot of towing and her run was often extended as far east as Healey's Falls. The young Sutherlands of Cobourg were taken out to Harwood and embarked upon such a trip to cure their whooping cough and thoroughly enjoyed the long, lazy days as the boat chugged her way around the lake, picking up her tow and then heading away towards Hastings.

The crew lived on these boats and there were a couple of extra cabins to carry passengers. The food was good and although I have no special knowledge of what the Otonabee provided on its bill-of-fare, it was likely of the robust type of meals that made a trip to the raft-cook's shanty a memorable event to all the small boys along the Trent. River driving was no picnic and the men demanded the best of meals after their cold and prolonged duties in the water as they ran the logs over the various slides and rapids.

Meat was more plentiful than it had been ten years before and the rival boat, the Forest City of Hastings, supplied mutton at 8 cents; beef at 9 cents; the ration was provided every week and by that time there was probably a good supply of ice on board to keep it fresh. On land those who did not bother with an ice-house hung their meat down the well on a long rope, where it kept perfectly.—H. M.

Unfading Dyes, Fireproof Paints, Plastics New Era From Chemistry's Fluorocarbon

By MAURICE GOLDSMITH.

A vast new range of products to increase the material comforts of present-day civilization are on the way. Envisaged are unfading dyes, fireproof plastics and paints, everlasting photographic film, powerful new drugs and insecticides.

A great part of this future prospect has been made possible by the work of a chemist—Professor J. H. Simons of Florida University. He has shown that chemistry more than any other branch of science, may be regarded as the basic provider of the amenities of modern life. And this is all due to what Sir Cyril Hinshelwood described in Britain chiefly as the perfection of the arts of synthetic chemistry, the acquisition of the lapidary skill with which the chemist places atoms into settings of his own devising and desiring."

Urea Without Kidney

It would be a great surprise to the German chemist, Friedrich Woehler, if he could see the vast industry which has already been built upon a discovery he made in 1828. From the lifeless contents of his test-tube Woehler produced for the first time in history a substance manufactured up to then only in animal bodies.

Woehler discovered that urea, the main organic constituent of human urine, could be prepared artificially by evaporating solutions of ammonium cyanate, a substance which can be made up in the laboratory from its basic constituents. He announced the discovery in a letter to his great teacher, Berzelius, in Stockholm: "I can prepare urea without requiring a kidney of an animal, either man or dog."

This statement dealt a powerful blow to the then commonly accepted view that there was some undefinable "vital force" responsible for the production of organic compounds, and that therefore they could not be made artificially. When in 1860, the great French chemist, Marcelin Berthelot, published his book "Organic Chemistry Founded on Synthesis," the death blow was dealt to the "vital force theory" and the basis laid for synthetic organic chemistry.

Discovered Mauve

In 1856, an 18 year old British student, W. H. Perkin (later Sir William) accidentally discovered mauve. This was the first synthetic organic dyestuff used in dying. He prepared this from coal tar benzene. This led to the development of the mighty chemical industry based upon the exploitation of coal-tar constituents. Now synthetic dyes, medicines, perfumes, explosives & all have come from the chemist's test-tube.

In recognition of this, the British magazine "Punch" wrote:

"There's hardly a thing a man can name
Of beauty or use in life's small game,
But you can extract in alembro or jar,
From the physical basic of black coal tar:
Oil and ointment, and wax and wine,
And the lovely colours called aniline:
You can make anything, from a salve to a star
(If you o 'y know how), from black coal tar".

The big new development now taking place in the United States of America consists in the making of what are know as "fluorocarbons". Organic chemistry, as distinct from inorganic, is concerned with compounds which are the product of living animal and vegetable matter. These compounds are made up of some six basic elements, such as hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen, always in combination with carbon. Organic chemistry, therefore, is the chemistry of the compounds of carbon.

Professor Simons has found a method of substituting fluorine atoms for the hydrogen atoms in the molecule. The existing arrangement of the carbon atoms remains undistrubed in the process. And the result is a compound which resembles the original, but which has new and remarkable properties. These two elements—carbon and fluorine—have never before been joined together. Indeed, fluorine has always been a most difficult thing to handle. It is a pale yellow gas, which almost nothing can hold. It can eat through steel or brick, devour glass, and destroy everything around it.

Taming Savage Element

The means of taming this savage element was found recently by Professor Simons when he announced that he could make fluor carbons by using not the fluorine itself, but hydrogen fluoride gas. The raw material from which most of the fluorine compounds are made is fluorspar, or calcium fluoride. This mineral is widespread, although there are few good deposits. Hydrogen fluoride is made by heating fluorspar with sulphuric acid. The hydrogen fluoride is produced either in the form of a liquefied gas or in a water solution.

The hydrocarbon that is to be transformed is mixed with the hydrogen fluoride, and an electric current is passed through the mixture. The fluorine atoms, withiut any fuss, change place with the hydrogen atoms—and a fluorocarbon is born.

The forecast of Waldemar Kaempffert, science editor of the New York Times, in his "Science Today and Tomorrow", that by the year 2,000 synthetics will be predominant seems entirely reasonable. So far as the housewife is concerned, "draperies, rugs, bed and table linen", he says, "will be tissues of synthetic fibres. Washing will be obsolete; bed sheets, table cloths and napkins will be thrown away after use. Draperies and rugs will not be cleaned, for as soon as they show signs of dirt or wear, new ones will take their place. The future household of chemical furniture will probably spend no more in a year for these fabrics than it does now for its laundry."—(Unesco).

As each Christmastide draws near we outdoor scribes take it on ourselves to set up long lists of gift suggestions for the Head of the House sportsman. We direct them to the wives and children with the heavy tread of a percheron on a barn floor and get no thanks from the H of the H for our pains. Some readers feel that we receive truckfuls of gear from manufacturers for this free publicity. This is not the case. Most of us are only trying to pad space at a low news-cycle period of the year. Besides, the thing doesn't make sense.

When Joe Blow wants a striped Floozer Hobbler bait with ten gang hooks or a collapsible rubber rod, he'll go out and buy one. No matter to him if there is no beer on the table or the kiddies are out sleigh riding in their bare feet, when the urge is born, a sale is made.

The pretty collection of dry flies that the Missus presents to Joe on Christmas morning will draw a polite thanks from him, perhaps a gas pain smile. But for him they are no good. He knows the name and characteristics of each bundle of feathers. After all, he is going out one of these days and buy a fly-tying outfit so that he can mess through the winter evenings to his heart's content. He may even come up with a Blow Bottle streamer.

And Junior's gift of a Jen-U-Ine Horse Hair casting line. He will give it much bluff praise, naturally, while knowing from long experience that it isn't worth a snarl.

And outdoor books. Just let Joe loose in the Public Library where there is material in volumes. All free.

Why don't all wives lobby for a fish-widow insurance plan and pay the premiums from her cash cache in the cookie jar?

We've read of all sorts of hunting luck this season, but here is a story to top them all. Elwin dinged them both off from his verandah while his brother, Stafford, came home a few days later after a week in camp with nothing to show for his trip. Did Elwin ever give HIM a roasting?

Peeping Toms In Hamilton. Flash!

Raccoons are the most sociable of wild criturs. They are also smart and becoming citified. The old hollow basswood on the back forty is now passe with them.

Two Sundays ago I visited some former Peterborough folks on Bay St., S., in Hamilton. They told of a pair of 'coons that had taken up residence in a corner of their verandah roof. The property owners often watch them peeking in their living room windows and say that several other houses in that neighborhood have free boarders, too.

Down Stayner way, farmer Archie Moore boarded three 'coons in his barn all last winter. They slept in his straw stack and ate from his granary and became so tame that they would feed from Archie's hand.

'Coon hunting season closes in these parts on Dec. 31. Prices are poor this year and few are being pelted.

Mrs. Nina McCluskey of Hall's Landing, Rice Lake, came to town this week with a bundle of 'coon pelts, the result of her personal Fall hunting. Manitoulin Island-born Mrs. McCluskey has turned to trapping to swell her invalid husband's income. While resting from hunting, trapping and housekeeping she fleshes mink at Harold Beebe's fur farm, east of Bailieboro.

Mervin and Myrtle Point the Way

Without grubbing under the snow to find beechnuts so I can measure the thickness of their shells. Without reaching into a sleeping black squirrel's nest to see how thick his fur is. Without ruminating with my Indian friends about signs of winter, I can tell that it is here, for sure.

The other morning on my way to work I disturbed Myrtle Merganser as she fished under an overhanging bank of the Otonabee River. She skittered off for several yards and put on her water brakes at mid-stream. She is a drab brown old girl but her mate, Mervin, is really something to see. He wasn't with her that morning Probably out galivanting all night.

Mervin wears a white eye patch and white cockade, and on his black suit it looks right handsome.

Mergansers favor the foot of open rapids from before total freeze-up until the ice goes out. Two or three acres of water seems to support 50 or 60 birds. At least I have counted that number with field glasses in the dead of winter. They are very wary and float off at considerable distance. At the least disturbance they take to the air, circle and return or fly off to other open spots. The Otonabee is ideal for them and supplies open water feeding areas below each dam all along the Trent System. I hear their flesh tastes like an old football soaked in fish oil. Just as tough, too.

No Red Flannels For Men, Few Drawers But Stores Stock Flannelette Nightshirts

By JIM ENGLISH

"We've got a few flannelette nightshirts in stock," the salesman whispered, leaning conspiratorially across the counter in the men's wear store.

Reeling giddily back through the ages of gents furnishings, my mind pictured a time when the nightshirt was, so to speak, king of the nightwear trade. Queen, too, for that matter.

That was a day when the shortest underwear a man could buy was knee length, when a fine overcoat sold for $15, and when a collar looked like a whitewashed ball park fence.

A Shirt At A Time

Ah yes, times have changed. But they haven't changed altogether. That past day was a time when, just like today, a man wanting a shirt went in and bought a shirt—just one, not half a dozen.

And, as in present times, a man might buy two or three pairs of socks, undershirts, draw . . . ahem, underwear, and other clothing sundries.

However, a man bought his own clothing then. Stores were open later, and the man of the house had time to do his own shopping after work.

What's more, he sought combinations instead of briefs, boots rather than oxfords, and ties that were (say some old-timers) ties—sober sensible cravats at which no man could turn up his nose.

The combinations he bought are still a stock in trade of the haberdasher. They're not as popular; sales of long underwear have declined with the urbanization of the country. But farmers and men who spend much of their time outdoors buy them, and a rapidly decreasing number who claim superior comfort for the longies.

Red flannels are almost non-existent. It is doubtful that a single pair is for sale in the city.

Women Buyers

The disturbing fact that comes from investigating men's buying habits is that men don't do more than 25 or 30 per cent of the buying, if that much. Statisticians claim that 80 per cent of the family shopping is done by women.

Women buy men's shirts, their socks, their underwear, their gloves, ties (unfortunately), and sweaters. Their taste selects pernaps more than 80 per cent of what men wear.

Said one clothing store manager, cynically: "I'd say women have the final word in pretty nearly 100 per cent of all men's clothing purchases. Suppose a man does go out on his own and buy something. If the wife doesn't like it, he's right back here the next day with orders to get it changed."

While the 80 per cent figure is true of the average men's wear store, it doesn't apply to the more exclusive shops. In these, men form from 50 to 60 per cent of the buyers, except during the frantic Christmas shopping sessions, when women, again, predominate.

Most clerks don't mind waiting on women. Their bugbear is the woman who comes with the man. In selecting a suit, for instance, the man will say "Well, you've got to look at it," and the woman replies: "Well, you've got to wear it."

This sort of indecision carries on for as long as seven or eight choruses of the "Well, you've . . ." routine. Clerks estimate that that the feminine advisers win nine of ten falls.

More Exacting

There is another noticeable trend in shopping. Buyers are more exacting than they once were. Seldom do they choose one of the first few articles shown.

"They're buying value nowadays," commented one storekeeper. "They don't mind paying that little extra as long as they know that what they're getting is good."

The respected mackinaw—the dark plaid, three-quarter length winter coat once so commonly worn—is coming back, but in brighter tartans. The coat that nearly sold the mackinaw out of existence is, of course, the station wagon coat. It is pointed out by storekeepers as the most popular single topcoat of today.

Wanted: 50 Bears—Guards

One of the most distinctive features of the British Brigade of Guards is the traditional black bearskins they wear, huge, obliterating pieces of headgear made of black bear's fur. Skins for these essential articles of a Guardsman's uniform come from Canada and in the BBC's "Radio Newsreel" Pat Keighley, of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, revealed the struggles that have been going on in Canada to get sufficient skins for Britain.

The hunt was up in the north of the Canadian province of British Columbia and the nerve centre of the expedition was the city of Prince George. Far beyond it lies a tract of rugged country which is one of the Dominion's last big game reserves. Business men were counting on a large bag of hides with which to supply the Guards, but the united efforts of many hunting parties did not produce the fifty skins that were needed.

Members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce begged or borrowed guns and trekked off to do their bit for Britain in an unorthodox way. After their trip ended the total number of skins was still far short of fifty and the professional hutnsmen of the district were called in. They generously agreed to give their services but out of pocket expenses had to be met.

The people of Prince George set out to find these by putting on a big festival in July in which every kind of money-raising event was included. The money was found at last and it then remained for the hunters to get the bears. They did their stuff handsomely and the Junior Chamber's president announced that his members were going all out to scrape and clean the hides in time to get them to London by Christmas.

Bruce Lamb and a dozen other business men gave up all their free time to the job of preparing the skins for shipment and as they weighed about ten or twelve pounds each it was a weighty consignment that eventually went to Britain on a freighter from Vancouver.

The Guards say that each skin will make two of their traditional headdresses and the men of Prince George are all ready now to begin collecting next year's consignment in good time.

LOVE LAY SLEEPING

I LAID me down upon a bank
Where love lay sleeping;
I heard among the rushes dank
Weeping, Weeping.

Then I went to the heath and the wild
To the thistles and thorns of the waste;
And they told me how they were beguil'd,
Driven out, and compel'd to be chaste.

—William Blake.

All over town there are people to whom Christmas shopping is not a problem. They plan a gift which increases in value each year. For Mother or Father give an Accumulative Certificate for $200. due in 120 months which costs $141.36 (or this amount may be increased). For son or daughter planning to attend college, give a Monthly Payment Certificate for $1,000. due in 60 months, which costs $15.24 monthly. Pro wrestling returns to the Brock Arena next Tuesday night with none other than Whipper Bill Watson mixing with Lord Athol Layton in the main bout. Two good supporting bouts, also. Layton and the Whip have been feuding in mat rings for some time now, in fact since his nibs hospitalized Watson in Kingston some months ago, using his judo slash to the jugular. He's a powerful grappler and gets away with a lot of this judo business, but the British Empire champion is one of the top wrestlers on the continent, and a colorful perfo mer as well. It should be quite a scrap when these classy huskies clash.

Gord McIntyre's intermediate "A" male cagers open their Eastern Ontario League basketball schedule tonight in the "Y" against Belleville Glens. Hoop followers will see some smart play and most likely a real close contest. Yeah, two good teams in action on a crowded floor. Results of girls' games last e'en are in elsewhere. Meantime, plans are going ahead for the other men's lakeshore squad here, as well as the various high school crews. A winter weekend finds oodles of cage play in and about Peter's busy borough.

Vics Vs. The Links

Next OHA number at Civic Arena is a junior "B" fixture at 8.30 Monday p.m. It's Kingston Vics versus the local IOOF-ers, first tussle of the season here betwixt these clubs. Both have hookups with Boston Bruins and the rivalry will be keen this puck semester. It's a stiff group race with every game marked by hot action. Johnny Godfrey's crew have to keep digging to stay in the hunt, and we look for them to really roll from now on. Junior hockey produces fast play throughout as these big youngsters have energy to burn. The Monday melee rates another hefty crowd.

* * * * * *

Red Mitchell's potent outfit of Lindsay junior "B" hockeyists climbed to the top of the ladder at home last night with a 4-2 triumph over Johnny Godfrey's Oddfellows. As a big crowd of Scugog fans whooped it up. A typical Lindsay-Peterborough junior battle, speedy and rugged, with the issue always in doubt. Red Robinson scored one of the IOOF goals and helped Clare Ferguson on the other, this pair clicking well all through. Army Armstrong was best on defence, but the whole club fought hard. Homesters got the breaks, but they're plenty strong, at that. They lead the group with six points, Kingston having four, Belleville three and the locals one. Despite their slow start, the Links are but two and a half games out of first place in the tight scramble, and they'll improve rapidly.

Buried The Hatchets?

A right large crowd filled Civic Arena last p.m. and saw another fast senior "B" fixture. Speedy, close and clean. An 8-6 win for the Petes, and they deserved it, having more of the play in around the other net, though Eagles were in the fight right to the finish. Lots of hustle on both sides and some good hockey served up. It was surprisingly free of rough stuff for these ice enemies, though a dozen minor penalties were handed out. It's nice to see these clubs settle for hockey, instead of mixing it up and trying to hurt opponents. Some fans, of course, prefer the rough stuff—but puckists are expendable, too.

* * * * * *

So, now the Petes, Eagles and Kingston are knotted in second place, one game back of Belleville. Couldn't be much closer, eh? Goalie Milne had a busy night and turned aside a slew of hot rubber, Harding also coming up with some swell saves. Pick of the Petes, we thought, were Gus Leonard, Freddy Garvey, Don Floyd and Curly Mason, with Ron Horton a solid customer at the blue line. Best for Eagles were Bob Parnall, George Brabin and Jim Munroe, the latter good defensively and on the attack. Others shone in spots, but these guys were consistent over the route. Joe Rochetta was on hand to view the tilt, but he'll have to take his hockey from the side lines henceforth.

Neill's, Black's Take Wins In Cage League

Neill's remained undefeated in the Girls' Basketball League last night at the YWCA by taking a 44-22 win over Nurses, while Black's downed the Normals 32-12 in the nightcap of the twin bill. Some fast cage work was dished up by the colleens in both games, but the victors in each case earned their decisions fairly handily.

Neill's led 19-11 at the half in the first fixture, the best showing of Nurses, who were outscored 25-11 in the last part. P. Davis led Nurses with 13 points in a neat effort, as Bev Pringle got six, Betty Jaquith two and Marg Dahl one. Mabel Gillen clicked for 16 points for Neill's, Wilma Byers counting 13, M. Borland 10, Grace Post four and Susie Dewar one. Teams:

Nurses: M. Dahl, S. Slater, L. Slater, B. Pringle, M. Flavelle, B. Jaquith, P. Davis, J. Plunkett.

Neill's: M. Gillen, W. Byers, P. Stewart, B. Callan, G. Post, D. Smith, M. Borland, S. Dewar.

Big First Half

Black's had a big margin in the first half of their game to outscore Normals 20 to 5, but it was tighter the rest of the route. Bety Osborne led Normals with five points, three going to Betty Scollard, two to B. Waddington and one each to Gwen Todd and Frances Jermey. Rosie McInroy led Black's with eight, as six each were counted by Carol Ferguson, Joan Krough and Marnie Hollingsworth. Rita Naylor accounted for four points and Marg McInvena two. Teams:

Normals: B. Scollard, B. Waddington, L. Faircloth, B. Osborne, G. Todd, F. Jermey, G. McKinley, K. Morrell.

Black's: R. McInroy, G. Ferguson, R. Naylor, M. Vint, M. McGill, J. Krough, M. Hollingsworth, M. McIlvena, B. Pollock, E. McIlhagga.

Pres. Monkman Re-elected

By C. H. IRESON.

Gordon Monkman was re-elected president of the Peterborough-Whitaker Cricket Club at the annual meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce hall, Mr. Monkman having occupied this position for about 13 years. Honorary president is George Whitaker, succeeding Dr. Hammond, who occupied that office since 1928. The doctor has been made an honorary life member of the club.

Other officers elected at the well-attended meeting were: vice-president, J. Wild; secretary, H. Dibben; treasurer, A. Hamilton; captain, Frank Dyer, who was first named captain in 1926, and vice-captain, B. Roberts.

Various committee reports were presented, as well as the treasurer's statement, showing a balance of $53.87. The club played 20, winning nine and tying one. The "A" team will operate next year in the third division of the Toronto District Council, a section they headed in 1949. It was decided not to enter a "B" team, but to arrange a number of friendly games for that team.

Welcome Guest

A welcome guest at the meeting was D. King, secretary of the Canadian Cricket Association, of which Gordon Monkman is a member. Mr. King spoke of cricket prospects and the MCC team of the past season. He said the Association was invited to visit Bermuda in 1952, and he expressed confidence in the future of the sport in Canada.

The local club members were optimistic of next season, as they cleared up many details in a lengthy meeting. The Examiner was thanked for publicity. Members present were: C. Coleman, R. Harvey, W. Freeman, B. Roberts, A. Hamilton, J. Wild, R. Rollwagen, T. Fraser, F. Roberts, B. Harding, H. Dibben, F. Booth, W. Wright, G. Boardman, S. Jennings, and G. Robinson.

BRIGHT SPOTS IN PUCK PLAY — Top photo shows Gus Leonard (Petes' captain) rounding the Eagles' net fast in the senior fray here last night, as Goalie Milne watches closely for either a pass-out or a possible side shot to wind up a fine rush. Lindsay Juniors Edge IOOF In Nifty 4-2 Contest For Third OHA Group Win

Johnny Godfrey's battling Oddfellows journeyed to Lindsay Friday night and suffered a tough 4-2 setback at the hands of Kinsmen after a hard two-way hockey struggle that captivated a large crowd of Scugog fans. It was a thriller.

"A fine team," enthused Coach Red Mitchell after the game in paying tribute to the Peterborough club. "We will have plenty of trouble with Oddfellows before the season is over," he opined.

Play was typical of all clashes between these strong rivals, fast and rugged, with no quarter asked nor given. It was Lindsay's third win to date, while Links will seek their first win Monday night against Kingston, at Civic Arena.

Opened Scoring

Brian (Red) Robinson opened the scoring for Oddfellows midway in the first period when he sped down on a fast break with Clare Ferguson, faked a pass, outguessed Lucas and drove a hard 20-footer past Reg Truax from the right wing. Oddfellows had a fair edge in territorial play in this frame and staved off every Kin thrust, though unable to add further to their own total.

Lindsay came stronger in the middle stanza to outplay the visitors who lacked nothing in fighting spirit, despite two goals against. Murray Packer found the range for Kinsmen after Links had held well during Armstrong's slashing penalty. He took a double pass from Glen Vasey and Ken Schenkel close in to give Wasson no chance. Gord Deeth put his team on up after a hectic ganging attack when he drilled a shot well out over the prostrate Wasson though the later stopped the first phase of the attack. Play roughened up as Shervington twice, Armstrong, Wilson and Smith all served in the bin for a variety of offences.

Got The Break

Two determined squads fought tooth and nail for the advantage from the bell, in the torrid final chapter of play. But Dave Lucas, star Lindsay defenceman seized an opportunity to ensure triumph, when he snared a pass at centre, broke fast down left wing into the clear past a lone defender and back-handed a close one into the corner, on a pretty individual play. Far from beaten, Clare Ferguson took Red Robinson's pass-out one minute later in front of Truax and rifled the disc home, to keep his team in there.

Fate frowned on Oddfellows however, as Ken Schenkel picked up a loose puck intended for Kimball that bounced crazily near his own blue-line and made a rink-length rush to score all alone at the three-quarter mark to settle the issue. Five penalties, including a misconduct to Shervington marred the third frame.

Lindsay's line of Packer, Burns and Vasey worked best for the winners with Schenkel, Lucas, Powell, Deeth and Truax good. Brian Robinson was the outstanding figure on the ice with Ferguson again playing a bang-up game. Army Armstrong played a fine game behind the blue-line with Kimbal, Coyle, Twist, Heffernan, Floyd, Buckton and Wilson particularly good.

IOOF—Goal, Wasson; defence Armstrong and Clapper; centre Robinson; wings, Ferguson, Buckton; alternates, Twist, Coyle, Heffernan, Floyd, Morrow, Wilson, Kimball.

Lindsay — Goal, Truax; defence, Schenkel and Marshall; centre, Powell; wings, Copeland and Deeth; alternates Hall, Burns, Packer, MacDonald, Smith, Vasey, Lucas, Shervington.

Seven rinks from the Bobcaygeon Curling Club motored down last evening and were entertained at the curling rink by our club.

This was just one of the many social evenings that is on the schedule for the season.

They played a 10-end game with members of the local club, and at the conclusion of play, lunch was served in the club parlors. R. Payne and his committee looked after all details in fine style.

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock there is the regular week-end mixed rink bonspiel.

Mrs. J. Fanning and Mrs. G. Wood were the winning skips in yesterday's bonspiel.

US Players In Quarter-Final

By GAYLE TALBOT.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 1 (AP).—Americans Dick Savitt and Tony Trabert advanced today to the quarter-finals of the Victorian tennis championships in picturesque Kooyong Stadium.

Travert eliminated Don Candy, Australian, 13-11, 6-2, 6-11, while Savitt advanced easily at the expense of another Aussie, George Worthington, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

A Saturday crowd of 3,000, sitting in hot sunshine, saw Trabert and Candy playing a scorching first set that lasted an hour before Tony pulled it out. Trabert's opponent in Tuesday's quarter-finals will be Frank Sedgman, Australia's top player, who today advanced with a quick 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 victory over Torsten Johansson of Sweden.

Savitt, Australian and Wimbledon champion, appeared in much the best form he's shown since reaching this country. He seldom found it necessary to go to the net and was completely in charge all the way.

Mervyn Rose, Rustralia, defeated Sven Davidson, Sweden, in a gruelling five setter, 6-4, 1-6, 5-7, 8-6, 6-3. The match lasted 2½ hours under the burning sun.

Cornwell Rolls 888

Claude Cornwell highlighted the men's City Bowling League this week with a smashing 888 triple and top single of 333. Anthony's took leading pinnage of 3,438 as Bassel's rolled high game with 1,209. Joe Denault had a neat triple of 821 and single of 327, Bert McCarrell 341 (331), Roy Lewis 805 (300) as good singles were Bill Boon's 312 and Vern Ferguson's 308.

DeLaval blanked Bond's, and McGillis whitewashed Kawartha, as 4-2 wins went to Clapper's, Anthony's, Madill & Post over Bassel's, Sunocos and Moore's in that order. Bowlers might visit Jim Hetton, who is in hopsital after a tragic motor accident.

A fine record has been compiled by another veteran of 25 years in the league, Walter Firth never missing a league night. There is also a distinction of having a grandfather and grandson on the same club, George Gimblett Sr. and George Gimblett Jr. The chief can be proud of his league contributions in the past 25 years.

Petes Beat Eagles; 8 To 6 In Neat Tussle To Gain Second-Place Tie

The Petes dwoned Eagles 8-6 before a big crowd at Civic Arena last night to pull up into a three-way tie with Eagles and Kingston for second place in their OHA senior "B" group race. Belleville Hawks lead the pack but one full game. They have six points with the other three clubs having four apiece. The Ellis crew took a 2-1 lead in the first frame and, after an even 2-all second stanza, they outscored the Vitarelli squad 4-3 in the third. It was a fast, close and clean contest. Two local referees, Herb Payne and Dick Ouimet, handled it well, dishing out a dozen minor penalties, with the victors drawing seven of them. Dootch Vitarelli got a cut on the side of his face accidentally in the third period and had to retire.

Earned the Win

Showing a lot of drive in every period, the Petes earned the victory, having a little more of the play, especially in the initial inning. It was fairly even after that, but Goalie Milne was kept busier than Ray Harding both netters turning in a fine display. The Eagles fought back hard all the way and were always in the hunt, but the Petes fired more shots on goal, and checked back well.

Gus Leonard led the Petes' attack with four points, though the scoring was well spread around. He aided on three. Freddy Garvey was in on three, and Curly Mason and Don Floyd two each. Single points went to Jake Wade, Jack Mortimer, Junior West, Ted Collins, Drake Jopling and Ron Horton. The latter checked hard and effectively.

Bob Parnall topped the Eagles at bat with four points, two of them goals, in a good showing. Three each went to Jim Munroe—who was also solid on defence—and George Brabin, as singles were garnered by Russ Slater, Bill Crowley, Fred Mortimer and Keith Montgomery.

Scored Early

Wade started the scoring in little better than half a minute when he backhanded in a nice one from Mason as they caught the Eagles up the ice. Horton was off for hooking when Munroe's screened shot on a pass back by Fred Mortimer equalized things. Dugan and Parnall were gated for roughing but no damage was done in their absence. Play was fast and the Petes had more of it to keep Milne on the jump. He made a flock of fine saves. Late in the heat, Floyd took a drop pass from Garvey to hoist it home with the goalie down to give them a 2-1 edge.

Garvey batted in one from close range, with Floyd and Joplin in on the play, early the second, but Brabin got it right back on Parnall's passout with a slap shot, inside. Parnall was waved over for hooking but was back when Slater's sizzling angle shot caught a corner, Munroe and Parnall building up the play. Mason got the air for holding but got back when Jack Mortimer took Gus Leonard's forward pass at the crease edge and pushed it in. Dugan got it for slashing near the close.

Tied It Up

Crowley tied it at 4-all to open the third from Montgomery as Eagles ganged up hard. Garvey and Crowley sat it out then for a bit of roughing. All were back when Mason took Horton's pass, swung around and backhanded a nice one into the hemp. Parnall got the nod for playing with a broken stick and Vitarelli pulled a swell solo that just missed, before he was hurt. West counted later from Gus Leonard with a slap shot on a passout, as he was left uncovered. Jack Mortimer went away for high-sticking and Parnall counted neatly in close from Brabin and Munroe. Brabin next got the finger for tripping and Collins counted on a rebound, aided by Garvey and Gus Leonard. The latter counted another when his pass over blaneed in off a defender's skate. Dugan was chased for holding but returned when Parnall got the last marker on Brabin's pass. Teams:

Petes — Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and E. Leonard; centre Wade; wings, Mason and Wyatt; alternates, J. Mortimer, G. Leonard, West, Horton, Dugan, Garvey, Collins and Floyd.

Eagles — Goal, Milne; defence, Montgomery and Munroe; centre, Hill; wings, Crowley and Vitarelli; Stewart, Parnall, Slater, Brabin, D. Mortimer and Wootton.

Referees—R. Ouimet and H. Payne.

The summary:

First Period

Petes—Wade (Mason) 0:38
Eagles—Munroe (F. Mortimer) 3:50
Petes—Floyd (Garvey) 18:35
Penalties—Horton, Dugan, Parnall.

Second Period

Badminton Tourney Here This Weekend

The Toronto Strathgowan Club will be at the market hall this evening for matches with the local badminton players. Six men's and six ladies' doubles are listed, as well as a dozen mixed matches. A cup goes to the winner of the home-and-home games between these clubs, won the last two years by Toronto.

Grant Henry, back from Montreal where he won the mixed doubles and went to the finals in men's doubles in an invitation tourney, will play here tonight for Toronto. Spectators are invited.

In last week's club tourney, Joy Elmsley and Roma Brindle won the ladies' doubles, as Harry Collingwood and John Fletcher took the men's matches. The locals invade Belleville next weekend with 28 players, leaving the bus depot at 5:30 Saturday.

The club here has over 110 players going regularly at the market hall, and officials expect the largest membership in some years. With four courts and five nights to play, everyone gets lots of chance to wield the racquets. The small fry play Tuesday and Saturday afternoons. When the weather gets colder, the youngsters may confine their action to Saturday afternoons.

One Third Of NHL Season Goes By Boards At Weekend

By The Canadian Press

Now that football folks can get down to serious hockey matters—and would you believe it, one-third of the National Hockey League schedule goes by the boards this weekend—they are face to face with this usual early-December situation: Detroit and Toronto are in the one-two slots with Montreal, Boston (a somewhat lofty spot for the Bruins), New York and Chicago following in that order. The pattern has been followed so closely the last couple of years, the NHL is becoming a two-division league.

Things won't change materially in the first division (Detroit and Toronto) this weekend but there may be some shuffling around amoung the other four teams.

Toronto, six points behind the pace-setting Red Wings, has a doubleheader. Tonight they have a date at home with New York Rangers and Sunday the Stanley Cup champions take on the Red Wings at Detroit. A double victory for the Leafs still would leave them two points behind Jack Adams' crew.

Anything Can Happen

Only three points separate the third-place Canadiens and last-place Chicago Black Hawks and anything can happen in this group.

The Canadiens, who broke a three-game losing streak with a big 5-1 victory over Toronto on Thursday, have a home date with the Hawks tonight and a Sunday engagement at Boston with the Bruins. New York completes its weekend with a Sunday game at Chicago.

Hugh Bolton of the Leafs, one of the top candidates for this season's NHL rookie award is expected to be patched up sufficiently to be able to play tonight against the Rangers, the only team the Toronto club hasn't beaten this season.

One new face with the New York club is that of Herb Dickenson, a harness horse driver in Ontario in the off-hockey season. The 20-year-old forward was brought up from the Rangers' Cincinnati farm team in the American Hockey League and has been hitting a goal-a-game clip since his promotion.

McGILL CAGERS LOSE

At Potsdam, NY, Clarkson College opened its basketball season Friday night by trouncing McGill University of Montreal 67-43.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Hamilton Tigers, with one of Eastern Canada's most powerful football teams in years, defeated Sarnia Imeprials 23-2 for the Eastern title 16 years ago today. That 1933 Tiger team was the victim of the West's first Grey Cup victory later, Winnipeg winning 18-12.

Young-Durando Bout Draw

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP). — The Paddy Young-Ernie Durando "world series" goes into fight No. 4 on Jan. 3 over the 12-round distance.

This thing can become a habit. But the 5,056 who paid $18,073 to see Friday night's bristling 10-round middleweight draw at Madison Square Garden won't complain. They'd like to see that kind of fight every week.

This is a good old-fashioned rock-pegging contest between the blond youngster from New York's Greenwich Village and 25-year-old Durando from Bayonne, NJ.

All even after three wars with one win each and a draw, they hope to settle their differences in January with the winner to get a non-title date with middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson.

Durando had stitches taken in a gash on his right cheek bone and Young was well battered with a slashed right eye and a cut on the bridge of his nose.

Durando's co-manager, Louis Laico was suspended for using rough language but he probably considers it's worth while. Durando, stung by the tongue-lashing, rushed into a ninth-round rally that almost knocked out Paddy. He was trailing at the end of eight.

TRIES OUT WITH FLYERS

Ed Stankiewicz, centre of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association senior circuit, will try out with St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League in two games this weekend. Stankiewicz, currently the leading goal scorer in the senior loop, will play in Cleveland tonight and in St. Louis Monday.

Intensity Of Contrasts Seen In Life Of Jewish People

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

A strong impression one receives from the history of the Jewish people in the pages of the Old Testament is of the intensity of the contrasts between good and evil, both as manifested in individual characters, and in the life of the people as a whole.

And a further impression is of the way these same contrasts between good men and bad men, between evil and good in the life of the people, are found in every nation today, even in the best.

It is this that makes the Old Testament so vital a document in illustration and warning. There one sees the whole process of moral uplift and decay, of vision and call to high estate, with frustration, defeat, and ruin through disobedience to the high commands of righteousness and truth.

Nowhere, so far as I know, is the history of a people in success and failure, in defeat and revival, so clearly set down. It it for this reason that it brings to modern peoples a solemn warning, adapting a New Testament expression (I Corinthians 10:12), "Wherefore let the nation that thinketh it standeth take heed lest it fall."

What were the distinctive sins and evils that weakened Israel, and brought about decay and defeat at various times? And to what degree are such sins and evils prevalent in the life of today?

Deepest and most fundamental in relation to the highest character and ideals was the sin of setting individual interest against the rights and welfare of all.

An intense patriotism and devotion to the commonweal, expressed in such passionate utterances as in Isaiah 62:1, marked the noblest characters in Israel, and the highest aspirations of the people. But over this were those who put their own interests first, and who cared nothing for the matter of right or wrong as they attained their ends.

In primitive times it was Achan (Joshua 7), who in a day of victory grabbed for himself what rightfully belonged to all. The terrible fate that befell him and his family was of primitive cruelty, but it emphasized the sin of weakening that small community through selfishness and disregard of others.

With these sins of selfishness were associated the sins of violence and crime, the racial and and religious prejudices, the intolerances and persecutions, the corruption of religion itself through a pretentious worship devoid of righteousness or decency —the sins that Jesus denounced in the flaming "Woes" of Matthew 23.

Today, while in the great democracies we are apprehensive of dangers from without, there is not a single nation, even the best, in which the forces of evil, through selfishness and crime and disregard of all moral standards, are not burrowing from within.

There are plenty of good people, thank God! But a tragic fact is the apathy of the good when it comes to action against evil, and the refusal of many to recognize how great are the evils that threaten our democratic ideals and that patriotism sincerely devoted to God and country.

Firms Begin Short Week, Let Out 30

Nashua Co. Workers Favor 4-Day Week; Laid Off At Quaker

Workers of the Canadian Nashua Paper Co. voted to start working a short week rather than accept lay-offs for some, while 30 at the Quaker Oats Co. were laid off this week.

H. M. Niven, general manager of the Nashua Paper, said Friday, "It's flat here now and we haven't enough work for them."

Faced with lack of sales, the company had to cut production and was forced to ask workers to decide whether the employees only recently hired should be laid off so that workers with seniority would continue to work full time or whether everyone should work a shorter week. They chose the short week.

Affects 45

But the four-day week affects only 45 out of the 105 company employees; all the 45 are in the waxing division.

"The remainder are working a full week," said Mr. Niven, "and we hope to keep that way, but we have no guarantee."

The Quaker Oats Company, after reaching a peak period this year in sales, has laid off 30 employees.

Lewis H. Ingram, vice-president of the Quaker Oats Company, explained that the layoff was "seasonal" and all discharged had worked with the company less than six months, most between two months and six months.

Mr. Ingram added that the company employed extra help earlier this year, which is the annual custom. These were the workers laid off.

Sales Higher

Sales, he said, were not less this year than last, "in fact, they're a little better than last year."

Another reason given for the layoff was that some of the employees were taken on to help fill a British export delivery received early in June and recently completed.

Both the companies' actions come only five days after a decision was taken by the Peterborough Lock company to work only four days a week, having one day off, on Mondays.

There again the reason for the short time week was a sales decline. More than 135 workers were affected.

Three other companies the Canadian General Electric company, the Western Clock company, and the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet company, have all laid off employees and have other employees working a short week. All have been affected by the slump in buying.

THE MOST UP-TO-DATE X-RAY EQUIPMENT in Peterborough was installed last week in St. Joseph's hospital. Beside the large machine, Left photo, are radiologists Dr. Kenneth Milne and Sister Mary Patrick discussing a plate that has just been exposed in the darkroom laboratory. Thousands of X-Ray negatives have been stored and catalogued by Sister St. Gerald, Right photo, who is a student X-Ray technician.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

New X-Ray Machine Takes Pictures At Any Point Inside Body Of Patient

Three modern features on the new X-ray machine at St. Joseph's hospital make it one of the most up-to-date machines in Ontario. Radiologist Dr. Ken Milne says he believes there are only a few of the type in Canada. A photo-electric eye for "spot" X-ray photographs removes the possibility of human error in determining the pressure of X-rays to be released for the photograph.

A tomograph enables the machine to take pictures of "slices" of the human body.

Third feature is an extremely small focal spot in the X-Ray tube which permits enlarged X-Ray photos to be taken.

Take Pictures

The electric eye is used in examinations where fluoroscopy and radiography are being combined. At such times, when something of interest is seen on the fluoroscope, a picture can be taken of it, using the photo-electric eye to make the exposure suit the density and size of the part to be photographed.

The tomograph attachment permits the X-Ray tube to swing through an arc of 35 degrees while a picture is made.

Dr. Milne, explaining the operation of the tomograph, gave this example of how the machine takes a picture of a slice of the human body:

When a patient is suspected to have lung trouble that cannot be diagnosed without an X-Ray, and the ordinary X-Ray picture does not clearly show the trouble spot, the tomograph is used.

The tomograph attachment is set to take a picture of the trouble spot at its approximate depth within the chest.

The machine is set in motion and the X-Ray tube moves through its 35-degree arc. Pivot of that arc is the suspected trouble spot. The film, held beneath the table of the X-Ray machine, moves in synchronization with the tube, but in the opposite direction.

The picture that results is an X-Ray of one level of the chest —the level at which the trouble is suspected.

Enlargements

As valuable as the tomograph, in its own way, is the tiny focal spot in the tube. With it, enlarged pictures may be taken in reasonably sharp detail, up to an enlargement of three times the original.

These enlarged X-Ray photos are valuable in spotting fractures of wrist bones, and other small trouble areas that could not otherwise be seen clearly.

Enlarged X-Ray shots are made by placing the part to be photographed at varying distances between the tube and the film. The fine focal spot cuts out distortion.

Rambling Reporter

ALL IN DAY'S WORK

A provincial policeman never knows what to expect when he reports for duty. He is at the beck and call of the public. Friday morning three of them responded to an emergency call at Civic hospital to replenish a rapidly-diminishing supply of blood, required for a patient suffering from ulcers. The three —Constables Tom Armitage, Tom Fitzpatrick and Roy Feeley —then returned to duty.

Municipal Vote Polled Monday 62 City Polls

Municipal voters in Peterborough Thursday and Friday received through the mails, from the city clerk, a card advising them where they cast their votes on Monday.

There are on the list 20,334 entitled to vote all of whom can vote for aldermen and utilities commission and there are 16,529 down as public school supporters who can vote for the board of education.

Many of the 62 polling booths are in the schools and will be manned by teachers. However in several of the wards there are some polling booths at other locations.

Nort End Poll Divided

Poll 43, one of the largest in the city, which takes in the section north of Antrim St. and west of George St. has been divided. One polling booth is in Boomhower's grocery store at the corner of Benson Ave. and Aberdeen Ave. and the other at Kylie's house at 777 George St.

Formerly, residents living on top of the Normal School hill had to come down to George St. to vote and this often proved a hardship for the older voters, especially if the streets were icy and the day was cold. This change has been sought for some years in federal and provincial elections.

The voters in the centre ward will vote in the new city hall or Central school; while those in the west ward will vote at the South Central, Prince of Wales, Queen Mary or St. Peter's schools. South Central, King Edward, Sacred Heart, May's and Prince of Wales schools are being used for most of the polling booths in the south ward. Some north ward polls are at Central and Parkhill schools.

In the east ward some of the voters will go to the Immaculate Conception school and in the Claraday ward some polls are at St. John's, Confederation and Grove schools.

Open At Eleven O'Clock

Polling hours will be from 11:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. Classes in the public and separate schools will report at 9:00 a.m. as usual and then will follow a lesson in civics and in the necessity of all voters registering their votes. Schools will recess for the day at 10 o'clock to enable the teachers to get to the polling booths in time for them to open.

On the aldermanic ballot there will be nine names and voters must vote for four and they can vote for five. There are six names on the board of education ballot and voters can vote for one, two, three, four or five candidates. The utilities commission ballot will have four names and here the voters will cast their ballot for one man.

"Bombs" Hit Armouries In Exercise

Red Cross, St. John Stage Disaster In Defence Drill

A series of explosions rocked the Armouries at 7:29 Friday night.

Twenty-five boy scouts playing in the drill hall were "injured," six of them seriously.

It was all part of "Operation Explosion"—a mock disaster demonstration staged by the Disaster Service of the local Red Cross in co-operation with St. John Ambulance.

The six "seriously injured" were given on-the-spot first-aid treatment and then rushed to an emergency hospital set up in Central Public School. The others were taken to Red Cross Headquarters and treated by St. John Ambulance and Red Cross workers.

Not All Work

After the "disaster victims" had been hospitalized and treated for their injuries, they were all able to do justice to a quantity of soft drinks and doughnuts at Red Cross Headquarters.

Forty minutes after the last of three sets of thunder flares were set off, the last casualty had been cleared from the Armouries and was on the way to emergency hospital.

Immediately after the demonstration was touched off by seven exploding flares, Red Cross Headquarters were notified, and Red Cross and St. John Ambulance workers went into action.

Emergency Hospital

Some hurried to the Armouries to handle the casualties. Another group, in charge of Dr. Frances Stewart and Mrs. S. O. Shields, RN, went about setting up an emergency hospital at Central School.

Two beds were put up and four cots were hastily placed in the kindergarten room and were ready for the first casualties when they arrived.

The casualties were: Gary Jackson, 12, of 684 Park St. north, admitted as an unconscious patient; Malcolm Wiley, 15, of 693 Park St. north, tagged as having received chest injuries in the explosion; Brian Reid, 12, of 357 McGill St., was listed as having a fractured left thigh, and 12-year-old Bert Reil of 173 Westcott St., whose card said he had received a "fractured right leg" in the mock disaster.

The most seriously injured actor casualties were: Ron Beard, 12 of 544 Murray St., with "a

Cancer Society Elects Executive

Mrs. Maurice Holt was elected president of the Peterborough unit of the Canadian Cancer Society at the annual meeting Friday night at the public library.

Mrs. Holt succeeded John Broadhurst.

The remaining members of the executive elected for the coming year are: Judge S. L. Smoke, honorary president Dr. G. Stewart Cameron, honorary vice-president; Dr. L. Zack and W. Sutton, vice-presidents; R. E. Macdonald, treasurer; Mrs. G. P. Bennett; recording-secretary; Miss E. M. Miller, corresponding-secretary; and Directors—Dr. D. Clark, Dr. E. P. Ray, Dr. W. J. W. Seed Fair May Be Set Up Permanently In Morrow Park

Permanent establishment of the Quinte District Seed Fair in Peterborough received the support of most of its directors at their annual meeting here Friday. The board decided to ask for a conference with the directors of Peterborough Exhibition, probably about December 10 when the possibilities of the Fair settling down at Morrow Park will be discussed.

Mel McComb of Port Hope, one of the leading seed grain growers in this district, was elected president.

Agricultural representatives of nearly all the counties in the district attended the meeting in the office of Frank C. Paterson.

Four-Year Circuit

Quinte Seed Fair has been a rotary spring show. It was held here four years ago. The planning committee in 1948 broadened its sphere of interest through the co-operation of Canada Packers, Quaker Oats Co., Dewart Milling Co., De Laval Co., Co-Op Services and some of the agricultural implement companies.

Departure from the bare outline of seed in a district that is hardly noted as a seed producing area introduced a program of other agricultural interests against the background of the original Seed Fair.

This extension of scope prompted a suggestion at that time, that the Fair be held here permanently. Prominent companies had demonstrated their willingness to co-operate.

However, some of the members along the lakeshore objected, took the fair to Kingston in 1949, where it flopped. At Lindsay in 1950, it was quite a success. The local committee then headed by agricultural representative Leroy Brown followed the program which had been adopted in Peterborough.

In Blackstock

Last March, the Fair was held at Blackstock in Durham, and was entirely successful within the local limitations of accommodation. Now the Board is back to its position in 1948 after the Peterborough show. At that time, Frank C. Paterson had been active in promoting the expansion of the Fair, and attracted effective local support.

The next step in the new proposal depends on the reaction of Peterborough Exhibition directors.

Jailed 7 Years Given 10 Lashes

Wilbert J. Butcher, 49, 390 Queen St., Friday afternoon was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary and 10 lashes for a morals offence against a 16-year-old girl.

Butcher pleaded not guilty and elected speedy trial before Judge S. L. Smoke.

The maximum penalty is 14 years.

"You are guilty of one of the most heinous crimes that can be committed," said Judge Smoke.

The judge told Butcher that the sentence had to be "severe enough in my opinion to indicate to the public that such things must not and cannot go on, and see that you get sufficient punishment."

Five of the 10 strokes of the strap are to be imposed within a month of Butcher's imprisonment, Judge Smoke ordered, and the other five not later than a month before his release.

Evidence indicated that the offences continued over a five-year period.

Thieves Waste Time In Breakin

Thieves broke into the office of the Canada Dry Ginger Ale Co., 900 Water St., early today but they wasted their time. They got no money and company officials say nothing else was taken.

The breakin was the company's fourth since the first of October. The first time some money was taken. Last time a truck was stolen from the warehouse and later was found abandoned in Toronto.

A stone found on the window ledge was used to smash two windows on the south side of the building. Once inside the anteroom, the thieves forced the lock on the door leading to the office.

Thorough Search

A thorough search was made of office drawers and cabinets but nothing was believed taken.

Another door to the garage and warehouse was securely locked and blocked the efforts of the breakin artists to go any further.

The broken windows were discovered at 8 am today when two workmen—Ken McLaughlin, 646 George St., and Ralph Plumpton, 132 Montgomery St.—arrived at the plant. It is located behind Lillico Motors.

Oversubscribed

TORONTO, Dec. 1—(CP)—The new issue of $50,000,000 Province of Ontario four per cent debentures, offered to the public Friday, has been substantially oversubscribed, and the books were closed in the afternoon. The debentures, to be dated Dec. 15 and to mature Dec. 15, 1961, were offered at 100 and accrued interest by a large syndicate of investment dealers and banks headed by Wood, Gundy and Co., Ltd.

Rescue Ballots

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Dec. 1 (CP)—Fire Friday threatened to destroy 40,000 ballots prepared for Monday's municipal election in adjoining Stamford township. Clerk Carl Huggins rescued the ballots while firemen put out the blaze in a municipal building.

Steel Arrives For Collegiate

Steel for the Kenner collegiate on Monaghan Rd. South arrived this week, six weeks earlier than was expected by J. Hubert Eastwood, the contractor, and is now in the process of being erected.

When the contract was let to the Eastwood company in August it was then feared that the shortage of steel might cause a delay in the building. However, a few weeks ago Mr. Eastwood was advised by the Central Bridge Co. at Trenton that they could find the steel for his order between two large priority orders they had to fill.

It was a lucky break for both the board and contractor and now the project will be sufficiently advanced for a nice winter's work for the construction employees. It is expected that the laying of brick will commence on December 17.

Bread Company Seeks Lot In Ashburnham

Canada Bread Company is contemplating the building of a modern food plant along the shunting spur railway on the east bank of the Otonabee River in the vicinity of Tivey and Hazlitt streets in Ashburnham.

The proposed site is a reclaimed gravel pit that was for years used as a city dump. When the excavation was filled to the brim, the refuse content was rolled and pressed and finally levelled with a layer of soil.

May Change Zone

The interest of a bread company in a property owned by the city was mentioned at a council meeting about a month ago. The name of the company was not identified at that time. This week the property committee decided to ask the city planning board to alter the zoning of that area from residential to light industry.

The Board Thursday authorized City Clerk Outram, its secretary, to advertise the fact of this application of purchase, and therewith to announce that any objections to that change of classification should be reported at the office of Mr. Outram before Friday, December 7.

If there is any opposition to the project it will be considered at the next meeting of the planning board.

Canada Bread Company has been carrying on its distribution from premises on Chambers St. Information of the company's plans was not available at the Chamber St. office other than their interest in the Ashburnham location which is down stream from the footbridge across the river between London and Hazlitt streets.

The company is reported ready to spend up to $500,000 on a modern bakery and food plant, to set back the front of the building for a lawn and flower gardens, and generally to make their Peterborough plant one of the most attractive of their properties in Ontario and elsewhere.

It is said that business in Peterborough, present and prospective, warants the investment. The site is fairly close to the high bank of the river. It is opposite the north end of the Quaker Oats premises.

It is reported that the company investigated other sections of the city, but are interested only in the Ashburnham location.

James Hamilton presided at the meeting of the planning board.

Because of the steep slope to the lot it was found possible to include two additional bedrooms, an 8' x 9' dark room, bathroom and a 14' x 20' recreation room with fireplace on the lower level. A dumb-waiter elevator permits ease in moving fuel and food trays, etc., from floor to floor. Notice the abundance of windows overlooking the front and rear gardens. The obsence of side windows makes it possible to have close neighbors without invading home privacy. Cedar walls are painted white. Would Discuss Question School Guards

The committee on appointments of the board of education meeting this week decided to ask for an appointment with the police commission to discuss the school guard question.

A year ago the police commission, at the request of the board, put on a number of school guards to see that the children got safely across dangerous crossings going to and from school.

These guards have operated very successfully, but difficulty has been experienced in securing men to act. While the working hours in the day are not long, these hours interfere with the guard holding another job.

Pensioners were sought but when some of these found that although earnings were small, their pensions were reduced, and they resigned.

Since the original guards went on duty, further requests have come to the board and these were sent to the commission who informed the board that there were no funds for extending the work. Several of these new requests came about through the board having to transfer pupils from one school to another in order to find accommodation.

The board then assumed responsibility for the additional guards and all now approved by the board are on duty.

An additional request was received Thursday night for a guard at Inverlea St. and Water St. It was alleged that Water St. has become a speedway and that children's live are endangered by the reckless driving. One small girl was in the hospital for six week when struck by a car while going to school. Another pupil had both legs fractured in an accident at the same corner, and there have been several narrow escapes.

The committee instructed that a guard be put on as soon as one could be secured.

The secretary, Mrs. Gerald Philip gave the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. George conducted the following business—plans were made for a bazaar and supper to be held in the church basement. It was moved by Mrs. C. Harrington and seconded by Mrs. B. Fitchett that Mrs. Gerald Philip and Mrs. H. Carr be in charge of the bazaar. Miss M. Hardy was appointed to look after the program. It was decided to hold the election of officers at the January meeting. Mrs. Glenn Clarke was in charge of the following program, a reading by Mrs. Carmen Bray, followed by a piona solo given by Mrs. Thomas Doidge and a reading by Mrs. B. Fitchett. Miss Eunice Turney gave a vocal solo and a reading was given by Mrs. Chas. Puffer. The meeting closed with a hymn and Benediction.

Marmora WMS Plan Candlelight Service

MARMORA, Dec. 1 (ENS)—The Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church held their November meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

The worship service was conducted by the past president, Mrs. H. C. Barlow.

Mrs. Prentice returned to the chair to conduct the business section of the meeting. The chapter of the study book, from Lakes to Northern Lights was prepared by Mesdames G. D. Young and G. Jarvis, who were assisted by Mesdames W. Park, J. A. Appleton and L. Tupper. A short but impressive memorial service for the late Mrs. H. W. Sabine was conducted by Mrs. W. G. Chrysler.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prawer after which the hostess served refreshments. The annual Christmas candle lighting service will be held in St. Andrew's United Church on the afternoon of December 18. In this the Mission Circle and Younger Girls' Group will take part.

Study Source Of Exposure In Planning Color Scheme

In planning color schemes for interiors of homes an important factor to consider is the source of light or exposure. Every color reflects a certain amount of its tone on the other objects in a room. A strong exterior light will cause walls and ceilings to reflect their colors back into the room. For this reason, it may be unwise to use warm colors of great intensity on large areas of a room that gets a great amount of light. Cool colors are often advisable in a room that gets little light.

An important factor with which to reckon is that color spread over large areas—such as wall surfaces—looks much darker and more intense than it does when viewed on a color chip or a color card. In other words you might wish to match the favorite blue of a flower vase or the russet tone of a book binding. That exact shade, however, spread over large wall areas and intensified by the reflection of one wall on another might be so deep in color that you would not believe the wall actually was matched to the sample selected.

No Direct Sunlight

Rooms with north exposure receive no direct sunlight. The reflected light from its walls has a cool quality. For this type of room, warm colors can be used—colors such as yellow, gold, yellow-red, rose—any color in the warm range.

Because rooms with southern exposure have warmer light, tints of cool colors—green, light-blue, green-yellow and blue-green may be used. Also, light grays.

Although the east side of the house receives the early morning sunlight, this light is not considered a warm light. The rays of the sun from the east are hard and give a harsh look to colors. In such rooms it is advisable to stay more in a neutral color range; use colors which are neither warm nor cool. Such colors as light gray, ivory, cream or buff may be used in such rooms. Certain warm colors of the type used in rooms with north exposure can be used, particularly where rooms are small.

The light which enters rooms having a western exposure is generally the warmest received by any section of the home. Colors from the cool range of the spectrum may be used in such rooms, being sure to keep all wall and ceiling colors in soft tones so that the reflection will not be too startling and will not make too great a color change in the room.

Another important point to remember is that color schemes for rooms adjoining each other should be carefully selected so that the colors in the two rooms do not clash when the door stands open between them.

Paint styling teaches us to study critically the architecture of each room and the way it is lighted. If a room is well proportioned with windows and doors well placed, it is sound practice to paint the trim in a color different from the walls. If, however, windows and doors are badly placed, paint them the same color to merge with the wall coloring and consequently be less noticeable.

For Narrow Rooms

If a room is ill-proportioned and seems too long for its width, this fault will be far less apparent if the narrow end walls are painted in a color darker than the side walls. When you stand in the centre of a room treated in such a manner, the dark end walls seem to come closer to you while the light-tinted side walls seem to recede. If a room is too square to be interesting, individuality and distinction can be given the room by painting the best looking wall in a different color. This will take away the "boxy" quality of a too square room.

Is your ceiling too high? Then paint the overhead surface a dark tone to make it appear lower. Conversely, white or a light tint on a low ceiling will help to give the illusion of added height. Dark colors should be used only on large areas in rooms that receive a great amount of natural light.

Get Fresh Milk

HANNOVER, Germany, Dec. 1 (CP)—Truckloads of fresh milk start moving down from Denmark today for the troops of Canada's 27th Brigade, who are stationed near here. The men have been drinking canned milk but arrangements have been made to get a daily ration of 20 ounces per man trucked in, to give the soldiers the same standard of milk they received in Canada.

Will Ruled Invalid

WATERLOO, Ia., Dec. 1 (AP)—The will of a man who left a $70,000 trust fund to "persons who believe in the fundamental principles of the Christian religion" was ruled invalid here Friday. Judge Shannon B. Charlton, in throwing out the will of Dr. W. B. small, a doctor, asserted: "Only by unpermissible assumption of omniscience can the trustees purport to execute the provisions of this will."

They escaped from prison at Aledo, Ill., when Miss Wallace, 19, seized jail keys from the sheriff's wife and grabbed a pistol. These three were caught on an island in the river, but one other man is still at large.

Nine Men Seek Election To City Council

ALD. P. J. ANGLESLEY

Alderman Patrick J. Anglesey was elected to the Council four years ago. He was born and brought up in Peterborough. Eventually, he found himself a candidate for an aldermanic post, was elected, and again two years ago, and is a regular attender at both Council and committee meetings. In the work of the Council he has been chairman of the welfare, manufacturers' and parks committees. He was first nominated for the Council by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Matters pertaining to children and youth of the city have been a special interest.

ALD. E. C. BRAUND

Ald. Ernest C. Braund was elected to the Council two years ago. He was born and brought up in Peterborough, and is head of the E. C. Braund retail grocery stores. As a business man and chairman of the manufacturers' committee this year he gave a lot of attention to enquiries and contacts seeking industrial locations. One plant, Lemery Distributors Limited, is now being built on the city's industrial site, Lansdowne St. west. The manufacturers' committee is the only branch of the Council which has to compete with other cities. As a new member he was appointed chairman of the property committee in 1950, and had various important matters to deal with. Ald. Braund does not hesitate to express his opinion, and usually contributes liveliness to committee deliberations.

S. J. BLACK

A keen interest in civic affairs and what he believes is a need for business methods in government have prompted Sydney J. Black to run for alderman in the 1951 election.

"I believe civic government should be run by men with a fair knowledge of business methods, and that business methods should be used in government," says Mr. Black.

President of the Peterborough Rotary club, Syd Black was born in England of Scottish parents, and at the age of 8 moved with his parents to Bermuda. The family stayed there until Mr. Black was 17, when he came to Canada and settled in Toronto.

In City In 1923

In 1911, he went into the typewriter business, working in Windsor and Hamilton, and finally coming to Peterborough in 1923, when he established his own office supply store here.

An Anglican, Mr. Black is a former president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Conservation Association, and was the first team captain at the Kawartha Golf and Country club.

In recent years, said Mr. Black, friends have urged him to run for alderman. This year, he has acted on their urgings.

Squeal Factory

TISDALE, Sask.—(CP)—A co-operative pig hatchery has been started here. For the initial breeding stock 48 Yorkshire sows and gilts were purchased.

W. J. (Bill) Beggs, millwright at the Quaker Oats Co., is one of the four aldermanic candidates making their first bid for office.

He is president of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL) and is the nominee of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (CCL).

Mr. Beggs was born in Scotland 31 years ago and received his early education there. In the late '20s he came with his family to Peterborough. His father, John Beggs, is also well known in Peterborough labor circles and several times was a candidate at city elections.

W. J. BEGGS

After being educated at Peterborough public schools and at the collegiate he was employed at the Quaker Oats Co.

Hockey Player

He was prominent in local sport, playing hockey for the Monarchs of Junior "C" OHA and later, for the Colts in Junior "B" company. He was also one of the youngest players in the Peterborough soccer league.

At the age of 20 he enlisted in the RCAF and graduated at Winnipeg in Nov. 1942, as a commissioned officer. He served for a time as instructor at the Fingal bombing and gunnery school. He completed his operational training on the west coast before going overseas.

After his discharge he helped organize the Peterborough Legion hockey team. And he has been increasingly active in union activities here in Peterborough. This fall he represented Local 293 and the labor council at the CCL annual convention in Vancouver.

He is married and has two boys, Bob, 7, and Brian 4.

GEORGE P. BROOK

Dissatisfaction with city taxes, city spending, handling city property and city parking has prompted George P. Brook to make his first bid for the city council this year.

Of Irish descent, Mr. Brook came to Canada in 1911 and graduated from Bovey-Tracy college in Toronto. He then became a manager for the Davis chain of meat markets in Toronto and worked for the company 14 years before opening a business which he operated for two years.

He then worked for a time with the Martin chain of stores in Toronto as a manager. Before coming to Peterborough with the Eaton company Mr. Brook was employed 12 years with the Swift company as a specialty salesman.

Before the Second World War Mr. Brook operated seven meat departments in various Peterborough stores.

Retired

Due to the effects of his war service in the First and Second World Wars Mr. Brook is now retired.

In the First World War he enlisted with the Irish Regiment in Toronto and went overseas with the First Division. In his five years in France and Belgium he was wounded seven times. After the war he was two years with the army of occupation in Germany.

In the Second World War he was a staff captain at Kingston, Vancouver, Trail and Ottawa, his age keeping him from going overseas.

Mr. Brook is a member of the Red Patch club and the United Service Institute.

Enforce Color Bar

PRETORIA, South Africa (Reuters).—The South African government is establishing a staff of 40 inspectors to see that the color bar is enforced. The group areas act sets up machinery for the residential and business separation of South Africa's white and non-white races.

WESTERN ADAM

Adams Lake in the Kamloops district of British Columbia was named after an Indian christened Adam there in 1849.

ALD. JOHN A. DEWART

Ald. John A. Dewart, MC, was persuaded two years ago to let his name go on the aldermanic ballot. Approach to his decision was through his sense of the individual citizen's responsibility to his community. That same spirit remains with him as he offers his services again. He has been chairman of the Board of Health, and also of the Council's civil defense organization. Interested in military affairs since youth, Ald. Dewart has been chairman of the United Services Institute for two years. He was awarded the Military Cross in the First War, is president of Dewart Milling Co., and is a member of St. Andrew's United Church. He is also vice-president of Peterborough Rotary Club.

GRENVILLE B. LATHANGUE

Making his second bid for city council this year is Grenville B. Lathangue, machine worker employed at the Western Clock Co. In 1950, Mr. Lathangue was the unsuccessful Junior Chamber of Commerce candidate for alderman.

Director of Jaycees

Always actively interested in civic affairs, Mr. Lathangue has been director of the Jaycees for two years, chairman of their civic affairs group, and in 1950-51 was vice-president.

A member of Mark St. United church, where he is on the Boy Scouts group committee, Mr. Lathangue was once secretary of the metal machine workers' group of the Accident Prevention Association in Peterborough.

If elected for alderman, Mr. Lathangue has promised he will be guided by common sense and good judgment during his tenure of office.

H. STANLEY LONGHURST

H. Stanley Longhurst is making his debut in municipal affairs as a candidate for the city council.

He has become well-known to Peterborough citizens through the positions which he has held since he came to Peterborough from Lindsay in 1938.

Born in Hamilton, Mr. Longhurst after the First World War worked until 1930 in Hamilton in an auditing business and then became an employee of the Bank of Montreal. He looked after the bank's holdings in Woodstock, Haliburton and Lindsay until 1938.

During his stay in Haliburton he managed a lumber industry, and came to Peterborough in 1938 with the Scott Lumber Company.

In 1941 he left the lumber business to become administrator and supervisor for the Wartime Housing for Eastern Ontario, a position which he filled until 1948 when he accepted the position of secretary-treasurer of the Armstrong Lumber Company.

In January Mr. Longhurst opened his own business as a certified accountant.

Mr. Longhurst served with the 55th Battery of Guelph in the First World War. He spent four years overseas, three in France.

He has been a member of the Peterborough Kiwanis Club for 12 years, seven years of that period a director.

Elected to the Council four years ago, Ald. T. Douglas Miller has been for two years chairman of the fire, water and light committee, and was this year chairman of the finance committee. In that position he has taken an active part in various matters of primary importance, culminating the undertakings of the Council during the four years of Ald. Miller's service and experience. If the new south end has not yet received a local fire station, it is not his fault. As chairman of the fire and light committee he went into that question thoroughly and brought in an approving recommendation. Ald. Miller is a contractor, and is one of the small group of lacrosse players of other years who kept the game alive in its leanest years. From that low ebb, Peterborough Lacrosse Club reached the highest point this year, the Canadian national championship.

Hope On Way For New Tour, Loves Jaunting

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1 (AP)—All in a week's work:

Out to Lockheed airport, where Bob Hope was leaving on yet another tour. The plane was late and Roski-nose had some time to chat.

"Imagine—me wating for a plane!" he said. "Usually, it's the other way around." This time he was off to Bellaire, O., where he is premiering "My Favorite Spy" in the home of a contest-winning housewife.

Hope was elated about his latest TV show. But asked if he will give up radio, he said: "Are you kidding? Radio is legalized larceny. It's like taking the money away. But television—man, that is work! It's the hardest work I've ever done."

While waiting for the plane to arrive, Hope sat in a phone booth in the lobby, holding conversations and signing autographs. He talked longingly of getting back to his Palm Springs home for a rest. Tours were a lot of trouble, he opined. But as he left for the wide blue yonder, you could tell he was embarking on the kind of life he likes best . . .

Nature Film

To a special screening of "Earthquake Lake", film made by men who took part in Walt Disne's nature shorts. This picture goes a little further, being a full-length feature about a naturalist who visits the Reelfoot Lake country in Tennessee.

The story is slight, but the picture again proves that nature study can be fascinating film fare . . .

And A Party

Party of the week was NBC's blow-out to honor the debut of Dinah Shore's TV show. Among those attending the function at the Beverly Hills hotel were Ed Wynn, Herbert Marshall, Joan Crawford, Donald O'Connor, furniture maker George Montgomery and a new convertible from Dinah's sponsor.

Remand Ex-Seaman For Mental Examination

SMITHS FALLS, Ont., Dec. 1—(CP)—Garnet William Burke, 30-year-old seaman from Minudie, Cumberland County, NS, who pleaded guilty Monday to a bank robbery charge, Friday was remanded for mental examination. He will appear in court for sentence on Tuesday.

Burke pleaded guilty to robbing the Smiths Falls branch of the Bank of Montreal at gunpoint of $959 on Nov. 21. He was arrested in neighboring Perth an hour after the holdup.

A letter from Burke's family physician was read in court, telling of Burke being twice wounded in the Second World War. He "had not been well-balanced" since his discharge.

"Shoeless Hillbilly" Sent To Sunnybrook

TORONTO, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Peter Grainger, believed to be "The Shoeless Hillbilly" who hoaxed the United States Army, was brought to Sunnybrook Military Hospital Friday for treatment of a head wound received in the Second World War.

Publicized like a movie star in US newspapers after he enlisted in the army, Grainger went AWL and was picked up Wednesday walking on the highway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie.

A provincial constable recognized him as a former forest ranger who disappeared from his post 22 miles north of Sudbury Oct. 9.

He was incoherent when taken into custody. Dr. Tom Dixon, Sudbury psychiatrist, examined him and recommended treatment at Sunnybrook.

Nearly 6,000 train trips are scheduled daily in the underground railways of London, England.

Italians Refuse Stay On Farms

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 — (CP) — Italians brought to Canada as farm laborers don't want to stay "down on the farm," it was indicated in reports submitted Friday at the Federal-Provincial Farm Labor Conference here.

"We lost 50 per cent of our Italians and 11 per cent. of the displaced persons sent to us," said Frank C. Hitchcock, National Employment Service Officer, of Regina. "These workers proved to be unsatisfactory."

The Alberta representative, Robert Putnam of Edmonton, said of 20 Italians placed on farms in the province not one was still on a farm after three months and few stayed more than one month.

Elgin Taylor, speaking for New Brunswick, said farmers there are "up in arms because DP's won't observe the terms of entry and will not stay on a farm for one year."

Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Labor Minister, told the conference higher wages and better housing are needed to keep farm laborers on the farm.

"Men will not stay on the farm for $55 a month," he said and suggested the minimum wage for farm labor be increased to at least $60 a month.

Increasing Capital Investments Reflect Confidence In Canada's Future

IMPERIAL BANK OF CANADA EXECUTIVES ADDRESS 77th ANNUAL MEETING

Toronto, November 28:—The 77th Annual Meeting of Imperial Bank of Canada was held today at the Head Office in Toronto. Mr. I. K. Johnston, President, in his address to the Meeting, said, in part:

During the last twelve months the Canadian economy has been operating at near capacity. Out of an expanded civilian working force of over 5,400,000 persons in August, the unemployed numbered only 78,000. Our gross national production, just under $18 billion in 1950, will considerably exceed $20 billion in 1951. Real output, which rose by 4 percent in 1950, will probably rise by 5 to 6 percent in 1951. This has been brought about by a notable upsurge in spending, which has been associated with a sustained and substantial upward movement in the cost of living. Aside from the threat to our freedom and well-being from communist countries, inflation has been perhaps our most vexing current problem.

While the dollar situation has deteriorated recently and may retard restoration of our exports overseas, the fact remains that production in Western Europe continues to rise. No other one factor is of so great importance in the worldwide battle against inflation as the stabilization of prices in the United States. If, as their military output grows, the United States can keep prices stable, it will have made a prime contribution to the ability of European countries to rearm.

Our exports to the United States have held up well, but the expected increase in sales volume of raw materials to the United Kingdom has not come about. Removal of restrictions late in 1950 brought about abnormally high imports from the United States. But reduced sale of consumer durables as the result of recent restrictions, and shortages of capital goods in the United States, may restrict our buying there.

As American defense production grows Canada's exports to the United States should continue to grow also. With lower stocks of raw materials and food in Great Britain and their defense requirements, our exports to them should grow if dollars can be found.

We are now in one of our greatest periods of expansion. The amount of capital being devoted to resources development, industrial plant and equipment, power generating capacity and transportation equipment, oil development, agriculture and housing is truly phenomenal. Our defense production program is now adding its quota, and rising employment is adding to the income stream. This increasing capital investment reflects faith in Canada's future.

Alberta oil development is proceeding under a carefully designed policy. The output of mine and forest continues to grow. To this will be added in a few years the outflow of new iron ore from Quebec and Labrador. An aluminum production project in British Columbia to cost $550 million is expected to have an ultimate capacity of 500,000 tons annually. There will be a rising output of uranium and natural gas. Not only is there a growth in all our productive agents—labour, capital and resources—but they are being used with increasing efficiency.

The defense program has financial as well as physical aspects and these may be more troublesome than the actual problem of production. Between June, 1950 and June, 1951 our cost-of-living index rose by about 14 percent, a trend which has continued recently on a more moderate scale.

To cope with the situation a redirection and curtailment of our spending is necessary if further inflation is to be avoided. The measures currently being applied are strong and varied and appear to be having their effect. The volume of consumer spending has declined. Some of this may be attributable to increased personal taxes, but it is to be hoped it also indicates a desirable increase in personal savings. Housing expenditure is showing a notable decline. Inventories are currently at high levels and perhaps not much further increase will take place. While it is too early to draw firm conclusions, while defense outlay is in an expanding phase, the relative steadiness in the wholesale price index in the last few months and the slowing down of the rise in the cost-of-living index recently may mean some lessening in inflationary pressures. A rising defense expenditure, however, will permit no early or large relaxation in these restrictive measures.

The Canadian economy is buoyant and should remain so if it can be so managed as to control the inflationary pressures inherent in our present circumstances. Our difficulties arise from the searching pressures of the international situation. Perhaps the best one can hope for is a prolonged period in which we and the other associated nations must continue the policy of containment of Russia. We have, I feel, made progress in this and if we can manage our affairs successfully, despite these continuing pressures, we need not fear for our safety nor our economic well-being.

Toronto, November 28:—Mr. L. S. Mackersy, General Manager, Imperial Bank of Canada, speaking to the 77th Annual Meeting of Shareholders held in Toronto today, said, in part:

The Seventy-seventh Annual Statement of the Bank now before you shows total assets of $535,606,041, the highest figure so far in our history, the increase over last year being $8,857,000.

The profits, before provision for depreciation and taxes, were $2,862,000 showing an increase of $211,692. After providing for depreciation of $475,600 Government of Canada and Provincial taxes of $1,150,000 dividends of $980,000 and $150,000 written off Bank Premises account, this left $106,400 to be added to Profit and Loss Account, making a balance of $2,075,745. From this $1,000,000 was transferred to Reserve Fund, and a balance of $1,075,745 carried forward.

Deposits at $484,742,046, showing an increase of $6,994,000, are again at an all-time high. Non-interest bearing deposits increased $8,491,000 and interest-bearing deposits increased $6,152,000, but Government of Canada and Provincial deposits decreased by $7,649,000. We note with a great deal of satisfaction that deposits by the public continue to show a substantial gain.

Investments, not exceeding market value, total $196,768,301, a decrease of $23,998,000. We do not hold any Public Securities other than Canadian as against a holding of $1,051,000 last year.

Loans total $234,074,343, an increase of $28,631,000 Current Loans increased $26,476,000. Provincial Loans increased $1,795,000, loans to Cities, Towns and Municipalities $955,000. Call Loans decreased $551,000. We have no Current Loans elsewhere than in Canada as against $45,000 last year.

During the year our staff increased 259 and now numbers 2,948 of which 1,491 are young ladies, their number at present being in excess of 50%. Attention has been given to the development of our staff training facilities and emphasis placed on the improvement of our service to the general public.

The farmers of the West have experienced a difficult harvest season due to unfortunate weather conditions. Despite these difficulties the crop yield and quality, and therefore, the final returns will represent a vast improvement over the preceding year.

The cash payments from the sale of farm products for the first half of the current year were $1,246 million as compared with $887 million for the same period last year, and $1,085 million in 1949 was the best previous mark. This unprecedented increase in farm income was mainly due to increased marketing, although higher prices were also a contributing factor. As the second half of the year's income is invariably greater than the first, it can be confidently predicted that the total 1951 income will surpass anything previously attained. Perhaps an estimate of $3,000 million may be reached against $2,500 million, the highest previously earned in 1949.

In general the year to date has been one of substantial new developments as, for example, the aluminum project in British Columbia and the uranium fields of the North. Coupled with this is the further and notable increase in the oil developments of Alberta, with exploration actively continuing not only in that province but in Saskatchewan and Manitoba as well. Further steps in the development of the iron ore fields in Quebec and Labrador are also worthy of specific comment.

It is pleasing to note that immigration has been stepped up. These newcomers are a welcome aid to the further growth of Canada, and have been readily absorbed in the field of farming, industry and commerce.

There is practically no unemployment, wages and farm income are at record figures and plant facilities, with but rare exceptions, are in use to capacity; foreign trade, too, is up.

The one domestic problem, and it is a very real one, is that of inflation and all citizens should fully co-operate by word and deed in any and all efforts being exerted to minimize the present trend of ever-increasing costs—to do otherwise is to court disaster.

Florida License Plates Fail To Beat Traffic Fines

NEW YORK, Dec. 1. (AP)—It seemed to Stanley Goldman like a sure-fire way to beat New York traffic laws. He put Florida licence plates on his car.

The idea apparently was that nobody is going to worry much about a traffic fine when the violator presumably has gone back to Florida.

Everything worked fine as Goldman, 25, accumulated 46 tickets in less than a year. He never bothered to pay a one.

But the police were getting pretty familiar wtih the Florida licence number.

Goldman was arrested Friday for double parking. A quick check and another officer showed up in court with the 46 other tickets.

Chief Magistrate John M. Murtagh told Goldman: "You have violated the law repeatedly. Anyone showing such wilful disregard of the law should serve time."

He revoked Goldman's driver's licence, fined him $1,000, and sent him to jail for 60 days.

It probably was the stiffest sentence of its kind ever handed out here.

Wasps Victorious Against Science

By J. C. GRAHAM

WELLINGTON, NZ — (CP). — Wasps have won a seven-year battle against all the resources of modern science in New Zealand. After trying by every means to eradicate them the government has admitted defeat and given up the campaign to prevent their establishment in the country.

The German wasp first appeared at an air station in 1944 and it is thought it may have been imported from England in a consignment of aircraft parts. Since then it has spread over the whole of the north island and has appeared in the south island. It is the only country in the southern hemisphere where this wasp has established itself.

The government battled the invader for several years. The area infested was fairly small at first. A bounty of threepence each was paid for queen wasps collected and small boys made a lot of money hunting them down. But the wasps continued to spread. Scientists tried many methods of extermination and supplies of DDT powder were supplied free for destroying nests. Posters were displayed throughout the country telling people how to kill the pests.

Wasps Victors

But the wasps won. The Minister of Agriculture, K. J. Holyoake, says no effective way of preventing the spread of the wasps has been found. The government has abandoned its efforts at extermination.

Henceforth the efforts of government scientists will be concentrated on how best to prevent the wasps robbing beehives in the autumn. This is the most serious damage they cause. They also destroy ripe fruit in home gardens but in commercial orchards where fruit is picked just before it is ripe much less damage is done.

Wants Army To Improve Medical Tests

OTTAWA, Dec. 1. (CP)—Capt. Claire Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) said Friday in the Commons that something should be done to improve the medical examination of men enlisting in the armed forces.

There are cases, he said, where men are accepted as medically fit and two or three months later are discharged as unfit.

He was told by Dr. W. G. Blair (PC-Lanark), prominent Ontario physician, that it is not easy to locate some of the disability from which many veterans suffered.

Veterans Minister Lapointe said he would reply to the remarks of the two men at a later date. The discussion occurred on a bill providing for a 33⅓-per-cent increase in the pensions of disabled veterans.

Dr. Blair said veterans received good examinations and met a certain standard. The doctors should not be criticized.

Some men appeared physically fit when they enlisted and developed an ailment during the rigors of training.

Dr. Blair said there were many things that would have to be cleaned up. There were men who should receive pensions but could not get them under existing regulations.

He suggested that the next pensions committee make a review of the deserving cases of those who needed pensions but apparently were not pensionable.

Letters Sent In Error Involve Man In Slaying

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1. (AP)—The accidental mailing of two letters brought the arrest of 25-year-old Joseph Nastasio Jr. in connection with a slaying and several holdups.

Police Lieut. Harry Nesbitt said Nastasio wrote two letters about the crimes, intending that they be mailed to officials only if he were killed.

A relative found them in Nastasio's home and, unaware of their contents, mailed them. Nastasio was arrested Thursday.

The police said he admitted participating in the slaying of George Oliver Hayes, 19, Sept. 3, and also taking part in several holdups.

Nesbitt said Nastasio wrote the letters, fearing his accomplices might attempt to kill him.

Charges MacQuarrie Report Disgraceful And Scandalous

OTTAWA, Dec. 1 — (CP) — A prominent Canadian retail merchant Friday described the methods by which the MacQuarrie report on resale price maintenance was prepared as "disgraceful" and "scandalous."

R. A. Harris, of Windsor, vice-president of the Canadian Retail Federation, said the report urging the government to make price maintenance illegal has no factual evidence to back it up.

Recalled as a witness before parliament's special committee on retail price-fixing, Mr. Harris produced percentage figures on margins of profit on clothing items to prove that the margins on price-maintained items are lower than those which are not.

Alleging that the MacQuarrie report had "no facts and figures," he maintained that such an important step as banning price maintenance—which would affect a large part of the economy—should not be considered until all these facts and figures are obtained.

New Developments

As the committee continued study of the controversial issue, these developments emerged:

1. Ellen Fairclough (PC, Hamilton West) was voted down 10 to 7 when she attempted to have the committee call a representative of the T. Eaton Co., Ltd., as a witness, and allow other members to call such other witnesses as they desired.

2. Mr. Harris, noting that the T. Eaton Co. was not opposed to government legislation, said there are eight other concerns which are in the same category, but an "overwhelming" majority of retail merchants are definitely opposed.

Of the eight, six had agreed to have their names made public.

They are: Henry Morgan Co. Ltd., Montreal; Murphy-Gamble Ltd., Ottawa; N. H. Gowdy, Kitchener; Calp's, Saint John, NB; Johnstone-Walker Ltd., Edmonton; C. J. Eames and Son Ltd., Hamilton, Ont.

3. The committee agreed to finish public hearings next Thursday and began studying a draft bill against price maintenance on Friday.

Mr. Harris said if price maintenance were eliminated, some prices would come down, but eventually the small business man would be forced out by larger concerns, the price reduction would be temporary and in the long run prices would be pushed by the large concerns to a higher level.

Tea Service Gift Commemorates YWCA Organizers

Dedicated to the women who had the foresight in 1891 to organize a YWCA in Peterborough, which is now celebrating its 60th anniversary, the gift of a handsome silver tea service was made anonymously Friday evening in view of 150 of the women and girls who are now carrying on the traditions and purposes then set up. Names of the women on the first board of directors and the names of all past presidents were read and will be commemorated in the use of the service. It was accepted for the Y by president Mrs. T. J. Carley.

A meeting of one of the early presidents and her board members was realistically portrayed by the Senior Drama Group of the Y in a short skit. One of the main items of business was deciding to accept use of the YMCA gymnasium, "behind closed doors of course," and following closely was a routine with dumb-bells by four "buxom" gymnasts in bloomers and middies, wearing black stockings and bands on their hair.

Modern Y gym girls contrasted their rhythmic, streamlining exercises in short, trim black silk tunics. From the ballet classes was presented a snappy French "can can" dance, done with just the right edge of sauciness.

A bathing beach scene of the early 1900's was suddenly interrupted by the appearance of a blond siren in scant two-piece bathing suit—who walked off with the life guard.

This light entertainment was preceded by a Jubilee banquet, prepared by the Y cafeteria dietitian and cook and served with the assistance of board members and girls of the Friday Night Supper Club. The girls sang their own club song following the dinner.

Messages of congratulations came from Victoria to Trinidad and were read by executive director Miss Leta Brownscombe. Several former members of the Y now living in Toronto and Ottawa attended the celebration. Also present were the president and executive director of Port Hope Y, newest member of the Y family.

Princess Gets New Clothes For Australia

LONDON, Dec. 1—(Reuters)—Two weeks home from her tour of Canada, Princess Elizabeth is already in the thick of preparations for another Royal junket—this time to Australia and New Zealand.

She and Prince Philip leave in early January.

Once again the problem of wardrobe is occupying much of her time.

She insists on a thorough fitting for each garment and spends an average of 30 minutes on each session with her designers.

Simplicity will be the keynote because, with six months' travelling to do, her clothes must be easy to pack, press and keep in order.

She also has taken into consideration the continually changing climate during the tour, ranging from the cool Australian fall to the sticky dampness of early monsoon on the reutrn trip.

Norman Hartnell, the Queen's dressmaker, is making her evening gowns with some of the lavish crinolines which are his specialty, cocktail dresses, ballet-length skirts—first worn by the Princess in Canada—afternoon and day dresses.

The color range includes pastel shades because of the mostly warm climate in Australia. These include yellows, greens and blues which can be worn with white accessories.

Erskine-Burridge

HAVELOCK, Dec. 1 (ENS). — Knox Presbyterian Church was the scene of a quiet wedding Friday afternoon when Dorothy Alma Mae Burridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Watson, was united in marriage to Donald William Erskine of Campbellford, son of Mr. John Erskine of Cobourg and the late Mrs. Erskine. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson.

The bride wore a dress of navy taffeta, black hat, black accessories, mink neckpiece and a corsage of pink roses. Miss Clare Erskine of Cobourg, the groom's sister, was bridesmaid, wearing a black taffeta dress with black accessories, and a corsage of pink carnations. Mr. James Watson of Havelock, brother of the bride, was the groomsman.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was gold earrings and to the groomsman a beautiful tie bar.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where her mother received in a dress of wine crepe with black accessories. She was assisted by the groom's stepmother, who wore navy floral sheer, with pink hat and black accessories.

Following a motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Erskine will live in Campbellford.

60th Anniversary Speaker From Middle East Meeting

To build "bridges of friendship, bridges of understanding and bridges of Christian fellowship" as a contribution to the work of reconciliation which must come about in the world before any lasting peace can be secured, is a job for YWCA members. So said Mrs. Walter Rean speaking at the 60th anniversary dinner of the Peterborough YWCA Friday evening.

Mrs. Rean was reporting on the YWCA World Council meeting held in Beirut, Lebanon, in October and included a travelogue on the Middle East, the city of Jerusalem and the holy places, and a description of interesting people she met during two weeks in the Mediterranean area.

This was not what seems to some "a very inaccessible part of the world in which to meet" but rather a central and strategic position which was the birthplace of civilization as well as the cradle of many religions, she pointed out.

The Middle East is largely a Moslem area Lebanon being the only country with a majority of Christians, and the World's Association felt that Y branches in all these countries would be stimulated and strengthened by having a world Christian gathering there.

The countries seemed very strange to western eyes, Mrs. Rean admitted, but stranger still were the personages attending the meeting. About 175 delegates came from more than 40 countries and from every continent, and with their various shades of skin and their gorgeously colored saris and native costumes made a colorful picture as any mosaic. The economic and social conditions of the countries from which the delegates came varies greatly so there was wide variation in the points of view from which they approached questions under consideration.

She said the problems of those in which Christians are a minority group made it seem to some that it was impossible to find a common ground on which to plan work. But, after some days it was realized the basic needs are the same the world over, and differences only in application, not in underlying beliefs or purpose.

Much of the work of the Council was done in discussion groups. Subjects give an indication of the interest and concern which the Association feels for conditions in the world and for its responsibility in the present emergencies. They recognized responsibility for displaced persons and are continuing as part of the regular work what up to now has been considered emergency work. They agreed to take on various pieces of extension as soon as countries could be found to underwrite the necessary expense or supply staff. This latter is World Service Work to which the local Y has been contributing annually.

Following the Council meeting Mrs. Reane made a two-day trip to Jerusalem and visited many of the holy places, including the Church of the Nativity, Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Garden of Gethsemanae, Bethany and Bethlehem.

"Jerusalem is not a pleasant place to visit today, nor indeed a very comfortable one," she said. "The whole Middle East is full of tensions, racial, political, and social. These have been developing for many years but brought to a climax by the recent struggle between Arabs and Jews resulting in division of that country into two parts—Israel and Jordan." The sight-seeing party was uncomfortably aware of its military escort and the need for same throughout the visit.

This country was unlike the YWCA world representatives who unanimously agreed to the re-writing of the constitution and to the rewording of the basis on which the Association is founded, so that, while retaining the Christian basis, no word or phrase might remain which would make it difficult or impossible for any Christian group to participate fully in the fellowship of YWCA.

At the moment of concluding her talk Mrs. Rean was approached by little Marina Zakos, third generation of a Greek family enjoying all the benefits of Y membership in their adopted city, who presented a bouquet of flowers.

Expression of thanks was made by Mrs. Paige Rowell, immediate past president, and the speaker was introduced by president Mrs. T. J. Carley.

Groomsman was Mr. Melvin Killian and ushers were Bruce Oakley, brother of the bride, and Wellington McDougall.

A reception was held at Club Aragon, the bride's mother, Mrs. Wilfred Hie receiving in a navy ensemble, assisted by the groom's mother, Mrs. Frank Livings in navy tafeta with black velvet hat and each had a corsage of pink roses.

To Justify Self Refuses To Have Baby

Dorothy Dix

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 24, and have been married for three years to a man three years my senior. We go out a lot, have wonderful times and we both work. We both have very good positions from a salary viewpoint and otherwise. He, however, keeps talking about having a baby. He told me prior to our marriage—even before we were engaged—that he eventually wanted a child. I, on the other hand, never want one and told him so. I just don't like children; I'd go crazy at home and have proved it.

Rather than settling the problem before we were married, we just agreed to wait about ten years and if I still didn't want children, we wouldn't have any. Now my husband keeps talking about a baby and blames my lack of desire on my mother. True, she has always said a young couple should go out, etc., but she has other grounds for not wanting to see me have a baby. I have been ill most of my life; ten years were spent on and off in a hospital and my mother, of course, would worry herself sick if I were to have a child and makes no secret of the fact. My husband knew before we married that I'm not the home type. I love the business world and office work as much as I detest housework. He thought I'd change, but I haven't. I feel he is unhappy, but also feel I'd be foolish to have a baby and make all three of us miserable.

ANN P.

ANSWER: You aren't seeking advice as much as you are looking for justification of your own course. That, I'm afraid, will be hard to find. One of the worst mistakes a young couple can make is to marry when there is such divergence on so vital a matter as this. Since you and your husband were so set on the baby question before marriage, you were both foolish to go ahead with the wedding. Problems that are not definitely settled before marriage become more involved as time goes on—they never simplify themselves.

I can give you plenty of arguments against the stand you are taking; most of them have probably been presented to you already by your husband or by friends who realize your attitude is an unnatural one. However, you are in no mood to receive advice You are determined to pursue a business career and I don't think anyone can sway you.

You'll Tire of Job

Even the best business careers wear themselves out. You're young now but the time is not far off when you'll just be a middle-aged hanger-on in the office; when the sound of the alarm clock in the morning will be the most unwelcome sound in the world and a day's work will tire you out completely. Those gay evenings out will also lose their appeal and the companionship of a houseful of youngsters will be the one thing you'll long for most. Few women love the drudgery of many household tasks, but they all accept them as part of a job to be done—and a most rewarding job. In time your happy busy life will become a thing of rebukes and recrimination. These are the facts to be faced.

Your husband is certainly correct in attributing a large part of your reluctance to your mother. Girls much frailer than you have borne healthy children—often with less trouble than their vigorous sisters.

You are not facing a very happy future. Either you and your husband will bicker over this momentous question for a few more years, then he will resentfully resign himself to a childless future while you become bitter over his unreasonable wishes, or you'll end in divorce.

If you are sincere in wanting constructive advice, I suggest a marriage counselor, clergyman, doctor or psychiatrist. Through personal interviews they may get an insight into your character that will produce satisfactory results in your dilemma. I hope so.

❖ ❖ ❖

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been pledged to a wonderful sorority. But am petrified when I think of the initiation that will soon take place. From the stories I hear I know I can never stand it. I am told that the seniors use straps to whip the freshmen. One girl told me she was black and blue for days. I would hate to be a coward.

JANE A.

ANSWER: Your older sorority sisters are undoubtedly trying to frighten you. If such brutal practices as you describe are used for initiation, the dean of your school should be informed as they are entirely out of order. A large group of students was recently expelled from a New York City high school for initiation far less severe than those you describe.

Don't let other girls needlessly alarm you. The initiation won't be nearly as hard on you as you fear.

QUESTION:

I read in your column that Mrs. Gordon C. wants a recipe for a Graham-Cracker coated Date Cookie. The only one I know of is the same mixture as your Graham-Cracker Roll, only I shape them into balls, the size of a large walnut (or smaller if you wish) or into an oblong shape, like a large date, then dip these balls into the rolled cracker crumbs. Set them on a waxed sheet of paper until set, in a cool place. They are then ready for use. Mrs. F.P.

ANSWER:

I am most grateful to you for coming to my rescue, and I am sure Mrs. G. C. will be too.

QUESTION: I would be interested in receiving the recipe you mentioned in your column in tonight's paper for Cheese Souffle and Cheese Strata. Also, I would like to know if you have a recipe for Tomato Custard. It is a very tasty supper dish that my mother used to make. The only ingredients I can recall are stewed tomatoes, bread crumbs and eggs. I should very much appreciate any help you can give me in getting a good recipe for this dish. E.

ANSWER:

Cheese Souffle

Three tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, cayenne, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 cup milk, 3 eggs, 1 cup grated old or processed cheese.

Make thick white sauce of first five ingredients. Remove from heat, add well-beaten egg yolks and cheese. Chill. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into buttered baking dish or ramekins, oven-poach or steam over gently boiling water. — individual amounts, 20 to 25 minutes—large amounts 40 to 50 minutes—at an oven temperature of 275 deg. Fahr. increased to 325 deg. Fahr. Serve at once.

Cheese Strata

Four slices of crustless bread cut in quarters, 1 cup grated cheese, 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 teaspoon salt, cayenne, 2 eggs.

Butter baking dish, arrange cubes of bread and cheese in layers, having bread on top. Beat eggs, add milk, butter and seasonings. Pour over bread—let stand 20 minutes. Oven-poach till firm—large amount 35 to 40 minutes—individual 20 minutes.

Please see story on Supper and Luncheon Dishes to appear next Monday, December 3rd for your Tomato Custard.

Bombs Hit

severe concussion" and Don York, 14, of 154 Hunter St., east who was brought in as a patient with a broken back.

At the emergency hospital a portable generating unit provided power for a string of lights, that the entrance for rescue workers were strung on coat racks to light

Power Fails

This improvised lighting system was pressed into service when the emergency hospital was faced with a power failure (also part of the demonstration) as the last casualties were arriving.

Six nurses from the Red Cross disaster service and five members of the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division were on duty at the auxiliary hospital. Twenty-five St. John nursing volunteers under Miss Florence Vickers, Reg. N., superintendent of the local St. John Ambulance brigade, under Sergeant Cecil Hart-Maxwell assisted in handling the casualties.

The police department also co-operated in the exercise. News of the "explosion" was relayed from a police cruiser to the station and then to Red Cross headquarters.

Constables Louis Rodreque, Robert Menzies, Wilfred Perry, Harold Andrew and Don McKay assisted at the Armouries, at Central School and helped speed the flow of traffic across George St., at Murray St., when the "ambulances" were taking disaster casualties to the auxiliary hospital.

Volunteers

Other boy scouts who volunteered as the victims for "Operation Explosion" were treated for their minor injuries at Red Cross headquarters.

"Operation Explosion" was under the overall direction of Max Comstock, chairman of the Red Cross Disaster Service. When it was all over everyone taking part met at Red Cross headquarters for an informal meeting to discuss the exercise.

Mr. Comstock expressed his satisfaction at "the success of Operation Explosion" and thanked everyone who had taken part for their assistance and co-operation.

Leslie Stringer, Toronto, Commissioner of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross attended the demonstration, and said "I've attended quite a few of these demonstrations throughout the province and this has been one of the best I've seen so far. If I were mayor of this city, I'd be a lot happier after seeing what I did tonight."

Stressing the importance of co-operation among different groups in the community to deal with peace and wartime disasters, Mr. Stringer said "You don't know how many hazards there are in town until you get into this disaster business." By working together in practice demonstrations, he said, those responsible for organizing rescue work know what different people and organizations can do and who to call on in an emergency.

Identify Patients

The only suggestion for improvement that Mr. Stringer made was that "patients could have been identified as they left for hospital or Red Cross Headquarters. News of disasters is flashed across Canada in a few minutes, and registration of casualties is very important," he said.

Dr. Leslie Calvert spoke briefly and praised the efficient manner in which the emergency hospital was organized. Dr. Calvert said that casualties should always be classified as to the seriousness of their injuries. One boy in the Red Cross headquarters being treated as a "walking patient" had a ticket saying he had lost considerable blood and should never have been sitting there, Dr. Calvert said.

Alderman John A. Dewart, chairman of the city civil defence committee congratulated the disaster service on their "leadership and enthusiasm" in carrying out the demonstration. While Peterborough is not considered among the major Canadian targets in the event of war, Mr. Dewart said that we should be equipped and prepared to handle thousands of casualties if Toronto should ask for assistance as the result of enemy bombing.

Mrs. Charles Ray, who helped organize the disaster service outlined the work being carried on by the unit and said "it has come to the point where it is because of all the individuals working together in it."

Representatives from Minden, Lakefield, Apsley and Haliburton attended the demonstration as observers. Reeve Dick Stewart represented Otonabee township. Sisters St. Fergus and Loretta of St. Joseph's Hospital were also present.

COL. ADIB SHISHELKY, above, the "strong man" of Syria, threw out of office a new premier who had urged closer ties between the Arab nation and Russia. Radio Damascus said that Marouf Dawalib, named premier on Nov. 28, and all members of his cabinet were under arrest.

Teacher Tells Trip To Europe

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 1 — (ENS) — The St. John's Young Adults club met on Thursday night. A nominating committee for the choice of 1952 officers was formed with Dr. D. M. Smith as chairman.

The feature of the evening was the talk by Betty Redner, exchange school teacher, who taught in Scotland last year. Miss Redner toured the European continent as far south as Rome. She told of attending the Passion Play in Obergemau, Austria, where it is presented every 16 years. The first presentation was in 1634. She told of the great pains taken by the village participating to resemble those of Biblical times. She discussed also her tour of Switzerland and of the passing through the 12½ mile Simplon tunnel in the Alps between Switzerland and Italy. She visited Pisa of leaning tower fame, romantic Venice and as far south as Rome. Highways she said on the continent were all good, possibly built with an eye for their use for military purposes. She showed pictures of many points of interest both on the Continent and in England.

Miss Redner said her biggest thrill abroad was her fortune in being presented to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth.

Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith expressed his thanks to the speaker on behalf of the club.

The devotional portion of the program was in charge of Eleanor Nelson and Dr. Smith. A 'True or False' contest consisting of 30 questions was won by Pat. Allen with a total of 22 correct. Ted Smith was second with 21.

A light lunch was served at the close. The date of the next meeting will be Monday December 17 when a Christmas party will be held.

Four names are on the utilities commission ballot and here the voter votes for one.

Names going on the ballot are:

UN Troops Combat Enemy Troops, Cold

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 1—(AP)—United Nations' foxhole infantrymen today battled the bitterest cold wave of the winter and for the most part fired at Communists only when the Reds probed near their positions.

A United States Eighth Army communique said a UN unit yielded advance positions northwest of Yonchon on the western front to a grenade-tossing group of Reds.

Other UN troops threw back a platoon-sized Communist probing attack after a three-hour fight southeast of Kunsong.

Action elsewhere along the frozen front up to noon Saturday was insignificant, the communique said.

UN and Communist jets tangled over North Korea for the sixth straight day Saturday.

Australian pilots flying meteor jets scored their biggest victory of the war when they bagged two red MIG jets in an afternoon battle, preliminary reports indicated.

Quality Of Soil Found Vital To Nation's Food

MARMORA, Dec. 1—(ENS)—"Agriculture Night" was observed by Marmora District Chamber of Commerce at their monthly dinner meeting at the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening.

New members were welcomed by the president, Alex Fraser. Secretary Ralph Neal reported the financial success of the Hallowe'en shellout, the receipts being $158.04 and expenditures $119.15. The committee which organized the affairs recommended that the matter receive further consideration before it be carried out next year. It had been felt that it could be better handled under a group system.

Santa Claus Parade

C. T. Nicholson reported for the committee that is responsible for the Santa Claus parade on December 15.

Two representatives of the Chamber with two from the Canadian Legion and two from the local branch of the International Smelters' Union constituted the full committee making arrangements.

Instead of the parade to a platform on Forsyth Street as in past years, a party would be given in the Plaza Theatre and a movie shown.

Santa Claus would appear there as at the town hall where parents with children in arms would assemble.

Reeve Irwin McCoy, of Marmora and Lake township, vice-president, introduced A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative for Hastings Coutny. He in turn introduced John CcComb of Belleville (formerly of Bonarlaw), champion Dominion grain judge, and Merle Moore, of Springbrook, champion Provincial grain judge, as representing Hastings grain judging team.

Thirty-five teams were entered in the provincial grain judging contest and the Dominion contest. The pick of the provinces competed.

Soil Conservation

Frank Stone, assistant agricultural represetnative for Hastings county, was called upon to introduce the guest speaker of the evening, Professor N. R. Richards, of the Department of Soils at OAC, Guelph. His subject was "Conservation of today's soils for tomorrow."

The speaker said that a nation's natural resources existed for the benefit of all its people. Not the least of these was in soil. The basis of sound and staple agriculture was soil. It has been wrongly thought that is was the responsibility of farmers and theirs only to conserve the soil. It should be the concern of everyone, no matter what their occupations.

Essential Elements

Eleven of the fourteen essential elements in the growing of plants come from the soil. The soil contributes to five per cent of man's construction.

Deficiency of esential elements in soil brings about malformation of the human body and disease.

Deficiency in iodine, for example, creates goitre. It is important to consider the quality of the products that come from the land and how much of plant nutrients are removed from the soil in the growing of crops. In milk production there is the removal of superphosphate. Another problem of the soil to be faced is erosion and there is a need of its control.

Soil Testing

For the assistance of farmers the department maintained a good soil testing service. Then there are soil surveys carried out by the Dominion government in conjunction with the OAC.

The speaker declared that we require two acres of fertile land per person to maintain an adequate diet.

That was not possible in the Far East where pressure of population was so great, and land use could not be improved.

City Council Going Formal After Move To New Quarters

A deeper spirit of formality is gradually taking possesion of the council in the dignified atmosphere of its chamber in the new city hall.

That disposition was indicated in the remark of Ald. Doug Miller the other night when he said: "I think we should stand when the Mayor leaves the dais." And the members did.

In the old precincts, lacking the classic appearance and effect of the new chamber with its high panelling, the pervading influence was a free and easy entrance and recession.

The members met on the ground floor in what used to be the old board room, and climbed the stairs to their forum. There was no set order of their coming and going. The new chamber suggests and invites change of which Mayor Swanston has set the pattern.

Anteroom

To the right of his desk and chair an inconspicuous door leads to an anteroom and cloakroom for the use of the members. At the recent meeting of the council the members had entered the chamber from that direction, and were in their places when His Worship followed.

Therein is the procesisonal manner that may be included in the legacy of the new city hall, a dignified accent on decorum. Mayor Swanston had put on the gold chain of his office, recalled incidentally as the gift to the city by Mr. Gordon Monkman. Precisely at 7.30 he had taken his place on the dais, and in the public section of the room the ladies of the IODE had stood up with the aldermen and the rest of the company.

Finally, on the adjournment of the session, Mayor Swanston was the first to leave, and again everybody stood.

Brief reference to change of manner suggested that in the course of the council meeting the rules of procedure should be closely followed, adhering to parliamentary form in the members standing to address the chair, in the restriction of speaking once to a subject unless with stated permission to speak a second time, and so on.

English Influence

It is just possible that the formal robes and chain worn by Mayor G. R. Chamberlain of Peterborough, England, on the occasion of his formal opening of the city hall may have left a deeper impresison than was realized at the time.

At any rate, the council is evidently now tacitly committed to the decorous mood and manner. No discussion or decision brought about the change. It was rather an effect of putting on a new vestment of space, and a best foot forward. With that spirit and disposition there will probably be some brushing up on sessional rules to complete the transformation since the council departed from its old quarters at Simcoe and Water Streets.

Clashing Events Criticized By Chamber Head

James Fraser, manager of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce today criticized situations in which important events in Peterborough were held on the same night so that the events were competing for an audience. There was no need for dates to conflict he said.

He pointed out the extreme example of last Tuesday.

That night there were five important events taking place in the city.

The Study Group on Civic Affairs held a candidates' meeting at the city hall. At the library, the Local Council of Women sponsored an address by a tax expert. The Red Cross and Community Fund held its annual meeting at the YMCA. It was Fun Night at Prince of Wales school. Another tax expert spoke to the Peterborough chapter of the Society of Industrial Accountants of Ontario.

"Some people quite likely wanted to attend more than one of these events, but of course they couldn't," Mr. Fraser said.

Date Book

The answer and so'ution to this problem of conflictions has been available at the chamber for the past three years—a date book.

Mr. Fraser explained that this date book was started as a service to all city organizations. When they wish to hold an event they can call the chamber to find out if the desired date is open. If so, their event is recorded and reported to any other organization inquiring about that date.

"This service is free," Mr. Fraser concluded. "All we ask is that it isn't forgotten so that what happened last Tuesday night won't recur."

Here and There In Sport

Apprentice jockey Willie Marsh, Jr., was severely injured at Golden Gate Fields Friday when the three-year-old gelding Last Wing fell with him during the running of the first race.

The 16-year-old rider, leading apprentice at the race meet, was taken to Providence hospital in Oakland, Calif., with a brain concussion and a laceration over the right eye.

Last Wing fell rounding the first turn. In the clear at the time, pictures of the race showed the horse just couldn't stay afoot on the muddy curve. Last Wing broke a right foreleg and was destroyed.

Detroit Red Wings called up defenceman Bill Folk from their Indianapolis American League hockey farm Friday. Folk, a rough 190-pounder, will take over from Benny Woit, who has missed the last two games because of a back injury.

General manager Charles Gehringer said Friday night that Dick Bartell will be tendered a contract as a coach for Detroit Tigers for the 1952 season. Bartell, 44, has been third base coach for the Tigers for three years.

The combined Olympics trials and Canadian boxing championships will be held here April 24, 25, 26, Syn Greenwood, secretary of the British Columbia branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, announced Friday night at Vancouver.

At Kingston, Tillsonburg Trojans, a basketball team with ambitions of competing in next year's Olympics, Friday night beat Queen's University Seniors 68-32. After the second quarter, the visitors had things mostly their way. From the middle of the third quarter until 90 seconds before the final whistle, Tillsonburg kept Queen's from scoring a point.

Pete Karpuk, speedy backfielder of the Grey Cup-winning Ottawa Rough Riders, Friday went for another first down—down the aisle of Ottawa's Stewarton United Church with Rosemary Patricia MacGregor of Arnprior, Ont., as his bride.

Yanks Drop Henrich From 1952 Roster

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP). — Old reliable Tommy Henrich, a familiar figure around the Yankee Stadium since 1937, will be among the missing in 1952.

The Yanks dropped Henrich as a coach Friday because of the former star outfielder's unavailability to work outside the metropolitan area. Henrich and former Yankee George Stirnweiss are distributors for a beer company.

The Yanks will not replace Henrich, continuing with a three-man staff of Bill Dickey, Frank Crosetti and Jim Turner.

Australia Recovers From Bad Start

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 1 — (Reuters).—An innings of 54 not out by Lindsay Hassett, the captain, today helped Australia recover from a bad start in the second cricket test against the West Indies.

After the West Indies had carried their first innings total to 362, Australia lost two wickets for 27. Then Hassett and Neil Harvey (39) added 79 for the third wicket, and Australia finished the day with 131 for three—23 runs behind.

Three days remain for play.

Australia won the first test in this best-of-five series.

Reserve Judgment

KITCHENER, Dec. 1—(CP) — Judgment was reserved today in a lawsuit aimed at breaking the will of the late Alexander Bauman, father of Mayor Vernon Bauman of Waterloo. The estate of Mr. Bauman, who died last April, was willed to a daughter, Mrs. Helen Taylor. Mayor Bauman, his brother Wilfred and another sister, Mrs. Laura Snyder, are contesting the bequest. The claimants tried to show that Mr. Bauman was incapable of making the will when it was wrawn up last January and that undue influence was brought to bear on him.

Warn Rail Workers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—Railroad engine employees were cautioned by a union leader Friday against letting disappointment over pay and working conditions interfere with safe train operations. David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Firemen and Enginemen, sent "an official circular" to 110,000 union members in the United States and Canada calling attention to several "tragic railroad accidents" lately. He suggested "the human element" is a factor in safety.

Need 100,000,000

VANCOUVER, Dec. 1 (CP)—George Drew, federal Progressive Conservative leader, told the Canadian Club Friday that Canada needs a population of at least 100,000,000. He said it was sheer nonsense to suggest Canada's optimum was not much above 20,000,000.

School Walkout Ends

SAINT JOHN, NB, Dec. 1 (CP) —A week-long absence of numerous pupils from Victoria School, in protest by their parents against the condition of the old building, ended Friday when the Home and School Association urged immediate return of the children. The school had been termed a fire hazard.

Biltmores Drub Spitfires 11-1 To Take Lead Over Marlboros

By The Canadian Press.

Toronto's flashy Marlboro Juniors have finally been forced to take a seat in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race. Guelph Biltmores are the men of the hour.

The high-flying Hatters hoisted themselves right up into first place Friday night with a convincing 11-1 win over the tail-end Windsor Spitfires. The victory gives them a one-game lead over the second-place Marlies, but don't underestimate the Toronto club—they hold three games in hand over the present league leaders.

In other Junior OHA tussles played Friday night, Barrie Flyers broke a four-game losing streak by downing Galt Black Hawks 3-1 in Barrie while the fifth-place Kitchener Greenshirts had to be satisfied with an overtime 2-2 draw with Oshawa Generals at Kitchener.

In the OHA Senior A Stratford Indians increased their league lead over Hamilton Tigers by drubbing the Bengals 8-3 right in Hamilton. Owen Sound Mercurys delighted a home-town crowd by downing Sarnia Sailors 5-1 while Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen managed to edge Brantford Redmen 3-2 in Brantford.

Sudbury Miners took over third place in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A puck war last night as they held tail-end North Bay Black Hawks 2-1, the Hawks' fifth straight loss.

All Their Own Way

At Guelph, the Biltmores scored virtually at will in swamping the Spitfires 11-1. Their only trouble was encountered in the inspired goaltending of little Marv Brewer in the Windsor nets. Brewer kicked out no less than 60 shots during the game, 31 of them in the final period.

Chuck Henderson was the big goal-getter for the winners, scoring four times. Billy McCreary tallied three times and Ron Murphy collected two. Andy Bathgate and Dean Prentice garnered singletons. Joe Zorica scored Windsor's lone marker.

In breaking their four-game losing streak with that 3-1 win over Galt Black Hawks, Hap Emms' Barrie Flyers looked anything but impressive. It was again a story of goaltending as Lorne Howes kicked aside 40 shots while the winners could direct only 22 on the Galt net.

Paul Emms, Don McKenney and Doug Morns tallied for the Flyers while Ken Wharram scored the lone Galt goal.

Stave Off Defeat

Kitchener staved off defeat with a third-period goal for a 2-2 deadlock which even overtime failed to break. The Oshawa Generals shaded the home club in every period, but failed to capitalize on their play.

Garry Edmundson and Ray Tessler scored for the Greenshirts while Herve Dejordy and Dick Sturgeon tallied for the Generals.

Denny Flanagan led Stratford Indians to their 8-3 Senior OHA win over Hamilton Tigers with three goals. Mickey Roth, George Aitken, Larry Lemenchick, Bruce Burdett and Ron Heinbuck scored singletons.

Fred Pankoski and Murray Comfort, with two goals each, were the Hamilton snipers.

At Owen Sound it was Mike Bukacheski, Gino Antoniazzi, Andy Grant, Roy Leckie and Joe Ripku who scored for the Mercurys in their 5-1 win over Sarnia Sailors. Bill Savage notched Oshawa's lone counter.

Walt Hnatiuk gave Brantford Redmen a 1-0 second period lead over Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in their game, but a penalty to Johnny Holota allowed the roof to fall in. Mike Dzuira, Jack Pernfuss and Harry Psutka gave the Dutchmen a lead they never relinquished. Holota scored Brantford's only other goal in the 3-2 Dutchmen win.

Say Confusion Ending On Truce Policy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The fog of confusion over the status of war and the prospects for peace in Korea lifted somewhat today. In the estimate of responsible authorities here, several points now stand out clearly:

1. The fighting can be expected to go on but not, for the time being, with the same intensity as before the present conditional agreement on a cease-fire line.

2. Ground action by United Nations' forces presumably will be limited in the main to artillery pressure, reconnaissance patrols, and limited attacks if needed to knock any suspicious Communist concentrations off balance.

3. Naval and air action will continue full tilt; in fact, air combat may well be stepped up.

4. UN ground forces are not expected to try to advance their line since such areas would be given up should truce negotiations be successful within the 30-day limit.

5. The expectation in Washington that these negotiations will be successful if the enemy command agrees (1) to prompt and complete release of all allied troops held as prisoners, and (2) to some type of inspection of forces during the armistice.

6. If truce negotiations drag on past the 30-day period ending Dec. 27 but if there appeared then to be a good chance for completing the negotiations, an extension of the date would seem to be possible.

The conflict of news reports and official statements issued during the last two days is attributed by some authorities here to a miscalculation, or to a lack of understanding of the impact of news that there had been even a limited slackening of the war.

ROSENEATH, Dec. 1 (ENS)—A. J. Campbell was elected president of Roseneath Men's Club at their organization meeting held on Wednesday evening.

The meeting was held in banquet form at Maple Lodge. Approximately 60 local men sat down to dinner.

The organization is the fulfillment of a long-felt want in the community. The instigators were F. G. Lewis, Douglas Coyle, A. J. Campbell, C. W. Varcoe, O. J. Robins and the Rev. R. C. White.

Preceding the election of officers, Mr. Fred G. Lewis defined the rules of the organization.

Active Hamilton Nature Club Keeps City Conservation-Minded

Written For The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Hamilton is a conservation-minded city.

Its famed Royal Botanical Gardens, a mecca for tourists, is also a centre for reserach in many branches of natural science and the city also boasts a Nature Club with a large and enthusiastic membership.

There is great civic pride in the botanical gardens which extend over 1,800 acres. Besides sunken gardens, big flower beds which bloom from spring to the chrysanthemum season of late autumn and acres of healthy woodland, the gardens embrace stretches of natural marshland were native waterfowl flourish.

Sections are also set aside where the city's school children cultivate their own garden plots and study wildlife under expert supervision.

Many Activities

The Nature Club conducts year-round hikes for the identification of Canadian birds, wild flowers, trees, shrubs and the small mammals of field or woodland. In addition some practical work for conservation is always on the program.

The spring of 1951 found work parties planting thousands of trees and recent inspection found the plantings in good condition. On one farm a few miles from Hamilton where blow sand was becoming a menace to cultivation, tree planting was undertaken voluntarily by the club to arrest the march of the sand.

In a recent number of the club's publication, The Wood Duck, a Hamilton mother tells of the immense benefit of nature study for children. It keeps them happily interested she said and street corner gangs or cheap shows cannot compete with the joys of rural hikes. Her own two sons not only became fascinated to the extent of adopting nature education for the young as their life work, but made their parents as enthusiastic about outdoor life and study as themselves.

Terns At Niagara

Birders are always fascinated by the flocks of common terns, the graceful, gull-like birds with long, double-pointed tails, that abound above the Niagara River and fly all summer long above the falls' very brink—especially at the Canadian or Horseshoe Falls. On sunny days they appear to be flying in and through the rainbow shining on the Niagara mist which is a constant cloud of fine, white spray arising from the crash of waters on the rocks below.

The Marbled Godwit

The marbled godwit, large, conspicuous wading bird of the Canadian prairies gets its name from the speckled or marbled appearance—a pinkish buff—of the wing quills.

Its loud calls are curiously like spoken words. "Eradica, radica, radica" commonly starts the call series and sounds freely translated as "you're crazy, crazy, crazy," follow. Then, as if to give the diagnosis full confirmation, the terminal salute is "korect, korect, korect."

ON THE DOTTED LINE—Marine Corps Col. James C. Murray (left) and North Korean Col. Chang Chun San initial the map on which they had jointly drawn the truce line at Punmunjom. The two men initialed the map at strategic points along the line, which corresponds to the present line of military contact.

Cavan News

Mrs. M. W. Emery, Assiniboia, Sask., is visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Larmer.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Gainer Baillieboro were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hogg on Monday.

Those from Cavan who attended the dinner meeting held in the basement of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook on Wednesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pritchard and Mr. William Pritchard, V. V. Carley, M. Wright, L. Sutton, W. White, and J. Byers.

Reds Yield To UN Demand For Korean Arms Check

UN Warships Fail To Hold Island In Attack

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (CP)—A Chinese amphibious force drove South Korean guerrillas off an island near the Yalu River mouth Friday in the face of opposition by four United Nations warships, including the Canadian destroyer Athabaskan. The Athabaskan, along with the British cruiser Ceylon and destroyer Cockade, threw gunfire at the Reds and evacuated between 300 and 400 South Koreans. (The North Korean radio today claimed Red troops captured three Allied-held islands—Taewha, Sowha and Yoi—killing more than 500 Allied soldiers.)

The navy today admitted the loss of Taewha island. It said about 1,000 Chinese took part in an overwater assault on the island which has been used as an Allied raiding base for several months.

Navy reports gave few details.

Heavy Red Artillery

Enemy artillery on nearby islands countered the Allied naval fire. One man aboard the Cockade was killed by a Red shell. There were no reports of other casualties aboard the warships.

Planes from the United States light carrier Rendova covered the three ships that moved in close to the island. Taewha is about 35 miles southeast of the mouth of the Yalu River—the border between North Korea and Manchuria.

The carrier's action was tied to previously-announced destruction of 12 Red planes, including eight bombers, by US Air Force Sabre jets.

The navy said the formation of enemy planes over the area was broken up. The Red planes were apparently headed south to support the amphibious landing.

One Plane Gets Through

One Red plane got through the Allied fighter screen and dropped one stick of bombs on the island before the South Koreans were taken off.

Navy reports said the enemy landing was made in three waves. The first Reds hit the island beach in small rubberized assault craft. They were followed by more men in sailing vessels which were covered by mortar fire from motorized junks.

Another island in the vicinity was lost to the Reds Nov. 6, when a small group of South Koreans departed under cover fire from Allied surface vessels. That enemy operation was also supported by Red aircraft.

At Ottawa, navy officials said no report has been received at headquarters on the Athabaskan's part in the operation. Detailed reports are not expected for "a day or two."

Reds Sentence Five Nuns In Canton Trial

HONG KONG, Dec. 3 (CP)—A Communist court sentenced two Canadian nuns to five-year prison terms Sunday and ordered three others expelled from China during a disorderly public trial in Canton.

Some of the more than 6,000 noisy spectators leaped to the judges' platform and hurled denunciations at the defendants. The milling crowd loudly protested the sentences as "too lenient."

(Reuters news agency said all five nuns were in poor health. The news agency said a nurse who visited them in prison at Canton, where they were held during the eight months preceding their trial, reported that two had tuberculosis and the others heart trouble.)

The unusual broadcast of the 2½-hour trial was heard here by The Associated Press. Shouts of the crowd could be heard easily above the prosecutor's voice as he droned a long list of charges — the "murders" of homeless waifs given shelter at the Sacred Heart Orphanage.

The broadcast mentioned no semblance of a defence for the nuns. They were identified only by their Chinese names, but Roman Catholic sources in Hong Kong said the five were:

Sister Saint Alphonse du Redempteur (Antoinette Couvrette, Ste. Dorothe, Laval County, Que.), orphanage superintendent, and Sister Sainte Marie Germaine (Germaine Gravel, St. Pasteur, Champlain County, Que.), each sentenced to five years;

Sister Saint Foy (Elizabeth Lemire, La Baie du Febvre, Yamaska County, Que.); Sister Sainte Victory (Germaine Tanguay, Canadian citizen born at Nashua, NH); and Sister Saint Germain (Imelda Laperriere, Pont Rouge, Portneuf County, Que.), each ordered deported.

Aided Children For Years

For years they operated a receiving station to which were brought thousands of abandoned children—many of them dying on arrival. The nuns were arrested nine months ago and held incommunicado in a Canton jail.

(L. B. Pearson, Canadian External Affairs Minister, has called the charges against the nuns "grotesque and unfounded."

In Quebec Sunday night the Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec, called the trial and sentencing "unjust." He said it was an "iniquity" to have brought charges against the nuns who "dedicated their lives" in Chinese missions.)

The trial was held in the open square in front of Canton's Sun Yat-sen memorial hall. (Sun Yat-

Bomber Crashes, Strikes Houses

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 3 (AP)—A B-29 crashed in a swank residential section of Denver today, setting several houses on fire and killing all members of the plane's crew, the Denver police radio dispatcher reported.

The plane apparently took off from nearby Lowry air base moments before the accident. The crash occurred in the new "Hilltop" section of Denver.

Several residents were reported injured in the accident.

The number in the plane was not known.

Deny Submarines Off Australian Coast

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 3 (Reuters)—A report that unidentified submarines were sighted off the northern coast of New Guinea was dismissed today as "not feasible" by Navy Minister William McMahon.

Neither the navy nor the air force had been sent to the island, 90 miles north of Australia, he added.

The Melbourne Argus had reported today that a foreign submarine recently surfaced near Emirau island, west of the Admiralty islands, and landed two men who inspected an airstrip there.

The Argus said another submarine surfaced off Finschhafen, on the north New Guinea coast, some time ago and was seen by residents.

Russia Says US Plane Forced Down

Washington To Act Immediately To Free 4 In Crew

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—The US State Department said today the United States will take "immediate action" to free the four-man crew and an American army plane reported forced down in Communist Hungary.

The department at the same time rejected a Moscow charge that the plane was carrying equipment to help anti-Communist "spies and saboteurs" behind the iron curtain. The blankets, parachutes, maps and portable radio on the plane were described as standard emergency equipment.

The C-47 with its crew of four disappeared Nov. 19 on a flight from Munich to Belgrade, Yugoslavia. A Tass Agency dispatch said Sunday Soviet fighter planes forced the craft to land at Hungarian air field several days ago.

Believed True

Officials here assumed this was true as a long search in Yugoslavia had failed to disclose any trace of the plane. However, the State Department said today it is still without any confirmation from the Hungarian government although repeated requests for information have been made to Hungary by the American Charge D'Affaires in Budapest, George Abbott.

The Russian account, in the official news agency Tass, said the C-47—on a flight from Erding, Germany, to Belgrade—had been dispatched to carry spies and saboteurs from Yugoslavia into the Soviet Union and her east European allies.

Mercy Mission Made To Italy

LONDON, Dec. 3 — (CP). — Crew members of two RCAF air transport command craft rested today after completing a mission of mercy to the flooded Po River district of Italy.

The two North Stars, which carried nine tons of Canadian Red Cross Society supplies ranging from blankets and shoes to children's underwear, will fly back to Canada Tuesday.

The planes stopped off at London to pick up members of the 421 Red Indian Squadron, en route to Canada after training in Britain. Then the North Stars will rejoin the airlift to Korea.

Among the four pilots on the trip to Italy and back are FO. J. R. Grant of Sexsmith, Alta., a 21-year-old who won his pilot's wings less than a year ago, and who landed his North Star at Malpensa Airport in Milan with visibility of under 1,000 yards. The others are Flt.-Lt. G. M. Stuart of Ottawa, Flt.-Lt. R. J. Brown of Kitchener, and FO P. M. Lemieux of Maniwaki, Que.

Capone Henchman Shot To Death

CHICAGO, Dec. 3—(AP)—A former Al Capone henchman was shot to death Saturday night, 11 days after he touched off a scandal involving a retired police captain and a $100,000 night club deal.

Samuel J. Rinella, 49, an ex-convict who was under indictment for income tax evasion, was slain by two gunmen as he emerged from his expensive home on the south side.

4 Million Dollar Fire

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana Dec. 3 (CP)—Georgetown estimated its loss at $4,000,000 Sunday night after the city's third major fire in six years raced through a business block along the booming waterfront. The fire, starting Friday, destroyed four piers and a number of business firms after breaking out in a provision store. There was no loss of life.

Tourist Officials Map Out New Campaign For 1952

OTTAWA, Dec. 3 (CP).—The men who guide Canada's growing, multi-million dollar tourist industry meet here today to plan their campaign for 1952.

Attracting tourists to "vacations unlimited" in Canada is their job. Though all returns for 1951 are not yet in, business was good this year. And when they get their plans laid they believe it will be even better next year.

The occasion is the three-day sixth Dominion-Provincial tourist conference, attended by travel officials from every province. Taking a large hand in the proceedings will be Canada's number one publicity man, D. Leo Dolan, head of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

As they get down to business the tourist executives will have before them a summary of reports on tourist activities in every province in 1951 and plans for 1952. It shows a healthy picture of expanded resort facilities, highways, advertising campaigns and transportation facilities.

It shows for instance that 1951 visitors to Canada's 16 national parks increased at all except four of them over 1950 and totalled close to 2,000,000. Visits to all national historic sites were up over last year.

Quebec does the biggest share of Canada's tourist business. Last year she attracted 4,380,000 tourists, an increase of 6.4 per cent over 1950. Tourist revenues are estimated at $142,300,000 compared with the 1950 figure of $133,700,000.

Ontario hasn't got its 1951 figures ready yet, but it does a whacking business too.

British Columbia's tourist business is reaching toward the 1,500,000-visitors mark and revenue is estimated at $63,000,000 in 1951, compared with $60,000,000 a year ago.

The prairie provinces and the Maritimes also reported increases, though Prince Edward Island complained that lack of adequate ferry facilities was the biggest drawback to its tourist industry.

WELL ENOUGH to travel for the first time since his operation, King George leaves Buckingham Palace, London, en route to Windsor Castle. He was accompanied by Queen Elizabeth as he made his first trip since the lung surgery.

Try To Pin Down Vishinsky On Atomic Inspection, Russian Refuses Answer

PARIS, Dec. 3. (AP)—The western powers tried today to pin down Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky on whether Russia would agree that the prohibition of atomic weapons and the start of international atomic control become effective simultaneously. They got no answer. Following a secret 2½-hour disarmament discussion among the Big Four—Russia, Britain, France and the United States—a western spokesman said US delegate Philip Jessup asked Vishinsky:

"Would the Soviet Union admit inspectors the very day after the United Nations general assembly passed a resolution on prohibition?"

Vishinsky did not reply, he said.

The West maintains that there can be no unconditional prohibition of atomic weapons without a foolproof international inspection system to guarantee obedience. Russia demands immediate prohibition of the bomb and then discussions of controls.

Constructive Atmosphere

However, Western sources described the meeting, under the chairmanship of UN Assembly of Mexico, as "helpful" and held in a "sober and constructive atmosphere."

The three spokesmen, representing Britain, France and the United States, told a joint press conference that the Big Four began a paragraph-by-paragraph dissection of the three-power disarmament resolution and the Soviet amendments.

There was no news from the Soviet delegation which took part in the meeting.

Heavy Fog Causes Rush-Hour Accidents

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (CP) — Heavy fog blanketed the Toronto area early today, causing scores of rush-hour accidents in which nine persons were injured.

Harold Johnson, 35, of Erindale, had both legs crushed when his truck overturned on the Dundas highway. Johnson, trapped in the cab, sipped a soft drink and calmly directed operations as police and motorists worked an hour and a half to free him.

Arthur Blankey, 45, of Streetsville, driver of the car which collided with Johnson's truck, was also taken to hospital.

Three other persons were injured when two cars crashed head-on in the fog on the Don Mills Road, east of the city.

Two Bandits Surprised Someone Steals Loot

GARDEN CITY, Kas., Dec. 3—(CP)—A couple of young bank bandits must have been surprised Saturday. Some one stole their loot.

The two youths held up a bank at Modoc, Kans., and got away with $4,000.

Afterward they paid a visit to the farm home of Louis Counterman. While there, the Countermans filched $3,090 of the stolen money from the bandits and hid it.

The two youths left without learning they had lost most of the money. Then the Countermans gave it to police, who are still hunting for the bandits.

Boat Upsets 6 Of 11 Drowned

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Dec. 3 — (AP). — Six of 11 persons were drowned Sunday when waves and currents tossed a Sunday pleasure boat over like a cork at its home port entrance here.

Lifeguards said they understood a 12th unidentified man was missing, but survivors listed only 11 on the boat.

The 40-foot Dot, a converted former navy landing craft, was hit by heavy ground swells in an outgoing tide in the narrow Mission Bay entrance channel.

City lifeguards, watching from a lookout tower, were at the scene in a few minutes. They pulled nine from the water—four dead and five alive.

Two others were swept out to sea, with darkness halting the search for them.

The dead included Mrs. Dorothy Cutright of San Diego, 34, only woman in the party and the only one wearing a life preserver when the boat capsized.

9 Egyptians Die In Canal Clash

CAIRO, Dec. 3 (Reuters). — Nine Egyptians were killed and 62 injured in a clash this afternoon with British troops in the canal zone.

Serag El Din Pasha, Egyptian Minister of the Interior, said the casualties included one policeman killed and six police injured.

In an earlier statement to Parliament the minister had identified all the casualties as policemen.

A British Embassy spokesman said preliminary reports reaching Cairo said two British military policemen—an officer and an enlisted man—saw a truck load of Egyptian police near a military gasoline dump outside Suez about midday today.

When the officer asked what they were doing the Egyptian police opened fire, wounding one of the British MP's, who has since died.

Then an attack developed against the gas dump, the Embassy reports added.

Roasts On Hoof Make Visitors Hungry

CHICAGO, Dec. 3 — (CP) — Just looking at the millions of pounds of roasts and steaks on the hoof must have made the visitors to the 52nd International Livestock Exposition hungry.

Here is a summary of what the 420,000 visitors ate: 10,000 pounds of hot dogs, 18,000 bags of popcorn, 19,000 candied apples, 23,000 candy bars, 26,000 ice cream bars, 15,000 cups of coffee, 30,000 bottles of pop, and 36,500 cups of orangeade.

Ask Neutrals Handle Investigation

$64 Question To UN What Countries Reds Have In Mind

MUNSAN, Korea, Dec. 3. — (AP)—Communist truce negotiators today proposed behind-the-lines inspection by neutral observers and a "complete freeze" on troops and arms in Korea. The move possibly paved the way for agreement on another step toward an armistice.

It appeared to be a major concession on the part of the Reds. In the past they refused to allow observers behind their lines and have insisted on the right to build up their armed strength while an armistice is in force.

The surprise compromise plan immediately drew from Allied envoys more than a score of searching questions.

The big one—an Allied spokesman called it the $64 question—was what neutral countries do the Communists have in mind to police the truce?

To Answer Questions

The Communists said they will answer 21 questions posed by the UN command when the negotiators meet in Panmunjon at 11 am Tuesday (9 pm EST Monday).

The offer to permit inspection teams was the Reds' biggest concession, even though they stipulated that any such inspection should be limited to "mutually-agreed-upon ports of entry."

The Reds sprang their surprise proposal at an afternoon session Monday. At Monday's morning meeting the two sides appeared deadlocked on the problem of supervising an armistice.

The "$64 question" — which countries the Communists consider neutral—might prove a major stumbling block.

Among countries officially neutral in the Korean War are such Russian satellites as Czechoslovakia, Poland, and the Balkan nations—not to mention the Soviet Union itself.

Ford Workers Go On Strike

WINDSOR, Dec. 3 — (CP).—Workers at the Ford of Canada plant here went on strike today following the discharge of 26 men for "causing work stoppages." An estimated 10,000 employees were affected.

The firings came as a result of last Thursday's workers' demonstrations which resulted in a three-hour shutdown.

Officials of Local 200, the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL), met this morning in emergency session to consider the firings. But at noon, they would make no statement.

However, news of the company's action spread like wildfire through the huge automobile plant. While union officials denied the existence of a strike, the workers dropped their tools and walked off the job.

Should Free Meyer If Help West Prosecutor Says

WINDSOR, Dec. 3. (CP)—Bruce J. S. Macdonald, Canada's chief prosecutor at the war-crimes trial of Kurt Meyer, thinks Meyer should be freed from prison if the Canadian government is satisfied he would fight in a western European army. But Mr. Macdonald, now crown attorney for Essex county, in a statement Sunday night defended the legality of the trial at which the German major-general was convicted of responsibility for the killing of Canadian prisoners.

He said he has no doubt that Meyer was legally convicted in the killing of 18 Canadians within 100 metres of Meyer's command post in Normandy in 1944, but he feels "the matter should be dealt with realistically."

Meyer, 42, now is serving a life sentence. He recently was transferred from the penitentiary at Dorchester, NB to a British military prison in Germany. Last week he was allowed to go home on 10 days' compassionate leave but returned to prison Sunday. The news that Meyer was visiting his wife and family stirred a controversy that has flared intermittently in Canada since Meyer's sentence was commuted from death to life imprisonment.

Need More Frankness

"The present situation is largely the result of lack of frankness at Ottawa and is intolerable," said Mr. MacDonald. "The Meyer issue stands to undo all that our troops are trying to accomplish in good-will in Germany at the present time.

"Let us have a reference to the Supreme Court if that can settle the matter. Or, if thoroughly satisfied of his present reliability, then release Meyer to work with us for peace or victory if necessary in the future. In that way, he can better expiate his misdeeds than by languishing in a prison. Those who suffered most from them, I am sure, would prefer it that way."

Views Agree

He had been in touch with Clarence Campbell of Montreal, his assistant at the trial and now president of the National Hockey League, who was in complete agreement with his views.

He said he had not intended to say anything about Meyer's return to Germany. But a statement given last week by Dalton Dean of Haileybury, who also assisted him at the trial, called for consideration.

Germans May Help Equip Atlantic Defence Forces

BONN, Germany, Dec. 3 (AP) —Some Allied occupation authorities are considering resurrecting the German arms industry to help equip Atlantic defence forces.

With American arms output lagging, some influential occupation officials are suggesting that the west must tap the rich industrial Ruhr for armaments, along with German manpower, to tip the military balance against Russia.

A responsible Allied source said today one Allied leader in Germany already has proopsed to his government that the West should permit full-scale German arms production. He declined to identify the official or his government.

This source said the argument runs like this:

Mass production of tanks, planes and artillery would speed up the equipping of 12 German divisions planned for the European army.

The Germans could also help equip the armies of Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands, which now are receiving weapons from Canada and the United States.

This would ensure Britain and France priority on American arms shipments.

The source emphasized that the question had not progressed beyond the talking stage. It is certain to encounter stiff opposition from many quqarters.

The informant said some high-ranking officials here fear the cost of arming German contingents for a European army may be prohibitive, unless the Germans are allowed to produce their own equipment.

German leaders estimate the first year's cost of creating 12 divisions at $6,000,000,000, but some Allied sources put the figure at $14,000,000,000.

US Planes Down 5 Red Jets In Big Battle

SEOUL, Korea, Dec. 3 (AP)—United States Sabre jets, outnumbered four to one, scored a sweeping victory Sunday in the mounting battle for aerial supremacy over Korea.

The Far East air forces reported five Communist MIG jets were shot down and three damaged and all Allied planes returned safely.

The air force said 684 sorties had been flown up to 6 pm.

The calm along the Korean ground front remained unbroken Monday. The Eighth Army reported no significant action up to noon. There were a few light contacts on the central and eastern fronts.

A low cloud blanket cut down aerial strikes after Sunday's jet victory.

Take On 175 MIGs

Forty-seven F-86 Sabre jets took on 175 MIGs in that battle between Sinanju and North Korean capital, Pyongyang.

The Republic of Korea said Monday its forces are closing in on about 5,000 Communists deep in South Korea. South Korean troops are using planes, loudspeakers, propaganda leaflets and mine detectors to locate hidden arms caches. The Reds are all that remain of 100,000 long ago cut off by United Nations advances northward.

Later, the Eighth Army said the Reds suffered 44,700 casualties in November—about 30,290 killed, 13,480 wounded and 966 captured.

Church-goers Trade Blows

FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 3 — (AP) — Dozens of church-goers were carted off to the police station Sunday when a riot over ouster of the pastor broke out out in front of the Ross Avenue Baptist Church.

Several church members swapped blows.

The churchgoers broke into heated argument again at the police station, Lt. Wilford Matlock said. He threatened to place all of them in jail.

All were later released.

Six policemen were needed to stop the riot.

The trouble began when church members voted to oust the Rev. W. W. Baker as pastor. Baptist congregations elect and oust ministers by congregational vote.

When Mr. Baker arrived Sunday, Rev. L. T. Adams Sr. and several other persons refused to allow him to enter the church. That started the fight.

Adams is a retired pastor of the church.

Try To Teach Irish Manners

LONDON, Dec. 3 —(AP)—A British judge signalled an apprehensive go-ahead today for a $263,200 attempt to teach the Irish better manners.

Justice Sir Harry Vaisey opened the way for the experiment by approving a trust set up by the Irish-born wife of the late playwright George Bernard Shaw to teach the Irish people "the social graces." In passing judgment he commented:

"How the people of Ireland will react to such intensive treatment as Mrs. Shaw appeared to envisage we ought not to speculate."

The court action was brought by the National Provincial Bank of England as trustee for the estate of Mrs. Shaw, who died in 1944. The bank questioned whether a valid charitable trust could be set up to carry out the project.

The National City Bank of Dublin, designated by Mrs. Shaw to carry out her project, contended that the trust was valid.

Broad Inquiry In Germany Urged Before Free Elections

PARIS, Dec. 3. (CP)—Britain, France and the United States proposed Sunday a sweeping investigation into personal, political and constitutional freedoms throughout Germany to find out whether unhampered general elections can be held in that divided country.

The western Big Three put their proposal into the form of a resolution which will be introduced in the UN General Assembly's special political committee Tuesday morning.

It called for creation of a neutral, impartial commission to check on the extent to which freedoms of all kinds exist in the Soviet and Western zones of the former enemy nation as well as in divided Berlin, its prewar capital.

The resolution puts into detailed form a western item already placed on the agenda of the assembly.

Take No Chances

The resolution of the three western powers makes clear that they want to be sure freedom of action exists in the Soviet areas before they will consent to all-German elections. The Big Three have on repeated occasions said they doubt such freedom is permitted.

Russia, which also says it wishes all-German elections to be held, opposes the western proposal.

The Russians say it is a problem the rival East and West German Governments can work out for themselves without outside interference.

The resolution, submitted on a promise to the Chancellor of West Germany, Konrad Adenauer, said the UN commission should investigate three points, in so far as they effect the holding of free elections. They are:

1. What are the constitutional provisions in the various sections of Germany? In particular to which degree is there freedom of movement, freedom from arbitrary arrest, freedom of speech, the press and radio and freedom of assembly?

2. Are political parties allowed to organize and work freely?

3. How do the courts, the police and administrative organs work?

The resolution further asks all officials of the eastern and western sectors to permit the commission to travel freely throughout Germany, give it access to persons, places and documents relevant to the inquiry and permit it to call witnesses.

The commission would report its findings at the earliest practicable date to Secretary-General Trygve Lie for the consideration of the occupying powers—Britain, the U.S., France and Russia—and for the information of other members of the UN.

Offer $1,000 For Treatment

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP). — An offer of $1,000 to $1,500 to anyone, for a significant contribution to knowledge and treatment of blood cancer—leukemia—was announced Sunday.

The prize is set by the Robert Roesler de Villiers Foundation, Inc., of New York, named after a 16-year-old boy of that name who died of leukemia in 1944.

The amount of the award will depend on the recommendation of a jury of doctors which can set it at $1,500, and can go further, to $5,000 if they receive a report describing a cure.

Papers from the western hemisphere are to be sent to the secretary-general of the International Society of Hematology, Dr. Sol Haberman, 3301 Junius St., Dallas, Tex.

To be eligible the papers must be received not later than Oct. 20, 1952, and not have been published before January, 1951.

Bootleg Charge Tried Dec. 24

Having his client charged on a bootlegging charge the day before Christmas didn't faze W. J. Arthur Fair, KC, defending Norman Manley, 49, of 206 Lansdowne St., on a charge of keeping for sale in police court today.

"That won't matter," replied Mr. Fair when Magistrate W. R. Philp pointed out an adjournment of three weeks would bring the case up on December 24.

A raid by Constable Douglas Farthing on Manley's home early Sunday morning, netted a substantial quantity of beer, wine and liquor.

Ten full 24-pint cases of beer, another 24-pint case half full, one six-bottle case of wine, two 12-ounce and six 25-ounce bottles of whiskey, and ten 26 ounce bottles of wine, were seized.

There were also a quantity of empty beer, wine and liquor bottles on the premises and two empty beer cases.

Mr. Fair said that his client would reserve plea until December 24. Bail was fixed at $500.

Report Stalin, Mao Plan Moscow Meet

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 3 (AP) — A meeting of Premier Stalin and Communist China's Mao Tse-tung in December is being planned in Moscow, the rightist Independent newspaper Corriere D'Informanzione reported today.

A dispatch from Stockholm said the meeting, might be a prelude to a conference between Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman.

Corriere D'Informazione, an afternoon newspaper published by Italy's well-known Corriere Della Sera, added:

"Stalin may wish to reach a personal understanding with the two western leaders because he is worried about the present pace of American rearmament."

Mr. MacDonald said he believed a panel of judges possessing some military knowledge would find that Meyer was neither illegally nor unjustly convicted.

Ignore Orders To Present Other Trophy

KITCHENER, Dec. 3 (CP)—Bill Fry, chairman of the Intermediate Rugby Football Union said today the Percy Robinson trophy was presented Saturday in Hamilton as the Canadian Intermediate football championship award, despite instructions to the contrary.

He said the Robinson trophy has no official status. It was presented at a dinner honoring the winning Hamilton Panthers and the defeated St. Boniface Legionnaires after Hamilton won the Intermediate final 8-0.

Fry said:

"Pointed out to Sam Manson and Charlie Dawson (of Hamilton) before the dinner that the CRU constitution recognizes the Ferguson trophy. While I was out of the room for a few minutes someone removed the Ferguson trophy from the table and it was not given back to me until after the banquet. The new trophy was presented in its place."

The Ferguson trophy was presented in 1928 by Dr. R. H. (Rob) Ferguson of Kitchener and Ayr. He offered it for Dominion competition after Kitchener won the Intermediate title in 1927 and found there was no silverware available.

Rediscovered

When the Intermediate series was discontinued in 1934, the trophy dropped out of sight and was discovered last week in Toronto by Bobby Hewitson, sports editor of The Toronto Telegram and former CRU secretary.

Fry said he had suggested that Manson and Dawson present the new trophy, named in honor of Percy Robinson, CRU secretary who died recently, as the Eastern Canada award. There is no championship trophy for that title.

The Hamilton men replied they would withdraw the trophy first, Fry added.

He said "I'm handling the whole mess back to Tom Allison, and he can let the Canadian Rugby Union decide."

Two Cars Damaged In Hit-Run Accidents

Two hit-and-run accidents were reported Sunday to city police.

At 1.10 am Sunday morning an unidentified car crashed into the rear of a parked truck owned by B. A. Sorg, RR 1, Indian River.

Damage to the truck which was parked on the east side of Park St., north was estimated at $65.

After striking the Sorg truck, the hit-run-car continued north and is reported to have almost collided with a southbound car at the CPR tracks.

Constable William G. Scott is investigating.

Lift Licence

A driver who collided with a car driven by Harry Camball, 185 Aberdeen Ave., at George and Lansdowne streets at 4.50 Sunday afternoon left his bumper with licence plate attached to aid police in identifying him.

Camball told Constable Dennis Traynor and Cecil Bowyer that the driver of the other car stayed for about 10 minutes before driving off but Camball said he did not get his name.

A check with the Ontario Provincial Police revealed that the owner of the licence found at the scene was a Jack Thompson of 45 Gainsboro Ave., Toronto.

As yet, Thompson has not been contacted.

The broadcast said the crowd of 6,000 was made up of religious leaders, former missionary students, medical workers and government officials.

Chief Justice Wen Hsu-yuan opened the proceedings with his announcement: "The purpose of holding this trial today is to assure the people that all remnants of imperialism will sooner or later be put to justice under the peoples (Communist) law."

The crowd cheerd him. Then prosecutor Cheng Po chen, speaking in a heavy Chungking accent, read a long list of counts against the nuns. He said they had slain 2,116 orphans between Oct. 14, 1949—Canton's Communist "Liberation Day"—and last Jan. 14.

Cheng asserted that the defendants' "crimes are comparable to those being committed in Korea by the aggression troops of the United States."

Demand Revenge

The crowd shrieked "revenge."

Before he had finished, spectators leaped to the rostrum alongside the prosecutor and hurled charges at the nuns. Cheng called for some to state their own accusations. Because of the shouting by the crowd these could not be heard clearly in the broadcast.

After the trial, the chief justice announced the nuns would be paraded through Canton's streets so that all could "recognize their vicious features." The Red radio did not say later whether such a parade was held.

Italians Learn Hard Lesson

ROME, Dec. 3 — (AP). — Italy's worst flood in centuries has taught Italian authorities a harsh lesson—the need for reforestation.

As the staggering toll of damage was tallied in the Po River disaster—which is expected to be vastly greater than the $60,000,000 loss in earlier Southern Italy floods — one factor stood out clearly:

Woodchopping, that for the last 2,000 years has stripped the forests of what now is modern Italy, was largely to blame.

The absence of trees makes it harder to hold rain in the soil, permits it to rush to the rivers, which overflow their banks and wreak havoc.

Loss of human life in the Po disaster has not yet been counted, but deaths of [illegible]100 persons were repo[illegible] early stages of the flo[illegible]ks ago. The toll may [illegible] more.

Few Not Involved

On the other hand, there are relatively few Western countries which have not participated directly in the war or supported the Allies through votes in the United Nations.

Specifically, the Communist plan for breaking the deadlock over supervising the armistice provides:

1—Neither side would introduce into Korea "any military forces, weapons and ammunition under any pretext during thfe armistice."

2—Both sides agree to ask neutral countries to form an organization responsible for inspecting such "ports of entry in the rear as mutually agreed upon" and to report to a joint armistice commission.

The UN command interpreted ports of entry to mean seaports, airports and rail and highway centres.

After handing Communist negotiators the list of 21 questions, Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief UN delegate, suggested that the entire matter of supervising the armistice he turned over to two-man sub-committees which would meet Tuesday at 2 pm (midnight EST Monday).

North Korean Lt.-Gen. Nam Il replied that he will answer the questions Tuesday, and that sub-committees could be named if the Allies accept the proposal.

Joy said he could not even consider the Red plan until he had the answers to the questions.

Needs Answers

Joy's questions included:

Would the proposal prohibit the replacement of soldiers evacuated for illness or injury or sent home on rotation?

Would it bar the replacement of one military unit with another of the same strength?

Would it prevent replacement of ammunition used in training, or an exchange of weapons of the same type?

Would it permit unlimited construction of airfields?

Communist correspondents at Panmunjom said Sunday the Reds might be willing to permit inspection of specified points at specified times.

There was no indication this would meet Allied demands for complete, continuing inspections over the length and breadth of Korea.

Stock Market Prices Ease From Early Gains

TORONTO, Dec. 3 — (CP). — Early afternoon Stock Market prices eased from morning gains today as mid-session support weakened.

Papers, steels and foods posted a majority of fractional advances to form the market's strongest section. Manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials weakened.

Penny golds attracted most speculative interest. Kelore was again a feature as more than 200,000 shares changed hands within the first three hours.

Consolidated Smelters jumped $3 while other market leaders including Falconbridge and Waite Amulet added fractions.

Western oils traded irregularly. Calvan Consolidated, Federated Petroleum, General Petroleum, and Vulcan showed advances ranging to about 10 cents.

Senior golds were mixed with two gains against two losses. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Charge Made Bill Railroaded Through House

OTTAWA, Dec. 3 — (CP) — A charge by a Progressive Conservative member that an effort is being made to "railroad" a government annuities bill through committee today set off a brief flare-up in the Commons committee on industrial relations.

The charge was made by Frank Leonard, member of the Commons for Hamilton Wentworth. It was challenged by Labor Minister Gregg, A. F. Macdonald (L, Edmonton East), chairman of the committee, and David Croll (L, Toronto Spadina).

Mr. Gregg said witnesses who had appeared before the committee were satisfied with the time allotted to them. Mr. Macdonald said there was no desire to railroad the legislation through the committee.

The charge was made when Mr. Macdonald called for adoption of a steering committee's report recommending that no further briefs be entertained after today's hearing.

The bill would authorize an increase in the government annuity to $2,400 a year from $1,200, and insertion of cash surrender privileges in annuity contracts.

The committee heard the views of William Mercer of Vancouver, president of a firm of independent consultants on employee-welfare plans.

He said his company, with offices in Montreal, Toronto, Calgary and Vancouver, used government annuities to underwrite pension plans until April 10, 1948, when the interest rate was decreased to three per cent from four.

Better Bargain

He would not recommend government annuities on their present basis for underwriting group pension plans. A better bargain could be obtained through insurance or through self-supporting pension plans.

The new legislation was mainly "permissive" in character. It would permit insertion of cash surrender clauses in contracts, but it did not say under what conditions.

Mr. Mercer said his company would wait and see what regulations are passed under the new annuities bill before recommending them again as a basis for pension plans.

Making Money

He agreed that the government should not subsidize the sale of government annuities. However, he believed that if all factors were taken into consideration it could be shown that the government was making, rather than losing, money on the sale of annuities.

As an individual, he was opposed to the government being in the annuity business. But his firm did not care one way or the other whither the government remained in the field.

Mr. Menard said that if government annuities are made too attractive the Canadian fraternal associations will be hurt. The associations now sell insurance to "the little man," particularly in small communities where there are no regular insurance agents.

He asked that the annuity legislation be left unchanged.

Russia Says

It added that the four US crew members had been turned over to Hungarian authorities.

It was the second incident within a month involving a US plane and the Soviets. Russia has charged that an American bomber early in November violated Siberia's eastern coast and was driven off by fire from Red fighters. The US, in a complaint to the United Nations, said that plane was a meteorological craft and was fired on without warning, apparently over international waters.

Tass Account

Tass today gave this account of the downing of the C-47 in the Balkans:

The plane "violated the Romanian state frontier in the vicinity of Recita and then, after flying over the territory of Romania, violated Hungarian territory in the area of the town of Gyula and tried to fly over Hungarian territory."

Soviet air force fighters, "stationed in Hungary on the strength of article 22 of the (Hungarian) peace treaty," forced the plane down near the Hungarian town of Papa.

Tass identified the crew members as Capt. Henderson, commander (pilot) Capt. Swift, Sgt. Dofe, and Sgt. James Albert Illham.

(The air force in Washington has listed the men as Capt. John J. Swift, Glen Falls, NY; Capt. Dave H. Henderson, Shawnee, Okla.; Sgt. James A. Elam, Kingsland, Ark.; and Tech. Sgt. Jess A. Duff, Spokane, Wash.)

The Russian account continued: "A study of the route of the flight and the presence of a skilled crew shows that in this case we have a deliberate violation of the Romanian and Hungarian frontiers....for a definite purpose."

This purpose, Tass claimed, was to pick up spies and saboteurs in Yugoslavia and drop them on territory of the Soviet Union and her allies.

$600 Million Aid For France

PARIS, Dec. 3 (Reuters)—The United States has promised France a $600,000,000 share in 1952 mutual security funds, giving the French economy a much needed shot in the arm.

Information Minister Robert Buron announced Saturday that projected cuts in dollar imports will be less severe and that the danger of gasoline rationing has been averted by the American promise.

Rene Mayer, minister of finance, said it also means France can afford to buy American coal next year and thus will be able to keep industrial production at the present level.

The Europe-wide coal famine had threatened to idle French factories and the government had decided that the financial situation was such that no more than $500,000,000 could be made available next year for all French imports requiring dollar payment.

Mayer told his colleagues the US aid figure would permit an increase of $125,000,000 in this global total.

Three Arrested After Theft Of Figurine

A Toronto trio arrested following a scuffle at the rear of a George St., china gift shop Friday afternoon appeared in police court today.

Ruby Jean Pallister Kozachenko, 26, was charged with theft of a china figurine valued at less than $25 Saturday morning. She was remanded until today, and given a further remand until December 10 on $1,000 bail.

Her companions, Thomas McDermott, 22 and his 19-year-old wife Ruth of 157 Argyle St., Toronto are being held on vagrancy charges pending further investigation.

They were both remanded on $300 bail until December 10.

Mrs. Kozachenko gave an Argyle Street address in Toronto when arrested but detective sergeants Bud Clarke and John Stevenson learned in Toronto Saturday that she had not been living there for five years.

George Bagwell of Toronto represented Mrs. Kozachenko and the McDermotts today.

When arrested, Mrs. Kozachenko was wearing an expensive platinum and diamond ring and also a watch which has been identified as one of a number stolen from a London jewellery store prior to January 31, 1950.

Arrested Friday

The three were arrested by Constable Gerald Emmons at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. When constable Emmons arrived at the rear of the store, he found James Buchanan, proprietor of a George St. china shop endeavoring to hold the trio.

McDermott and his wife were buying a china teapot in the store when one of the clerks recognized the three as having been in the store about a week before. The three immediately left by a rear door, with Mr. Buchanan in pursuit. He detained them, and called Constable Emmons who was patrolling his beat across the street.

Car Sideswiped 3 Charges Laid

Three charges under the Highway Traffic Act were laid against a Coe Hill man Saturday afternoon, after William Larkman of Apsley reported his car had been sideswiped by a passing lumber truck, three miles south of Apsley on Highway 28.

Donald O'Brien of Coe Hill, said in police court today he was not aware of the accident at the time and asked for an adjournment on charges of leaving the scene of an accident, careless driving and driving without a chauffeur's licence. O'Brien was remanded on the charges until December 12 on $500 bail.

Constable Bert Howden of the Apsley OPP detachment was notified of the accident and radioed Peterborough detachment of the reported licence number of the truck. O'Brien was apprehended near Peterborough by officers of the headquarters detachment.

Damage to the side of the Larkman car was estimated at $75. The car was sideswiped when a truck, loaded with lumber attempted to pass. Both the car and truck were travelling south.

Visits To BC Santa Reported Dangerous

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3 (CP)—Vancouver's assistant senior medical health officer said Sunday that children crowding to see Santa Claus may be a contributing factor to a growing outbreak of scarlet fever here.

"Any crowding together is dangerous," said Dr. A. M. Menzies. "The incidence is increasing although it is nothing to cause too great concern as yet."

A total of 1,192 cases has been reported so far this year.

Golden Gate Bridge Closed By Storm

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3 (AP) — Another storm blew into northern California today, but less severe than Saturday's gale, which forced closing of the Golden Gate bridge for the first time in its 14-years hostory.

Rain started falling late Sunday night from San Francisco Bay north. High winds were expected today as the new storm moves inland and southward.

Northern California still was repairing power and communication lines and clearing debris left by Saturday's deluge. Two duck hunters were drowned and several others endangered by the storm.

Letters Report Sub Doomed

LONDON, Dec. 3 (Reuters)—The London Sunday Pictorial Sunday published letters from a chief petty officer who went down with the submarine Affray last April in which he described the doomed ship as a "terrible boat" which was "just about finished."

David Bennington's letters to his family were submitted for publication by Oscar Bennington, the young petty officer's father, after they had been considered by the Admiralty Board of Inquiry. Bennington was informed that the board had been unable to find any clue which could lead to the supposition that the Affray was not fully seaworthy.

Young Bennington joined the Affray in March, 1950, a little more than a year before she left port last April 19 for an exercise in the channel, dived and was lost with 75 men. Her snorkel breathing tube was found damaged after the disaster.

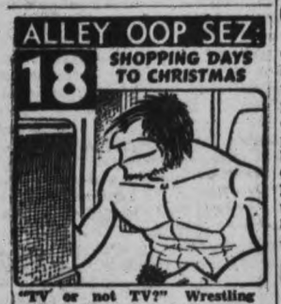
In the autumn of 1950, as the Affray was preparing for operations in the Mediterranean, David Bennington wrote home: "As far as I can see, the engineers have had their time.

"It's come to the stage now when I wonder what the devil is to happen next. I should not be surprised if this boat pays off and went into reserve."

Two Taximen Slain In Holdups

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—Two taxicab drivers—one a double amputee — were slain brutally over the weekend in this Tidewater area. Police said the slayings were "the work of a maniac."

Police today listed robbery as the motive in both killings—one Friday night and the other Saturday night.



The body of Luther M. Callis, 55—stabbed four times with an ice pick and the head crushed by a blow from an auto jack—was discovered early Sunday.

Just 24 hours before, the body of Anthony Michael, 28—stabbed nine times around the abdomen and waist—was found about five miles from the spot where Callis' corpse was located.

Callis lost both legs years ago in a railway accident.

Predict Heavy Vote In Cobourg Election

COBOURG, Dec. 3 (ENS) — A heavy vote is expected today when the electors ballot for a new town council and also vote on the $280,000 east end school by-law. Last week Mayor Jack Burnet was re-elected mayor of the town when on one else opposed him at the nominations.

George Galbraith moved up from deputy-reeve to receive the seat of reeve by acclamation, succeeding Roy Dodge who did not run this year.

On the town council four are seeking re-election, McKinnon, Curtis, Johnston and Field. Other candidates are P. Sauve, D. Glenn, T. Guthrie, E. Cooper, H. Rawcliffe, C. Smith. Two are seeking re-election to the public utilities commission, Maurice Booth and Bob Love with Don Markle as a new candidate.

Overshadowing interest in the council race, is the vote on the new school. During the past week there has been a great deal of publicity pro and con. Explaining further their contention that the town must have a new east end school to relieve the present overflow of students, the school board flooded the town with pamphlets on Saturday morning.

Giant Helicopters

LONDON, Dec. 3 (Renters) — Giant helicopters that will carry 50-ton tanks and battalions of troops for hundreds of miles are planned by a British firm of aircraft designers. The huge hoverplanes will have 100-foot rotar blades driven by Jet engines, O. L. L. Fitzwilliams, a leading British holicopter designer, told the Helicopters' Association here Sunday.

High Mark-ups Receive Blame

WINNIPEG, Dec. 3 —(CP)—Three top officers of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union (TLC-AFL) said Sunday that unprecedented high mark-ups by chain stores is one reason for a general recession in Canadian needle trades.

The three officers—Vice-president Bernard Shane of Montreal; Sam Kraisman, manager for the Toronto area, and Sam Herbst of Winnipeg, western Canada representative—convened here during the weekend.

In a press release, Mr. Shane said a survey of Canadian markets showed a general recession which could be traced to:

The high cost of living;

The abnormal cost of materials which increased selling prices. A yard of woollen cloth which cost $3 a year ago now costs $7 or more;

High mark-ups by chain stores;

Large amounts of garments imported by department stores and the dumping of distress merchandise in Canadian markets.

The release said the recession had created a desire among some employers to lower wages and working conditions.

Campbellford Woman Dies In 97th Year

CAMPBELLFORD, Dec. 3 — (ENS)—The death occurred in Campbellford on Sunday afternoon of Mary Helen Wilson, widow of the late Wellington Metcalf of Brockville. Mrs. Metcalf had been ill for the past five weeks and had resided at the Milne nursing home in Campbellford for the past three weeks. She was 96.

Her parents were William Wilson and Mariah Smith, Scottish immigrants of the Brockville area. Mrs. Metcalf later married the late Wellington Metcalf of North Agusta. She lived there until coming to Campbellford three weeks ago. A former member of Gosford United church in Brockville, her earlier life was quite active in church work.

Surviving are two daughters: Mrs. Vivian Simmons of North Agusta, Mrs. A. D. Bennett (Flossie) of Campbellford and one son, Robert Metcalf of North Agusta. There are two sisters: Mrs. Horace Hurd of Winnipeg and Mrs. Harry Manly of Elizabethtown, Pa. and one brother, George Wilson of Brockville.

Funeral services will be conducted on Tuesday afternoon from Johnston's funeral home in Brockville, where the Rev. Mullen of North Agusta, assisted by the Rev. Binney Black, formerly of Campbellford, will officiate. Burial will be in Gosford cemetery where Mrs. Metcalf's husband is also buried.

Song Writer Dies

HOVE, England, Dec. 3, (Reuters) — George Henry Powell, whose "Pack up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag," was sung by Allied soldiers on every battlefield of the First World War, died today. He was 71. Powell put the song away as a failure after his brother, Felix, had set it to music in 1915. Later they entered it for a competition — and made a fortune in royalties.

Lock Proves Undoing

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 — (AP) — Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, discoverer of plutonium and co-winner of the 1951 Nobel prize for science, said Sunday atomic power won't compete with coal and water power for at least 20 years. Seaborg talked to reporters before leaving by plane for Stockholm to receive the prize.

African Air Base Goes Into Operation

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Dec. 3 (AP).—The first of five giant United States air bases being built on the African continent went into operation last weekend with the arrival of six B-36 bombers on a 5,000-mile non-stop flight from Texas.

The bombers, part of the strategic air command, flew from Fort Worth to Sidi Slimane, a bomber base in the desert of French Morocco about 50 miles northeast of here.

They are to be followed by other flights of bombers on a rotation basis.

Another Nun Victim Of Red Barrage

HONG KONG, Dec 3 (Reuters).—The Communist campaign against Roman Catholic nuns in China has snared another victim—Sister Raymond Marie—it was disclosed today in newspapers reaching here from the Chinese mainland.

The French nun was superintendent of Peiping's Jen-Tze Orphanage until the Communists took it over.

Communist papers accuse her of collaborating with American troops as well as maltreating the children in her charge.

Have To Be In Know To Get Drink In BC

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3 (CP)—You have to be in the know these thirsty days on the west coast.

Without fanfare, the West hotel beer parlor opened its doors Saturday night and four hours later 200 cases of beer had been quaffed by knowing patrons.

Nobody was able to say how the word got around that the tavern would be open but the news travelled like wildfire.

The beer parlor was the only one of the 64 in town to open its doors in weeks. And it shut again when the 200 cases were gone.

Throughout British Columbia, 300 taverns have been closed by the strike of 431 brewery workers at Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster. The strike is nearly seven weeks old.

Sarnia's Plight

Sarnia, the fastest-growing city in Ontario, has municipal problems similar to those of Peterborough, but aggravated by its recent expansion. Sarnia's problems of how to raise enough money to provide the essential municipal services have been brought to the attention of Queen's Park by Sarnia's City Manager, E. R. Colter. At the request of the Provincial Municipal Committee of Ontario, he has prepared a brief whose recommendations should be studied by Peterborough. His thesis is that the present tax system has outlived its original design and that Ontario municipalities are in a "financial straitjacket." Senior governments have imposed new regulations and welfare services on municipal governments without giving them the extra money or taxing resources to meet them. His chief recommendation is that Provincial grants for education, health and welfare be increased to equal a minimum of eighty per cent. of the annual budgets for these services.

* * *

In his brief Mr. Colter points out that by recent annexation, at the order of the Provincial Municipal Board, Sarnia has added 8,000 acres to the 1,600 formerly within its boundaries. As Peterborough has had to do, Sarnia must provide streets, sidewalks, lights, water, and sewage to new residential areas within its increased boundaries. He estimates that these and other necessary capital outlays (new schools, a sewage disposal plant, an addition to the hospital) will cost approximately $14,000,000.

* * *

Where is the money to come from? Under the present system it must come from property taxes. But Sarnia's assessment before annexation (1950) was $27,000,000. Now, 1951, including the annexed areas, the total assessment amounts to $32,000,000—a small increase relative to the capital needs. Thus, argues Mr. Colter, unless other means of revenue are made available, either the assessments must be revised upward, or the mill rate increased, or both. But either of these will still leave the burden on property. Sarnia's 1951 tax rate is 61 mills. Estimated minimum requirements for next year mean that Sarnia must raise $400,000 additional to this year's budget. This will fall on the real property owner who "will be reaching the limit of his ability to pay his local taxes." How can he meet further demands forecast by the need for a sewage plant, hospital additions and the like?

* * *

Thus Sarnia's property taxes are very high, and must go higher unless help comes from senior taxing authorities, by way of increased grants or allotment of new taxing fields to the city. Mr. Colter says that provincial subsidies to Sarnia for all purposes amounted this year to only 15.93 per cent. of the city's gross budget. His brief suggests that this is altogether too small a proportion. Sarnia, like most other Ontario municipalities, is breaking its back trying to meet expenses. The Ontario Government, which provides grants equal to only 15 per cent. of Sarnia's expenses, has been having multi-million dollar surpluses for the last six years. The cities are growing bankrupt while Queen's Park fattens. Out of its straitened circumstances, Peterborough, for instance, provided the Board of Education for the operation of its schools last year $480,935. Despite large increases in grants during the last few years, the Ontario Government provided only $192,844.

* * *

Another aspect of the municipal problem which affects all towns and cities is this. The dollar now is worth only about half of its value in 1940. Thus, to provide the same municipal services during the inflationary present times, local government must double its dollar receipts. Mr. Colter says: "This, we find, is not possible because the property tax is the major source of income." And, of course, cities are now having to provide more numerous and larger services than they did in 1940. "The legislators (at Ottawa and Toronto) have been responsible, to a large degree, for increasing the cost of the general services such as education, health and welfare by extended programs." An example of this is local Recreation Commissions, which were created by virtual order of Queen's Park. There were none in 1940. It is true that Recreation Commissions are to some extent co-ordinating and carrying on work which the city has always undertaken; but there are new projects and expenses. How does the Ontario Government help pay for these Commissions of its own creation? The Peterborough Recreation Commission budget this year is more than $22,000. Of this the city (through the tax rate) pays $19,150; the Ontario Government, through grants, only $3,288.

* * *

Mr. Colter has some recommendations about "the patched quilt" of municipal regulations and finances:

"The pressure against new revenue for local government has been very strong—so strong that the municipalities have lost out in the competition of governments, Federal provincial and municipal, for sufficient revenues to meet the needs of our present-day economy.

"The legislators should realize the present one-sidedness of the revenue system. The day has come when new revenue must be made available or services curtailed which in our case will be difficult to do."

* * *

The Sarnia brief notes that vast changes have taken place in the industrial and commercial activities of the province, and that present business assessment has no relationship to the amount of business transacted. It suggests to the Ontario municipal committee, which asked for the brief, that it consider recommending a gross receipts tax for business and industrial assessment purposes, administered locally. This is an interesting suggestion which needs careful study.

* * *

The Sarnia brief concludes: "The present municipal revenue situation has become extremely serious, so serious that it threatens the very existence of local government." This is a view which Peterborough can endorse with anxious fervour.

Stupid Publicity

This week's edition of Time Magazine contains an outstanding example of the stupid kind of publicity that can nullify able police work in a dangerous and despicable field. Time's story told of the arrival at the Wichita Falls, Texas, high school of a young hellion of a new boy. He carried gun and knife, thrashed the school bully, tried to date the teacher, boasted about smoking marijuana, and within a few days became leader of the worst element in the school. Then came the revelation: the tough young addict actually was a narcotics agent, and dope peddlers he had met in his role as addict were arrested. The young man was said to be resting now, waiting for the day when he will "be too well known" for this kind of work, so that he will be able to join the Texas Rangers.

In our opinion, he could join the Rangers almost any day now, for all the good he is likely to be in the role described above. With nation-wide publicity given to the incident, dope peddlers who ply their trade among school children will be doubly wary about dealing with tough youngsters. They will check histories and background as far as they are able. In effect, revelation of the tough youngster's true role in the Wichita Falls incident was a warning to peddlers of drugs to school pupils, stupidly and unnecessarily given.

This under-cover or counter-espionage method of securing information can, and is, used to far better advantage. Its best working, if we remember correctly, was once described in a novel by Edgar Wallace, about a young man with a fairly long criminal record, who showed remarkable skill in evading the full serving of sentences meted out for punishment of his crimes. Encouraged by this, he invariably returned to crime, was invariably caught and sentenced. He sounded pretty stupid, until we read that he had fallen in love with the heroine; then we knew he would somehow be cleansed of his crimes. And we were right; he was an undercover inspector of prisons for H.M. Government, but his effectiveness was prolonged by keeping this an inviolate secret—even, for a time, from the lass whose heart was breaking.

The agent in the Wichita Falls incident might have played a similar part successfully at many other high schools had he been arrested with those he turned in, sentenced and subsequently released. Instead, the particular procedure has been recorded and labelled for all to read. It was almost incredibly stupid publicity.

NOTES AND COMMENT

An audience at Kingston Penitentiary is reported to have commented unfavourably on the methods used by crooks in a crime film. Well, if they are so smart themselves, what are they doing in K.P.? The keenest critics, of course, are rarely first-class performers.

A clergyman comments that people improve morally during periods of depression. It is like the Kingston Whig to add that it usually costs money to yield to temptation.

A visiting Australian says that rain can be caused by sprinkling the clouds with water. The only comment seems to be, Uh-huh.

The president of the Missouri Dental Association says that false teeth are on their way out. Plop! into the soup, perhaps?

Musical Notes

by PETER PIPER

A FEW days ago I dropped in at one of those functions known as a pupils' recital. To some of my readers this may possibly recall some of the most embarrassing incidents of their lives: a lapse of memory at a public performance is hard to erase from the memory, and even the most seasoned performer may blush with shame at the recollection of a wrong note in the development section of Sizzleheimer's Sonatina in D major. Others may see the recital through the rose-colored spectacles of proud parenthood, while the teachers of the performers usually go through the same mental anguish as the pupils while endeavouring to communicate to them an air of quiet confidence that they do not feel themselves! Very few indeed of these young hopefuls will ever be called upon to tickle the ear of the great public in after-life; of these only a tiny percentage will make music their profession. I have not the vaguest idea of statistics on this point. Statistics can be made to prove almost anything; I am just dogmatizing. Nevertheless I hold that the pupils' recital is, on the balance, a Good Thing. In the first place it encourages the pupil to make a really thorough study of at least one piece. Added to that there is the element of emulation; the pupil has the opportunity of hearing the others playing and of doing better than they. Another powerful incentive to do well is the fear of making a fool of oneself in public.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are a few things of importance to anyone performing in public which tend to be forgotten by young and inexperienced performers because they are not directly connected with actually playing or singing. I refer, of course, to the subject of platform deportment. The ease and grace of the seasoned artist are a reflection of an inner state of mind, aided by art. Some children are naturally graceful in their movements and take to the platform as ducks take to water, while others have considerable difficulty in avoiding stumbling, knocking their knees together, and so on. In the first place, it is usually an aid to composure to be assured that one's dress is neat and tidy; moreover it is expected of you by your audience that you should look as well as nature intended you, if not more so. After all, they are the people who have to look at you. It is all very well to say that the audience has come to hear music, not to see a spectacle, but there are few more distracting things than to see a dress strap that has to be periodically yanked back into position. Pianists are traditionally allowed a hank of disorderly hair, though this is rapidly becoming vieux jeu. It is customary to bow to the audience on entering. This custom which some bold spirits may spurn as a relic of feudalism, has at least the merit, rare nowadays, of being polite. It also has the more tangible advantage of allowing everybody to notice that you are about to begin. It is perfectly possible (and I have seen it done) for the performer to scurry noiselessly along to the piano and to start playing before anybody is aware of the fact and to continue playing softly for several bars unheard above the hubbub of conversation. Having reached one's position, one is ready to perform. The performer should wait, poised motionless, until perfect silence is obtained. Most modern audiences are fairly well trained in this respect, but I should like to emphasize the fact that no attempt to start should be made until the performer could hear a pin drop. Mannerisms should be checked firmly. Some pianists, even well-known concert pianists, are apt to grunt and groan when playing. As for singers, the things that they do with their hands are too numerous to mention. There is one point for pianists; they should of course remember to trim their nails short. It spoils the enjoyment of the audience to hear a continuous tick-a-tack of human nails on elephants' tusks.

✧ ✧ ✧

RETURNING for a moment to the subject of the recital that I attended it struck me very forcibly how the manner of performance is governed by the physical type of child. In fact I could forecast in advance with a considerable degree of accuracy the style of each child as he or she stepped on. The spindly and anaemic types usually played with great sensitivity but with very little rhythm, while the stocky red-cheeked children played rhythmically on the whole, but brother, did they ever punish that piano! Then there were the podgy types, who played in rather a deliberate and stolid manner. Curiously enough the differences in the various physical types and their approach to the piano are much less marked amongst adults. I was reminded of the old teaching of the "humours": however unscientific it is certainly a good working basis of classification.

✧ ✧ ✧

"HE knows no more about counterpoint than my cook"—these words of Handel were spoken about none other than Gluck, the great composer of the eighteenth century and reformer of the opera. Owing to the fact that he was preeminently an operatic composer he is not as well-known as he should be in English-speaking countries. Apart from his music to the scene in the Elysian Fields from "Orfeo" and the Overture to Alceste, and of course the "Che faro senz' Euridice" (which I remember hearing Kathleen Ferrier sing so exquisitely) there is very little Gluck performed in this country. Even in France and Germany the great mass of his operas lies neglected except for Orfeo and Alceste, which are still revived from time to time. In this connection it is interesting to note that Gluck's operas are amongst the oldest to hold the stage today, though occasional performances of Purcell's Dido and Aeneas and Monteverdi's opera Orfeo still take place from time to time. Gluck, like Handel, was a cosmopolitan composer and wrote in a cosmopolitan idiom, combining the best qualities of the Italian and French styles with the added harmonic richness of the German style. Born in Germany he wrote almost exclusively for French and Italian audiences. His style is simple and monumental in choruses, while his arias are distinguished by a noble pathos. It seems as though a revaluation of his position is taking place. A new collected edition of his works is in process of being brought out in Germany at the present moment, and I can confidently predict that modern audiences (even in this land of ours) will in the not too distant future be able to hear rather more of this composer's works than the exiguous snippets usually produced today. Incidentally I have just been listening to a new recording of some of his operatic music which was quite new to me, and it was delightful. So, look out for Gluck!

THIRTY-DAY TEST

Roosevelts Leave Campobello

(ST. JOHN CHRONICLE-TELEGRAPH)

(From the Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

SEVENTY years ago a group of Americans, mostly Bostonians and New Yorkers, bought from the family of the late Admiral William FitzWilliam Owen, RN, the island of Campobello in Passamaquoddy Bay. Originally granted in 1767 to Captain William Owen, RN, secretary to Lord William Campbell, Governor of Nova Scotia, the island became in the 1880's a resort for the new American owners.

Summer homes were established and two large hotels prospered on the custom of the Americans. Their yachts and sailboats were a familiar sight in the Bay. Prominent among these Summertime guests of New Brunswick were the late Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt and their family, including the little boy whose name was to endure in history, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

For half a century, until the little boy of the 1880's was preoccupied with his duties as president of the United States, the Roosevelts were regular visitors year after year on Campobello. Then their visits became less frequent. Children grew up, married, and made new homes as widely scattered as the states of New York and Texas and California. The sons went to war, and their father gave his life in the service of his country.

The leisurely existence on Campobello, now so far removed in time and space from the younger generation of Roosevelts, has ceased to attract the family as of old. Recently one of the sons did come back, but only to arrange the removal of furnishings and personal effects from the Roosevelt cottage. The house of the late president's mother had been torn down during the Summer.

Little remains on Campobello to recall the long association of the family with the island, except the recollections of the permanent inhabitants, and the inscription upon a bronze tablet which reads: "In happy memory of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 1882-1945. Statesman and humanitarian, who during many years of his eventful life, found in this tranquil island rest, refreshment, and freedom from care. To him it was always the 'beloved island'."

Odd Jobs Indeed

(EDMONTON JOURNAL)

IN an idle hour, a group of American correspondents, in the United States and Europe, recently listed some of the odd occupations they had encountered. It goes to show what curious ways people have of earning a living.

In New York, for example, one member of the maintenance staff of the Empire State Building does nothing but move through the various washrooms turning the faucets in the washbasins on and off, to make sure they are working properly. Since the giant building has more than a thousand washrooms, he must be footsore at the end of the day.

Much more restful is the life of the man in Lexington, Virginia, whose sole duty is to watch over a horse's tail in a glass case. The tail once belonged to the horse Gen. Robert E. Lee rode during the Civil War, and zealous Confederates have had it preserved. Apparently they still feel that some Yankee might make off with it, if unguarded.

In Paris a staff of guards is continuously employed to stand on the top platform of the Eiffel Tower, to prevent would-be suicides from jumping off.

A feature of life in Brussels is a group of unofficial garbage collectors who search the ashcans of the city in the early morning, before the municipal collectors arrive, and remove rags, metal, bottles and the like. They are not beggars or vagrants; they do a flourishing and profitable business. They are so thorough that they often leave little for the regular garbage collectors.

The Swiss watch factories have a number of specialists who do nothing but hold new watches to their ears and listen to the tick. They can tell by the sound whether the timepiece is in good working order or not. If the tick isn't right, back it goes for adjustment.

The strangest of all occupations, however, is to be found in placid Sweden. The city of Stockholm has an inspector whose mission in life is to go through the various restaurants to make sure that no diner drinks more than a quarter of pint of spirits at one meal.

Strange Tongues In Ottawa

(London Free Press)

Ottawa has never had a Speaker who could understand Gaelic, but has had at times many members who could. The late Hon. Ian MacKenzie once made a speech in the House in Gaelic. The most unusual speech was that of the late Glen Campbell, who was elected to the House for Dauphin in 1911. His father was a Hudson Bay factor and his mother a Cree. When he made his first speech in the House he spoke for a time in Cree, explaining that it was really his mother's tongue and that the native language should be recognized.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain: who layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters: who maketh the clouds his chariot: who walketh upon the wings of the wind . . . Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever. (Ps. 104: 1-3, 5.)

✧ ✧ ✧

O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth . . . . Declare his glory among the heathen, his wonders among all people . . . .

Give unto the Lord, O ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength.

Give unto the Lord the glory due unto his name: bring an offering, and come into his courts.

O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness: fear before him, all the earth. (Ps. 96: 1, 3, 7-9.)

Nurses

(G. E. Mortimore in The Victoria Colonist)

One takes it for granted that nurses want to keep you alive and well. When they wake you in the middle of the night to ask whether you are asleep, or force you to take a cold sponge-bath at 5 a.m., there is sometimes room for a small doubt.

When a nurse leaves a window open, she isn't really trying to give you pneumonia and bring on a relapse. She is just letting in some fresh air.

I did know a nurse in a military hospital in Ceylon who had sadistic tendencies. She was also house-proud to an extent that bordered on mania. Laying cool hands on a fevered brow was not her strong point. What really interested her was mosquito nets.

She wasn't interested in mosquito nets with the idea of warding off malaria, either. To her a mosquito net was an object which had to be rolled up neatly in the day time. Should a patient leave one ragged corner peeping out from his roll, the lady closed with him like an avenging goddess.

And even if he was half-dead, the patient would be prodded upright and set rolling his net over again in the approved manner. The lady combined the virtues of a sergeant-major and a housemaid.

Happily, I was able to thwart her once when she bore down on me gibbering with rage and pointing to my mosquito net. If a Japanese admiral afflicted with bubonic plague had broken into the hospital and somehow managed to suspend himself by the heels from the ceiling, she could not have been more excited.

But I was able to state with perfect truth that anything which ailed my mosquito net was the lady's own doing, since she rolled it up herself for demonstration purposes. She never bothered me after that.

Bile From Ireland

(Irish Gov't Bulletin)

Bile from cattle slaughtered in Ireland is now being sent in small quantities to the United States for the production of cortisone by one Dublin firm. As other firms become interested in this export it is hoped that the quantities shipped will increase rapidly (cf. Bulletin No. 98). Bile from sheep and pigs is also required and it is understood that the Department of Agriculture is encouraging the owners of slaughter premises to arrange for the salvage of this by-product. About 10 ounces of bile can be obtained from each head of cattle slaughtered and an average of one and a half ounces in the case of sheep and pigs.

"JUST EXPLAIN TO JOE..."

Tells Canadians Can't Have More By Doing Less

MONTREAL, Dec. 3 (CP). — B. C. Gardner, president of the Bank of Montreal, today cautioned Canadians against thinking they can have "more and more by doing less and less."

Speaking at the bank's annual meeting, he said:

"It is true we have great resources. Their conversion into material wealth, however, is dependent on the sum total of the efforts of a working force of less than 5,500,000 people.

"To develop our potentialities, to make an adequate contribution to defence, to improve our standard of living—to do all this and enjoy increasing leisure too, is asking a great deal. Insofar as it is asking too much, the result is inevitably to add to pressures in the direction of higher costs and prices. . ."

Mr. Gardner also said, "We are beginning to suspect that one of the tools of economic management—the budget—does not necessarily produce the results claimed for it."

'New Order'

"It has been a maxim of 'new order' economics that severe taxation can and should be used to curb excessive purchasing power—but—people have a not unnatural dislike for heavy taxes and many of them are able to escape the tax burden through compensatory pay increases. Under present conditions, taxes tend to be regarded as part of the cost of living and get caught up in the wage-price spiral . . . if by reason of the very size of the budget, the weight of taxation is such as to set in motion the forces I have mentioned, the efficiency of the budget as a stabilizing influence is in danger of being lost."

Gordon R. Ball, general manager, said in part:

". . . We have succeeded in producing, and improving, ourselves out of many of the scarcities that civilian spending, rather than rearmament outlays, had induced. From now on, however, defence requirements may accelerate all the more rapidly for having been delayed. . .

"Most Canadians are employed today—and at a higher income level—than at any previous time in our history. . .

SHORTLY AFTER U.N. CORRESPONDENTS put the finishing touches on two snowmen near the scene of the Korean truce negotiations, the "statues" were ordered removed because they didn't blend with the dignity of the talks, high officials ruled. The snow figures were built up after the first big snowfall of the year at Panmunjom but before the demolition they were snapped, along with the U.N. military police, by Chinese photographers.

Control Officers "Talk" Pilot To Safe Landing

LONDON, Ont., Dec. 3 (CP)—A reserve pilot of No. 420 City of London RCAF Squadron, making his first flight in a Mustang fighter plane Sunday was located and "talked down" safely to earth by radio after being lost and overtaken by darkness.

FO. H. C. Thompson of Woodstock, landed his fast Mustang fighter at Centralia RCAF station airport after dark on the third attempt following instructions relayed to him by radio control officers.

FO. Thompson, one of the newer members of the reserve squadron was sent on his first flight in a Mustang in the late afternoon and 20 minutes later reported by radio that he was lost.

First hint of his location came when Mrs. Williams, wife of FO. Ivor Williams, a member of No. 420 Squadron, telephoned squadron headquarters that a Mustang had gone over her home at Wilson Grove just after dark.

Squadron officers then directed FO Thompson by radio to fly in a northwest direction. With special radio equipment which can tell the direction from which a signal is coming, Centralia control officers directed the pilot to the airport.

Gordon Hints Railways To Enter Trucking Business

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of Canadian National Railways, hinted Saturday night that Canadian railways may go into the trucking business.

He told the annual dinner of the Toronto railway club:

"The railways have been jockeyed into a position in which newer forms of transportation are permitted to operate in their specialized fields without having to accept the general obligations which are the historic legacy of the railways.

"Naturally, if the railways are to give the public full benefit of co-ordinated techniques, an expansion of their service to include highway competition is inevitable."

He also told the club, made up chiefly of executives of railways operating in Ontario, that "skilful propaganda" is building up an assumption that railways are traditionally unprogressive and lack the desire or ability to be competitive.

"There is a degree of misunderstanding and downright ignorance about railroading, and an assumption that the railways are constantly trying to cover up their own inefficiencies by gouging more money in freight rates."

Spectacular Improvement

There has been a "spectacular improvement" in service and equipment during the last 50 years, he said, "representing progress and response to the changing conditions and requirements of the environment in which we live."

He said railways have been setting the pace in modern transportation, although their opportunities were limited because they had to follow regulatory principles which do not hamper other transport systems.

"So long as the present rigidity of regulatory control continues to be imposed on the railways, I have little real hope about simplifying our freight rate structure," he said. "The present freight rate tariff is a structure of unbelievable complexity.

"I am not prepared to say that we can ever achieve a freight rate structure in Canada that will satisfy everyone. But I do claim that an equalizing of competitive conditions will bring that possibility far closer to reality as well as giving the railways a chance to develop along lines best suited to their great responsibilities and great capacities."

Canada Opposes Red Menace With Men and Guns

OTTAWA, Dec. 2 — (CP) — In 1951 Canada moved into a new, dangerous and highly costly phase of the cold war. It was called twilight mobilization.

Precedents cropped up all over the place.

Without anything approaching a declaration of war, Canada had soldiers fighting in Korea and soldiers and airmen moving to Europe. She announced in February a three-year military program that would cost at least $5,000,000,000 and dwarf anything the country had known before in peacetime.

In April, the government brought into being a department of defence production charged with getting the arms and equipment needed by Canada and, to some extent, her allies.

As a starter on the three-year program, she doubled the annual military budget that had already soared notably late in 1950 and she was spending an average of $150,000,000 a month on defence.

For the first time in peacetime, she began to enrol women in the forces; raised a brigade for Europe and sent it here; enlisted every man who applied and who could pass the services tests; graduated European air trainees and prepared to turn out 3,300 air crew a year; sent a fighter squadron to Europe equipped with Canadian-made jets; got delivery of the first Canadian-built fighter, the CF100 Canuck; loaded aircraft factories, shipyards and other plants with orders for all the arms and equipment they could make for months ahead.

Year Of Achievement

It wasn't all-out mobilization by any means. War would make even this look small and 1952 is expected to be a considerably more important year as far as results yere concerned. For in 1952 the program will start moving into full stride with aircraft, warships and other arms and the men to fight them pouring out of the plants and training schools.

But 1951, as a year of achievement and preparation for greater achievements, went beyond anything peacetime Canada could recall. The drive launched in February went well beyond anything envisaged in the fall of 1950.

The reason behind it all was Russia. The more immediate provocations were China's entry in the Korean war and the seeming willingness of international Communism to risk general war.

A united Canada backed the government in the unparalleled program of rearmament and overseas action and aid which unfolded. In October, parliament gave a unanimous vote of approval to continuation of efforts to dam the tide of Communism in Korea and Europe. Four months earlier, parliament voted nearly $1,900,000,000 to cover this fiscal year's bill for it all.

Long-Range Plans.

The three-year program calls for an Air Force of 40 squadrons, 3,000 planes, 45,000 men with 11 of the jet squadrons in Europe and a radar network as the frontline wall in Canada; a navy of 100 warships, an army ready to fight at home or abroad. More than 115,000 men would be in uniform by 1954. In January 1951, there were 62,000. At the end of the year, the total was nearing 90,000.

Charges arose in parliament and in the press as the year wore on that the program was behind schedule, that the planes and ships and guns weren't bejng produced on schedule. To that Production Minister Howe replied that there were gaps in some lines but that generally speaking production was going ahead as planned.

Other Developments.

The year had many developments. The RCAF recruited women for the regular force, the other services for the reserve. Navy ships sailed to Australia, the mediterranean and served off Korea. The RCAF formed a number of new fighter squadrons but placed its fighting strength on the secret lists. On the Prairies, wartime air schools were reopened for the big new training program to turn out 1,400 European and 1,900 Canadian air crew annually.

The army had the 25th Brigade fighting in Korea, the 27th Brigade establishing itself in Germany, the 23rd Brigade in Canada starting to take over from the 25th in Korea, a process slated to move ahead sharply in the spring.

A second and third European country got from Canada enough British-type arms for a division—the three: Belgium, Holland, Italy—but the US-UK rifle dispute halted further major shipments because Canada's rifle and small arms policy was tied up in that dispute.

In Eastern Canada and in the northland workmen went ahead with the building of the radar stations slated to serve as the outer rim of Continental defence. The Canadian net is to be meshed with that of the United States. Neither country was saying just where the stations were or what the network would cover.

For military secrecy wasn't nearly as heavy as in wartime but it was definitely coming back.

Marines Open Cage Season With a 48-45 Victory As Ted Payne Clicks For 19

Gord McIntyre's Peterborough Marines in the final minutes Saturday night won the opening game of the Eastern Ontario basketball league 48-45 from the Belleville Glen Roys A.C.

Ontario intermediate "B" semi-finalists last season, the Marines managed to keep two baskets ahead of the quick-breaking Glen Roys who were defeated last year by the Marines two straight in the quarter finals. But in the remaining three minutes the Glen Roys pulled within one point.

Then, former PCVS star, Neil Thompson broke into the scoring, sinking three field baskets and a foul shot, awarded after he had been held. The seven points gave the Mariners the win.

A Strong Loop

From the opening whistle to the final, the play of both teams indicated that the Eastern Ontario league will be stronger than the lakeshore league in which the Marines went undefeated last year. Other clubs in are Picton Athletics and RCAF Trenton Flyers who play Marines in Trenton Tuesday night.

Ted Payne and Rocky Kidd started Marines to victory in the first quarter with enough points to edge Glen Roys 7-6. From therein Marines were always ahead, at halftime 27-21, and finished off slightly stronger than Belleville in the final half.

Payne, who averaged 18 points a game last year, started this season off by leading the scoring with 19 points. Most of these came in the first half from close in with help from Rocky Kidd and Bill Dadson. But in the third the offence changed and this time Payne set up Kidd, who was playing centre, for scores from close under the basket.

While Payne and Kidd starred up the floor throughout the game, Thompson's final seven points actually saved the game.

A Standout

Harold Grafstein, former Toronto Fred Hamilton playground and PCVS senior cage star guard, stood out both on the offence and defence in his first appearance in a Marine uniform. His third quarter set shots helped keep Marines ahead and place him second in their scoring with 11 points.

Veteran Peterborough cager, Doug MacPherson, played his expected steady game, keeping up his pace of last season by snaring all loose balls and rebounds in Peterborough's defensive zone.

Belleville had trouble with the stiff checking of both Grafstein and MacPherson and the robust play both ways of Rocky Kidd.

But the Marines had their troubles too. After a slow first half, the Glen Roys' Soule, generally assisted by Ketcheson, began to speed up in the second half. Before he could be stopped, he had accounted for 16 Belleville points. Ketcheson, a tall centre, meanwhile, was scoring his share of points (10) with a strong performance under the basket.

Payne's 19 points gave him the scoring honors but he was closely followed by Belleville's Soule with a total of 16.

Lineups:

Marines (48)—Payne 19, Dadson, Grafstein 11, MacPherson, Trimm 2, Kidd 9, Ceresino, Thompson 7.

Glen Roys (45) — Hayman 9, Summers 2, Batchelor 2, Ketcheson 10, Watson, Muirhead 6, Soule 16, Fitzpatrick, Garrow, Locker.

Here And There In Sports

By The Canadian Press

Residence rules and high-sticking came in for special consideration Saturday at the annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, Toronto.

Life-member Fred Waghorne, speaking at the convention luncheon, lashed out at the prevalence of high-sticking and urged it be stamped out of minor hockey.

In order to eliminate tourist players in the minor ranks, the OMHA strengthened residence rules by insisting that a player must be a continuous resident of the town for which he plays.

Herbert Parker of Stratford was elected president, Mike Eichel of Elmira, first vice-president; Fred Norman of Simcoe second vice-president, and Bert Hick of Lindsay third vice-president.

Secretary Jack Christie and treasurer Dr. Leon Hipwell, both of Toronto, were re-elected by acclamation.

Five of last year's executive committee were re-elected: Sam Curry of Tweed, Frank Doherty of Thorold, Ted Elmes of Galt, Jack Oakes of Strathroy and Gerry Simmons of Gravenhurst. New members are Frank Cudmore of Wallaceburg and Albert Watkins of Peterborough.

At Welland, Kingston Collegiate Curlers captured major laurels at the second annual Banana Belt schoolboy bonspiel Saturday.

Skipped by Peter Swan, the Kingston rink of Earl McCullough, Ron Sharpe and Bill Walker won the MacLean Trophy by capping four straight victories with a 7-2 end over Al Murray's Hamilton Central rink. The quartet also won a special award for being farthest-from-home rink.

Last year's winner, Mike Cassels of Hamilton Westdale, was bumped out in the first round this year.

At Columbus, O., A. B. (Happy) Chandler Sunday accepted the presidency of the International Baseball Congress, a new organization planning to sponsor an annual non-professional world championship tournament in 1953. Just a year ago the major leagues voted to not renew Chandler's contract as commissioner of baseball.

Incitations for the opening tournament will be issued next July to Japan, Canada, Venezuela, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Cuba, the Dominican Republic and the United States.

St. Siegniory Club, Que., H. M. S. Parsons of Toronto Granite rink won the 12th annual international friendly curling games Sunday, going undefeated through three rounds of play to lead 28 United States and Canadian rinks. Parsons' rink included F. Goforth, lead, F. R. Scott, second, and K. Wadsworth, third.

Panthers Beat Western Team To Take Title

HAMILTON, Dec. 3 (CP)—The Hamilton Tiger-Cats may have been eliminated from the Grey Cup hunt, but nothing stopped Hamilton Panthers in their quest for intermediate grid fame.

Saturday the intermediate crew blanked Norwood - St. Boniface Legionaires 18-0 in Canada's first east-west intermediate football final. With the win went the Percy E. Robinson Memorial Trophy, given in honor of the late secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union.

The intermediate title was Hamilton's second grid gain in two weeks. Just 14 days before, the Tiger-Cat juniors swamped Edmonton Leafs 22-1 for the Canadian junior crown.

With a record crowd of close to 10,000 looking on, the east-enders gave their visitors little chance to score, even though the westerners held Panthers to a 10-score throughout three-quarters of the tussle. A 1-point final quarter clinched the issue.

Western Team Stale

With the exception of the gate, the game was a rather ordinary affair. The travel-weary St. Boniface club, who had arrived by train a few hours before, failed to put on a convincing show. It was their first game in five weeks and they were stale, despite continuing practice sessions.

At the turnstiles, the whirring gates put the Hamilton club back in the black after a money-losing season and probably did more for intermediate football than anything in the past quarter-century. An ambitious group of sportsmen had worked hard to make the affair a success and earned much of the credit.

Play was mostly along the ground with the winners racking up 19 first downs to three for the westerners. Unbeaten in 13 games this season, the Hamilton crew were highly favored and showed their stuff in the final session after Glen Dawson booted a first quarter single.

Bill Melnick and Fred Hamilton ploughed across for majors while Joe MacFarlane booted two singles to make up for the attempted converts which failed in both cases. The Panthers' final five points came when Bernie Saunders intercepted a St. Boniface pass on the west's 45-yard line and galloped untouched down the sidelines for the major.

Five Questions Plaguing Major League

By JOE REICHLER.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3 (AP).—Five big major league questions remained to be answered and five important minor league problems waited to be solved as the minor leagues opened their golden jubilee convention here today.

Some 1,200 baseball people representing 49 leagues from all corners of the nation were in attendance.

These are the questions:

1. Will Eddie Stanky manage the St. Louis Cardinals?
2. Will Joe DiMaggio announce his official retirement?
3. Will the New York Yankees get Ned Garver?
5. Will the Brooklyn Dodgers get Ewell Blackwell or any of the other star pitchers of the Cincinnati Reds?

The five problems confronting baseball, are open classification for the higher minors; radio and television inroads on minor league attendance; high school rule; abolition of 24-hour recall of players sent to lower classification and trimming of big league roster from 25 to 23 players; placing an eighth club in the International League.

Cold War Continues

The cold war between owners Fred Saigh of St. Louis Cardinals and Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants continues ah the canny Red Birds' boss declared he has three other candidates in mind besides the Giants' scrappy second baseman, Stanky.

The Giants have asked for outfielder Chuck Diering and southpaw Max Lanier. Saigh refuses to part with any of his pitchers. He has offered a second string infielder-along with Diering for Stanky.

Lou Boudreau just about decided to take Ted Williams' name off the market. The new manager of the Boston Red Sox is not satisfied with any of the offers he has had for his star slugger.

Buzzy Bavasi, young energetic vice-president of the Dodgers, said he was still hopeful of landing Ewell Blackwell, Howie Fox or German Wehmeier of the Reds. He also was seeking righthander Bob Bush of the Chicago Cubs.

Minor league president George M. Trautman said he was in favor of the open classification, keeping the high school rule and the abolition of the 24-hour recall.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Kingston Vics make their first OHA junior "B" appearance of the season here tonight to play the IOOF-ers. The Vics are new to the group this semester, and they sure look like they belong. Plenty potent and up around the top of the heap at the moment, whilst the Oddfellows have been coming mighty close but hasn't broken into the victory column so far. A tie with Belleville was their best effort. However, they're due to go all out any game now and knock the bejabers out of some luckless opponent. The Godfrey gang have a lot of good puckists and they'll do okay ere long. Sure to be a speedy junior joust this eve here, one rating a crowd.

* * * * * *

Speaking of rough senior "B" play, the Quinte columnist says: "There's far too much of the 'mountie' code in hockey these days and someone is frequently going down with an injury. Unfortunately, the engineer who designed the most complicated machinery in the world, the human body, did not blueprint for spare parts. There are no replacements for heads, ears, eyes, noses, throats, legs and digits. And, if there was nothing under the hood when you came off the assembly line, that's your tough luck. You can't instal brains. In many cases where they were part of standard equipment, the mechanics failed to supply the right connections. There's a lot of faulty wiring in some of them. They work at times and again they're as dead as a four-hour mackerel." Yeah, we know some of them.

Minor Pro Ball Here?

According to Bunny Morganson of the Tely, there's ball talk of Ottawa, Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston forming an eastern group of a minor pro baseball setup, the Intercounty League being the western section. Ottawa lost its International League franchise, while Kingston is out of pro ball since the Border Loop folded. Oshawa, under sponsor John Harris, operates like a semi-pro club, but Peterborough would need good sponsorship to jump into the money-ed ranks. We're not against minor pro ball at all—a good diamond brand would revive the game here—but it's expensive. A hookup for finances and players with a higher pro club might well be worth a check.

* * * * * *

As predicted by many in recent years, the Intercounty League in Western Ontario is having trouble. Went overboard on expensive imports and large salaries and, while they drew some big crowds, several of the teams are in financial difficulties. Three of 'em are up for sale now. Pro interests have argued that they'd be better to go out-and-out pro (with definite limits on players and salaries) rather than play an expensive psuedo-amateur game, which is as fast as Class "B" professional baseball. If not minor pro ball here, the only alternative we see for the game in this town is a real strong revived COBL of Kingston, Belleville, Oshawa and the Petes.

Business Keeps Good

The only sport on the continent which is flourishing and drawing better than ever is professional wrestling. That's the word from the Wall St. Journal, according to Bill Westwick in the Ottawa Journal. He quotes figures to prove it in the States, and no doubt Frank Tunney of Toronto will back him up. There's a USA rise in mat attendance so far this year of nine per cent with an 11 per cent gain in gate receipts. Since 1946, the rise in attendance has been a terrific 164 per cent with gate receipts up 180! Three reasons are given: (a) television has popularized the game; (b) pro grapplers have opened the action up plenty and get great promotion; and (c) female spectators now form 50 per cent of attending crowds.

Al Watkins of this city was elected to the OMHA executive at the annual meeting Saturday in Toronto. It was his first try at the spot and the first time we've had a representative on this provincial minor hockey body. Bert Hick of Lindsay, third vice-prexy, and Tweed's Sam Curry, also on the executive, are the only other men on it east of Toronto. Glad Al made it as he has been a conscientious worker for years here in minor baseball and hockey. Presently manages the juvenile Marines, of which Bert Hill is coach. Moon Wootton, by the way, is coaching the Martin-Hewitt midgets, and it's good to see these senior puckists taking an active interest in the kids. Our PMHA is affiliated with the OMHA.

St. Michael's Trip Marlies 5-2 As Indians Clip Hamilton 5-2

By The Canadian Press

Toronto St. Michael's kept their inter-city rival Marlboros from claiming sole possession of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League leadership Sunday when they handed the Maple Leaf farm club a 5-2 setback before 4,245 Toronto fans.

The win boosted the second-place College crew to within six points of the slot and left the Marlies and Guelph Biltmores deadlocked atop the 10-team standings.

Saturday night the Marlies moved into a tie for the league leadership when they drubbed St. Catharines Teepees 7-1 on the losers' home ice while Guelph Biltmores were stalled in Galt when the fourth-place Black Hawks came up with a 7-6 victory.

Other OHA Junior A tussles Saturday saw Waterloo Hurricanes chalk up their third straight victory — over St. Michael's at Waterloo — while the cellar-dwelling Windsor Spitfires downed Kitchener Greenshirts 6-3. Oshawa edged Barrie Flyers 4-3 in the fifth Saturday game.

Stratford Indians increased their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A lead to give points Saturday when they clipped second-place Hamilton Tigers 5-2 at Stratford. Sarnia Sailors moved back into a tie for fourth place with Owen Sound by dumping the Mercurys 9-4.

Up north, the league-leading Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds lost their second Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game of the season by bowing 6-4 to the tail-end North Bay Black Hawks. In Sudbury, the Miners clipped the Wolves 4-2 for a second-place deadlock in the loop.

Bill Dineen and Bob Sabourin placed Toronto St. Mike's to their 5-2 win over the Marlies. Each potted two goals and defenceman Marc Reaume scored the other. Walt Maxwell and Danny Poland tallied for the losers.

On Saturday night St. Catharines' Ron Stewart and Eric Nesterenko each scored three times in the Marlboros' 7-1 win. Parker MacDonald contributed the other while Young got the lone Teepee tally on a penalty shot.

Ken Wharran scored a pair of goals in the 7-6 Galt win over Guelph. Pete Conacher, Jim McBurney, Walt Gardner, Mile Buchanan and Tony Poeta scored singletons for the Black Hawks. Andy Bathgate, Ron Murphy, Dean Prentice and Aldo Guidolin, with singles, and Ken Laufman, with two, led the Guelph attack.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

This may seem a little early, but the next bonspiel is for the Examiner trophy and the date is Saturday, Dec. 29. It's for schedule calibre rinks. 28 rinks are needed for a complete draw. The fee is $8.00 per rink.

The draw for the Neill trophy games for Wednesday night has been posted on the notice board. It is to be hoped that the interested skips will have their rinks out on time.

The suggestion has come forward that, as much as Wednesday, Dec. 26, is an open night, the bonspiel committee take advantage and hurry along the Neill trophy. The suggestion has merit. The committee will need all the time they can get, with an all-time record entry of 76 rinks in two events; it takes a lot of curling.

The winning skips Saturday afternoon were: R. Johnson, G. Green and R. Appleton.

In the evening mixed rink bonspiel D. Bell and Dr. R. Morgan were the successful skips.

Australia Chalks Up First Innings Lead

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 3 — (Reuters)—A record fourth-wicket stand of 235 by Lindsay Hassett (132) and Keith Miller (129) today gave Australia a first innings lead of 89 with three wickets still in hand over West Indies on the third day of the second cricket test.

At the close, Australia had scored 451 for seven wickets in reply to the West Indies' first-innings total of 362.

Hassett, the Australian captain, and Miller swung the game in favor of Australia. Their stand, which lasted just over four hours, was an Australian fourth-wicket record against West Indies. The previous best was 182 by Alan Kippax and Stan McCabe in 1931.

There are two days left to play.

Australia won the first in the best-of-five series to decide world cricket supremacy.

Leafs Torpedo Rangers, Wings At Weekend, Canadiens Split Two Games

By JACK SULLIVAN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Now that the football season is just a memory for this year, nobody can say that hockey, at least the National League variety, isn't making hay with the sports-page headlines after weeks of playing second fiddle to the gridiron goings-on. The pros came up with their biggest weekend of the NHL campaign with: 34 goals in five games, the best (anyway, the longest) free-for-all of the 1951-52 schedule and Max Bentley's National Hockey League goal.

The boys fattened up their averages, particularly Toronto Maple Leafs who picked up 10 goals—a high-powered 8-2 Saturday victory over New York Rangers and a rough-house 2-1 decision over Detroit Red Wings Sunday. The double victory left Leafs only two points behind the league-leading Wings.

It was a black-bordered weekend for the Rangers and goalkeeper Chuck Rayner. The big foghorn-voiced netminder probably is hoarse today after Chicago Black Hawks sent the Blueshirts into the cellar position with a 6-4 decision at Chicago Sunday.

In all, Rayner allowed 14 pucks past him in the 120 minutes of weekend Ranger play, the worst showing of any team this year.

In Third Place

Montreal Canadiens remained in third place with a split in their weekend doubleheader. They defeated Chicago 4-2 Saturday and lost 4-1 at Boston Sunday as the Bruins picked up their first home victory of the season before 8,063 fans.

Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens rocked with the cheers of 11,613 spectators Saturday when Bentley, 31-year-old wheat farmer from Delisle, Sask., bagged the 200th goal of his NHL career which started with the Hawks in the 1940-41 game. The Leafs picked up 22 points in the Ranger game.

Things weren't so easy against the Wings Sunday night, although the Stanley Cup champions held a 2-0 lead on goals by Cal Gardner and Harry Watson before Sid Abel scored for Detroit in the second period. Then the fireworks started.

Eight Players In Act

Eight players got into the act, four from each team, and it took officials nearly 20 minutes to straighten things out and stop the verbal wrangling that eventually involved general manager Jack Adams of Detroit. Seven assorted penalties were handed out to five men for a total of 28 minutes.

If the players have any issues to settle, they'll be given the chance at Toronto Wednesday when their clubs meet again.

Rangers held a 3-2 first-period edge over the Hawks and went into the final 20 minutes in a 4-4 tie before Chicago, paced by Bill Mosienko who scored two and assisted in three other goals, came up with the winners. A crowd of 10,117 saw the game.

Boston Bruins, who haven't had much luck after an early-season spurt, sewed up the Sunday game against Canadiens with a 2-1 second-period lead on goals by recruits Dave Creighton and Jack McIntyre from Hershey in the American League. Veterans Dunc Fisher and Milt Schmidt wound up the Boston scoring in the final period.

Bruins had some whenieHg Bruins had gone nine straight games on home ice without a victory and had not taken a decision anywhere since they won Nov. 4 in Chicago. Dick Gamble, who scored a goal in Montreal's Saturday victory over the Hawks, netted the lone Canadien tally.

Boucher Wants Overtime Back

TORONTO, Dec. 3 (CP). — Frank Boucher, general manager of the New York Ranger Hockey Club, Saturday reiterated his opinion that overtime hockey is "a partial solution to the attendance problems which plague three United States teams in the National Hockey League."

He was speaking to a general meeting of the Toronto Hockey League.

"Overtime is a vital part of hockey," he said. "We should reinstitute the 10-minute sudden-death overtime period to convince the fans that we are at least trying to come to a decision."

The former NHL centre star also thought hockey might have to get rid of the centre red line.

"The game of hockey, like all things, should progress. We can get rid of the red line, but there must be something positive to replace it."

Elimination of the red line would allow players to shoot from their own end of the ice at the opposition goal without being called for icing the puck if it misses.

UN Designation In Korea Charged Farce

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Rep. George H. H. Bender, Ohio Republican, declared Saturday that putting the UN label on Allied military forces fighting in Korea, is a disgraceful farce because the United States had contributed 50.6 per cent of the total forces.

Bender said that at a constituent's request, he checked the percentages of forces supplied by all nations to the Korean campaign. The information is official and has been cleared by this country's security board, he added in a statement.

These figures "are shocking in their revelation that our government has furnished 98.24 per cent of all air forces engaged in Korea, 83.81 per cent of the naval forces, and 88 per cent of all the ground forces outside of those furnished by the South Korean Government itself," Bender said.

Bender's figures showed that 50.31 per cent of the ground forces are from the United States.

Bender gave this breakdown of the forces fighting for the UN in Korea:

Newsmen In Camp For Pregnant Wives

ISMAILIA, Egypt, Dec. 3 (AP)—The British Army moved 15 British and American news correspondents into the "pregnant women's camp" Saturday and classified them for administrative purposes as "officers' wives." Some correspondents protested.

The War Office in London said it couldn't understand the beef. A spokesman said the step probably was taken to keep the correspondents from getting shot in the current British-Egyptian crisis in the Suez Canal zone. He added the quarters were most comfortable, having been used as a sort of nursing home for British officers' wives before most of the wives were evacuated.

PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

VOL. CIII. No. 129 MONDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1951 PRICE FIVE CENTS

Just Politics

"What are the kids out of school for?" a young lady asked her female companion in a restaurant today. "It's election day," was the answer. "What election?" The companion replied "The election for mayor; the provincial election was last week." Pause. "But Hugh Waddell got in as mayor by acclamation." Pause. "Oh, oh yes." The first young lady said, "I don't pay much attention to them."

Three Appeals, One Allowed By N. Monaghan

Three appeals were heard Saturday at the North Monaghan township court of revision. One appeal was allowed but the other two were turned down.

The Canadian National Railways asked that their assessment on 5.3 miles of telegraph poles and wires be reduced from $290 to $53.

Only two of the five wires are being used for commercial purposes, the written appeal stated. The other three are used exclusively for running of trains.

The appeal was granted.

Norman Fletcher, Fagan Ave., asked that the assessment on his six-acre property (south part of Lot 5, Concession 13) be reduced from $300 to $200.

He said the original assessment was $200 and he did not think the land was underassessed.

Members of the court thought that $50 an acre was a fair figure and they confirmed the assessment.

Charles Ross, Wallace Drive, asked that the assessment on his property, Lot 10, Concession 13, be reduced from $1,600. It was boosted $400 this year.

Garage Built

Mr. Ross said that the only change on his property was a 20 ft. by 12 ft. concrete block garage, partially complete.

This too was confirmed by the court.

John Hatherly, RR 3 Peterborough, asked that he be assessed as a separate school supporter. John Dewart, Simcoe St., asked that Manson Cathcart be assessed for part of Lot 1, Concession 9. He had previously sold the land, assessed at $75, to Mr. Cathcart.

Both requests were granted.

The assessor, Henry Batten, was instructed to investigate the assessment for Mrs. Margaret Harding, Downie St.

Mrs. Harding said she bought a parcel of land for about the same price as a similar parcel bought by her husband. Yet she was assessed $200 and he was assessed $100.

Reeve Willard Waterman was chairman. Others were Councillors Archibald Patterson, Walter Brown and Lloyd Whittington. They were assisted by Mr. Batten and Stewart Sparling, county assessor.

Six Criminal Cases Before Court

Theft, Wounding, Forgery In List To Last Two Weeks

Six criminal cases are listed for the general sessions of the peace for Peterborough county, beginning at 2 pm today before Judge S. L. Smoke.

Jack Allen Cockerill, Holloway Dr., is charged with the theft of bronze ingots from the Outboard Marine Co., valued at $750.

Cockerill was tried at the general sessions of the peace in June but a jury failed to reach a verdict.

Mrs. Jennie Delaire, Elm St., is charged with wounding her husband with intent last August. It is alleged that she slashed the throat of her husband Sylvester.

Forgery Charges

Hugh Imming, formerly of Peterborough, and Francis Sabotka, Oshawa, are both charged with forgery. A grand jury brought in a true bill against them in June but Crown Attorney John Bradshaw, KC, asked that their trials be held over.

Morley Simmons, Belmont township trucker, is charged with dangerous driving after an injury to a soldier in Norwood earlier this year.

J. L. Paquette, Crescent St., is charged with false pretences.

Four people have submitted petitions for citizenship, three of them Chinese. They are Henry Hum, Hum Wing Dick, Hugh Wong and Christina Portsmith.

Court is expected to last for two weeks at least.

DR. STANLEY BRAUND

Dr. S. Braund Dies Suddenly Of Heart Attack

Well-known in the city and among Stony lake cottagers, Dr. Stanley Braund, 657 Bethune St., died suddenly today at his home. He was 51.

For the past 20 years, Dr. Braund practiced dentistry in Peterborough. Before that, he practiced for seven years in Milton, Ont., after graduating from University of Toronto dental school.

On Sunday Dr. Braund appeared in good health, but suffered a slight heart attack Sunday evening. This morning, he collapsed shortly after getting up, and died not long after.

Ardent Sailor

Dr. Braund was president this year of the Stony Lake Cottagers' Association and in previous years had been a director. Often a judge at sailing races on that lake, he made a hobby of boats. His cabin cruiser The Lady, was a familiar sight to cottagers on Stony and Clear Lakes.

A former member of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club, he was a member of the Peterborough Dental Society, the Royal College of Dental Surgeons and of the Peterborough Club.

Born in Peterborough, Dr. Braund was a son of the former Essie Law and the late John Thomas Braund. He was a member of George St. United Church.

Surviving are his widow, his mother, three sons Bruce of Kingston, John and Richard at home, and one daughter, Mrs. John Lowes (Mary), of Peterborough. There are two brothers, Ernest C Braund of Peterborough, Dr. J. Eldon Braund of Toronto, and one sister, Miss Phyllis Braund, also of Toronto.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church will conduct funeral service at 2 pm Wednesday in the Belleghem funeral home, assisted by Captain J. D. Sharp of the Salvation Army. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Six Injured In 3 Crashes Within City

Four Hurt As 3 Cars Collide At Corner On Edge of City

Six people were injured in three accidents on city streets Saturday night.

Four were injured in a three-car collission at Wolsley St., and the Chemong Road, just before eight o'clock.

Injured and in hospital are: Mrs. Rose Galvin, 181 Hazlitt St., a passenger in one of the cars and Benjamin Caldwell, of Bridgenorth, one of the drivers involved and his wife.

Wallace Shearer, 246½ Antrim St., another of the drivers was given outpatient treatment for abrasions to both knees and glass cuts on his forehead.

Mrs. Galvin received a fractur- and left thigh, fractured jaw, lacerated tongue and cuts and bruises about the head. Her condition is described as fair. She was a passenger in the car driven by Shearer.

Mrs. Caldwell is recovering from lacerations to her right forearm and abrasions to her right thigh and left leg. Her condition is reported as satisfactory.

Her husband received lacerations to the face, head and hands and is also recovering satisfactorily.

Pedestrian Hit

Mrs. Monica Whaley, 335 McDonnel St., received a compeund fracture of the right leg and scrapes and bruises when struck by a car driven by Mrs. May Thompson, 50 McDonnel St., as she was crossing McDonnel St. at Downie St., at 5.40 in the evening.

Mrs. Whaley was taken to hospital where her condition is described as good.

Injured in a three-car collision at Hunter and Stewart streets at 7.30 Saturday night, John T. Wolff 429 Downie St., received an injured right shoulder and bruises to his right side. He was given first aid treatment at the scene by Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick and taken to hospital where X-rays revealed his shoulder was not broken. Wolff was allowed to return home after receiving treatment.

The accident on the Chemong Rd., occurred when one car collided with the rear of another and then crossed the road out of control, colliding head-on with a third car.

Struck On Rear

Gerald Willis, 400 Wolsley St., told police he had just turned south on the Chemong Rd., when his car was struck in the rear by a southbound car.

After colliding with Willis' car, the second car driven by Benjamin Caldwell of Bridgenorth, veered across the road directly into the path of a northbound car driven by Wallace Shearer. No brake marks from any of the cars showed on the road, said police.

The two cars which collided head-on were jammed tightly together and a tow truck was required to pull them apart and clear the road.

Willis who escaped from the accident with a shaking up told police he had stopped at the intersection of Wolsley St., and the

Egg Prices Slip As Production Runs Too High

A decrease in egg prices in the United States and an overproduction of broilers has caused the price of eggs, Grade "A" large, medium and small, to decrease on the wholesale market five cents in the past week.

A wholesaler explained today that the main reason for the drop is that the hatcheries are refusing to accept eggs because farmers already have more broiler chickens than they can sell. These eggs are being offered on the regular market.

Another reason is the decrease in egg prices in the United States where the surplus egg production in Canada is shipped. There the wholesalers refuse to pay the prices asked and these eggs are offered on the Canadian market.

Both have affected the market causing a surplus in Canada, resulting in a decrease across the border.

A week ago Grade "A" large eggs were bought by wholesalers for 52c a dozen and today were bought at 47c. The other sizes, medium and small, have decreased accordingly, mediums bought at 45c and small at 43c.

Reds Crush Towns In Turn Fear Hoiping Next On List

Hoiping, district from which many Chinese in Peterborough and Ontario come, is about to feel the sting of the Red conqueror's lash, according to the latest word received from China by a former Peterborough man, now living in Boston. Two of its neighboring towns, Chungsan and Toishan have felt the scourge of the Communist way of life. Now reports indicate, it is the turn of Hoiping to suffer. So both the Chinese at home and in Canada and the United States are bracing themselves for the inevitable demands for money and the imprisonment, torture and death which will stalk the streets of the village and its neighboring area in the coming months.

During the early part of this year Communist wrath descended upon Toishan. The Farmers' Association struck without warning all over town, gathering up its victims. These included anyone with a little land, clothing or jewelery.

Those with the most in material goods faced three kinds of punishment, the first of which was hard labor.

Torture Family

The second form of punishment was to make an entire family kneel on gravel-like sharp glass, from dawn until evening. No one was allowed to say, "I can't do it." They had to kneel there all day in the broiling sun and with no food. Even babies were included in this routine. Many suffered dreadful cuts.

A third method of showing Red superiority was the one where a citizen was ordered to stay inside the house. If it was necessary to leave it, the unhappy man had to strike a bell three times and let the people around know he would be outside. No one was allowed to speak to such a person and everyone on the surface was an enemy. When the man came back, he had to strike a bell again to warn people of his return. Needless to say, very little such wandering is permitted, the Boston man declared.

Toishan is nearly finished. It has been milked dry and the people of Hoiping know that they cannot hope to escape any more than their neighbors.

"The only thing we can do over here is sit tight and hope for the best, and that it will all end some day before too long," the Boston man declared.

Discuss Action

In Boston, as in other centres across North America, the Chinese are trying to decide what is the best course of action. They have little choice, pay up till there is no more money left or wait word that their families have been imprisoned and shot.

A few days ago, this former Peterborough man said, the Boston Nationalist Association decided to act. Many people there have received ransom demands and a meeting was summoned in the Chinese Assembly Hall to discuss means of dealing with the Red blackmail racket. The main item under consideration was the halting altogether of cheques sent to China via Hong Kong. Most of those present were agreed on the necessity of some such action, but some pointed out that if all the money was stopped many of their families would starve even if they weren't victims of the Red squeeze play.

Method of Red operation was outlined to those at the meeting. The District Farmers Association generally arrests the son or some other member of any family which has anything, no matter how small, that is worth money. Then a telegram is sent to the Chinese overseas demanding so much money for the son's freedom.

One Boston man was asked for $50. This was sent and within two weeks a further demand for $1,000 (US) was received. This man paid again and an immediate request for $5,000 was sent winging across the Pacific.

As presented to the Boston Chinese the problem is this: are they

Car Rolls Over Two Are Hurt

A 20-year-old mother and her five-months-old baby daughter were injured just before noon on Sunday when a car overturned twice on Highway 7A near Blackstock.

They were both taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, and the condition of the mother, Mrs. Donald McQuaid, RR 2, Omemee, was described as "not too serious" Sunday night. She received undetermined internal injuries in the accident.

The baby whose head injuries were first thought to be serious, is improving according to hospital officials.

Righted Car

Donald McQuaid worked himself free from the old model canvas top roadster after it came to rest on its roof, righted the car alone and pulled his young wife and infant daughter Betty Ann from the wreckage.

He was not injured in the accident.

Mr. McQuaid was driving his family to Oshawa when the brakes seized and the car went out of control, rolling over twice. The accident occurred about 25 miles southwest of Omemee.

Dr. M. Langfield of Bethany was called to the scene and took Mrs. McQuaid and her injured baby to hospital in Peterborough.

Baby Girl Chokes Dies In Her Bed

Carol Anne Spencer, six-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Spencer, Concession St., Lakefield, was suffocated Sunday morning in her crib.

The little girl was found by her mother who was the last to see the child alive, at 2:30 am when she was "perfectly healthy".

Dr. L. O. Bailey placed the child's death at between 6-7 am Sunday and said that the baby had vomited, then in breathing, choked herself.

Besides the parents, surviving there is another child, 16-months-old son, Arthur.

The funeral will be direct to the Young's Point cemetery at 10 am.

$1 Million Bonds For Additions To Two Schools

LINDSAY, Dec. 3.—The Victoria County Council have decided to issue debentures totalling $1,050,000 for renovations and additions to Lindsay Collegiate Institute and Fenelon Falls high school, subject to the approval of the municipalities in the county.

This decision was made Friday night at a meeting of the council. The meeting was also attended by four representatives of the district high school board.

Proposed additions to the two schools, when completed, will accommodate 910 students and a possible 1,200. At present there is a daily attendance at both schools of 885.

F. L. Weldon, county clerk, reported that the government had agred to pay 75 per cent on $890,000 and the county would be required to pay the remaining 25 per cent and total remaining cost above $890,000.

Tax Rate

He estimated that the annual costs to the county would be a little more than one mill and bring the total cost to the county to three and-half mills.

The clerk also explained that it was necessary for the municipalities in the area to make application to the county council for assurance that debentures would be issued before the council could do anything.

Reeve Read, Bobcaygeon then moved that the council approve the district board's actions to date and that when proper application had been made by the municipalities, the county would issue the debentures.

Representing the district board at the council meeting were Jasper Forman, Herb McFadden, John Deyell and J. Stanley Dix, secretary.

Public Disturbance

Four men charged with causing a public disturbance on Queen St., in the early hours of Sunday morning were given adjournments until December 24 when they appeared in police court today.

They were: Neil Paudash, 21, RR 2, Keene; Raymond Mark, 28, 467 Parnell St., Max Meharry, 675 Cameron St., and Bill Sorg, 18, 524 Bronson Ave., Ottawa.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw requested the adjournments.

Man Wounded In Shotgun Blast

An accidental shotgun blast may cost Patrick O'Neill, 50, RR 1 Peterborough, his left leg.

O'Neill was hunting near Mossley (London, Ont., district) Saturday with his son-in-law, Angus Pecoskie, RR 1, Mosley. Police report that the two hunters stopped for a smoke and the hammer of Pecoskie's shotgun caught in his shirt.

The blast struck O'Neill in the left leg, fracturing it and filling it with buckshot.

Doctors said Sunday night that O'Neill's condition is satisfactory but it will be a couple of days before they will know whether or not his leg will have to be amputated.

He is in St. Joseph's Hospital, London.

Car Hits Child Fractures Skull

Seven-year-old Ruth Manley, 705 George St., was seriously injured at 6:15 Saturday night, when she ran into the side of a moving car at George St. and Parkhill Rd.

She received a fractured skull and her condition was described as serious by hospital officials today.

The driver of the car Kenneth Rose, RR 6, Peterborough, was driving north on George St., and told police he did not see the girl until just before she ran headlong into the side of his car.

Rose applied his brakes and left a skid mark of 28 feet in coming to a stop.

Dr. Don Clarke administered first aid to the injured girl at the accident and she was taken to hospital where she was treated by Dr. Robert Young.

Constable William G. Scott investigated.

Man Thrown From Car In Highway Crash

Stephen Miller, 64, Indian River got away with only a few scratches Saturday when he was thrown from his car and landed on the highway. The accident was two miles north of Peterborough on Highway 7.

Miller was driving south when he attempted to pass another southbound car. He saw he wasn't going to make it so he tried to pull back into the line of traffic. But before he could do so, he collided with an oncoming car driven by William Beatty, 65, RR 4, Peterborough.

The impact jarred Miller from his seat and he was thrown out onto the road. His car continued on, out of control, for 70 yards and ran into the ditch.

Damage to both vehicles totalled $276.

OPP Constable Jim Healey investigated.

Mrs. Bertha Nichol Retires After 31 Years

For one CGE worker the whistles today had little meaning, although they have had for the past 31 years.

Mrs. Bertha Nichol retired on Friday after more than 31 years service with the company. Early in October she and her husband, Oscar, moved to their new home at Baltimore, north of Cobourg, and there she will handle the one job, housekeeping.

On July 19, 1920, Mrs. Nichol began to work for the CGE in the accounting department and worked there throughout the 31 years.

Before starting at the CGE she placed an application with another Peterborough company but when there was no immediate answer, accepted the position in the CGE.

Seven years later the other firm notified her the position was open but Mrs. Nichol refused the change.

Voting In City Begins Light

Voting in the city was light this morning, four polling places reported just before press time today.

At poll 2 in King Edward School, 10 of a possible 350 had voted. At poll 29 in Queen Mary School, 27 of a possible 312 had cast ballots.

Voting was no heavier in the north end. Poll 43B on Benson Ave. reported 12 of 124 had voted. And in Ashburnham, poll 36, on Armour Rd., reported voting on "about normal."

After-Work Rush

All expect the after-work rush from 4 pm on today, when the majority of the ballots will probably be cast.

Results of today's voting in the city and five municipalities in the county will be broadcast tonight by the Examiner, starting at 7.45. Other municipalities voting today are the village of Havelock and Harvey, Dummer, Belmont-Methuen, and Otonabee townships.

Detroit Pupils Art Work Exhibited In Public Library

One of the most remarkable exhibits to appear on the walls of the Public Library gallery is a showing of Detroit school pupils' work. This is an exchange exhibit between Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School and Burrroughs Intermediate School in Detroit, with Zoltan Temesy, PCVS art teacher, as the directing hand at the Peterborough end of the exchange.

At the same time the Detroit students' work is showing here, a cargo of Peterborough pupils' painting is on view in Detroit. The exhibition was officially opened at the Library Saturday evening by Dr. C. D. Gaitskell, director of art in the Ontario Department of Education. Mr. Temesy introduced Dr. Gaitskell to the audience, and he gave a short talk.

Urban Themes

Burroughs Intermediate School houses some 1,600 pupils of grades 7 to 9, aged between 12 to 15. Their work reflects with astonishing vitality the crowded urban, industrial environment in which they live. It as a remarkable contrast to the themes of the Peterborough pupils. And while there is obvious freedom of subjects and expression in the Detroit students' painting, a considerable technical skill is evident.

Subject for their brushes and pens are supermarkets, television in the home, factories (a great many of these), traffic, buses, and skylines. There are no landscapes at all.

Good Understanding

The nearest these pupils' eyes come to nature are back yards, a few trees along city streets, and skating on a park pond. There is one still life, quite a notable piece of work, but the best is of factories at closing time, streets at rush hours, school scenes, and the towering skyline. These are seen vividly and set down with good understanding.

The many pieces, mostly watercolors in rectangles a couple of feet wide, reveal much about the school, the pupils, and their life. They have achieved a quiet in the midst of factories, signs and crowds; a poise; they have emerged from their environment clean, bright, good-humored — and individual.

A most interesting exhibit to see. Mounted beside each picture is newly-printed explanation of the picture, done in the pupil's own words. The exhibition continues until Friday. T. J. A.

Pork, Eggs Help To Ease Living Costs

OTTAWA, Dec. 3—(CP)—Pigs and hens are helping to apply the brakes to a record climb in living costs.

With pork and eggs now reaching peak production, prices of the two items have eased. Lower pork and egg prices helped take most of the steam out of September's cost-of-living index rise.

How successful the hens and pigs will be in October, will be disclosed Tuesday when the Bureau of Statistics issues its latest survey of the prices barometer.

During September the index made the smallest climb in five months—six-tenths of a point to a peak of 190.4. This compared with the record monthly climb of 4.5 points in February. The index is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

During that month, the Bureau observed, lower pork and egg prices offset gains in other food items to push down the food sub-index for the second consecutive month.

So far this year, the index has made one climb after another, boosting the index 15.2 points to 190.4 from 175.2 in January.

But lately a new trend appears to be developing on the prices horizon. The Bureau reports that during October, wholesale prices declined for the third successive month. The general index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined to 239.6 in October from 240.1 in September and 241.5 in August. In July at was 244.2.

Whether that will have any immediate impact on retail family budget items is questionable.

Different Situation

On perishable goods, retail prices are quick to follow declines on the wholesale side, but on durable goods, storekeepers sometimes stockpile goods for months ahead. They are not in the market for new supplies until they have disposed of current stocks.

Another factor to be considered in Tuesday's survey is rent — an important cost-of-living index item—which is surveyed every quarter.

Rents will be included in Tuesday's estimate.

Here is quick run-down of index sub-group standings for September, with August estimates in brackets:

Food, 251.1 (249.7); rent, 142.7 (142.7); fuel and light, 150.2 (149.5); clothing, 213.8 (206.9); homefurnishings, 200.1 (199.1); miscellaneous, 144.3 (144.0).

Royal Tour Orchid Wins Merit Award

LONDON — (CP)—Award of merit by The Royal Horticultural Society goes to "Canadian Welcome," a new variety of the world-famous "Bow Bells" orchid, well-known on Canadian markets.

The white orchid, in the form of a bouquet, was presented to Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret at a reception in London's Guildhall, given Nov. 19, as a "Welcome Home" to Elizabeth after the royal tour of Canada.

"Canadian Welcome," a Cattleya orchid, was grown by Peter Black, director of an orchid-growing firm, in honor of the Canadian visit.

Needed Food

HAMMOND, Ind., Dec. 3 (AP)—An elderly Polish woman Sunday admitted burning her home "because you can't eat a house," authorities reported. Fire Chief Sargent said Mrs. Theresa Meda, 71, told him she set fire to the small frame house Saturday so she and her husband, Andrew, could qualify for poor relief. She said they had been without fuel or food for a week.

Yukon Bard Robt. Service Now Melancholy

MONTE CARLO, Dec. 3—(AP)—Robert W. Service, author of The Shooting of Dan McGrew and nearly 1,000 other verses, still is grinding out rhymes, but most of them are in a melancholy vein.

The one-time vagabond, cowboy, bank manager and adventurer in the gold rush days, who still considers himself a Canadian, is not at ease with the world.

The old bard of the Yukon, nearly 78, says:

"I'm disgusted with life, I'm almost an anarchist. I no longer believe in anything but nature. I feel very close to nature, which gives peace, happiness and tranquility.

"I would like to turn my back on the world and live with nature. If I didn't have a family, I would withdraw to a monastery."

Writes About Suffering

Interviewed in his comfortable third-floor apartment, Service said sombrely: "I like to wrote about misery and suffering. Suffering is good for humanity. Man is ennobled by suffering. It is suffering that drives him on to better himself."

Gazing out at the blue Mediterranean, Service added:

"I have a great esteem for men who work; for those who don't have the advantages I have."

He glanced around his apartment, jammed with 2,000 books, and mused:

"They haven't been lucky. I have all the comfort I could desire, but it's only chance I'm not in their place."

Reporter Trying To Clarify Fighting Orders

(Editor's Note: In a dispatch cleared Sunday through general headquarters censorship of General Ridgway's United Nations command, Robert Eunson, chief of the Associated Press staff in Japan and Korea, reported further details concerning military directives which led to a temporary halt in ground fighting along the Korean front-lines.)

By ROBERT EUNSON.

TOKYO, Dec. 2 — (AP), — (Passed by Censor). — A source considered extremely reliable told this correspondent that the following order was read to a battalion of the US 1st Corps on November 28, 1951, and was signed by Maj.-Gen. John W. O'-Daniel, corps commander:

"Preamble—It will be impressed on all troops that hostilities will continue until a cease-fire agreement is reached. During the remainder of armistice negotiations, every effort will be made to avoid casualties and to demonstrate our willingness to honor a cease-fire.

"The policy will be:

1. Avoid all casualties.
2. Demonstrate willingness to honor a cease-fire.
3. Maintain present defensive will be sent out.
4. Reconnaissance patrols only positions.
5. Avoid engaging the enemy unless he threatens our positions by fire or movement.
6. No offensive operatives, including raids.
7. Artillery and mortar fire will be limited to counter-battery only.
8. Defensive fire will be only against enemy attacks including concentrations of enemy troops threatening our positions or against fire in support of a counter-attack.
9. No exposure of our own troops on features that would draw enemy fire."

Similar Orders

This correspondent has reason to believe these same orders were handed down to all front-line troops in Korea.

The above presumed orders were followed by new directives issued Nov. 29. This correspondent was informed that the following is a paraphrase of the new directive issued to the same battalion:

To avoid misunderstandings, the policy will be:

1. Method—present forward defence localities will be maintained. Offensive and defencive action as necessary to maintain them will be continued.
2. Patrolling—Patrolling will be confined to aggressive reconnaissance patrols.
3. Artillery—Enemy fire will be retaliated in the ratio of 5 to 1. Harassing and counter-battery fire will be on known gun positions and enemy locations. Enemy in the open will be engaged but suspected enemy movements will not be engaged.
4. Our positions will continue to be improved.
5. All normal precautions will still apply.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP)—What may be a clue to the fate of Fergus J. Ferguson, 73, who disappeared during the $300,000 Hotel Talbot fire a week ago, was found today in the ruins. It was a shoe, thought to belong to the missing man. However, no trace of the body was discovered.

Present Prizes At Grove's Rugby Supper

LAKEFIELD, Dec. 3 (ENS).—A successful rugby season came to a close Saturday night at Lakefield Preparatory School, when the annual rugby supper was held, attended by the board of governors, staff, boys and guests.

The Grove Hall was decorated for the occasion with red and green streamers hung from the rafters and along the table edges. A centre piece depicting the first team in action was on the first team's table. This was made by PO Chief Lee, cadet trainer and long-time member of the Grove staff.

At the termination of the supper J. Mockridge, one of the board of governors, and a former old boy, proposed the toast to the school. The reply to the school toast was given by William Rashleigh, assistant headmaster.

A. Derrick, Grove English teacher, proposed the toast to the first team. Mr. Derrick said that, although he was comparatively new to eastern Canadian football, he was impressed by the qualities of courage, physical and mental ability that must be present in those players who made the first team. Mr. Derrick pointed out that rugby was no game for the individual performer, but that co-operation was needed from every player before victory could be considered. He said in closing that Bill Boyd, captain of the first team, and Robin Legate, star half, had shown that courage which had inspired the team and had brought them through a successful season.

Edgar Moore, coach of the first team, replied to this toast, thanking the boys for their splendid co-operation throughout the rugby term and congratulating them on their successful season. Mr. Moore was then presented with a silver engraved cup by the team captain, Bill Boyd, who thanked him for the time he had spent in building up and fielding the rugby team.

The captains of the 14's rugby team and the first and second soccer teams were called upon and they in turn thanked the coaches, Andy Haris, Gerry Staples, and Hugh Ketchum, and presented them with gifts.

Mr. Rashleigh and Christopher Gledhill, Grove music teachers, then led the school in a rugby song written by Mr. Rashleigh.

Mrs. J. Ryder, mother of two boys attending the school, one of whom is quarterback of the first team, presented prizes to the outstanding performers on this team, and prizes for sports events held during the term as follows (in order of senior, intermediate, junior, midget):

Cricket ball—Legate, Birchard, Easten, Robertson; broad jump—Legate, Creswicke, Grant II, Deacon II; high jump — Powell I, Edange, Grant II, Deacon II; 100 yard dash, Fitzgerald Cup — Gibault, Sinclair, Easten, Deacon II; pole vault, Mrs. Mackenzie Prize—Finn; 200 yard dash —Legate, Hall, Easten, Deacon II; hurdles—Legate, Edange, Easten, Deacon II; sack race—Boyd, Esson, Davis; obstacle race—Boyd, Hibbard, Sherwood; dormitory relay—Dormitory 3; championships — Legate, Edange, Easten, Deacon II; half-mile —Ryder I, Delamere, Baker, Deacon II; Seaforth handicap—Uren, Creswicke, Skey, Southby; Cowley handicap—Deacon I first in, Uren time prize, Rogers I, Beeman, Brook. Salvation Theme At Anniversary

HAVELOCK, Dec. 3—(ENS)—The Rev. F. Wicks, of Coe Hill Gospel Church, was the guest speaker at special services at the Baptist Mission on Sunday. The occasion was the celebration of the second anniversary of the mission, and both services were largely attended.

Mr. Wicks expressed his appreciation at being able to share with the congregation on their anniversary occasion, the pleasure he felt in renewing acquaintances in this district. He recalled that 27 years ago he came to Havelock from Oak Lake with Edward Hubble for a prayer meeting; mentioning several other occasions when he had visited Havelock which included taking a service in the mission during the leadership of Mrs. J. Kinnaird.

Mr. Wicks delivered two sermons. In the morning he took as his subject "The Judgement of the Church," basing his remarks on the last portion of the tenth chapter of Hebrews. He divided his discourse into four parts, the time, the place of judgment, the Judge, and the purpose.

In the evening, Mr. Wicks' subject was "Salvation." He said salvation and Christianity are one and the same, for if a man has salvation he has Christ. The joy of salvation, he said, was another essential element and a normal experience for a Christian. The first song recorded in the Bible he said, is to be found in Exodus after the sprinkling of the blood and signified the joy of a redeemed people.

Prayer was offered by Mr. Wicks' son, Everett Wicks, and Mr. Phippen, both of Peterborough. A cornet trio, comprising Ronald Addison, of New Glasgow, NS, John Winn and Robert Johnson, of Pembroke, students at the Eastern Pentecostal Bible School, Peterborough, played several selections at the evening services. The services were conducted by the pastor, Lawrence Bigelow, and Mrs. B. Smith was the pianist.

More Canadians Sail To Europe For NATO Army

QUEBEC, Dec. 3 (CP) — The 1st Canadian Highland Battalion and other 27th Brigade personnel sailed Sunday for Europe to join other Canadian troops placed at the disposal of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defence force.

The sailing of 700 troops aboard the 3,500-ton Canberra marked the second time the liner has taken 27th Brigade troops to Rotterdam.

The Canberra's first sailing was Nov. 5 with specialists of the 5,500-man brigade. The rifle and infantry battalions and a few other troops of the brigade—about 3,100 men in all—are already stationed in Germany.

From Rotterdam, the Highland battalion and dental, provost and medical corps men, will travel by train to the brigade camp near Hannover in the British sector of Western Germany.

The Highland battalion, under the command of Lt.-Col. R. L. Rutherford of Winnipeg, veteran of the Second World War, is made up of companies from the Black Watch, Montreal, the 38th Highlanders, Toronto, the Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver, the Canadian Scottish, Victoria, BC, and the North Nova Scotia Highlanders.

It was trained at nearby Valcartier Camp.

On hand for the departure were Brig. M. P. (Pat) Bogert, director general of military training at army headquarters in Ottawa, Brig. Frank Fleury, commander of Eastern Quebec Military Area, and Col. D. F. Forbes, infantry director at army headquarters.

The Most Rev. Maurice Roy, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec paid a surprise visit to the ship to bid the troops "bon voyage."

Two men of the battalion's pipe band, which also sailed, piped the Archbishop down from the Canberra before the gangplank was pulled away.

The battalion sailed in high spirits as the pipe band aboard the Canberra and the band of the 22nd Regiment on the dock played favorite tunes for them.

A small group of relatives were at the dock.

The sailing was the fifth and last from Quebec since the brigade's main advance party set out Oct. 21.

Due to the impending close of St. Lawrence river navigation, departures will be from Halifax—probably December 8 and December 13—bringing the brigade to full overseas strength.

OTTAWA AND WINDSOR

This clever young teen-ager stretches her Yule-time budget by making gifts for her holiday list. Well before Christmas Eve, a special tie for a special beau, is ready for final touches (left). For Dad, a plaid-covered tobacco pouch is a pride-worthy gift (above left), and for a hobbyist brother, an ordinary album becomes handsome with the addition of a pipe-and-smoke-adorned straw-mat cover (below left). Other easy-to-make presents are, for mother, a neckpiece of velvet ribbon and rhinestone trim (above center); and for various girl friends, a desk set of straw-matting and millinery braid (below center), a yarn-trimmed book-jacket (above right), and a striking belt of grosgrain ribbon and ordinary hinges from the hardware store or the dime store (below right).

Helping Teen-Agers Solve Christmas Gift Problem

Teen-agers who are faced with the problem each Christmas of stretching a short budget over a long gift list often feel that inexpensive is synonymous with cheap. Your presents need not look that way at all, if you're willing to start your holiday planning early enough to allow your creative talent to get into the act.

Almost any male on your list would be pleased with a tie with a custom-made look about it. A grey flannel one, adorned with machine-worked coin-dots in a lighter tone of grey, is sure to win his praise and pride.

One of your dad's old ties can serve as a pattern. Pin this guide to your new fabric and cut, making sure the old tie is placed on the bias of the fabric. Roll and baste a quarter-inch hem on both points of the tie, and machine stitch in place.

Add your polka dots before folding the tie. To make the dots quickly and easily, use the new stitching technique for machine embroidery. You don't need a special attachment. Simply drop the feed of your sewing machine and thread the bobbin with embroidery thread. Use silk on the spool pin for your upper threading, and you're ready to make your dots, moving the needle in a spiral stitch.

If you're a novice at sewing, expert guidance in learning this and other techniques for decorative stitching may be obtained at your local sewing centre.

When your dots are all completed, fold your tie, following the original fold line of your pattern, turn under the raw edges of fabric, and slip-stitch both sides together.

A Tobacco Pouch

A bright plaid tobacco pouch is a good choice for the pipe smoker on your list, and very simple to make.

Begin by purchasing—for the lining — a plain commercially-made tobacco holder, of plastic or oiled silk. Then measure the length of this liner, remembering to add additional inches for the part that folds up to form the pocket.

Next measure the width, and add one and a half inches to both measurements for hems. Cut a rectangle this size from a sturdy plaid fabric, and, turning under all raw edges one-quarter inch, machine-stitch around its outlines.

When this is finished, pin the plaid material to the plastic pouch, folding the fabric edges over the plastic one-half inch all around. Machine-stitch in place, and the job is done.

Making Book Cover

A book cover should please those friends, or members of your family, who are students or collectors of special volumes. These, as you know from making brown-paper covers back in your grade-school days, are easy to concoct. Use a standard book or a favorite volume borrowed from their shelves to get necessary measurements.

Make the cover a gay, sturdy fabric, and, for a decorative touch, choose a bright-colored yarn and whip-stitch by hand around all outer edges of the cover.

Almost any girl whose wardrobe is comprised of skirts and sweaters or tailored dresses would appreciate a belt made from grosgrain ribbon and ordinary hinges from the hardware store.

Open the hinges out flat and thread narrow red grosgrain through the holes in each end, stitching on wrong side to hold. Thread narrow green grosgrain through centre holes, across the hinge joint.

Then sew the hinges to the wideblack grosgrain in a geometric pattern, using the gold ribbon to form a border that repeats the tawny color of the hinges and accents the black ribbon. Close with snaps. A matching bracelet can be made in similar fashion, from measurements fitted to the individual wrist.
